A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

PEACE AND TRUTH: Thus saith the Lord, Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not. . . . Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth.—Jeremiah 33: 2, 3, 6.

DEMOCRATIC WINNERS WILL STICK TO THEIR POSTS

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will not resign the office of governor of New York. He will remain at the post until his democratic successor, Herbert H. Lehmann, qualifies in the month of January, 1933. John Nance Garner will not resign his congressional seat. He will swing the gavel over a democratic house in the session to come in December. He may resign in February, 1933, to make way for a democratic successor and to prepare for the inaugural ceremonies. Why should Roosevelt resign the governorship? Why should Garner resign the speakership?

OSCAR DEPRIEST

Oscar DePriest of Chicago, only negro representative, was one of the few republican congressmen from Illinois to be returned in the election. He represents the first district of Chicago. This includes the famous Loop on the fringe of what is known as the Chicago Harlem. DePriest won with a majority of 600 over a democrat and a communist. Moreover, a majority of the voters in the district are negroes. When Martin B. Madden, a noted republican leader, died, DePriest was elected his successor. Madden held the district for 24 years. Now DePriest appears determined to hold it against all comers.

REMEMBERING EX-PRESIDENTS

The Philadelphia millionaire who died the other day and left a fund to provide life incomes of $1200 a year for widows of presidents of the United States had an idea which the government itself might well consider. We make no provision for our ex-presidents. When they go back to private life they go all the way back, and if the nation they served is to give them a living they have to earn it.

That, in a democracy, is fair enough. But it would hardly be out of place for a democracy to make some regular provision for the presidents' widows. Few of our presidents have left large estates at their death. In some cases their widows have known real want. The job of providing for them ought not to be left to private bequests as this one in Philadelphia.

GOVERNOR MURRAY SUFFERS REVERSE

Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma was given a fly in the democratic ointment by the voters of his commonwealth. His initiated income tax measure was defeated by 30,000 majority. This bill was designed to boost rates on large incomes to a maximum of 10 per cent "and to reduce levies for the little fellow." It was Governor Bill's pet measure. It was smashed by his admiring fellow citizens. There was an overwhelming tide of democratic ballots that buried the republican nominees for all offices and gave to Oklahoma a democratic congressional delegation complete for the first time in the history of the state. Colorado voters declared for the democratic nominees, but two income tax measures on the ballot were snowed under, as were proposals to reduce the state gasoline tax from 4 to 3 cents, a proposed tax on oleomargarine and a measure to increase terms of county offices from two to four years. A measure to reapportion legislative representation in Colorado carried by a large majority. "The ballot was the thing."

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE IDAHO PROPHET

Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho cast an absentee ballot, caught a train from Boise and turned his face toward the city on the banks of the Potomac river. Before his departure he had proclaimed to the world "that the speeches of Alfred E. Smith were the ablest and best delivered for Herbert Hoover and his cause." His train touched Chicago on election day. He was informed by press representatives that an unusually heavy vote was being cast over the nation. It was then that the Lone Eagle made his final prediction: "That looks good for Hoover. Every vote means the women are going to the polls and 75 per cent of the women in the country are for Hoover." Well, the returns are in. Herbert Hoover and William Howard Taft in the history of presidential elections are linked together as two important personages who are counted among "the also rans." Taft, one of the most lovable and one of the best men the republic has known, came out of the grave and served until his death as chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. Resurrection may come to Herbert Hoover. There is no telling what will happen in future years in "the land of the free" when the growers of things and the millions of "forgotten men" run amuck on election day.

TEXAS RANGERS DEFEAT WEATHERFORD COYOTES 19-0

HALF OF THE FIELDED WITH THRILLS

Flahie, Bumpers Many Rangers Are Stars.

Ranger Junior College defeated their opponent, the Junior College Coyotes, Thursday afternoon in a score of 19 to 0 with aerial attack and defense the Coyotes passes.

Flahie was a defensive star, neither side being able to make gains of any consequence. Rangers accounting for the first down and the drive starting on their line after Weaver had passed over the goal line, and ending on their own 16-yard line after penetrating to the 10-yard line and being thrown for losses. Faircloth intercepted a pass on the 10-yard line on a fourth down and was tackled in his tracks. Landers' punting kept the Rangers out of danger, once when he stood in the shadow of his own goal and punted to the eight-yard line, where Murray started the ball.

The scoring started in the third quarter when Weaver intercepted a Weatherford pass on the Ranger 40-yard line and returned it to the Weatherford 37-yard line before being downed. Townsend ran the ball out of bound for one yard gain, a pass, Weaver to Flahie, was good for eight yards and another pass, Weaver to Landers, carried the ball to the two-yard line. Townsend, on one play, bucked the ball over for the score, and Hubbard kicked the ball.

The two teams again battled on even terms for the remainder of the quarter, Ranger taking the ball on a punt on their own 40-yard line, Hubbard returning the kick to the 48-yard line. Townsend picked up two yards and Flahie slipped through tackle for four yards and on the next play slipped through right tackle again for 40 yards and a touchdown, crossing the goal line without being touched by a Coyote player, due to the splendid blocking of the Rangers. Hubbard failed to kick goal.

Weatherford then took to the air and Landers intercepted a pass on his own 29-yard line, reversed his field, dodged several Weatherford tacklers, reversed again, going to the sideline and was finally brought down on the Weatherford 52-yard line. The Rangers again failed to gain and the ball went to Weatherford on the fourth down when a pass was incomplete. The Coyotes again tried the air route, the first pass being intercepted by T. L. Bumpers, who raced from the 31-yard line over the last stripe for a touchdown. Hubbard's attempt to kick goal was wild, the score being 19 to 0 in favor of the Texas Rangers.

Landers kicked off and Weatherford, still trying to make her passes click, tossed one into the arms of Jimmie Campbell, who was downed on the Ranger 45-yard line. Three plays by the Rangers gained four yards and drew a five-yard penalty as the game ended with the ball in midfield.

Landers got off some of the nicest punts seen in this section in many a day, kicking nine times for a total distance of 406 yards for an average of slightly more than 45 yards, which included one short kick from the 50-yard line which carried to the 19-yard line. Letts of Weatherford was not far behind Landers in punting, kicking nine times for a total of 334 yards or an average of slightly over 37 yards. All punts were figured from the line of scrimmage and not from where the kicker stood, which would mean that the punts traveled from 10 to 15 yards farther than this average shows.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

Champion Golf Rule-Breaker Is Discovered in Midwest

A strange four-ball golf match ended on the first green when Frank Rader, who had been challenged, gave up in dismay. The freak match was played in Kansas City.

Jack Cannon broadcast the challenge, telling Rader that rules of the match each man selected the other's partner.

Cannon named Paul S. Conwell to team with Rader. Rader named Ralph S. Latschaw to play with Cannon. And now Rader says he is willing to match Conwell with anyone in the world, who claims to know nothing about the golf rules, and bet that Conwell knows less.

Conwell made enough rule violations on the first hole to finish the match.

And here's how he made them: Teed off out of turn. Asked bystanders distance to green. Grounded club when tee shot landed in hazard. Tossed rock out of hazard. Threw stick out of hazard. Dug out rock interfering with stance. Stamped ground behind ball. Frosted soil behind ball with club. Pulled up grass beside ball. Had caddy hold back tree branch. Placed bag in trap. Grounded club in sand. Pushed sand away from ball with shoe. Asked spectator distance to green. Asked caddy condition of green. Picked up and cleaned ball. Walked on line of putt. Used putter to mark line of putt. Used putter to brush sand from line of putt. Tramped down rise in ground.

Outstanding players for Ranger were Landers, Weaver, Townsend, Flahie, Mitchell, Bumpers and Murray, while Sands, Letts, Glover, Briden, Rhone and Turney stood out for the Coyotes.

The starting lineups were: Ranger—Mills and Landers; ends; Mitchell and Murray; tackles; Bumpers and Steed; guards; Horton, center; Hubbard, quarter; Faircloth and Buchanan, halves; and Townsend, full. Substitutes: Weaver, Stevens, Ashman, Flahie, Steed, Campbell and Blackwell.

Weatherford—Johnson and Ranspot, ends; Rhone and Briden, tackles; Chapman and Wilkinson, guards; Lott, center; Rae, quarter; Murray and Glover, halves; and Letts, full. Substitutes, Sands, Turney, Young and Frazee.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson STEWARDSHIP OF MONEY

Text: Deut. 8:11-14, 15; 2 Cor. 9:6-15.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 20.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

The best of all lessons for study are those which bring the grand truths and examples of the Bible into the range of the immediate problems of life today. Surely at the present hour in America there are no more immediate or greater problems than those that are associated with money—the use of it on the part of those who have it, and the problems occasioned by its lack on the part of those who do not have it.

Never, perhaps, in our national life have there been greater or more widespread discrepancies between the situations of people than there are today, and these discrepancies are no longer of the sort that can be attributed to the possession of certain qualities of character, thrift, and energy, or the lack of these things.

The difference between many people is not a difference of character, or a difference of ability, or a difference of willingness or competency to serve society, but simply a difference of status in which the one person happens to have a job and the other person happens to be without.

In the face of present conditions we can no longer, even for a moment, think that the unemployed are the unemployable, and that moneyless people are without money because of some dire fault in themselves or in their ways of managing their lives.

We are face to face with serious conditions which affect good and bad alike, and in the face of such conditions the elemental and ultimate responsibilities of human brotherhood and solidarity are enforced as they never were before.

It is here that the teaching of the Bible is clear and incisive, and different, on the whole, from any other teaching in life. The suggestion of modern society has long been that a man was justified in pursuing his own ends and in seeking success according to ordinary standards. In fact, if he happened to be successful, society was not too scrupulous in surveying the means by which he attained to that success. Trickery and greed and dishonesty in business have too frequently been disregarded when the man who practiced them became wealthy.

But when we look to the Bible we are in another world—a world of clear-cut and definite responsibilities in which a man has duties toward his fellow men as well as privileges of improving his own position. Our lesson is drawn from varied passages of Scripture, but all unite in emphasizing this responsibility and the fact that unless a man recognizes his social obligations and responsibilities no measure of worldly success can justify his life or make him in any true sense noble.

The golden text particularly strikes straight home in its incisive comment upon the lust of possession: "Take heed and keep yourselves from all covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Luke 12:15.

It is not a time when we should be minimizing the importance of things. Money, or what money represents, is, after all, really important as one very clearly displays covers if he does not happen to have it.

But it is equally true that to have more than one needs and not to share it with those who are in dire need is bad for the soul of the man who possesses, as the condition of good is bad for both soul and body of the one who has not the very necessities of life.

If we could turn to the Bible standard of values and the Bible way of living and seek to bring the things that are needful and worthwhile into the use and service of all, what a vast change we could soon effect in a nation, where at present millions of people are in want or are finding relief only through the ministry of public or private charity!

How much more effective would be a society of brotherhood in which men were sharing their quest and sharing life's rewards!

Claims 'Young' House Honors

Martha Dorcus Class Is Complimented With Pretty Party
One of the prettiest parties of mid-week came as a compliment to the Martha Dorcus class of the First Methodist Church with Miss Mary Kohler, hostess at the home of her sister, Mrs. Al Tume, 602 Perry street. A profusion of chrysanthemums and roses were the primary decorations making the entertaining rooms a colorful picture.

For the entertainment of the group of members the hostess presented Miss Patsy Ruth Eubanks of Eastland, singing young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Eubanks, who gave a very clever reading. This opening program feature was followed with a reading given by Miss Brown, Ranger expression teacher. Pretty violin duet was played by James Bronson and Wallace Avant. The usual business session conducted in a brief manner was presided over the class president, Mrs. G. O. Strong.

Agricultural Extension News
From the Office of the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent

County Council
The Eastland County Home Demonstration Council met in regular session Saturday, Nov. 12, in 83rd District court room, Eastland. Meeting called to order by Chairman, Mrs. Lee Burkhead of Rising Star, roll called, minutes read and approved. Roll call answered by representatives from nine different clubs. Announcements made of recreation institute to be held in Eastland in December, the county Extension meeting in Cisco the 19th, and the Christmas party to be given by the County Federation of Women's Clubs in December. Following the announcements, the business of the organization was discussed. The records and reports to be sent in by the co-operators of each club, returned to demonstrators and sent to agent. Prizes will be awarded the clubs sending the best reports and the largest percentage. Meeting adjourned to meet the second Saturday in December. Nine clubs were represented, attendance of 25.

The Eastland County Federation of Women's Clubs will meet in Cisco, the new library building, Saturday, Nov. 19th. This program is to be on County Libraries.
A representative from the Library Department, Austin, will be the speaker for the meeting. Miss Helen Johnson, president sixth district Federation, Brownwood, and Miss Sallie F. Hill, District Home Demonstration Agent, College Station, will also be on the program. This is to be special Thanksgiving Market for the home demonstration club women. The women will bring farm products for sale.

The North Star Home Demonstration Club will serve the banquet for the West Texas Pecan Growers Association, Friday night at 7:00 o'clock at the Methodist church, Rising Star. Everyone invited.

Achievement Day Tour
A 115 mile drive from Eastland, 12 demonstrations visited, 8 different communities, with a total of 107 persons seeing the demonstrations. The party left Eastland at 9 a. m. Wednesday, Nov. 9th, visiting demonstrations at the Ranger Co-Workers Club, Bass Lake, Okla., North Star, Friendship-Dotlan, Grapevine, Pumpkin Center, Carbon and Flatwood. The first demonstration, 4-H Pantry, Mrs. Lilian Neal Eastland, Ranger. The cellar arranged with the canned products on the shelves, the starchy, leafy and other vegetables, fruits, tomatoes, relish, jellies and jams, meats and the time saving foods in separate groups, arranged in order so that anyone could select a complete meal in a very short time. Arranged on the back porch, a group of menus using the home canned products. Other exhibits of interest, the gift basket and packages using the home canned and home made products; candied fruits and fruit duffs; quills and other hand made articles made by club members. One comfort, filled with home grown, home washed and carded wool. The club has a membership of 25 and members have canned a total of more than 17,000 containers of food.

Next to Gorman, visiting three Bass Lake Club demonstrations; Mrs. Floyd McCormick's 4-H pantry. There was no place in the house for the pantry and Mr. and Mrs. McCormick built a small cellar seven feet square and six feet high, walls with scrap lumber and shelves built. In addition to the canning for the family, Mrs. McCormick has canned more than one thousand containers of food for others. By canning for the others she got the containers for her food and was out no expense.

Mrs. J. H. Cooper, garden and pantry demonstrator, tried several new vegetables, one of special interest, a celery bed. This celery bed has about fifty stalks of celery. Mrs. McCormick is not bleaching the celery. This can be preferred. Bleaching is done by covering the celery with sand, building paper or sing corn stalks. Celery requires much water and will grow in Eastland county if the right methods are used.
Mrs. E. E. Todd, yard demonstrator, has planted and has a good sodded lawn as a result of the work this year. In addition to this she has planted 25 shrubs, two red buds, four lilacs, two yellow yuccas. The yard improvement plan to continue the work, she has moved from beds around the house to rose garden, evergreen shrubs around the house, outdoor living room screen plantings, to hide the garden, field and out buildings. One walk of native rock has been built.
Third community, Okra, to Miss Halie Hill, walks made of native rock, native shrubs, red buds and sunae as screen plantings. In the interior of the home, refinishing, re-upholstered furniture using heavy cotton sacks, dyed and put in a dufoird; desk made out of an old organ.

Lunch time, as the North Star club house, just north of Rising Star, the North Star club members in charge of the basket lunch furnished by all making the tour. In addition to the lunch, hot coffee, donated by the Pleeving Company, through John H. Harrison Groceries, Eastland, was one of the most important dishes served at the lunch. Following the lunch all visited the 4-H pantry of Mrs. Burkhead. This pantry contained more than a thousand containers of food—dishes vegetables, soups and jelly, potatoes, bread and 14 different fresh vegetables but one of the vegetables on Nov. 9th. This shows that fall as well as spring produce will grow in this county. Another demonstration of interest here was

Special Correspondent.
GREENSBORO, N. C.—"More money to spend—and more time in which to enjoy it!" That is the unusual promise of a brand new feature that folk who follow it don't have to deny themselves the things they either want or need. On the contrary, all they give up or cut down on is something they neither want nor need—common colds.

That, in effect, is the promise of the new Vicks plan for better control of colds—developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub and widely tested in clinics and home use last season. Results of these clinical tests have just been announced.

Over 3,500 people—in schools, colleges and homes—participated in the tests. For comparative results, these people were divided into two equal groups. One group followed the plan—the other group did not. The results, which follow, are really quite amazing.

With Broken Neck Is "Just a Job"
By United Press.
BRISTOL, Eng.—Breaking flying records with a broken neck is all in the day's work for Capt. Cyril Uwins, British pilot who recently set a new world's altitude mark.
Uwins crashed during the war and broke his neck. A doctor was the first man on the scene and strapped up the airman before he was removed from the wreckage. Since that time he has worn a metal brace to hold the vertebrae in place.

Going higher aloft than man ever had before in a plane (the corrected barograph showed 43,976 feet, or almost 8½ miles) did not impress Uwins as much of a feat.
"Just a nice comfortable trip, a little job of work I had to do after lunch," was how he described the venture. And about the only reason he came down when he did Vicks cold-control plan was introduced last year, along with the new aid in preventing colds—Vicks nose and throat drops. This new formula—developed by Vicks chemists after years of research—is considered the ideal companion to Vicks VapoRub, the modern, external method of treating colds. Together with a few simple rules of health, these preparations form Vicks plan for better control of colds. The plan is especially designed to provide proper medication, at the proper time, for every type and stage of a cold. It is absolutely unique in its field.

C. B. Rushing of Stephenville was here on business Wednesday.

Mrs. Claud Lee and Mrs. A. B. Henslee entertained the members of the "21" Study club at the home of Mrs. Henslee, Tuesday, Nov. 8th. Roll call responses were sayings of the Prince of Peace. Mrs. C. M. Bratton was leader of the program and gave a splendid talk on the Kellogg-Brand treaty. Mrs. C. W. Malby had a most interesting paper on "What Women Can Do to Promote Peace." Mrs. Aaron Henslee and Miss Dorothy Mae Bowen played a beautiful piano duette after which the social hour was enjoyed. The hostesses served tempting refreshments of sandwiches, olives, salad, coffee, pecan pie and whipped cream. Those present were: Meses Gifford Area, Roy Ashburn, Plummer Ashburn, W. E. Barron, W. C. Bedford, C. M. Bratton, W. H. Davis, J. W. Griffin, A. B. Henslee, Claud Lee, C. W. Malby, John Mendenhall, Clarence Rasland, A. C. Robert, C. C. Richardson, S. E. Snodgrass, Mattie Henry, Fred Weider, Robert Weir, R. D. Wright, Ralph Ludwick, R. H. Washburn, and Meses Nora Robert and Dorothy Mae Bowen.

Walker was given another assignment at the recent conference in the afternoon the Missionary Society gave a handkerchief shower to Mrs. Walker who has served faithfully as vice-president ever since she came here. After the program and "showers" refreshments of pie, whipped cream and coffee were served. Then at night men, women and children gathered to the parsonage carrying packages of various sizes and shapes, giving a "pounding" that will cause Rev. Walker and family to remember their loving friends at Desdemona for a long time. Rev. Walker is an unusually good preacher and he and his wife and daughter are good mixers, one of the qualities needed for a successful pastor and his family. They will be greatly missed.

Mrs. Plummer Ashburn spent Sunday in Gorman with Miss Gladys Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stansberry were in Anson on business Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Richardson and Mrs. C. C. Richardson, Sr., of Stephenville were guests of C. C. Richardson and family Sunday.

Flowers! Why, Marty!

It's quite a step from the rough, tough game of football to the gentle job of arranging tender flowers in delicate display—but that's what Marty Brill is doing now. Remember Marty? He was one of those Notre Dame immortals who played on the last team Kaute Rockne coached. He's opened up a flower shop at Ardmore, Pa., and here you see him trimming up a flower basket.

New Accounts of Early History of Texas Obtained

By United Press.
AUSTIN.—New accounts of the early history of Texas are contained in letters of the old Spanish conquistadores and missionaries discovered by Dr. Lota Mae Spell, an assistant librarian of the famous Garcia library at the University of Texas.

Through these letters many of which are 150 years old, a new light has been thrown on the San Saba mission massacre in 1757. The letters reveal the money for founding the mission among the Apache Indians was furnished by Don Pedro Romero de Terreros, Count of Regla, and the actual founder was father Fray Giraldo de Terreros, cousin of the financier. Copies of the letters from Father de Terreros to his brother are in the collection.

The San Saba mission was founded in 1756 on the San Saba river near what is now the town of Menard. Soldiers sent to protect the expedition feel out with the priests and the fort was built across the river and three miles from the mission.

The spring of 1757 arrived with few converts. Rumblings of uprisings of the Comanches, north-er neighbors of the Apaches, were not feared by the priests. In one of the letters, Fath de Terreros spoke of the useless fear of the captain.

The Father however had little faith in the success of the mission, his letters reveal. In his last letter he begged the end of the mission stating the Indians were not desirous of Christianity but savage heathens.

Ignoring the soldiers' warnings, the priests refused to seek protection of the garrison. One morning they awoke to find the mission surrounded by war-painted braves. Father de Terreros tried to appease the chief with gifts, but according to the old accounts, was shot down. The Indians burned the mission and only one Spaniard escaped to tell the story.

Dr. Spell learned of the letter from the Marquis of San Francisco, whom he met in Mexico City and who is a direct descendant of Pedro de Terreros, who financed the mission.

From these letters she learned many of old families of Spain possess letters that give valuable information on Texas history under the Spanish regime.

Dalhart Citizens Are Paying Taxes

Many school taxes are being paid but much is by warrant, allowable under a recent ruling of the board of education.

Riotous Living Is Costing Billions

By United Press.
NASHVILLE, Tenn.—America's riotous living bill is $4,171,000,000 annually, according to the Southern Baptist handbook for 1932.

Despite the great losses sustained by the long depression, "Southern Baptists have not stepped wasting their substance on riotous living," the handbook, edited by Dr. E. P. Aldredge, of Nashville, declares.

He estimates Southern Baptists, with a wealth of eight billion dollars, waste $154,000,000, not enough to finance the whole program of Southern Baptist work.

The main items of the waste are:

- For tobacco, $46,200,000; between $25,000,000 and $40,000,000 on movies; $20,000,000 for pleasure riding in automobiles; $4,000,000 for chewing gum and soft drinks.

Although there are 4,000,000 white Southern Baptists, the handbook comments, "let us suppose that 1,000,000 of these, or 75 per cent, will do as they have been doing all these years, nothing in our educational and benevolent work. The 1,000,000 estimated conservatively gross annual income of 750,000 would be given to conduct its program book points out.

"Look about you, pile up the wreckage and burdens borne by your winning," the book says in commending wastefulness and urging the tithe for port.

Rats Leading Way To Human Diet

By United Press.

BERKELEY, Calif.—Rats may lead the way to less expensive and more simple eating for both humans and animals, if experiments under way by two young University of California scientists prove that synthetic vitamins can be made successfully.

With the use of rats, Dr. Robert E. Cornish and Raymond C. Archibald have succeeded in creating the "purified" vitamin.

Research on fat-soluble vitamins already has given considerable information regarding the structure of these substances, Dr. Cornish says an elaborate machine which separates fat-soluble vitamins from contaminating substances, depending upon relating solubilities in octane and wood alcohol, or in octane and betamethoxy-ethanol, has been developed by the pair.

Both Dr. Cornish and Archibald now are turning their attention to chemical structure of purified vitamins and expect to have this largely worked out within the coming year.

As yet scientists have found no reliable test for a vitamin except by feeding it to an animal suffering from a deficiency of that particular vitamin.

At this stage enter the rats, the fore-runners of the new "synthetic" diet planned for the future. Not only are the rats used for experimental purposes given the most excellent care, but they are fed food more expensive than that served people in the best restaurants.

The rat's "feeders" are chosen from the most proficient of the research workers.

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

The story opens with a promise in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant week-end he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of Linda and Tom Averill, married three years and much in love. The Averills have five guests for the week-end: Cousin Amos Peabody, elderly, distant relative of Linda's; Captain De Vos, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; Mr. Statlander, middle-western manager of the firm Averill works for; Marvin Pratt, former suitor of Linda's, and Lian Shaughnessy, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

Cousin Amos immediately makes trouble. He quarrels with Shaughnessy because the Irishman holds liberal political views; plays golf with Statlander and infuriates him by criticizing his game; discusses prohibition with De Vos at the Country club and declares De Vos is no gentleman. It is finally agreed that Cousin Amos is to leave early the next morning.

That night, while the others are downstairs waiting to go to the Country club dance, Pratt enters Cousin Amos' room and the two men's voices rise in a quarrel. Linda tries to find out what the trouble is but can not.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

"I certainly feel a benefactor—bringing four presentable, intelligent, unattached men. The women will mob me." It is finally agreed that Cousin Amos is to leave early the next morning.

That night, while the others are downstairs waiting to go to the Country club dance, Pratt enters Cousin Amos' room and the two men's voices rise in a quarrel. Linda tries to find out what the trouble is but can not.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

"I certainly feel a benefactor—bringing four presentable, intelligent, unattached men. The women will mob me." It is finally agreed that Cousin Amos is to leave early the next morning.

someone the same tribute of slightly breathless expectancy which her technique elicited from other men. Yes, here was one that was more than a match for Fleur.

Linda's original group dissolved rapidly. The Belgian moved away beside Fleur, stunning in that curious olive-green gown that by all laws of justice should be so unbefitting to her. Marvin disappeared with the daughter of Mamma No. 1—a young lady who for all her apparent artlessness needed no maternal maneuvering to aid her. Mr. Statlander—surprisingly discovered to be very fond of dancing indeed—solemnly frolicking with a charming little widow; and Lian Shaughnessy—just what had become of him in the shuffle? Oh, yes—Ella Mondell who should have been his week-end hostess had poured upon him as her lawful prey (just like Ella, having ducked the responsibilities, to claim her guest when he could be useful!) and led him out to the porch where her own party was assembled. That accounted for all of them. With the pleased sensation of a very young mother hen who has just successfully launched her first brood of chicks, Linda dropped them from her mind and whirled off on Tom's willing arm.

The dance floor was not as crowded as she had anticipated. The cooler, comfortable porch; the long, silent wharf; the lantern-lit grass and clusters of shrubbery, each with its hidden bench and lawn chairs; even the cars and a few tied-up launches and other craft proved more alluring to many than the amusement for which they had ostensibly come.

Save for an occasional "daisy dance" Linda saw little of her guests. Early in the evening Marvin Pratt succeeded in finding her momentarily alone—he evidently preferred not to cut in on Tom—but he very soon yielded her to a neighbor with no such inhibitions. At any rate, dancing with Marvin was no great pleasure. He was a conscientious but not a natural dancer and this evening his formal politeness tried her very soul. At intervals she saw him with Dolly Alger, with Fleur and with different damsels of the neighborhood. They seemed to find him an acceptable partner, if not a thrilling one, and Linda was as well pleased that his few dances with her were of perfunctory shortness.

The surprise of the evening was twinkling lights of several little boat landings and one long impressive wharf at which a fine white yacht soberly swayed under the pull of the tide.

The words were hardly spoken before events justified her belief in the predatory instincts of her sex. Coming firmly toward them was one of the club's most determined hostesses and converging on the party from different sides were two equally militant mammas, while a soft, delicate gurgle of laughter just behind informed Linda that—as usual—Fleur Stoner had outgeneraled them all and reached the goal first.

It was hard for Linda, honest as she was, to decide just what she thought of Fleur Stoner. Always she admired the girl's beauty—and sometimes her nerve. Frequently Linda was exaggerated enough to box her ears and on rare occasions, when some judicious bit of selfishness completely outraged her, she could have seen the beautiful Fleur torn limb from limb without a tremor. This was one of the times when Fleur merely amused her. It was so like the clever, calculating creature to conceal herself on the porch—not to hail them as they entered but to slip smoothly into the group so that to the approaching hunters she actually seemed to be a part of it.

And her strategy (Linda knew that Fleur would regard recognition of it as a compliment) brought her, with her low, delicious gurgle of laughter, at the elbow of the Belgian but also near enough to Shaughnessy and Pratt to cast such a glance which seemed to contain some special, personal message. Just what, neither could have said but both immediately reflected their flattered pleasure. Only the completely sophisticated Belgian greeted her with the same even, suave courtesy. If his eyes rested on her a second longer than necessary, with a look that possibly—only possibly—conveyed in his turn some personal recognition, Linda could not say. She did think that it was only fair that Fleur should be forced to give the midwesterner. For all his somewhat forbidding exterior, there was no doubt that Mr. Statlander was really fond of dancing. His sense of rhythm was perfect; he indulged in no stunts or flights of fancy. Dancing with him was utter smoothness and delight. Not caring much to talk when she danced, Linda, welcomed the unbroken silence. Statlander seemed to put her mind entirely on what he was doing and certainly the results justified it. Nor when they danced together did she detect that aura of disapproval he usually cast about himself. Linda, an expert dancer herself, could forgive him tacitly agreed with her sentiments in the matter.

Of De Vos and Shaughnessy she saw almost nothing. A brief turn with the first did not come up to her expectations. Having anticipated dancing with him, she was disappointed to find that they simply did not get along together—and he made no attempt to pretend they did. His attention strayed obviously. She would find his eyes always on other women in the room, while he heedlessly guided her about in a mechanical routine.

As for Lian Shaughnessy—where, oh, where was he? With carefree disregard of his social obligations, Shaughnessy had disappeared almost at the moment of their arrival. She knew he had not been on the floor with Ella Mondell or any of her party. His height, the mass of dark curls which rumbled over his gray Irish eyes, the disparaging, disarming smile which made him look so boyish (and on which she was sure he traded heavily) could not have been hidden even in a more crowded room. He had probably found some appealing companion and was now doubtless comfortably ensconced in a cool corner of the veranda, in one of the romantic nooks on the lawn or in a gently swaying boat, perhaps, with cushions piled cozily about him. Wherever he was, Linda knew he was both physically and mentally at ease. He would display a genius for gravitating to the most delightful corner, the most charming companion. Being normally curious, she speculated as to the location of the spot and the identity of the girl but on her own strolls around the grounds, no enlightenment came. Probably a visiting charmer had the Irishman in tow, as none of the neighborhood belles were missing.

But the still, brooding heat of the night had drawn most of the crowd outdoors. From all over the broad grounds—along the waterfront, on the porch, near the massed bushes—came the twinkle of cigarette butts, the flare of matches and lighters, the high laughter of the women, the undertone of deeper voices. It was hard to round up her guests when, at an hour nearer dawn than midnight, the orchestra finished with a flourish and instruments were wearily put away.

"Who's missing?" Tom asked Linda as she flung her light wrap over the door of the little blue roadster.

"Mr. Statlander's here—I'll take him," she answered. "Marvin's coming. He met someone he knew just as we were leaving. That leaves Mr. De Vos and Mr. Shaughnessy—"

"Here I am, Madame!" The Belgian's voice at her elbow. He threw away his cigarette and made her a slouching bow. Tom looked at him, then motioned him to the rear seat of the larger car.

"Think Shaughnessy could have gone home?"

"I don't know," Linda was frankly perplexed. "He went off with Ella. Haven't seen him all evening. A few couples are still out on the pier. You might look—"

Oh, here come the Mondells. El, where's our literary light?"

In the glare of the headlights, her neighbor's face was frankly astonished.

"Mr. Shaughnessy? I'm sure I don't know! I haven't seen him for hours. I thought he went back to you, Linda."
