A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S RESPONSE: If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.—2 Chronicles 7: 14.

"WHY A TEXAS CENTENNIAL?"

Cullen F. Thomas is president of the state centennial commission. He has favored the press of the state with a written argument of why the Texas centennial. Among the telling points are: "It will celebrate one hundred years of unexampled progress, from barren wilderness to modern commonwealth. It will foregather the marvelous products of Texas' brawn and brain in every field of human endeavor. It will turn toward Texas the attention of the people of many tongues and lands beyond the sea. It will repay Texas for all outlay from her treasury, from our uncounted millions dropped within her borders by unnumbered hosts who will come by rail and road to proclaim her resources and applaud her strides. It will be an epochal event in which the nation will claim the right to share, since in secession 1836 was followed by 1845, San Jacinto by Chapultepec and American domain and destiny pushed forward from the Sabine river to the Pacific ocean. It will seal and tie bonds of unity through contact and understanding, Texas citizenship of every type, from pines to plains, from the river to the Gulf.

It will rid our State of the spectre of sectionalism, to the end that Texas may remain in territory, ideas and destiny forever undivided and indivisible. It will rekindle the dying flame of patriotism in decadent days and as we renew our faith at Texas' sacred shrines put to shame a leadership of noisy pretense and little deeds."
Yes, the Centennial year is on its way. Happy days are coming again. Why not vote for the Centennial celebration amendment and remember or recall the heroic deeds of mighty men and the shrines of Goliad and the Alamo and San Jacinto.

BUSINESS LEADERS 'FULL OF HOPE AND CONFIDENCE'

A hundred business leaders of America wired the private banking house of Lehman Brothers, Wall Street, "that the low point was passed in the summer," speaking of business conditions the nation over and that "the large majority were definitely of the opinion that the bottom had been seen, while the small number who voiced no definite convictions, were at least hopeful that this was the case." Business inventories were reported by nearly all as ranging from normal to very low. A majority looked to increased business the coming spring. Incidentally, the Iowa farmers have figured that 10 acres of corn will heat their houses through the coming winter and cut down the staggering crop surplus.

The annual crop of June brides was smaller this year. Many of the girls are out of work.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

The statements of the Peace pacts between countries we hear so much about are ideal, but they have no practical value without some power to enforce them. Without such power they amount to no more than a string of pious platitudes.

To use power in the economic sense, to punish a nation who does not agree word for word with the idealists would be just as cruel and probably far worse than war, as we know it today, inasmuch as it would mean in a way the starvation of an entire nation, the majority of whom would be innocent sufferers in any event.

We cannot see the justice in an ideal that would cut off trade supplies to possible millions of women and children who know nothing of the politics of their government and who must within themselves abhor war just as much, and with perhaps better reasons, than those who have formulated the Pacts.

No Peace Pacts, no matter by whom drawn or how skillfully worded, will be of any value while injustices between nations exist. The nation put down by force nurses not only a grudge, but nurses its remnants back to strength again, and then when they are strong they start it over again.

A single agreement between nations which allows time for consultation would be worth all the Pacts so far made. No nation would refuse to allow time for consultation provided that unbiased machinery were established for that purpose because a government that would deliberately refuse such an agreement would, in these democratic days, very soon cease to exist.

Young America! They are just a little bunch of boys, three in the crowd, and carousing up the street from the South Ward school, each other, chatting with youths, and fishing in pockets for the spare nickel or few pennies to finance a keenly desired job of stick candy, that could be bought at the little corner store.

"Well, times are hard, and the money is so tight, but a dime is hardly looked bigger, looming in the background."

So off the three set with the tree limb valiantly tugged and "biggest" boy acting as rigger for the "ship," the imaginative one they dubbed the lead they were dragging, sailed it through the driveway, and around the tree in grand order, reaching its port without mishap.

The little captain ran for his chest, and did as readily work George Washington ever did on famous cherry tree.

Working like little beavers, they had the dead branch reduced to a scrumptious pile of short sticks, which they surveyed with shining and bright eyes.

"Wait a minute, I have something for you," said the lady of the house, as she put down on well curb, a plate of enticing ad, butter and jam sandwiches. "Oh no, ma'am," they hastily waved. "Don't take that bother us." But the sandwiches soon appeared, and the dame appeared, but unusual as it may seem to us who do not know the modern of young America, they firmly and modestly declined to accept them. "Oh no, ma'am, we don't want them after all this; oh, no, ma'am, we are glad to help a ghbor, cause we like to do that as we like our neighbors. Please give us the dime back, we don't want it."

But the lady insisted that she did not want the dime, because it would never feel that she could give it upon them again, unless they had taken what they had agreed

CALL of the WEST

STAN BALL seemed ASPER DELI, timber king, of crooked practice and of having men shot who try to check up on his activities. Ball says he is making a check and tells him he will personally see him leaving Del's office Ball saves DONA, Del's daughter, from kidnappers. He slips away when he finds who she is, telling her his name is STANLEY BLACK.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with Dona, goes with her to Three Rivers to persuade her to abandon the fight with Ball. He tries to get her to marry him on the way as a means of getting her to give up his plans. Dona narrowly escapes doing this by meeting him on his way to the timber camp. They had Ball accused of killing a ranger. Asper is wounded and Ball escapes after a struggle. Dona tells him she has married Dudley to keep him out of the hunt.

Ball comes in for supplies and is captured by Del's men. Del's big timber boss. He escapes after hearing Dona tell her father she is Dudley's wife. Dudley insists on real marriage but Dona holds back. She rides out to see if she can find Stan. Dudley who she thinks is at Bill's house. She meets him in a cabin and tells him he is Stanley Black in a speech in his room.

Valuable records are stolen from the office and the clerk says Ball was there. Asper Del is furious and refuses to leave with Dona and Dudley. A posse goes on Ball's trail and it is reported he is cornered. Dona rides out with rifle and gun and shoots and takes her wounded and captures him. He takes her wounded and takes her wounded and captures him.

STAN BENT OVER an open fireplace of shapen rock slabs with a smoke deflector to send the fumes out through a crevice in the ceiling. He set the wood on end, Indian fashion, and applied a match. Beside the fireplace was a little collection of cooking utensils. Stan produced a piece of bacon and sliced it. He shoved a tin of water near the flames to heat, then he uncovered four speckled mountain trout. Soon a savory odor began to permeate the air of the cave. Dona sniffed disdainfully. She was not sure she would eat.

Stan Ball sat back on his heels and watched the trout sizzling in the pan with the bacon. When the water began to simmer and boil he pulled it back from the flames and sifted tea into it. After turning the trout several times he arose and pulled a wide slab of stone over beside the cot. Producing two tin plates, he laid out a knife, a fork and spoon, his entire stock of silver. Two tin cups were added to the table and a tin can of sugar.

The trout were done brown by this time and he dumped two of them on the plate before Dona. Three slices of crisp bacon were added. He shoved the plate toward

Tom Brown Of Culver Good Film

Novelty rules this season's pictures and here is one of the most unusual of them all.

What is said to be one of the most interesting and novel screen plays of the current season has been booked for the Arcadia theatre, Ranger, Thursday and Friday.

The picture is "Tom Brown of Culver," the Universal production which presents Tom Brown and Slim Summerville in the leading roles, and was filmed partly at the famous Culver Military Academy in Indiana. The entire story is told against the background of this well known institution, and is said to tell a most dramatic story of a boy whose father was erroneously credited with being a hero of the World war.

A noteworthy feature of "Tom Brown of Culver" is the fact that not a girl appears in it—and yet, it is said, the story is not lacking in intense "heart interest." The list of players appearing with Brown, Warner and Summerville includes Richard Cromwell, Sidney Toler, Russell Hopton, Andy Devine, Kit Guard, Willard Robertson, Fern Alexander, and other screen favorites. The picture was directed by William Wyler.

CRAZY CRYSTALS

I have been using CRAZY CRYSTALS for almost a year, and found that it has done me a wonderful lot of good. I had been troubled with neuritis and constipation. I advised several of my friends to try it, which they did and became a great believer in this water.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

This column is used as a feature and should not be construed as representing the editorial views of the paper. The expressions contained in the columns are the views of one individual and do not reflect the policy of the paper.

What do they mean to you, these tall, armless forms standing guard about Ranger? Are they outlines of better things to come or do they appear to be ghostly skeletons of dead days when streets ran with flowing gold and strangers came and went to the jingle of the elusive dollar? Are derricks, after all, mere man-made structures, serving the purpose for which they were constructed and immediately fading into the background of their surroundings? Somehow they seem to live on, hiding the secrets of a city they once knew and forever grazing silently upon a passing world. Gradually one learns to love the gaunt symbols of the will be sent, and these include outer flannels, shirts, prints, and domestic goods.

Mrs. Stallter will have sewing machines placed in the rooms of the Chambers of Commerce, and the work of cutting out and making up of materials will be conducted there.

Church societies are asked to volunteer for this work, and to send the names of those willing to assist, to the chairman, Mrs. W. E. Stallter.

Several volunteers from the missionary society of the Methodist church signed up for this work last week, but many others are needed.

Dates will be sent by the chairman for the work and announced later.

Stallter, in Eastland Wednesday afternoon, stopping a short time on his plane trip enroute to Big Spring. Maurice has a host of friends in Eastland who are interested in his success.

town, finding in their eternal consistency a silent companionship.

Baylor university at Waco dropped her doors in black Tuesday mourning the death of Prof. J. P. Simmons of the English department. It is inexplicable, life and death. Death is an impartial reaper, claiming souls from all extremes of life. Tuesday he, the author of numerous educational books, was torn rudely from an admiring student body and grief-stricken family... whom some days ago the author of the dandy "son-of-a-bitch" left a fondish underworld to meet his Maker. It is a crude comparison. Aren't all comparisons somewhat crude when personality is taken into consideration?

Someone, a sage perhaps, has given to the world a phrase to think about. "People of inferior intelligence talk about people, people of normal intelligence talk about things, people of superior intelligence talk about ideals." Isn't it upsetting to look back over a lifetime of conversations and fail to find one sentence concerning "ideals"? It lowers one's personal morale, no doubt.

According to an outstanding professor in an equally important university in Texas, an amateur poet may be cited by his subject matter which usually consists of life, love and death. If such a fact be true, existence in itself must necessarily be young and untrained, for it seems humanity insists on living, loving, and finally ending it all. And that reminds me of an anonymous little something I read not long ago:

"Eat, drink, and be merry. Dance the long night through. For tomorrow we must die. But, alas, we never do."

There you are! The poet must have been an American: dwelling on the futility of things, never satisfied, and sighing with hopeless fervor that the fates will in man cannot name the date for his own individual extinction.
