BRIGHT SPOTS ON THE ECONOMIC HORIZON

According to reports of editors of 115 trade and industrial publications throughout the United States the last half of August averaged a shade better than the first half. Building construction showed renewed activity. Oil refineries had heavy orders. Gasoline consumption almost equaled that of 1931. Sales of automobiles were ahead of those in July. Textile markets showed a healthy improvement in business. Prices of cotton and silk and wool and rayon showed a slight advance. Advertising volume was running about level, with indications that the low point in volume had passed. In the wake of Labor day New York markets indicated a world-wide rise in commodity prices. Speculators flooded American and foreign markets with buying orders "inspired by belief international trade recovery was eminent." Talk of 12-cent cotton and 75-cent wheat by winter was heard and all on account of the announcement that the federal farm board will hold its wheat and cotton off the markets until next year.

Bradstreet reported 5.6 per cent increase in the wholesale commodity price index from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1, "the third consecutive rise and the largest single gain since July, 1925." Poundage sales of rayon yarns for August were the largest for any month in the history of the industry. Many textile factories resumed operations on a weekly basis of 55 hours for day workers and 50 hours for the night shift. Rail corporations reported increasing maintenance of way employment with hundreds of laborers added to payrolls. Tickerings of the ticker furnishes the news. When the ticker refuses to tick, there is a lull in the market and the "cheerful little earful" are scant.

A reminder that in his legal brief, "The Republican Case," Barrister Calvin Coolidge argued "that it was as futile to think of nourishing the industrial structure by direct aid to the unemployed as to attempt to nourish starving individual by injections through his fingers and toes instead of putting food into his stomach." In other words the eminent barrister is of the opinion that the Reconstruction Finance corporation is on the right track and that the thing to do is to force the wheel of finance and industry—trade and traffic—to go around as in days agone and furnish jobs for the jobless the nation over before real prosperity can come around the corner—in this presidential election year. He may be correct in his argument. Money makes the world go around. Money adds to the purchasing power of the individual. Fair and level commodity prices make it possible for the farmer to assist in the nation-wide work of rejuvenation which is ever the forerunner of nation-wide prosperity.

FARM STRIKERS HEADED BY MILO RENO

Milo Reno led the Iowa farm strikers. He admitted that its biggest accomplishment was the demonstration that farmers "have the power to tie up a city." Also that it has shown that the farmer can get up nerve enough to demand "his just dues." Milo Reno is described as well built and carefully dressed. He is 66 and has spent his life in farm activity. He retired last year as president of the Iowa farm group, one of the three organized groups of the Hawkeye state. He invented the cost of production plan. In other words he insists that the flow of crops to market should be regulated by groups, controlling marketing in counties and states, these groups elected by the farmers. There is to be a conference of governors of midwestern states this week. Hawkeye Reno, the chief adviser and leader of the Iowa farmers, has given approval to the suggestion of Governor Olson of Minnesota that martial law be declared so as to extend more widely the moratorium on marketing. This is the attitude of the Hawkeye leader: "There is no economic reason why prices of farm goods cannot be fixed by such a means as martial law." Governor Sterling saved the day for all who are at all interested in the petroleum industry in the East Texas field. He not only saved the day for all but he won the condemnation of many who had been saved. He sent the price of crude from 10 cents to 90 cents. He placed substantial increases in the pockets of lease and royalty holders. He made it possible for a million dollars a day to be paid out in Texas to those who needed the money. He increased the revenues of the state and lessened the load of taxpayers. Governor Olson of Minnesota must be a reader of the telegraph pages of newspapers.

HECKLING THE CO-AUTHOR OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

There is an organization known as the Texas Federation of Anti-Prohibition clubs. Vance Muse is the managing director of the federal. Well the managing director has notified the senior senator that the two Texas senators and 18 congressmen "should adhere to traditional democratic principles and yield to the express will of the people and support a resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment." This is the Muse argument: "Texas democrats in the July 23 primary voted three to one for resubmission." Yes, and in the August final they nominated three democrats for congress-at-large places.

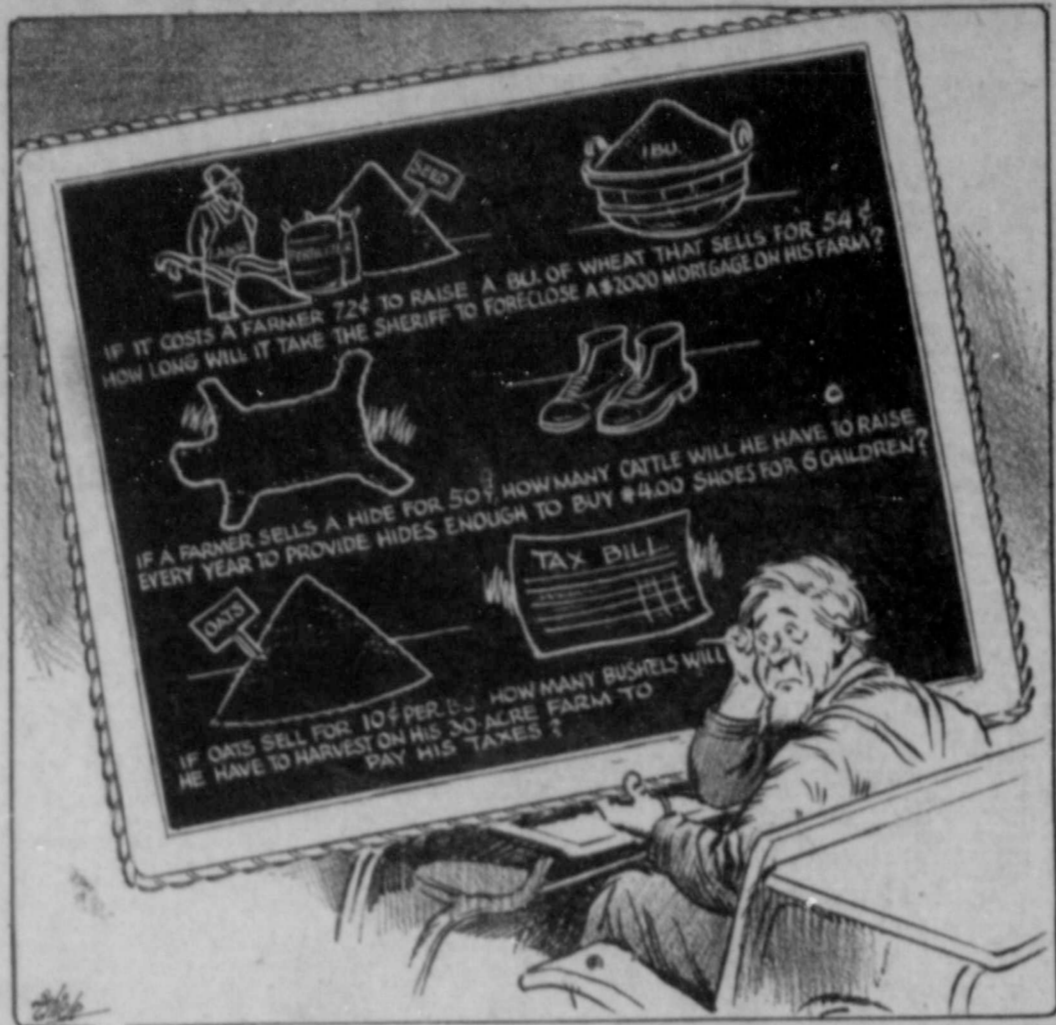

First, they gave Joseph Weldon Bailey a 160,000 majority over Cyclone Davis. Bailey is a straight out repealer. Next they gave George E. Terrell a huge majority. He is for resubmission. In addition to this he is a lifelong pro and made speeches for Smith in 1928. Lastly they nominated Sterling P. Strong, another life-long prohibitionist who has accepted the Chicago nominees and platform and is pledged to vote for resubmission.

Incidentally and to the point. Morris Sheppard has some record as a regular democrat. He never scratched the ticket in his life. He made speeches for Smith and voted for Smith. He was threatened with defeat if he stood fast for the standard-bearers in 1928. Well, he was a candidate for re-election in 1930 and it is a matter of record that he carried all the dry counties and most of the wet counties of his native state. There is never a time when Sheppard doesn't know where to find his political hat.

PUSHING ALONG THE BUILDING MOVEMENT

Buildings under construction in Fort Worth between Sept. 1 and Jan. 1 will be exempt from municipal taxation. This is the concession given to builders by the Fort Worth city council as a boon to building activities. In other words, it is a real gesture to enable the jobless to get jobs.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

We have paid very little attention to the new football rules this year because we figured that the coaches and referees could figure them out for themselves. But yesterday Ernest Glaazer strolled in from his hopyote and asked us a question we couldn't answer. Not knowing the exact wording or interpretation of the rule we are not in a position to answer, but we imagine something can be done about it.

Ernest asked us if the new rules stated that when a player carrying the ball let any part of his body, other than his hands and feet, touch the ground the ball was dead. We agreed. Then he asked how the teams would go about making place kicks. As soon as the holder received the ball the play would stop because he would be on his knees when he received it.

We do not know whether any provision was made for kicks from placement so that the rule would be null and void in that case or not. If not an Abilene referee might call it a dead ball when Ranget attempted a field goal, provided an Abilene referee got a chance to call another Ranger game, which seems unlikely.

One solution might be to have a little stool like some people use when milking cows and let the holder sit on that stool so that his knees would not be on the ground. Another might be to use drop kicks and then the quarterback might send Jones through the line. It is all about as technical and complicated as the Cicco case.

And consider Wilson (Bull) Elkins, now coach of the Cicco Lobos, if any. Bull made quite a reputation as a quarterback for Texas University and then got a job with more complications and technicalities than he expected. The Lobos legal standing is still in doubt and may not be decided until later this week or maybe late in the month. In the meantime the Lobos have matched a game with Decatur college for Friday. Now the Intercollegiate League rules state that a team cannot participate in a game until about the last Friday in September.

If the Lobos play Decatur and then are taken back into the fold will they again be ousted for breaking Intercollegiate League rules by playing before the date on which games are allowed. Should Bull cancel the game and take a chance on getting back into the Oil Belt district or should he play the game and take a chance on getting by if he is allowed to place his team in the conference again? That's Bull's problem, just now.

In the meantime Benny Butler says that there is little, if any, interest being shown in the team by the fans and the squad is smaller than at any time since 1922.

Yesterday we promised to tell Carl Garner's story of the quarterback who won a game by sitting on the ball. Here it is. Some of the details as to score and such points might not be accurate, but the story is the same. When football rules were different from the ones in vogue today a team we shall call the Wampus Cats was playing another team we shall call, for lack of a better name, the Tigers. The Wampus Cats were from a small school and had a very small squad, both in size and numbers. Early in the game they got a touchdown and kicked a goal. Later the Tigers scored a touchdown but the trial for goal failed.

Along in the third quarter all the subs of the Wampus Cats were laid out in neat rows and most of the regulars were pretty well crippled. The Tigers had things their own way. On every down they were gaining from five to 10 yards and it looked like a certain defeat for the poor Wampus Cats.

A fumble gave the Cats the ball on their own 30-yard line. The quarterback asked the referee how much time was left and was informed that five minutes remained to be played. He looked over the distance to the goal line, made a few mental calculations and sat down on the ball.

"Here! What are you doing?" the referee asked. "Stalling," the quarterback answered. "If you don't start playing in one minute I will penalize you five yards," the referee announced.

At the end of one minute the referee stepped off the five yards and the quarterback sat back on the ball. The referee again warned him and the quarterback kept his seat. At the end of the minute the team was again penalized. This procedure happened five times in succession and the game was over with the quarterback still sitting on the ball on the five-yard line, and the game was won.

"Next year," Garner says, "The rules were changed so that this could not happen again, but it kept the Wampus Cats from losing the game."

THE little dwarf yelled out again. "Come down here, all you lads." And then Woe, Scully answered, "Sure we will! We'll join you right away." "We're Tinymites and we are out to see what things are all about. We always seek adventure and we find new things each day." "Well, well! That's fine," the man replied. "If you will gather by my side, I'll tell you all about a place that's strange as it can be. I am the only one who knows just where it is, so no one goes to visit at this wondrous place unless they are with me." They hiked along a little way. Then Scully broke out in a sweat and said, "We're out in a bad end. Right now I see the zoo." "And so do I," another cried. "I see a funny little cage I've spied." They reached the cage and then the birds began to chirp and coo. (Copyright, 1922, NEA Service, Inc.)

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—No need to ask what becomes of White House secretaries. This is a campaign year and they're all back on the firing line. President Hoover, whose secretarial staff is larger than any other president's even in peacetime, now has not only all his own former secretaries but all the secretaries to former President Coolidge working for him. The list includes three Hoover secretaries, two Hoover ex-secretaries and three Coolidge ex-secretaries.

Latest on the scene is Edward T. Clark, former private secretary to Cal, who appeared at the White House just as Theodore Joslin, one of the regular Hoover secretaries, suddenly went away from there. Considerable excitement ensued and there was some speculation as to whether Joslin would be coming back, but it appears that he was only taking a vacation. Clark has offices in Washington and appears to have stepped into the role of a "relief" secretary. He is not on the White House payroll, but it was said that he doubtless would substitute for Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, other secretaries, when they took their vacations. "Ted" is being lent to Hoover by Louis K. Liggett, former Massachusetts Republican national committeeman, with one of whose corporations he has lately been associated. He is popular and intelligent and the administration is expected to make more or less use of him through the rest of the campaign.

Dude Ranch Proves Very Popular

The S-Bar Dude Ranch, 5 miles north of Cicco on the Breckenridge road is growing in popularity with people of all ages who like outdoor sports. With a large tract of land in the hills below Lake Cicco dam and the regular Hoover secretaries, the ranch is visited often by riding enthusiasts from all parts of the country. A special rate of 25 cents per hour is being advertised until Sept. 20, to encourage people who have not visited the place to get out and over the hills, personally conducted by Keen.

Death of Youth Being Investigated By Army Officers

BRADY, Sept. 15.—Officials from Kelley Field, San Antonio, today investigated the death of Ron Babe Smith, killed at the airport here when a training plane taxied in and struck him. His arm was crushed and his death probably resulted from loss of blood. Statements of a physician who attended Smith and two witnesses, were taken and will be used in a hearing at the Army field. Funeral services for Smith were to be held today at Richland Springs.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Okla.

H. GALT BRAXTON, editor and publisher of the Kinston (N. C.) Daily Free Press, says: "The general advertiser is becoming more and more exacting all of the time. There is a growing demand for so-called cooperation, such as window-displays, broadsides, contacting dealers, circularizing and various other services which the average newspaper in the country is not in position to give except at a cost in excess of the actual amount paid for the advertising space bought."

"We had a striking example of this recently when an order for a small two and one-half inch ad to run weekly for four months was received with request for full position on preferred page at run-of-paper rates, window displays in our own building, window displays to be arranged by us, or by local dealers in their places of business, detailed reports of such displays accompanied by photographs, placing signs, both interior and exterior and so on. The entire schedule will net us less than $13."

"General advertisers might as well understand that if they are to ask for such auxiliary service they must prepare to pay for it commensurately. Their appropriations for such service should not be budgeted to advertising but to field work or salesman expense, howsoever they handle such items. "I am impressed with the fact that the newspapers must continue to specialize on the particular service of carrying the message of the advertising patrons to a substantial and bona fide clientele. They cannot, even if the service is paid for, maintain an organization for such merchandising services; that is, the rank and file of newspapers cannot do so. A halt will have to be called somewhere."

A standard of quality that is constantly and conscientiously maintained, assisted by ADVERTISING, keeps a business growing. KEEP YOUR BUSINESS GROWING!

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

Little Peter was just a clumsy, footed, tail-wagging puppy, fat, sweet-tempered and full of fun and frolic. Racing and playing with little Ann through the sunny hours after school, obeying the rules of obedience, and coming at his little mistress' such happy playmates they were running back and forth through the yard, out on the walk, loving each other as only a girl and a pet dog, know how.

Little Peter had learned the ways of his young mistress, and came obediently at the call. He had first learned to let chickens, that they were not for the day with, and he found the way to sleep and to eat. He was a dear little dog, with bright brown eyes, a rough body, and oh what slummy!

He loved little Ann with all his heart and soul and stood patiently at the house corner waiting for her to return from school. And there with his ear cocked and his eyes looking longingly across the street to the place where the school house stands.

What does he have souls? Sometimes think they do. Surely such fine sense, as little Peter possesses, means something more than this short life on earth.

Little Peter's life was so short. At the dusk of the evening Wednesday happy little Peter followed his young mistress outside the boundary of the home yard, darning and leaning, played usually with the little girl out in the walk.

At suddenly little Peter decided to walk so wide and invited and out he flew to the middle of the highway, looking back at Ann, as much as to say,

River Craft in Rescue Work

All available river craft rushed to the aid of the 165 passengers and crew who were hurried into East River, New York, when the small steamer Observation exploded and sank. This picture, taken a few minutes after the disaster, shows men in a small boat taking a body from the water for transfer to a waiting ferry. Some mangled bodies were thrown high in the air. Other victims, rendered unconscious by the blast, were drowned.

"Follow me! Come out here quick, this is a fine place to play," Frantic calls, "Peter, Peter," from the child, failed to reach his unheeding ear.

A flashing car, the crunch of wheels, and little Peter lay in the roadway, mangled and torn. His end was brief.

A few despairing moans, and Peter's life was ended.

What grief the little girl suffered, to see her platoon ruthlessly killed before her very eyes. The first real grief of a child is always a pitiful experience, and one that cannot fail to stir the hearts of those who have experienced griefs and feel sorry that such an experience should have its beginning, in such an unhappy way.

At last a gasoline has been made that gives the highest usable level of performance in all kinds of weather and at all altitudes. Climatic Control is the greatest thing that has ever happened to gasoline!

In addition to the outstanding advantage of Climatic Control, Mobilgas has an unusually high ANTI-KNOCK rating. All this at no increase in price. Mobilgas is a regular-priced gasoline!

There's a new driving sensation waiting for you at the Mobilgas pump. Fill your tank today and breeze ahead.

*CLIMATIC CONTROL is the preadjustment of the specifications of Mobilgas, before it is placed on sale in your locality. It automatically adapts itself to the variations in "engine heat", caused by changes in temperature, altitude, humidity and road "pull". In the Mobilgas Research Laboratories all these changing climatic conditions have been "manufactured" in hot and cold testing-chambers. The road performance of Mobilgas is thus scientifically verified at different "engine heats".

HOT-ROOM TESTS (Above left)—In this specially constructed chamber tests are made at as high as 110 degrees F., hotter than the hottest day you have ever known. Here the "hot weather" preadjustment for Climatic Control in Mobilgas is scientifically verified.

COLD-ROOM TESTS (Above right)—Here engines reproduce driving temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero. This verifies scientifically the "cold weather" preadjustment for Climatic Control.

"ENGINE-HEAT" READINGS (Right)—On this control panel, the exact performance of Mobilgas, under the different "engine heats" produced by the hot and cold room tests, is measured and recorded. Thus Mobilgas is preadjusted to provide you with Climatic Control, a scientific achievement.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

Major League Baseball Proposed for Coast

The most intriguing suggestion in the history of baseball has had in years is the one about including Los Angeles and San Francisco in the big leagues.

The Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce seems to be the instigating light back of the idea. Of course, air travel would be necessary, but that is no serious drawback.

Some baseball men believe that the franchise of the St. Louis Browns is due for a shift. If a change is imminent, the Los Angeles people might be able to put across their idea. There doesn't seem to be any definite possibility of a franchise for San Francisco. Cincinnati's club is the only one seriously mentioned. To one who knows something about Cincinnati's fandom, removal of the Reds seems a near impossibility, but even more startling changes have been made.

Besides the matter of locating franchises on the loose, there are two important obstacles. One comes in the matter of possible attractiveness. The other is that of league schedules. They would have to be re-jiggered somewhat drastically, but, of course, this could be done.

Sponsors of the idea point out that Los Angeles is no farther from Boston by air than is St. Louis from New York by rail. The transportation costs could be expected to remain fairly constant. Baseball clubs now have to pay full fares and full Pullman costs. If planes were used, it's certain that attractive rates would be given.

The Los Angeles junior chamber is generally credited with having evolved the idea of holding the Tenth Olympic games in its city. Movement of a couple of major league franchises to the Far Coast would seem to be no more difficult a task.

The change, one believes, would be good for baseball. Naturally, there are many Pacific Coast people who have never seen a major league club in action. These folks would be steady customers of big time ball shows.

Warner Lineup for Amarillo Game Is About Complete

The hard grind of two days scrimmage at Warner college has cut Coach Boles' football down to 26 men who are all in fairly good condition for the initial game with Amarillo Junior College Saturday.

A practice game will be played with Eastland High this afternoon on the Stags' field, giving the coaches a chance to see just what their men can do under fire.

J. T. Adams, triple-threat man from Breckenridge, and all-district man in 1937, will be in the starting line-up for the Stags at quarter. Carl Foster, all-district end, in 1937 showed the boys just how to stop the right wall of Weatherford College last fall by being in the midst of every play in scrimmage. Wade Mansengale, one of the crack line-men of the Big Game League will be in there at left tackle if he keeps up his present pace. Jim Watson, one of the fastest backs Eastland High ever had, will probably be at half. Henry Miller, who was the signal caller for the Stags last season will see service at quarterback. Charlie Owen, all-district, quarter back Coleman in 1937, is known for his ability to back up the line and block. Glenn McDermott, slashing fullback from Wisconsin, will be a thorn in the Amarillo line Saturday. Buddy Gregory, line-man from Nashville, Tenn., has won a berth at left guard by his hard fighting and never-five-up spirit. Though small in stature, he makes up for this handicap by his fast aggressiveness.

HIDALGO—Havans Gravel Co. of Mission, started rebuilding and improving flood protection levees here in county water district No. 2.

HOKY AND SLIDES Henry L. Farrell

You Never Can Tell FOR several years Walter Johnson's annual spring song has been, "Give me a 29-game pitcher and we can win the pennant."

It was Walter's reiterated viewpoint that the Senators were the best-balanced team in the league. This year the hitting strength was increased by the trade that brought Reynolds to the outfield. And this year Walter had not only one 29-game pitcher but a couple of them, Crowder and Weaver!

An Extra Feature ONE of the added attractions of the world series this year will be the play of Elwood English of the Cubs. Woody had several bad moments in the 1929 world series with the A's. He went to bat 21 times and hit 190. His fielding was not so hot, either. His two costly fumbles in the ninth inning of the first game paved the way for the runs that beat the Cubs finally by a score of 3 to 1.

On his first boot, a double play was possible and had he accepted the second chance the slide would have been retired useless, which would have sent the game into extra innings and might have changed the nature of the entire series. English also had errors in the second and third games, but they didn't mean so much. They say the young man has a flair for "gettin' even." This may be the year of English's great revenge.

The Prices in Chicago ANOTHER interesting feature of the world series games scheduled in Chicago is the seating arrangements. Reserved box seats are priced at $4.50 each, which includes the 19 per cent tax. Reserved grandstand perches are $5.50. Bleacher seats, which are not available until the day of the game, retail at $1.10. But here is where the rub comes in. If you want a box seat for the first game in Chicago, you must remit to the Cub cage the amount of $19.89. The reason is that tickets are sold only in sets of three. Two box seats for the three games mean that you must write a check for $59.60. Thus the young Chicagoan who wants to take his best girl to see the Cubs in the world series will find it necessary to plank down the price of two snappy suits of clothes. That not only seems like a lot of sugar these sour days, but it is.

BOSSSES ARRIVE UNKEMPT. FORT WORTH—Stenos gasped and a-bed here one morning when usually immaculate bosses arrived at work unshaven and unkempt. A trunk water main had broken, cutting off water supply for nearly the entire city for an hour.

FALLS IN DITCH. FORT WORTH—A fall into a sewer ditch here resulted in the award of $750 damages for Mrs. J. I. Melton. The judgment was made by agreement in litigation between Mrs. Melton and the city of Fort Worth in 96th district court here.

Angora Goats of Southwest Texas Are From Turkey

UVALDE, Sept. 11.—The vast herds of Angora goats to be seen on ranges near here may be traced back to the generosity of a sultan of Turkey who presented a few choice goats to Dr. James B. Davis of South Carolina in 1849.

The sultan's gift resulted in a later sultan, in 1851, issuing a royal decree that death would be the penalty for any further exportations of the valuable Angoras.

The story of the Angoras' travels represents something of a saga. Dr. Davis raised his small herd—the sultan's gift—until 1854 when they were purchased by Richard Peters of Atlanta.

In the meantime, William M. Landrum, also of Atlanta, joined to 1850 gold rush to California, taking along two of the angoras. In California he experimented in crossing them with the native short haired goat.

The experiment was so successful that Landrum returned to Georgia and purchased the entire herd, removing the Angoras to California. In 1853 the Landrums and their now sizeable herd moved to Uvalde county, establishing a ranch on the Nueces river.

In 1911 Landrum received a consignment of Angoras from South Africa, since nobody cared to risk the sultan's death penalty.

Frank O. Landrum, son of Landrum, now operates the ranch. Fleece of the Angora goats supplies the world with mohair, valuable material for clothing. Texas goats and mohair received much publicity in 1928 when a San Antonio club ordered 10 pounds of mohair from Landrum in order to make five yards of cloth for a pair of pants for the War Secretary William Howard Taft.

Four-Year-Old Boy Saves Life

AUSTIN.—Although only 4 years old, the quick thinking of Walter Lenz Jr., has saved one life.

When his 2-year-old brother fell into a water-filled ravine near his home here, Walter did not run screaming to his mother for help. If he had his brother probably would have drowned. Instead, he caught hold of a barbed-wire fence with one hand, leaned as far over the water as he could and pulled his brother out with the other hand.

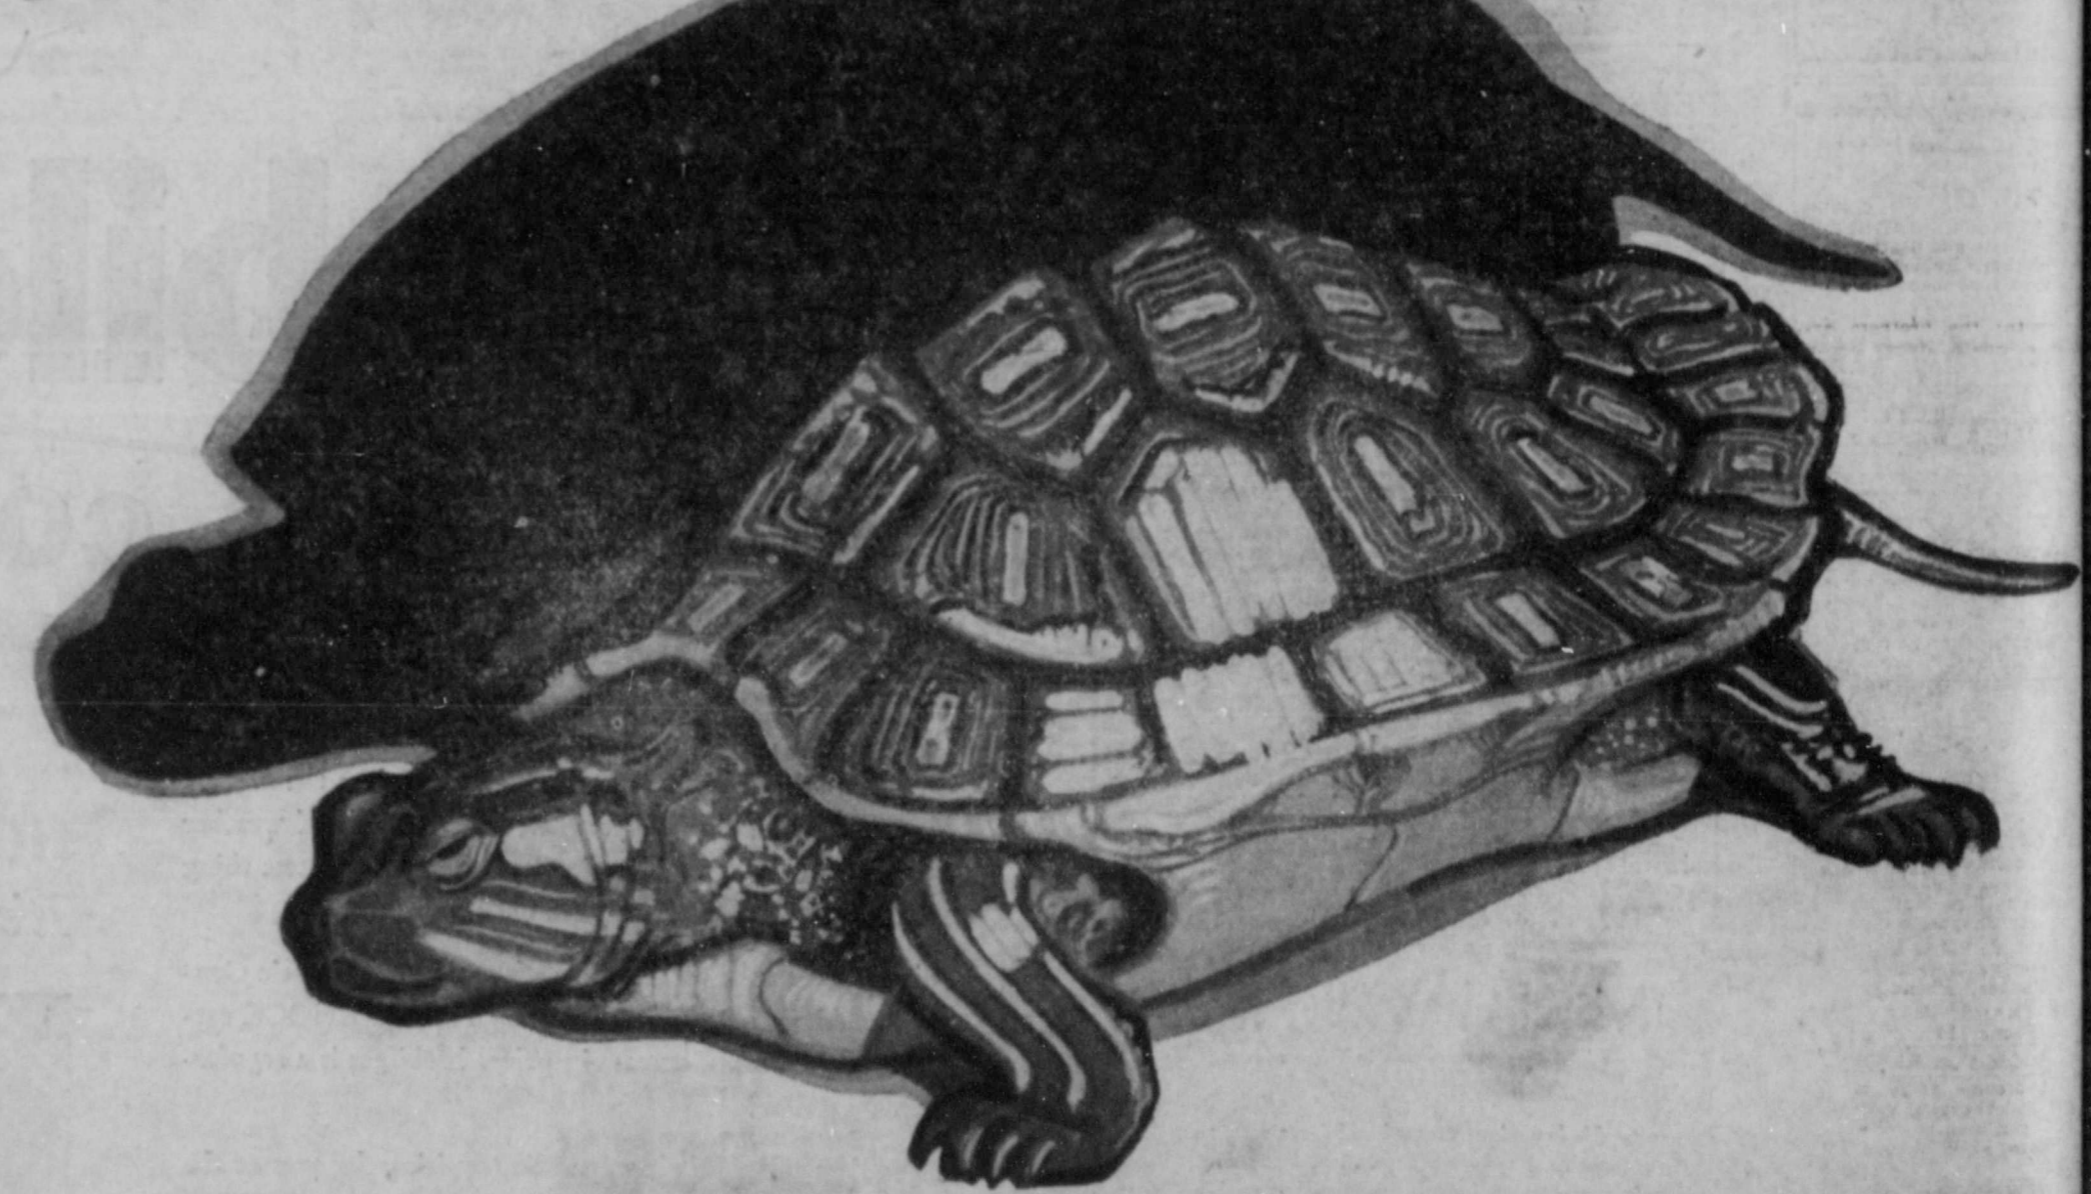

Eastland Tennis Club Is Active

The tennis courts on South Seaman street, Eastland, are now looking their very best. Two courts are in splendid condition, well turfed and gravelled, and invite the fall games, which are now being played with renewed vigor.

Last spring the teachers of the high school secured permission from E. E. Freyschlag to use the old tennis grounds on South Seaman. An informal club was formed to which each member contributed one dollar to pay for the necessary improvements, and placements for the tennis courts. The two nets were furnished by individual owners, and the tennis club, informally managed by W. P. Palm, swung into existence.

The courts are open to members at all times, and when not in use by members, they are at the disposition of any who care to play tennis. The Camp Fire Girls have made use of the grounds throughout the summer. FORT WORTH.—A new night air mail connection with New York city has been assured Fort Worth by Postmaster General Walter Brown. The new service will begin with the completion of the Fort Worth-Louisville airways.

DON'T BE SLOWED DOWN BY STALE GAS

YOU PAY FOR POWER... GET IT!

Only FRESH gas gives you all the power you pay for. Why? Because as gas gets staler, it gets weaker. Loses volatile "easy starting" elements. Falls victim to a chemical change—and gets sluggish and feeble. Another thing. The staler the gas, the stickier it is. And the more apt it is to knock. That's why Gulf is pleased to announce a system that assures you of getting FRESH-MADE gasoline. Two things make this possible... First, Gulf refines out of its fine gasoline certain complex elements—the very elements that cause rapid deterioration. Second, Gulf takes pains to speed this FRESH gas to you in a hurry, before it can get stale.

Huge Gulf refineries are located in many parts of the country—so that every Gulf station is close to a source of FRESH gas. A vast fleet of tank trucks rushes FRESH gas to Gulf pumps every day. Don't let stale gas deaden your motor! Get FRESH-MADE gas—packed with power. Get Gulf—for a faster, cleaner, quieter motor. get THAT GOOD GULF GASOLINE—it's fresh

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BLACK, an agent for cattle interests, faces a SPIRIT DELO in his office in the city. Asper is accused by the cattle men of inciting on their range with his timber cutting. Hall accuses DeLo of having men about who try to check up on him. Hall says he is going up to make a check himself. He tells DeLo that he will personally see that Hall does not. Standing before the office building, Stan Black sees a woman slip a girl into a car. He catches the car and saves DONA DELO, Asper's daughter. When he learns who she is he slips away after telling her he is STANLEY BLACK.

NOW ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

DUDLEY WINTERS tapped the cork tip of his cigaret on the arm of his chair and smiled. He had just delivered himself of an order and he was expecting it to be taken with some weight. The person to whom this mandate had been directed was curled up in a deep chair, gazing meditatively out the nearest window.

"Don't be antique, Dud! Engaged men don't rush around telling their fiancées what to do in this age." Dona DeLo turned impatiently and pursed her lips in a most tantalizing manner.

Winters arose and strode across the room. He bent over the easy chair and scowled at its occupant in a mock fit of anger. "Want me to drag you out of that chair by your hair, woman?" He bent over and tried to steal a kiss but Dona evaded his lips and pushed him aside.

"Pull your cave in after you," she retorted. "I have things on my mind."

Dudley straightened and a defiant frown clouded his handsome face. His mouth drooped a little at the corners when he frowned and Dona fancied he could readily pout.

"You're thinking about that wash-out, Black, when you should be listening to me." Dudley could not help but speak the thoughts in his mind. "The way he vanished shows what he thinks of you."

Dona uncurled and let her little heels click on the floor. "He certainly took a great deal of pains not to make himself unpleasant." Her eyes showed that she had not liked that remark of Dudley's.

Sensing a quarrel, the young man grinned and changed his tactics. After all, why worry about this fellow Black? He was plainly a one-day visitor to the city and already punching crows back in the hills hundreds of miles away. He drew Dona down among the cushions and pinched her arm. "Mr. Black is a true knight and I shall thank him for saving you from him."

"Lad will locate him when he gets back," Dona flashed moodily. "Your Dad must be out for big game on this trip," Dudley said, seating himself upon the arm of her chair. He sent a thin spiral of smoke ceilingward before he continued. "He had his rifle and one of those portable cannons commonly known as six guns out on his desk. I all oiled up."

THE girl stirred and straightened. This was news to her. She had been so busy checking up on the whereabouts of a certain Stanley Black that she had forgotten all about her father's trip to Three Rivers. "Guns?" she echoed.

"Sure. A young arsenal and whole pile of cartridges. He had all the accessories, too. A sleeping bag and a pile of regular western paraphernalia." Dudley was glad he had struck upon a topic that had no fire in it.

"Where did you see him?" Dona demanded unceasingly.

"I stepped in upon him at the office when I was looking for you. He told me all about the man hunt you're on."

Dona looked at Dudley appraisingly. She saw a slender young man of athletic type. Square shoulders, fine head and dark eyes that held a lurking flicker of amusement. Then she saw the mouth with its tendency to droop a bit at the corners. Dudley Winters was plainly capable but not accustomed to being called upon for any kind of action demanding effort.

"Why don't you go up to Three Rivers and talk Dad out of this wild idea, whatever it is?"

Dudley grinned and inhaled deeply. He let the smoke trickle out of his mouth before he answered. "Aw, D, he'll make it by himself. I never shot a bear in my life."

"But he's not after bear. He's after a man," Dona spoke earnestly. "You could talk him into coming back, giving up the whole thing."

"A man?" Dudley halted the spiral of smoke abruptly. "You're crazy, D."

"You don't know Dad! He comes from a family of hard fighters. Honestly, Dad, this is serious." Dona caught the young man's hand impulsively. "Can't you see we have

Garner's Post May Be Sought By Large Number

By United Press.

UVALDE, Texas.—If Speaker John N. Garner is elected vice president in November, a number of candidates ambitious for his place in congress are likely to get into a race for it.

Some of them have coveted the job of representing the 15th district for a long time, but have entertained the slightest hopes of defeating Garner, who has been repeatedly re-elected without making a campaign speech.

Probably the greatest boom at this time is for H. F. Hornsby, publisher of a Uvalde newspaper, and a close friend of the speaker, for many years. Hornsby's paper is credited with initiating the "Garner-for-president" boom.

Tully C. Garner, Uvalde banker, the speaker's son, had been approached to seek the seat, and had Hornsby's support, but he promptly quashed the idea by saying he had no political ambitions.

Garner is a candidate to succeed himself, as well as the nominee for vice president. In the event of his election as vice president, a special election will be called to fill the 15th district seat, since he will have to resign it.

Hornsby served as a representative in the 32nd, 35rd and 36th legislatures, and is not inexperienced in the affairs of state.

Others who are ambitious to succeed Garner include Hal Brennan of Uvalde, who has already announced his intention to seek it, if a special election is held; Lamar Gill, of Raymondville; W. E. Montgomery, Edinburg, and Milton H. West, of Brownsville.

The republicans also have hopes of electing a representative if Garner becomes vice president. Carlton C. Watson, a young republican nominee chosen at the party's convention, has announced he will campaign vigorously for the office.

Garner created the 15th district while in the Texas legislature, and promptly announced his candidacy for the place. He made a campaign for it the first time, but so rapidly did his popularity mount that he fished and hunted during subsequent campaigns. The citizens of the 15th district had come to think Garner was their representative for life, whether they remembered to re-elect him every two years or not.

The session was opened at 9:40 a. m., by Mrs. E. McGlamery, the recently appointed superintendent of publicity for conference and the zone leader, presiding.

Delightful music was contributed by Miss Gladie Inall of De Leon, a noted violinist, and member of the De Leon Octet of Eastland.

Those attending from Eastland, were Mrs. E. McGlamery, Mrs. Joia Mitchell, Mrs. Fred W. Dutzner, Mrs. J. E. Hickman, Mrs. W. P. Leslie, Mrs. E. C. Satterwhite, Mrs. T. M. Johnson, Mrs. Jack Langdon, and Mrs. Joe C. Stephens.

Bethany Class Delightfully Entertained
 The Bethany class of the Presbyterian Church was charmingly entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Ross Howland, at her residence, assisted by Mrs. Jack Meredith, co-hostess.

The house was prettily decorated with many bouquets of garden flowers, and artistic arrangements in the shades of the bouquets were noted in the clusters that centered the lace covered dining table.

Dining and living rooms were thrown open for the meeting, conducted by Mrs. W. J. Peters, the president of the Bethany class.

The Lord's prayer recited in unison, was followed by the minutes, approved as read by the secretary, Mrs. V. A. Thomas.

During the brief business session, arrangements were made to send a box of clothing to the class.

protege, Walter Arwine in Reynolds orphan home.

Mrs. Thomas was instructed to write to the proper authority and learned the lad's needs.

The pretty class custom of the exchange of mementos and forget-me-nots, ensued, and the mysterious identity of the holders of the mementos disclosed, and acts of kindness of hidden identified.

An interesting report was presented by the parliamentarian, Mrs. M. C. Hayes, who also read a paper on "What Constitutes a Quorum."

The scripture lesson was presented by Mrs. J. J. Tabelman in a helpful talk, based on Hebrews 13th chapter, in selective verses.

During the social hour, a game called "Our Diary" afforded much amusement. The name of the individual was written at the top of pages, which carried calendar dates from Monday to Sunday beneath, with corresponding blanks for entries, at activities on these days, the papers being passed from hand to hand, each one filling in the space under the date, with some supposed activity of her own.

Consequently many social diversions were assigned to those not familiar with these special lines of activity.

Hostesses assigned for the next meeting in four weeks, were announced, Mrs. C. W. Geue, and Mrs. Hubert Jones.

A delicious tea plate was served by the hostesses, of most health with olive dressing, salad, hot buttered rolls, iced minted tea, and small cakes.

The hour of meeting has been changed from the morning to afternoon on account of school now being in session.

 The district J. C. Penney group meeting an interesting and entertaining feature which is observed frequently, pleasantly entertained the manager and their families and friends from Breckenridge, Cicco, Eastland and Ranger Tuesday evening, when a picnic supper and program was held at Cicco lake.

Helen Twelvetrees Heads Big Cast In Arcadia Feature

Mystery and the modern age, an amazing dramatic twist wherein the heroine is faced with a choice between her own honor or the death of her brother, and a courtroom sequence that sets a new mark for dramatic suspense, figure in "Unashamed," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama which will open today at the Arcadia theatre, Ranger.

Bayard Veiller, author of "Within the Law," "The Trial of Mary Dugan," and other noted stage plays of the mystery type, wove many new and modern angles into a strange, gripping story, and Helen Twelvetrees, Robert Young, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, John Miljan, Monroe Owsley, Robert Warwick, Gertrude Michael and others in an elaborate cast, enact its characters under the direction of Harry Beaumont.

The story deals with a millionaire's daughter with too much freedom and an intense affection for her younger brother. She becomes infatuated with a fortune hunter. Her father refuses the marriage. To force consent, the lovers go to a hotel together and threaten a scandal. The brother shoots the lover and goes on trial. Then, in an amazing dramatic climax, the girl sacrifices her reputation—to save him from the executioner.

"Nature in the Raw" is seldom MILD

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a letter, book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, let him build his house in the woods; the world will make a beaten path to his door." —RALPH WALDO EMERSON
 Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?
