SENATOR SAM BRATTON IN THE PICTURE

Senator Sam G. Bratton of New Mexico "delivered" a Labor Day speech in the city of Los Angeles. He expressed his belief that the American capitalistic system is on trial before the national jury. Senator Bratton is a lawyer and a democrat. He turned himself loose. He said: "Government is under obligations to make it possible for every citizen to earn a living for himself and his family."

Well, employers of laborers, executives, major and minor, have been required to show wonderful fortitude and strength of character to carry on. Why not go all the road and not half the road? And what about the conditions the men and women of the Old South faced at the close of the war between the States? They are broken, and bankrupt. They were without money. All their possessions had been swept away. They were without credit. All their industries had been destroyed. They were under the armed heel of military despotism.

SOUTHERN BUILDING ACTIVITIES FOR AUGUST

According to The Manufacturers Record of Baltimore, the South made arrangements in August to award construction contracts totaling $112,000,000. This was the highest monthly total since the building boom of 1929. Preliminary work has been done for award of these contracts which cover construction of buildings and sewers and highways in 16 Southern states.

For the benefit of the Texas reading public, this newspaper advances the information that the activities of the Texas highway commission is a record that should be most gratifying to all the people who pay for the construction and maintenance of highways. The building program for the fall and winter months will give employment to hundreds of workers as well as creating a market for locally produced materials.

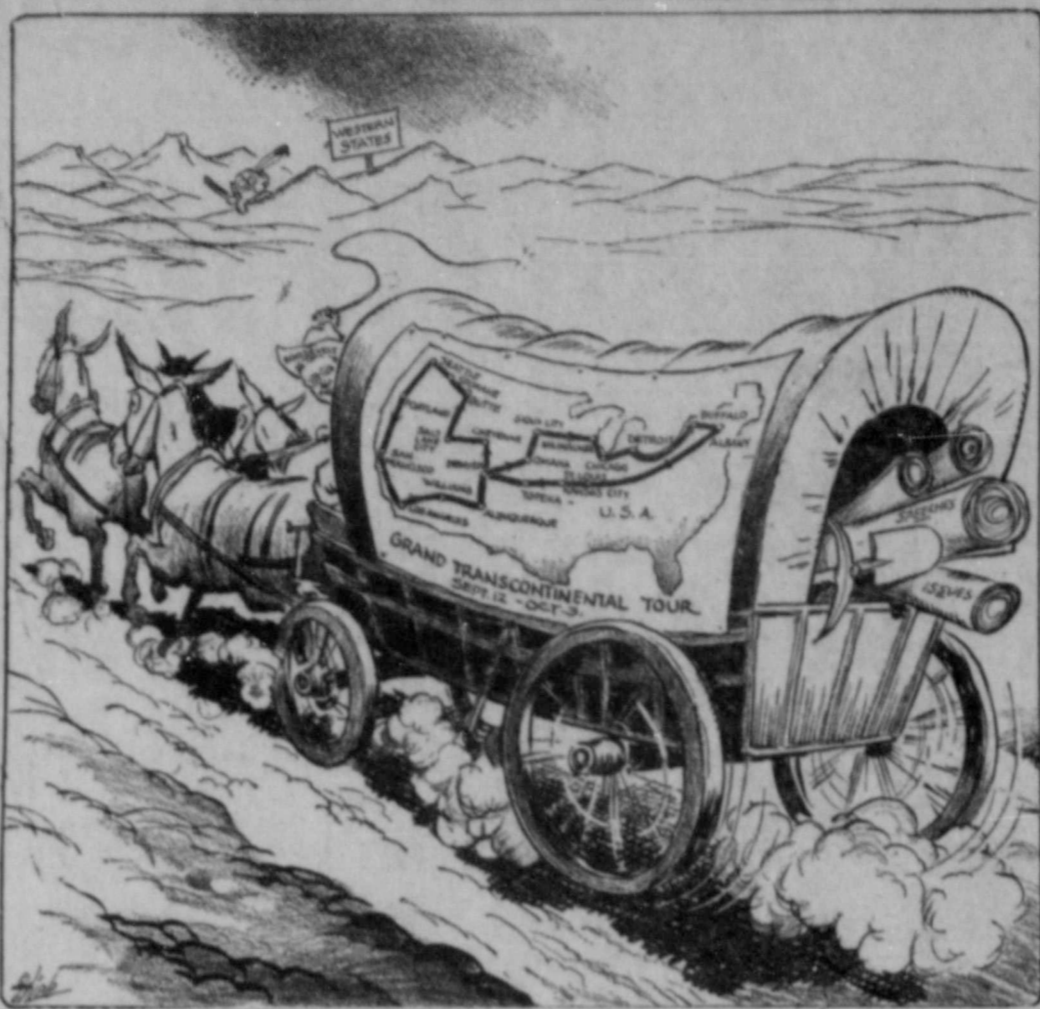

COST OF GOVERNMENT IN THE ALAMO CITY

Cost of government for the Alamo City taxpayers in 1931 reached $21.61 per capita as compared with $14.80 in 1918. Perhaps this is the reason why the Chambers city-county machine has suffered many political reverses in recent elections. High cost of government must come down in nation and state and county and city. In the adjustment that is taking place the cost of government has been the main block in the way of giving relief to the taxpayers.

STORY OF CLERK KICKED OUT "AND DRAGGED BACK"

William H. Kerr is a Hoosier postal clerk. He was on the payroll of Gary, the steel city of Hoosierdom. He was thrown out by the chairman of the civil service commission for introducing a bonus resolution at a session of American Legionnaires. Kerr was an unknown until the thing happened. Then his face was jammed into the national picture gallery. Legionnaires roared their protests. President Hoover saw the point. He acted without blinking. He ordered the reinstatement of Martyr Kerr.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

After two weeks of practice, most of which was rained out, the Ranger Bulldogs look much better now than they did the first day they reported for practice. And the squad has grown from around 25 to about 35, which makes things look somewhat more cheerful.

Udell Duval was out for practice. Not taking part in the practice, of course, but watching. He was nattily attired in a green shirt, a pair of gray trousers, and a cane. The cane seemed to be an important part of his attire.

It is awfully early in the season to make predictions, but the grandstand quarterbacks have already begun to compare the Bulldogs with the team of last year and the 1930 team. To hear them tell it, things look rosy. And they may, at that.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

THE WHITE HOUSE HOOVERS—PRESIDENT AND RESIDENT

At the left is Herbert... and at the right is Ike... and this is the first picture ever made of the White House Hoovers together.

By NEA Service
 WASHINGTON—Regardless of what the voters do in November, there'll still be a Hoover in the White House after March 4—that is, unless Ike Hoover, chief usher at the executive mansion, chooses to retire from his job.

But that's almost unthinkable, for Ike Hoover has been a member of the White House staff for 41 years now and he's become almost as much a fixture around the place as the bubbling fountain on the east lawn or the tall flagstaff that rears itself above the roof. He's seen lots of presidents come and lots of them go in his 41 years.

"I came over from the Edison Company in Plainfield, N. J., to install electric lights in the White House," explains Ike. "I finished my work and returned to New Jersey, only to be recalled next day and offered a job at looking after the lights. I've been here ever since."

In those early days, says Ike, no one knew anything about electric lights and everybody seemed afraid of them. The servants, and even members of the household, would allow the lights to burn all night rather than turn them off. Often, they would throw a black cloth over the globes rather than touch the switch.

Eastland High Holds Formal Opening Monday

The Eastland High school opened the fall season of work with the formal opening of the school, 9 a. m., Monday, with program that presented several interesting features and brought the introduction of the members of the school faculty.

Band selections, A. J. Campbell, directing, prefaced the welcoming address by Prin. W. P. Palm of Eastland High.

Invocation was offered by Rev. George W. Shearer of the Methodist Church.

Principal Palm introduced the ex-students in the audience, and stated that new students were enrolled in Eastland High, from Oklahoma, North Dakota, and Missouri, and introduced the Presbyterian minister, Rev. D. Pryde Gilie, who was seated in the audience, and all members of the faculty.

"America," in ensemble. Piano solo, Clara June Kimble. Band selection.

Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, president of the Parent-Teacher association of the high school was introduced.

Mrs. Perkins extended greetings for the P.-T. A. in a clever and interesting address.

Announcements were made by Principal Palm, and pleasing talks were given by Rev. George W. Shearer, and the superintendent of Eastland schools, P. B. Bittle.

The senior class of 1932 presented formally a beautiful rug, 9 by 12 feet, for the stage of the auditorium, the gift presentation made by Dorothy Day on behalf of the class.

The rug has gray background, softly flowered in rose and blue, and was displayed on front of the stage.

Principal Palm gracefully accepted the rug on behalf of the school.

Coach Joe A. Gibson presented football announcements, and made a brief sports talk on behalf of Eastland High.

Band selection closed the formal program.

All those who had not registered as students were given this opportunity.

The football boys held a meeting in room 17e. Announcement was made of the faculty meeting at 11:30 a. m., following opening exercises.

The afternoon session was resumed at 1 p. m.

This closed the formal opening of Eastland High for 1932. Regular class work began this morning at 8:12 o'clock.

Faculty members introduced during the program were: Miss Verna Johnson, Miss Dagit Powell, English classes; Miss Mary Carter, English and physical training for girls; S. D. Phillips, mathematics; Joe A. Gibson, coach and mathematics; Miss Belle Wilson, history; Miss Elizabeth Word, conigrical department; Jim Hobbart, Latin and Spanish; J. O. ### Warner College Football Squad Shows Promise

With only three more days of practice before their opening game with Amarillo Junior college, Coach Leo Boles is working his Warner College Stags overtime in an effort to get the boys in shape to make a favorable showing.

Amarillo opened their season last week with a 21-0 victory over Pecos Junior college and the slick cohorts of Warner are expected to be on the losing end of the score Saturday. However the prospects are looking good and Coach Boles is expecting his boys to put up a tough fight.

In the initial scrimmage yesterday several former Eastland High stars dominated the field with their splendid fighting spirit. Among these are Babe Pentecost at center, Myers at end, Massengale and McClusky at tackle, and Foster and Holleman also at end.

However, several out-of-town boys came in for their share of honors and in the line-work, especially the Kardansky brothers from Ohio at guard and tackle, John Vilbauer at center, from Missouri, and Buddy Gregory, who brings with him a wonderful athletic record from prep school in Tennessee. Gregory is fighting for a place at guard and his ability to analyze the opponent's plays make him a formidable player.

There are 11 candidates for the backfield positions, most of them being only of average weight but fast and shifty and with plenty of experience. Reed, Watson, Owen, Brawner, and Howe, all of Eastland, are well known to local football fans. Two Wisconsin boys are showing up well in their ability to crash a line.

Arnold, Polnac, Howe, Miller, McDermott, Self and Adams are Texas boys who have made records at ball-toting all over the state.

Cave Houses A Family of Three

By United Press.

OSKALOOSA, Ia.—Mrs. Myrtle Crump, 41, had been a school teacher here for 10 years when, a year ago in May, she fell victim to a retraining program and lost her position.

She owned three acres of land, but there was no house on it. So Mrs. Crump pitched a tent and she and her two children, 7 and 5 years old, camped.

Winter was approaching, so Mrs. Crump "dug in." She hired a man to do the heavy digging, and when the job was completed there was room for a bed, stove, table and trunk. Food and clothing are stored in large tin containers.

"We weren't cold last winter," Mrs. Crump said. "Snow covered us, filled our entry and we were cozy as could be."

A large garden and a few chickens furnish a living for the family.

Chickens are Mrs. Crump's hobby. "If I could manage to find the money to fence the land, to hold the chickens in, I believe my troubles would be over. It would be heavenly if we could build a little house this fall, but we are going to stay together if we have to live in our cave forever," she said.

HOKY AND SLIDES

Henry L. Farrell

They're Like That, Too

THEY say the British romantically cling to their sports idols long after such figures have fallen from their pedestals. For instance, it is pointed out how loyally British fight followers bonused Joe Beckett for years after it had been definitely established that Beckett could not fight at all.

Americans seem to have some of that idealism, too. Examples that might be cited are Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard.

Dempsey's comeback tour was pitiful from an artistic standpoint but highly successful financially.

New Leonard, after several years of training and fighting, during which time he is said to have put aside $45,000, is getting what is regarded as an important shot against Jimmy McLarnin at the Garden bowl in Long Island City, Oct. 2.

No matter what kind of crowd the affair with McLarnin draws, Leonard's comeback must be viewed as a pretty fair venture, as these are days in which $45,000 is regarded as something more than pin money.

Baseball Different

IN some other sports notably baseball, fans are not so generous. How often have you seen a player past the peak awarded the cruel razz when he fails to deliver what the wolves in the grandstand want?

Boxing crowds are perhaps less exacting of a square shake than are baseball followers. It is hard to fool the average baseball clientele. It has been demonstrated that baseball customers in

Blind Men Are Making Brooms

By United Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Amid the steady clatter of machinery, rustle of broom corn and careless jesting of apparently happy laborers, the work goes on before sightless eyes in a shop here.

Blind men are making brooms. Through work they never see, the men are occupying their hands and their minds, supporting themselves, and in some cases their families. The brooms fashioned entirely through the sense of touch compare favorably in quality with those of persons who work so largely by the visual method.

The establishment is known as the Blind Kraft shop. It was made possible through the work of the Springfield Association for the Blind, in co-operation with the state commission and through the help of a local civic club.

The coarse broom, corn straw, handled in the preliminary stages by seeing employees, is apportioned each blind worker, who stands at his machine able to reach every bit of the material for making a broom.

The craftsmen are closely protected by heavy gloves and guards. Accidents are relatively few, perhaps no more than would result from the efforts of seeing persons.

RUNA—Work under way on job of grubbing and clearing light-of-way on highway No. 8 between here and Zion Hill church.

What to Believe?

THE reason perhaps is keener partnership about baseball than about fights, and the reason may lie in the smelly state of modern fighting.

Baseball is divorced from city, country or state politics. That much cannot be said about boxing now.

The average baseball fan believes in his game's honesty, but how could a fight fan believe in anything nowadays?

ADVERTISEMENTS MULTIPLY RETURNS ON Your Investments

Many are the manufactured products in which you have already invested your money—your refrigerator; the electricity in your home; flour, baking powder, sugar in your pantry; sheer hosiery; floors of oak, to mention only a few. Advertisements help you to receive greater satisfaction from these possessions, as well as pointing out the efficient way to make new purchases. They tell you of new desserts to make in your refrigerator . . . new conveniences to attach to your electric sockets . . . finer cakes, biscuits, puddings, to make with good things in your pantry . . . soaps to safeguard the delicate hosiery; wax to protect the fine floors.

If a product is advertised, you can be sure of its quality anywhere you buy it . . . sure it will live up to its promise . . . and sure that its maker will aid you to prolong its usefulness. Read advertisements to increase the efficiency of what you have, as well as to learn about true bargains in whatever you need to buy.

IMPORTANT

When you ask for a product by name, as a result of advertising, do not accept a substitute—substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELYIE H. JACKSON

Radio advertising is a much needed question. It is no longer a matter of whether or not it is getting better and sales talks more insistent.

Radio is a luxury. All the privileged public can afford it, but the poor adjunct of home life, but all families can afford the radio, to hear radio news or radio entertainment.

Freedom of the air is a beautiful thing in theory, but in practice such things as ethics in the air we breathe, as well as using the water we drink.

In the latter instance we are liable to steal the water from our neighbor, or to take it with- out giving some return.

It is a strange attitude that the politicians and other people in advertising over a radio, then have no compunctions in sending a lot of print- matter to the newspaper with a request that it be carried "as an implicit to his party," or "in consideration for the

DOUBLED ALL LIFE WITH CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Real Relief

If you are subject to headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness and other effects that result from constipation, read Turner's voluntary letter.

"For the past six months I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, cannot praise it too highly.

"I am fifty years of age. All my life I have been troubled with constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but has cured me. I thought I couldn't like the taste of bran, but Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious."—Mrs. C. J. Turner, 507 Hanover Street, Fall River, Mass.

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains things which overcome constipation. "Bulk" to exercise the intestine; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently moves the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking pills and drugs—so harmful. ALL-BRAN is not only forming. Two tablespoonsful will correct most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

CHAPTER XLVIII

The tall man turned sharply. "Miss Moran—that is to say, Mrs. Townsend! And Barry! Why, this is a piece of luck! I wonder how it happened?"

"We were here shopping," Mona explained. Then, feeling rather foolish, she asked, "You came on the Helena?"

"Yes. Let's go somewhere where we can talk," said Mr. Garretson, swinging a cane at a mule team the driver of which was affably waiting for the three to move before attempting to proceed. "I can never get used to these vehicles. Give me Fifth Avenue and 42nd street any day!"

They moved into the shadow of the postoffice.

"I came to see you, Mrs. Townsend," the lawyer went on, "but they told me at the steamship office I might leave the steamer here and chance finding a boat to carry me across to Holiday Island or that I could go to Port of Spain and charter a plane."

He smiled beamingly. "I came ashore to inquire and here I find you!"

"We'll get your baggage," Barry announced hospitably, "and then run you over to Holiday in no time. We were just starting."

The luggage was on board the Helena and Barry said he would go for it. "Just give me your checks," he said. "Well then, if you haven't checks, your cabin key will do."

"Let's all go together," suggested Mona. Mr. Garretson seconded the remark.

"I thought you might like to have tea," Barry said, hesitating. "It's going to be dark soon. We'll have to shove off before long."

"Oh, tea can wait," agreed Mr. Garretson and Mona in the same breath. It was as though neither of them cared to be left in the company of the other just then.

"She doesn't want to be alone with me," the lawyer decided. "Maybe she thinks I'll interfere if she wants to marry that boy."

"He knows Barry wants me to marry him," thought Mona, "and he's here to prevent it. Just let him try!" Suddenly she knew that all along she had been determined to marry Barry. She wanted to seize Barry's arm and tell him so, to kiss his cheek and end this foolish uncertainty forever. Let the sailors' home, the orphanage have the Townsend millions. What did she care? She and Barry could take care of themselves!

Instantly she knew what she had really known always but had refused to recognize—that she would marry Barry on his own terms.

Blindly she followed him to the jetty, clambered aboard the motor launch and seated herself while Barry adjusted the wheel. The launch quivered, spluttered, out toward the Helena.

Mr. Garretson, across from Mona, smiled as the cooling breezes struck him. It was as though he, too, had a secret.

"He thinks he's here in time," Mona told herself.

The stewards came running down the companionway with Mr. Garretson's bags. They stowed them beneath the launch seats. Waving the lawyer away, Barry tossed the boys a handful of silver. The Water Sprite backed away from the ladder and then, willing, made off for the space between the two arms of green shore.

"Are you near here?" Mr. Garretson asked.

"Not far. It's three hours by boat, 15 minutes or less by plane."

The boat sped onward silently. Before they reached the harbor at Holiday Mona's mind was made up.

Dinner was served on the veranda. Steve, leaning on a cane but in excellent spirits, came to join them. Dr. Allen was in the background. Lottie was at Steve's side.

Mona had barely time to bathe and dress. She did this, hurriedly, but she had never looked more beautiful. She was going to marry Barry. She was going to defy Mr. Garretson, toss the fortune back where it had come from and brave all for love!

Why did she care for money? Barry was right in insisting that he didn't want his uncle's wealth. They would have enough and more.

But as she went out on the veranda to sit before dinner her heart smote her. Mr. Garretson had come on business, that was certain. Could it concern the Emerald? Possibly he meant to ask her about her intended sale of the diamond. Perhaps, as executor of the estate, he would forbid it.

"It doesn't matter!" she told herself. "I'll marry Barry in spite of everything and everyone!"

She wished Lottie were not quite so engrossed in Steve. Lottie's good-natured chatter would have been a comfort. Mr. Garretson, in fresh linens, praised the dinner—the deliciously seasoned vegetables, the steak brought from Granada. He raised his coffee cup, remarking on the delicacy of the fine china. The fruit centerpiece, so carefully arranged by Miss Gracie, pleased him too. It would have pleased anyone to whom a fruit centerpiece meant the inevitable oranges, bananas and apples. Here were nectarines, grapes and yellow-jade oranges, gleaming against a dark green bow!

"You have fishing here?"

"Lots of it. In the bay half-way around the island. We'll take you tomorrow if you like."

The maids cleared the table. Mona rose, followed by the others, and walked out on the terrace where the deck chairs commanded a view of the stars.

"Those must be the port lights of the S. S. Helena," Mr. Garretson said, pointing to the chain of lights along the horizon.

"She's due at Barbados in the morning," responded Barry. Free-

SURE DEATH BALKED

FORMER STUDENT SAVED BY PROFESSOR IN LIFE TEST OF CYANIDE ANTIDOTE.

Cuthbert Rieveley Dr. J. C. Geiger

But would it save a human? Dr. Geiger didn't know.

It was at this stage of the experimental work that Cuthbert Rieveley, 30, a former student of Dr. Geiger's who had been jobless for months, found life too much of a burden and took cyanide. Dr. Geiger was summoned.

When the doctor arrived, however, Rieveley was unconscious and on the verge of death. There was nothing known to medical science at large which could have saved him.

Without haste, Dr. Geiger injected methylene blue into the veins of the dying man. A short time later Rieveley, to his own astonishment, became conscious. Within a few hours he had pronounced out of danger.

For the past 10 years Dr. J. C. Geiger, director of public health here, has been working on an antidote for potassium cyanide, deadliest poison known to science. Methylene blue, he discovered eventually, would save guinea pigs.

A little later, Mr. Garretson, shown to his room, surveyed the velvet darkness without and sighed with deep satisfaction.

"A lovely place," he mused. "A beautiful place for young love. That Saccarelli chap is head over heels in love with Miss Carr. Anyone could see that. Pretty girl, too. I like her. Mona, though—she's deeper! I wonder if she is in love with Barry? I wonder what she'll say when I tell her that she can marry him after all. Marry him and keep her fortune! She'll be surprised to know the will reads: 'My beloved wife, Mona Townsend, must not change her name by giving herself in marriage.'"

Mona wouldn't change her name—not a hair's breath—by marrying young Barry!

The lawyer strolled back to the bed and instantly, with an outburst of mild profanity, found himself entangled in the mosquito-proof draperies. They required, as he observed, special handling.

At last he was safe in bed. The swaying of the palms, the beating of the waves were the only sounds to break the stillness.

"I'll tell them tomorrow," he announced to himself aloud. "I'll tell them tomorrow!"

Pigeon Mystery Is Still Unsolved

By United Press.
GALVESTON, Sept. 13.—The mystery of the banded pigeon which fluttered to the deck of a banana boat here a few days after the tropical hurricane of Aug. 13 has not been solved.

The bird wore an aluminum band on its leg bearing the legend "Schabana 32-298." A careful search through records of the American Racing Homer association failed to reveal any such registry.

Herman Lenz, local pigeon breeder, pointed out that American birds, as a rule, have no wording on their leg bands, but only code numbers.

Lenz believes the bird belonged to a Cuban fancier and was blown here by the 80-mile gale.

They are not present in Luckies... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so the fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process described by the words—"It's toasted." That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, the world will make a better path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?
