A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

AESTORE THE ERRING: Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.—Galatians 6: 1.

POAGE AS THE FRIEND OF THE FARMER

Sen. W. R. Poage has a bill pending "to help the farmer who cannot pay off the mortgage pending on his land." His theory is that this would stop the practice of selling a farm for considerably less than the amount of the mortgage. In other words, if a loan company wanted to foreclose immediately it would have to accept the land in full payment of the farmers debt. Otherwise if the company did not want to take the land in full payment it would have to wait two years before it would dispossess the owner and sell the land to satisfy the mortgage. Why confine it to the farmer and his mortgaged land? There are thousands of business houses in the critics and towns of Texas mortgage plastered. Many of them are vacant. City taxes are high. Indeed, they hit the sky. In many cases they are confiscatory, owing to the slump in values of city property. This is not a criticism of the Poage bill, but it is a reminder that farmers are not the only worthy citizens who are weighed down by debts and are unable to pay the interest or the principal of the liens on their possessions. A slump in values hit all classes and conditions in city as well as country. Values hit the earth. Tax levies did not. They remained stationary and now there are many well intentioned lawmakers ready to vote for additional levies in order to extract blood from city grown as well as country grown turnips.

A FEDERAL JUDGE FACES CONDITIONS AS THEY ARE

Fed. Judge Robert P. Erwin is holding court in the city of Fort Worth. He is giving out bargain fines to the convicted. This is his alibi: "I am reducing fines, just like people have reduced prices. In hard times, I give low fines. I have got to take into consideration the condition of the country." Well, the tribe of Moses did not pass out with the soul of the ancient lawgiver. Lawmakers should take the lesson home. Low taxes should be the rule in times of depression. Why should Paul be robbed to pay Peter or Peter robbed to pay Paul? Why increase taxation? Why not a sweeping cut to the bone in the cost of government all along the line in order to fit in with conditions as they exist the state and the nation over?

PORT ARTHUR IN THE PICTURE

Port Arthur is a fast growing gulf port city. It is said that the federal shipping board has announced that the volume of export tonnage from Port Arthur during 1932 raised the port from 21st place in 1931 to seventh place among United States ports. Houston ranked third and Galveston eighth. In the volume of tonnage of foreign commerce, both imports and exports, Houston ranked sixth, Port Arthur 11th and Galveston 12th. This should be pleasing to the ears of the shades of Arthur W. Stillwell and John W. Gates in their walking hours of midnight. Port Arthur, the gulf port of their dreams, has been a fast traveler.

KLEBERG AND THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL

Cong. Richard M. Kleberg has introduced a resolution in the house asking the president to invite foreign nations to participate in the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936. His resolution carries the stipulation that the president not extend the invitation to foreign nations until the Texas Centennial commission raised $500,000 for the celebration. Kleberg's forebears were in Texas in 1836. It is most appropriate that a member of the house of Kleberg-King should have introduced the resolution. Now what are Texans going to do about the $500,000 proposal?

The growth and permanent progress of every city is measured entirely by its commercial activity.

Now is the time that your city needs advertising more than ever before.

You should have faith in your home city and show your faith by both words and actions.

I have heard that a little worry is an excellent tonic. Most of us are getting an overdose of that kind of tonic.

Some self-appointed economy leaders lead only themselves. Nobody else pays any attention to them.

DERRICK SHADOWS By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Says Irvin S. Cobb in his somewhat old but deliciously funny 1915 publication "Speaking of Operation," "The weather helps out amazingly when you are meeting people for the first time, because there is nearly always more or less weather going on somewhere and practically everybody has ideas about it." The truth of the statement emphasizes the possible monotony of existence.

It is the prelude and phylide and vis-versa to all casual meetings, the polite topic of conversation at equally polite teas, the forerunner of all agonies in connection with beauty parlors, the full intermission at shows and dances and what-not. It's gone so far now it isn't even clever to make fun of the topic, and still we talk and exclaim and fan our brows and huddle around the stove, and sigh.

It was hard enough to adjust our American minds to women smokers and dress pajamas and French hats. After much fuming and fussing we've become apparently calm about such matters and settled down to other worries and cares. But there's one fad I wonder about: will it become a practice of our best co-eds and debutantes, will it ever fall into oblivion with constant use, and what's the idea, anyhow of... red fingernails?

Remembering the days we skated and built play houses in the back yard and cried over the pet rat, dead from an overdose of ant poison, it is hard to realize he is singing and dancing in Hollywood and listed among those worth meeting.

Going back at times, I find the block strangely familiar, yet a little lonely because he's gone. The change tells me time is something of a god: turning mud-pie-makers into dancing idols, transforming wide-eyed little boys into self-efficient men. The knowledge is enlightening, encouraging.

If you have mastered a French accent and know how to tilt a tea cup yours a social success, and if you can talk above the heads of your associates and opponents (whether intellectually or no) you're a business success. But there's nothing at all to it if you can't boast self-mastery.

Have you ever tried living on orange juice with the aroma of chicken and potatoes and coffee drifting through the house? Taking long walks when you wanted to sleep, exercising painfully to a monotone count, absorbing evil smelling patent reducers, all to discover you've gained six pounds and four inches? To you, lady, we uncover sorrowful heads. To you unsung heroines. That, reader, is one form of self-mastery: the ultimate outcome being listed as insanity, suicide, or stoutness. Your choice, please.

I'd never thought much about what's inside a Chesterfield cigarette. But I have just been reading something that made me think about it.

Just think of this, some of the tobacco in Chesterfield—the Turkish—comes from 4000 miles away! And before it is shipped every single leaf is packed by hand. All because Turkish tobacco is so small and delicate.

Of course I don't know much about making cigarettes, but I do know this—that Chesterfields are milder and have a very pleasing aroma and taste. They satisfy—and that's what counts with me!

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE B. JACKSON

Flags fluttered from the staffs in many cities, and were placed in the doorways of many private homes, on Sunday, Feb. 12, in silent memory of that gaunt, unctuous many-sided Abraham Lincoln, whose birth on Feb. 12, 1809, meant little at that time to his neighbors, in the little town of Kentucky where his boyhood was passed just as the average boy would live.

His work was the chief thing in his early youth, and man of letters that he was, it is yet stated that he had but one year of regular schooling, and that at age 21 he was prouder of his election than of the crowning of his career.

As a country storekeeper, then postmaster in New Salem, Ill., he began to feel the need of doing something of law, and owned among the books of a neighbor lawyer's books.

As a member of the Illinois legislature in 1834, he gained a keen knowledge of law, and in 1837, in controversy, and three years later was licensed to practice law, in the following year 1837, Lincoln, in partnership with Major John F. Stewart, opened a law office in Springfield, Ill., and quickly made his mark as attorney in trials.

Always he was dabbling in party politics, and in 1844, just seven years later he had canvassed all Illinois, and part of Indiana, making speeches on behalf of Clay, and two years later he was elected to the Illinois legislature, and in 1847, as a representative to congress.

Here we strike the turning point of his career, though a born statesman, he had always been a strong opponent to slavery, and as a congressman, he voted steadily against the anti-slavery party, in social opposing introduction of very in new territories. Three years later he was defeated for the United States senate, and for the next seven years he practiced law in occasional side dips in party political movement of Illinois.

His name was mentioned in connection with that of Fremont in a presidential election, and in 1858, he was nominated for United States Senate. He still continued his attitude toward the slavery question, and in the Republican national convention in 1860, was nominated for the presidency.

The southern states were antagonized by Lincoln's aggressive anti-slavery policy and on doctrine of sovereignty of states and voluntary of the union, began one after another to secede and organize a confederacy, claiming of the federal government.

Lincoln's election took place in November, 1860, and he became the first president in March, 1861.

The conciliatory policy of Lincoln was killed in this hiatus, but he remained firm, in his resolution to admit no secession.

The following years of Lincoln's life are known to every public spirited citizen, and the delicate principles involved in the Southern viewpoint are not to be added in this column.

It suffices it to say that on the night of the famous actor, Edwin Booth, in Ford's Theatre at Washington, was presenting a fine drama, and the house was held in a grip of silence, President Lincoln was shot on April 14, 1865, at four years and one month on the date of his taking office.

In the shrouded gloom of the scene John Wilkes Booth, brother of the tragedian, stole across the stage entrance to the box, and shot Lincoln, as he sat engrossed in the tragedy of the drama, entitled before his eyes.

At exactly 8:18 p. m. that shot rang out.

Often people have wondered why the standing signs of the clock in front of jeweler's shops, is always the same time pointed to by the hands, on the clock's face.

In public opinion many things sides time was jarred when that terminated Lincoln's life. A little testimony to his moment of passing stands irrefutably on the face of those silent clocks, which tick louder than a clarion voice.

And so flags are out again today, Monday, Feb. 13, in silent memory of that great figure, that great statesman that indomitable spirit that is Lincoln.

"Mr. Ferguson has everyone's wishes as he assumes the governorship of Texas again. But it will be interesting to see what happens if Texas and Oklahoma get squabbling about oil again and Alameda Bill" tries to tell "Mr. Ferguson" to do.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY. © 1933 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sheila Shayne, dancer, refuses to marry Dick Stanley, son of wealthy parents, who is in New York trying to learn to write plays. Sheila's idea of marriage is a cozy little home far from Broadway. Although she has spent most of her life on the stage she would be glad to leave the theater.

On a road show tour she meets Jerry Wyman. Jerry is attentive and Sheila falls in love with him. She thinks he is a hard working young man with little money and does not know his father owns the factory where Jerry works. Soon his affection seems to cool and he writes infrequently.

Sheila returns to New York and a few months later joins another road company, this time as the featured attraction. They play in Jerry's home town but she sees him only once after that she has no word from him until the tour ends and the company returns to New York. There she learns from her friend, Jappy, a chorus girl, that Jerry has married a girl in his home town.

Sheila is too unhappy to look for another job until her money is almost gone. Then she is hired as a dancer in a night club.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

Sheila liked dancing at Club Volens, but presently the engagement came to an end. A night club prefers to vary its entertainment and it had been understood that Sheila's work there was temporary.

In two weeks she was out of the featured attraction. The manager, Harrell's promise to find a place for her in a stage production had not materialized.

Sheila went to Mandrake's office, hearing that he was casting a show. The role of the featured dancer in the production called for a girl who was small, petite and blond. Sheila, by no stretch of the imagination, could be said to answer that description. Plenty of girls did, however. Vera Dale got the part.

Harrell wouldn't let Sheila do a specialty dance in the new "Frivolties of 1933." "You're not a beauty, you know, Sheila," he told her. "Not the way they rate 'em. You have talent and talent is something that would be completely lost in the production."

"There'll be a job for you any time now, I'm sure," Tillie Sampsers encouraged Sheila. The other four Sampsers agreed. They had invited her to stay on as long as she liked with them and pay when she could.

Trevor Lane heard that Sheila was looking for a job and telephoned to invite her to tea. She refused to let him lend her money.

Lane studied her. "What you need is a change," he announced. "Look here, now about a different kind of job for a while? How'd you like to model dresses in a smart shop?"

Sheila shook her head. "Those jobs aren't so easy to get and besides it might hurt me with the agents. They'd think I couldn't get a job dancing. Which happens, just now, to be true."

"Couldn't you sprain an ankle or something — just as an excuse?"

"I have only two ankles and I can't spare one. Besides, how could a girl model clothes with a sprained ankle? And how could I get such a job?"

"I could easily arrange that. At Henri's."

"Then you have no faith in Dick?"

Sheila colored. "I didn't mean that. But everyone writes, Trevor. You know that. It isn't like being an artist or an actor. Anyone can set words down on paper and believe they are clever words. Not nearly so many try the stage unless they have at least a little talent. They can't get past the agents and managers. As for art—that's too expensive, too discouraging. It's easier to see that you can't paint than it is to see you can't write."

"As a matter of fact," said the man slowly, "I think Dick can write. Would it make any difference in your feeling toward him if you thought he could?"

"I feel that Dick is wasting time. He should be in business at home, his father wants him to be. Oh, dear, I can't explain—"

"Then don't try," said Trevor.

They parted an hour later at the Sampsers' door. "You've been awfully good to help me," Sheila told him. "I mean about the job at Henri's." They shook hands solemnly and the girl watched as Lane swung into his car and started toward Broadway.

Eve, who occupied the other twin bed in Sheila's room, was still awake. She demanded food and Sheila agreed to raid the ice box. She brushed her hair, creamed her face, and went to the kitchen, her little turned-up Chinese slippers padding softly along the hall.

Presently she returned with a glass of milk and sandwich. Eve was now afraid of encroaching pounds. "You are a love, Sheila," she said. "I don't see why some nice young millionaire doesn't come along and marry you."

"I guess they're all married," Sheila said her slippers under the bed and tucked herself in with elaborate care.

"Trevor Lane isn't married," Eve objected.

"No."

"Doesn't he want to marry you?" the other girl asked bluntly with the air of having wanted to ask this question for some time.

"If he does he knows how to keep a secret."

"You are so fascinating," resumed Eve, "that I don't see how (Continued on page 4)

Society Girl Married Dead Fiance's Brother

By United Press

SEATTLE, Wash.—Out of a tragedy of two years ago in which Miss Deloris Totten's fiance was drowned, came happiness for the pretty Seattle girl here with her marriage to the younger brother of the man she planned to marry.

The socially prominent girl married George Vance, son of a wealthy lumberman. On Jan. 11, 1930, she was skating with Earl Vance on Steel lake. Vance, then engaged to the girl, broke through thin ice. The girl picked up a rake on a nearby beach and pushed it toward her struggling fiance. He seized it and pulled her in the water. She reached shore after a terrific struggle. Earl Vance was drowned.

Valentine Party

Tuesday Night
The senior department of the Sunday school of the Methodist church announces, through Superintendent Mrs. Bert McGlamery, and teacher, Mrs. J. E. Hickman, Miss Lorraine Taylor and H. C. Davis and Milton Newman, a valentine party for the class members to be given Tuesday tomorrow evening 7:30 o'clock, in the lower auditorium of the Methodist church.

A program of games and valentine diversions will be directed by Mrs. Hickman, and at close of evening refreshments will be served.

Women's Auxiliary W. O. W. Organized

The auxiliary of the Woodmen Circle was organized in Eastland this week, the Julia Alexander grove of Ranger having charge of the installation services, which inducted into office, Mrs. J. M. Wilcox, guardian; Mrs. F. A. Jones, advisor; Mrs. W. C. Marlow, past guardian; Mrs. Edwina Raines, attendant; Mrs. Blanche Nixola, assistant attendant; Mrs. John Norton, chaplain; Miss Gwendoline Jones, sentinel; Miss Neola Laurent, outer sentinel; Miss Lillian Williams, banker; Miss Bessie Marlow, clerk.

The organization has a number of out of town members. Other local members include Miss Callie Hogue, Mrs. T. M. Wilson, Mrs. E. P. Kilborn, Mrs. R. E. Sikes, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gray.

These officers will hold places through 1933. The next meeting will be announced later.

Dragon Violin Orchestra In Abilene Concert

The personnel of the choir as it appeared presented Miss Hefley of Abilene; Miss Catherine Carter of Sweetwater; Miss Gussie Insull of DeLeon; Miss Evelyn Long of Ranger; Mrs. Arthur Vaughn, Miss Margaret Hart, Miss Joe Earl Uitz, Miss Clara June Kimble, all of Eastland, and Wilda Drago, director, and master violinist, of this city.

Betty Perkins Entertains Class

The senior department girls' Bible class of the Methodist church Sunday school enjoyed a delightful little evening, Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Perkins, when their daughter, Betty, was class hostess for the charming valentine entertainment of those members who were able to attend this usual class social event.

Pleasant diversions in contests and guessing games were concluded with the naming of state, contest. Each girl drew names for exchange of the valentine gifts, the heart drawn indicating the charm for the month. A lively game of ping-pong over the diningroom table brought the evening to a close.

The young hostess served heart-shaped salad on lettuce, ribbon sandwiches, fruited punch, and candy, to Misses Carolyn Doss, Jane Johnson, Virginia Stewart, Joyce Newman, Ina Ruth Hale, and Betty Stire.

The teacher of the class, Miss Lorraine Taylor, was ill and could not attend.

Headache and Dizziness From Constipation

"I use Black Draught for constipation which causes me to have headache and dizziness and tired feeling," writes Mr. R. G. Randall, of Texarkana, Ark. "I find it very effective. I feel like work after taking Black Draught." And Mrs. Randall writes: "I take Black Draught for constipation and the severe headache which constipation causes. It relieves me."

If you are constive, take this powerful herb medicine. It will help to drive out the poison that makes you feel like work after taking Black Draught. Buy it today!

Martha Dorcas Plans Party

A valentine "42" party will be given by the members of the Martha Dorcas class, under general direction of the president, Mrs. W. E. Coleman, tomorrow night, at 7:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. M. B. Griffin, house hostess, for the novel affair, in which each of the 15 tables arranged for the game, is to have an individual hostess responsible for the appointments, and later the linen, silver and other furnishings for the refreshments to be served at close of evening, and which each hostess will provide for guests at her table, who will be her own choice, and will be the silver "valentine offering" providers for the benefit fund for the Martha Dorcas class.

The house hostess and the president of the Martha Dorcas will provide other items for the refreshments.

Thursday Afternoon Club Announces Program

"Citizenship" will form the motif of the program to be presented this week by the Thursday Afternoon club at their usual meeting in the community clubhouse.

Somewhat in keeping with the much noted technocracy is the quotation by Edward A. Filene, which heads the year book program. "The thinking of today will create the new and industrial world of tomorrow."

Talk, "Training Your Child for Citizenship," Mrs. W. A. Whitley.

Mrs. Ray Lerner will be hostess and leader for the afternoon.

Kill Kars Kard Klub

Clara Maynard entertained the recent week-end meeting of the Kill Kars Kard Klub most charmingly at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jack Weatherford, at the Arkansas Camp location.

A patriotic theme in honor of George Washington's birthday was carried out in the national flag designs of tally and score book appointments for the two bridge tables employed.

High score favor in game a lovely little hand-painted wood-lam scene in card, daintily framed, was awarded Mrs. H. S. Eubanks, and the cut-for-all favor a similar picture on a smaller scale, went to Mrs. Dave Carter.

A delicious tea plate was served of ribbon sandwiches, in the color motif, potato flakes, pickles, and individual cherry pie with whipped cream topped with coffee, to Misses J. D. Blankenship, J. A. Stover, Morgan Meyers, Dave Carter, D. S. Eubanks, Claud Maynard, Jack Weatherford and other guests, Mrs. Wood Butler, and Mrs. Phillips. Plate favors were small milk tins.

The club will meet on March 2, with Mrs. Morgan Meyers.

High School P-T. A. Interesting Program

The Parent-Teacher association of the Eastland High school will diverge from their usual custom, and instead of the program at a set hour on Wednesday, they will join the student body at 12 o'clock sharp for the noon luncheon in the high school cafeteria, and hold a brief business session following the luncheon.

The program will consist in visits to the various classrooms, and the attendance at the chapel period program 3:11 p. m.

Mrs. J. M. Perkins, president of P-T. A. and Mrs. J. LeRoy Arnold, secretary urge every member to attend.

Eastland County Federation Program Announced

Mrs. M. H. Hagsman is announced as chairman in charge for the program for Eastland County Federation meeting, to be held in Ranger Saturday afternoon, Feb. 18, in greenroom of Gholson hotel.

Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, president of the association stated Miss Stella Hefley, dean of women, College of Industrial Arts, will be speaker for the afternoon, and has chosen for her subject, "C. I. A., a Training School for Citizenship."

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson announced arrival of son.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Nicholson have announced the arrival of a son at the Payne Hospital on Sunday morning. The young son who weighs 9 pounds, has been christened Lynn Evans. Mother and son are resting well.

Co-Workers to Meet Wednesday

The Co-Workers Home Demonstration club will meet Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 with Mrs. R. E. Barker at her home in Ranger Heights. Miss Ruth Ramey asks that all members having a hooked rug, either completed or just begun, to bring it along, together with working equipment. Everyone please be on time and be ready for work.

Notice To Fidelis Members

To members of the Fidelis Sunday school class. The shower which was planned for last Wednesday was postponed until Tuesday, Feb. 14. All items are to be turned in to Velma Brown at Scott Store by Tuesday noon.

"You'd be surprised!" Eve set the empty glass on the table snapped out the light above her head, and went on talking. Sheila answered in reluctant, sleepy murmurs. But she could not check Eve. The Samper girls had never had many beaux and in meditating on another conquest Eve was gaining a vicarious feeling of popularity.

"Trevor got me a job," Sheila said finally. "I'm sleepy, Eve. Let's call it a day. I have to get up early."

Across town two young men were sitting before a fireplace. One of them was talking, the other lighting a pipe.

"Why don't you go home?" Trevor Lane asked. "I have a hunch Sheila might feel differently if you weren't here. She's used to wealthy young men following in her wake. She's used to young men who think they can write. She's—"

"Is she accustomed to young men who write masterpieces for her to star in?" asked Dick coolly.

Trevor laughed. "Is that your ambition?"

Lane nodded soberly. "It's an odd thing about that girl," he said. "She has remarkable talent and it doesn't mean a thing to her except as a means of earning a living. Bread and butter until she marries and settles down in her own home to forget the stage."

Dick moved wearily. "I want to offer her something besides what other people have given me," he said. "Lord knows, I've offered her myself, my future, everything! That's not much, though, if you count the family out. She just doesn't give a darn about me, Trevor."

"You'll make her change her mind yet," Lane assured him. "I wish I could think of something."

Dick rose, moved toward his hat. "I'll be going," he said. He held out a hand impulsively.

"You're a good sport, Trev. Nobody knows it better than I do. But—this is something I have to manage myself."

The door slammed behind him.

Young Ward Students To Act as Attendants For King and Queen

Mothers, members of Young School Parent-Teacher association and various committees are all-a-bustle today making final plans for the St. Valentine carnival to be staged at the school this evening, opening at 7:30 o'clock.

Rooms are being decorated, booths are being arranged and given an added touch here and there to complete the details so important for such entertainments.

The lovely blond-haired Mercedes Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Pearson, one of the most lovable and attractive children who attends Young school, will be crowned queen before what promises to be a huge audience.

Leroy Speed, by a popular vote, was elected king for the occasion. Attendants for this delightful high point of the program will name other popular and well liked children, such as Freddie Larson, Jean Geter, Herbert Stafford Jr., Mary Bishop, Claude Jarvis, S. S. Faircloth Jr., Elleanor Griffith, and R. L. Blanton.

There will be an admission charge of five and ten cents which will prove the most delightful investment you have made for an evening of amusement in a long time. Remember the hour—7:30 o'clock this evening.

Infant Son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamrick Seriously Ill

The large number of friends will be grieved to learn of the very serious illness of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hamrick of Seymour, formerly of Ranger. The eight-weeks-old child, who has been named Bob Jr., was reported by West Texas Clinic and Hospital attendants this morning as being very desperately ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Faircloth Entertain With Birthday Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Faircloth entertained with a pleasant affair at their home, Lone Star camp, yesterday when a prettily appointed dinner named as guest of honor R. L. Faircloth, brother of the host.

Covers were laid for other dinner guests: Mr. and Mrs. Abe Andrews and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sig Faircloth and son, S. S. Jewelle Judd, and Jodie Ann, small daughter of the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stokes, M. L. Ware of Midland, former manager of the Postal Telegraph, is in a very serious condition following an operation made necessary from ruptured appendix.

Mr. Ware has a host of Ranger friends who will indeed regret to learn of his present condition. Mrs. Ware, who was visiting relatives at Mineral Wells, was informed immediately by the attending physician. She left upon receipt of the call for Midland.

John D. Gholson Leaves for El Paso

John D. Gholson, who has been in a very serious condition at the home of his mother, Mrs. John M. Gholson, for the past few weeks, was able to be removed to El Paso today, where he will receive special treatment.

Her Songs Bring Happiness

Kate Smith who brings cheer to so many millions of people by her songs on the air, comes to the screen in Paramount's "Hello Everybody!" which plays at the Arcadia Theatre today. In the picture, her songs bring happiness to Randolph Scott and Sally Blane who are featured in the supporting cast.

Ranger Personals

Miss Jessie Judd was a visitor in Fort Worth yesterday where she visited as the guest of Miss Hazel Faircloth, who is in training at the Harris hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. King and son, accompanied by Miss Betty Ruth Taylor, spent the week-end as the guests of relatives at Woodson and Breckenridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Olhfer spent the Saturday night and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Johnson of Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crossley visited with Mr. and Mrs. Curry of Breckenridge yesterday.

Miss Madeline Norman of Dallas visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Norman at their Travis street home over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Potter of Dallas, are spending a part of the week in Ranger, guests at the Paramount hotel. Mr. Potter is a Lone Star Gas associate.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stokes were Sunday visitors in Mineral Wells, the guests of friends.

Miss Pauline Fullwood Fry has returned from a six weeks visit with friends and relatives in Big Spring.

There is growing doubt whether business conditions in 1929 were "fundamentally sound." But most of the remedies heard on the floor of congress certainly are.

R. L. McCleskey New Proprietor of Filling Station

R. L. "Mc" McCleskey of Ranger, has purchased the Ranger Filling Station, formerly owned by John Hamilton, and has taken over active management of the station.

McCleskey is well known in Ranger, having lived in the city for a number of years, and having attended ward school in Ranger before the boom. He was for some time in the merchandising business, where he won a large number of friends.

The station, which is located on the corner of Elm and Commerce streets, handles Gulf gasoline, Supreme motor oils and does washing and greasing. Courteous service will be one of the noticeable things about the station under the management of McCleskey, and everyone will be pleased with the service rendered.

The new proprietor of the filling station is a Ranger citizen, a home owner and one of the civic boosters of the town. The announcement of his taking over the station will be found in other columns of this issue of the paper.
