Cuban Hurricane Refugees Taken to Hospitals RANGER BULLDOGS DEFEAT EASTLAND MAVERICKS 34-13

THROUGH THE HOLES WITH BILL MAYES

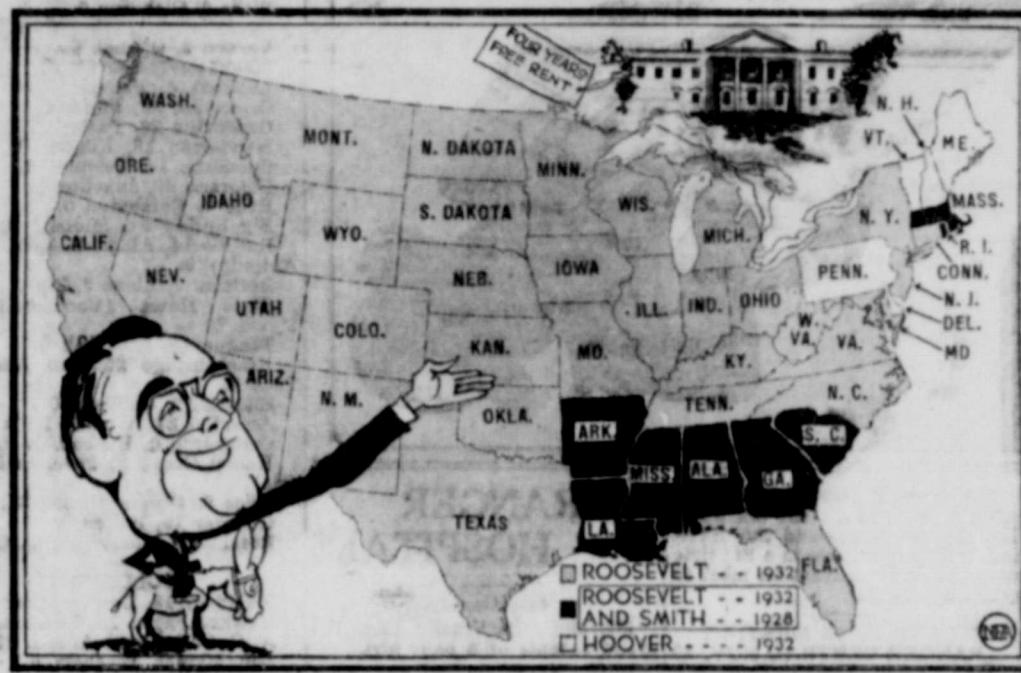

Ve are not quite sure but we think the Eastland Mavericks finished some kind of a record in the game when they made touchdowns on one first down at the end of the third quarter and had made but one first down and one touchdown. Then in the fourth, the first time they got the ball she scored on a 27-yard pass to touchdown the second play following.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

RIGHT REASONING: Let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow.—Isaiah 1: 18.

GLASSFORD HANDS ANOTHER PACKAGE TO PRESIDENT

Gen. Peiham D. Glassford, former police superintendent, in a speech in the city of Philadelphia said, "There had been no serious difficulties with bonus marchers for nearly two months last summer until the satellites of an intolerant and shortsighted administration saw fit to repudiate everything that had been done and to take matters into their own hands." Addressing a World War veterans' rally, he said he was through with public life. He told of events connected with the forcible eviction of bonus marchers from the capital in July. In his address, Glassford said he had been "criticized in administrative circles for two much leniency toward the marchers, but that in this quality he has taken a leaf from the book of Mr. Herbert Hoover in the humanitarian relief work that he accomplished in Belgium and Austria." General Glassford is a militant warrior in peacetime as well as wartime. He "tore to tatters" the statement furnished the press by Attorney General W. D. Mitchell. That distinguished personage who booted the nomination of Woodrow Wilson in the long ago and has been a consistent republican ever since was silenced by the Glassford machine gun. He padlocked his mouth. Col. Pat Hurley, secretary of war, was silenced by the withering fire of the Glassford weapon of destruction. General Glassford has a big ranch in Arizona. He is going back to the ranch. He has had his fill of office holders and their scheming advisers.

FRANCE MAKES ANOTHER DEMAND

A very busy and very wise people are those of France and the men they place in the key positions to handle their foreign affairs as well as their domestic laws and regulations. Now a consultative anti-war pact with the United States is suggested in the new arms plan which the French statesmen will present at Geneva. Washington was a patriot and a soldier and a statesman. In his farewell address he warned his countrymen to beware of "entangling alliances" with foreign nations. That warning is as virile and rings as powerful today as when it fell from the lips of the first president of the United States. This republic never made a war of aggression. It never made a war for loot or treasure. Why should the republic of George Washington forsake the advice of the father of this country and be bound hand and foot by Old World diplomacy and Old World hates and prejudices?

CHURCHES

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
L. B. Gray, Minister
Revival meeting opens today. Mr. Gordon Weir will speak at 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., today, beginning the revival meeting. It will be a happy privilege to all our members and friends to hear Mr. Weir again. This talented young Christian athlete, has made for himself a warm place in the hearts of the people of Ranger by his former addresses on young people's work.

On Monday night at 7:30 o'clock and on through the week Dr. E. B. Surface of Abilene, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church will preach. Day services will be announced for certain days through the week. Dr. Surface is a preacher of charming personality and power. Hearing him once, you will want to hear him again. Come at the beginning of the revival, and continue with us in an intensive campaign for one week. The Sunday school with Mr. S. B. Baker, superintendent, meets at 9:45 a. m. The Christian Endeavor meets at 7 p. m. Mr. Weir will probably address the C. E. also.

The ladies' auxiliary on Monday at 3 p. m. will be favored with a message from Miss Hutchinson, one of our traveling secretaries. Let every member and friend of the Little White Church on the Hill rally to the support of the evangelistic effort now being made and by prayer, punctual attendance and cooperative, consecrated earnestness seek to bring our friends into Christ and build them in Christ.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
H. B. Johnson, pastor
Sunday school, 10 a. m., with Mr. Von Roeder, superintendent. Golden Rule Bible class, taught by Mr. Holloway. There is not a dull minute in his class. All men of the church should be in this class this morning.

Preaching, 11 a. m., by Dr. Randolph Clark. If you miss any of the services of the day, don't miss hearing this great exponent of the scriptures. There is always something new being preached for three quarters of a century and yet his sermons are full of information and inspiration. Hear him. Communion just before morning sermon.

Both Endeavors will meet at 8:00 p. m. These young folks are doing fine work. Be in these meetings. Official board meeting just after morning sermon. Let all the members of the board be present.

Preaching again, 7:15 p. m., by the pastor, Subject, "The Force That Moves Mountains." Special music. We had the largest crowd last Sunday night in the history of the First Christian Church in Ranger. Come and worship with us. Bring your family and friends. There is always something new being preached in this church. Mid-week church services Wednesday evening 7:15 p. m. This will be an interesting service. There will be reports from all departments of church activity. Program to be announced this morning.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
H. H. Stephens, Pastor
9:45 a. m.—Sunday school. T. J. Anderson, superintendent. Teachers and officers on time at 6:30. Be on time. Attendance goal 300. Let every class meet its appointment.

11:00 p. m.—Preaching by the pastor, subject, "The Christ With Authority." Special music. 2:30 p. m.—Eastland Zone meeting. B. Y. P. U. will be held with our church.

6:30 p. m.—B. T. S. under direction of Frank Hicklin. Be in your place in our training service, subject, "The 130 Psalm." Mr. Maddox and his orchestra will have a 15 minute song service. Come early and enjoy this fine music. Monday, 2:45 p. m.—The W. M. S. will meet at the church in business meeting. This is a very important meeting. Wednesday, 7:00 p. m.—Prayer service. A short preview of next Sunday's lesson.

City-County. Mr. and Mrs. Frasier are the proud parents of a baby girl. Buddy Eubanks, who was in an accident a few weeks ago, is getting along nicely. Mrs. L. M. Rose, who sustained a sprained ankle recently, is doing nicely. Mrs. E. M. Threat, who was operated recently, is doing nicely. Charles Phillips, who has been a patient for several weeks, is getting better. Mr. and Mrs. Roy McCleskey are the parents of a baby boy. Cleo Gray, who sustained a broken leg in the Ranger-Waughford football game, is doing nicely and was able to attend the Eastland-Ranger game in a wheelchair. Mrs. Ed Eubanks, who was operated this week, is resting well. Tom Sawyer, who is in the hospital with an infected hand, is improving. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Russell are the parents of a baby boy. Mr. and Mrs. Nash of Eastland have a new baby boy, born at the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bankston are the parents of a baby boy. Harvey Burch, who is a patient, is showing improvement.

West Coast Girl, 12, Likes Air Stunting
By United Press. ALAMEDA, Calif.—Larnie Bowman would like to pilot her own plane solo, providing she can do all the stunt flying she pleases. But the government won't let her, despite the several hundred flight hours in her log book. Larnie is only 12. The department of commerce says she must wait until she is 16 for a pilot's license. Although she is too young to qualify for a department of commerce license, Larnie doesn't let a little thing like that keep her out of the air. She goes aloft with her parents, takes over the controls and settles down to do some serious piloting.

ACCIDENT SAVES MAN'S LIFE
By United Press. ST. LOUIS, Mo.—George O'Neill, 37, probably owes his life to the fact he was hit by an automobile. His clothing caught fire when a gasoline tank exploded. As flames enveloped him he stepped blindly into a street. At that moment an automobile struck him, rolling him along the ground and extinguishing the flames.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

Today, Sunday, Nov. 13, the National Children's Book week opens and special books for children and articles written about children and books they should read, will be published over our country, containing timely suggestions, and with items concerning this all important week in child life.

It is at this time especially that the thoughts of mothers are directed more pointedly toward the proper kind of reading for their children.

It is at this time that books are being purchased and laid away for the Christmas gift for children of all ages, even grown-up children.

As a rule the modern child rather have books as a birthday or Christmas gift than almost anything else, for the simple reason that if the parents are able to buy books for gifts, the family is so situated that the ordinary comforts and even luxuries are a part of the daily living and do not need to be given as reserve or special birthday or holiday tokens.

This rule of course has its exceptions.

There is possibly no better means extent of instilling in the child a love for good reading than to have the family library table supplied daily with such magazines and periodicals that encourage the children to read and interest them, and finally forms for their reading habit.

Such magazines as Youth's Companion, Woodcraft Stories of Boy Scout World, the Camp Fire Girls' Manuals, Saturday Evening Post, all these have a direct bearing on the forming of children's reading taste and the inevitable effect upon their character, of this kind of reading, far preferable to the "true story" type of stuff youngsters are prone to find, unless their reading interest is guided into another channel, and their reading time engrossed with the "right sort" of story books and news matter.

Just as National Educational week closes, we have the natural outcome, National Children's Book week, so aptly termed "Young America Book Parade."

What is there more delightful than in the quiet hours of the evening, when the dusk comes five flickers on the hearstone, than to remember that old home life of your childhood when father and mother and all the children gathered about the cozy glowing reading lamp and looked over the magazines and discussed the stories in the children's books.

And when mother finally picked up a thrilling story book of adventure and read it aloud to the shiny-haired youngsters, clustered about her knee.

When the littlest one would go drowsy and be picked up by father in his tender arms, while the mother's voice read on and on into the land of adventure!

Backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight,

Make me a child again just for tonight.

Mother, come back from the echoless shore,

Take me again to your heart as of yore."—(Lord Byron.)

But such evenings in this modern day are few and far between.

Week and MURDER by GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant week-end he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of LINDA and TOM AYRILL, married three years and much in love. Linda announces that instead of three guests over the week-end they are to have five. The guests will be: COUSIN AMOS PRATT, elderly distant relative of Linda's, who was in New York on business and scious of the weight of air upon her and of some distant hovering as if of unheeded thunder that she fell silent and her fingers moved mechanically.

Linda said, "There's a sort of thunder-stormy feeling in the air."

"I wish this week-end were over!" she said to herself, and then wondered if she had said it aloud. A glance at Tom reassured her.

"I'm ready, angel, and I'm starting," she said. "I want to slip down the back stairs into the kitchen a moment."

Going down the front stairs only a moment later, Tom was first to meet the long-haired former suitor, bending attentively over the lower shelf of a bookcase in the big central room.

"You must be Mr. Pratt!" a startled face, with pronouncedly under-set jaw below an iron-gray pompadour, turned quickly at the words and the man seemed for a second to recoil against the shelves of books, one hand behind him. Inwardly Tom was thinking, "And you must be a darned quick mover—last to come and first down stairs!"

Recovering from his momentary surprise, the other gripped his hand so firmly that for all his own muscle Averill almost showed his discomfort.

The greeting over, the two men stood a moment awkwardly, then each broke the short silence with hasty speech.

"Your wife's all right—?" "Linda's coming right down."

"They laughed with a little constraint and this time Averill took the lead more naturally.

"Sit down, won't you, and have a cigarette!"

The other walked over to the long windows.

"Thanks—I don't smoke anything but a pipe—and that outdoors. But, I say, there's a fat white dog out here—" he gestured toward the screened casement. "Seems to want to come in. I didn't know whether you permitted dogs in the house."

"That's Buntzy. Sure, let her in please. She has the run of this house, all right."

NONE too rapidly, Marvin Pratt unfastened the long screen door and pushed it slightly ajar. Instantly there was a scuffle of paws and a black, rather porcine nose appeared urgently in the crack. With another scramble and push the door was opened wide enough to admit the white, puffing little dog, who came up to Averill wagging apologetically, though with a sharp sidewise glance at the stranger standing by the screen door. As Averill patted Buntzy absently, he saw Pratt fling the door still wider and Cousin Amos came in from the terrace.

"Ah, Thomas—Mr. Pratt!" Acknowledging the introduction, "Thomas, I am sorry not to have seen you sooner. I have been down stairs for some time—some little time, I thought it would be pleasant to stroll a while down towards the water but this—this small but determined animal thought otherwise. I have been occupying that marble bench halfway down the path for some moments—in considerable discomfort—considerable," exclaimed Cousin Amos, warming at the thought of his voice rose, Buntzy, who had kept her ear cocked in his direction, advanced stiff-legged toward him, the ghost of a growl in her aged throat. Her manner indicated that for all she was an old lady, she was still guardian of the house.

"Here, old dog! Stop that!" Tom Averill could not completely tide his amusement. "Sorry, Cousin Amos. The dog's been trained to watch strangers. We leave her with Buntzy a lot. She wasn't properly introduced and I'm afraid she's a little crotchety."

Under Linda's laughing guidance, the little group drifted into the large living room. Stratterer, correctly formal in evening clothes of slightly out-of-date cut, came downstairs rather ponderously beside the quick-moving, graceful Belgian. Again, as she welcomed them, Linda responded instinctively to the flashing smile, the courteous friendliness of the European. He had the gift of seeming fascinated by whom-ever he talked to, and that in turn exerted its own fascination. As the spell was turned upon the others Linda hurried to the door where a burst of laughter and talk, the slamming of the screen and noise of feet announced the arrival in a single car, of the "unattached" girls she had assembled for her unannounced guests. With them, apparently unshaken by the feminine preponderance, came the last house guest, or rather the garage guest, Lian Shaghnassy, whom several of them recognized and hailed as the star of the afternoon meeting.

Again a round of introductions—the obvious time-killing chatter of that deadly five minutes before dinner, when the most glittering epigrams fall slightly flat—and then the hired butler-footman-kitchen-standby who helped all the neighborhood on such occasions came with the welcome announcement that dinner was served.
