PRICE FIVE CENTS No. 224

PORT MADE FUNDS FOR COUNTY ROADS

The following report was handed in by Mr. Henry Davenport of the Eastland county commissioners court, representing Precinct No. 1. In discussing this report, Mr. Davenport said that he was elected on a platform in which he promised the people an economical administration and that he proposed to keep the expenses down as much as possible. He also said that the precinct he represented was in debt to the amount of $20,000, and that he was trying to finance this debt as well as keep the necessary upkeep of the roads and bridges in good condition.

Mr. Davenport in discussing this matter was very plain in his remarks that he realized that if the precinct had the money to spend now would be an opportune time to put men to work and thereby help in giving the unemployed work and at the same time get the roads and bridges kept in good shape. He will keep the people posted from time to time on the financial condition of his precinct and was very high in praise of the cooperation that he is receiving from the business men and women and all the taxpayers that he represents.

The following report of funds available for lateral roads in Eastland county precincts and a recommendation as to how these funds could best be handled, has been made to the Eastland county commissioners court by the county auditor:

Honorable Commissioners Court, Eastland County, Eastland, Texas, Gentlemen:

As the road and bridge fund, out of which the expenses for constructing and maintaining our lateral roads are paid, is one of the most important funds of the county, I am submitting for your consideration an analysis of this fund for this year which I believe exhibits a fairly accurate picture of its condition.

| Precinct No. | Cash balance Jan. 1, 1932 | From road and bridge fund |
|--------------|---------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 | $ 284.36 | 15,282.00 |
| 2 | None | None |
| 3 | 1,841.26 | 15,282.00 |
| 4 | None | None |
| 5 | 6,981.15 | 15,282.00 |

The records of this office show that there are 225 miles of lateral roads in precinct No. 1; 220 in precinct No. 2; 290 in precinct No. 3, and 200 in precinct No. 4, a total in the county of 935 miles. As the records of expenditures for constructing and maintaining lateral roads in this county have almost when run together, the actual amount maintaining cannot be ascertained. But estimating the average cost per mile covering a 12-month period at $30, it would cost No. 1, $6,750 to maintain its roads; precinct No. 2, $6,600; precinct No. 3, $8,700, and precinct No. 4, $6,000.

Senate Passes the Smith Cotton Relief Measure; Now Goes to the House

EXPECT BILL TO BOOST PRICE FOR FARMERS

Board To Authorize Sales to Producers to Equal One Third of Crop.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The senate today passed and sent to the house the Smith cotton relief program, only a few minutes after action had apparently been blocked by the expiration time allotted to debate.

The bill would create a cotton board to purchase all federal cotton holdings including cotton given to the Red Cross.

The sale would be by option at prevailing market prices, in the expectation the price would rise on agreement to reduce acreage, enabling the farmer to sell his option at a profit.

DEATH COMES AFTER A LONG LOSING FIGHT

Was Renowned As Actor As Well As Fighter In "Gay Nineties."

CONQUEROR of John L. Sullivan, the toughest fighter of his time, it was Jim Corbett's spectacular personality that did more than any other human act to make boxing "respectable" in an age when the ring was scorned by society and outlawed by nearly every state in the union.

Corbett was 67 years old—His death, due to a disorder which in fact heart disease, was not unexpected, for he had been in critical condition since Jan. 30.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—James J. Corbett's father, a livery stable keeper, had intended his boy for the priesthood "or some other business like banking." Instead he became "Gentleman Jim"—the colorful heavyweight prizefighter champion of the world who boasted he "could lick any man in the world."

Corbett was destined to become a champion who could pound the mighty John L. Sullivan to the floor, but he also was to introduce a new chapter in the history of prize fighting. His refinement and his efforts "set an example" for American youths made him a unique and towering figure in the history of a sport which previously had been in disrepute in America.

Later came his historic fight with Peter Jackson. A few words, Corbett's own, furnish a fitting description of the match:

"In the 50th round I loosed a left-hand hook as Jackson was letting the right go for my head. It is the only incident of the 10 periods from the fifth to the sixth that I regard as important." And in the 61st round, the referee called the bout "no contest," three seconds before Jackson collapsed from sheer exhaustion.

FARM ELECTRIC POWER SUBJECT TO TAX

Farm electric power has been held subject to tax by the internal revenue bureau of the government. That is, electrical energy furnished in general operation of farming is subject to the 3 cent tax on electricity. According to the ruling, electrical energy furnished in the general operations of farming, such as to light homes or dwellings, barns, or other farm dwellings, feed cutters, cream separators, oats crushers, thrashing machines and water pumps, and for the operation of other miscellaneous machinery such as is used in general farming operations, is domestic or commercial in scope and therefore is subject to the tax imposed by the revenue act of 1932.

A dairy which obtains milk and converts it into use for retail purposes is held to be engaged in a business commercial in character. Electrical energy used in such operations will be subject to tax. Electrical energy furnished to dairies that are engaged in the manufacture and sale of butter, cheese and similar products is not subject to the tax. This is income tax paying time, and it is going to be a cut to the bone proposal for those who have anything to tax, or have any possession that is not exempt from the tax law.

POOR POLICY

Unwisdom of the state's spending much money and effort in building fish hatcheries and organizing game propagation and protection, only to abandon the work and the plant is obvious. It was stressed in hearings on the Pope bill that would strip the game department down to an agency selling meaningless hunting licenses.

Under a broad game protective program, the commission has enlisted the support of landowners in pleasing many thousands of acres of land in closed game refuges. Under that policy, streams are being stocked with fish from the nine hatcheries.

The game department's work all has been paid for from its fees. And those who pay the bill want the service continued. They are unwilling to see the investment destroyed, and the work of years torn down.

RUNNING CIRCLES

State government seems to go around the same old circle in endless repetition. Only a few years ago Dan Moody, as governor, was urging civil service to determine that only well-qualified people might hold state jobs. He was advocating the short ballot.

How a legislative committee is saying many employes in departments of state officers are selected without much regard to fitness for their jobs. The committee is recommending as "modern" even a shorter ballot than Moody advocated. Finding, rejecting, rediscovering, each time a change is advanced as a brand-new discovery, rather than a development of cumulative experience.

OKLAHOMA CITY VOTES FOR MANAGER FORM

Oklahoma City voted, 4 to 1, against amendments which would in effect supplant the present city manager form of municipal government. There was a total vote of 22,000. By an overwhelming majority the champions of the old political form of municipal government as directed by practical politicians and their henchmen were sent to the undertaker and his grave diggers.

LEISURELY APPROACH

The house taxation committee will take its time in reaching and considering the Hester and other sales tax bills—three of them—pending before the legislature. Chairman Duvall of the committee has scheduled the opening session of public hearings on them for the night of March 6, the half-way date of the session.

When a city presents a gloomy appearance, the world stays away.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT you should not have to be asked to boost your city. You should do it without the asking.

You should boost morning, noon and night, always remembering that your city deserves boosting.

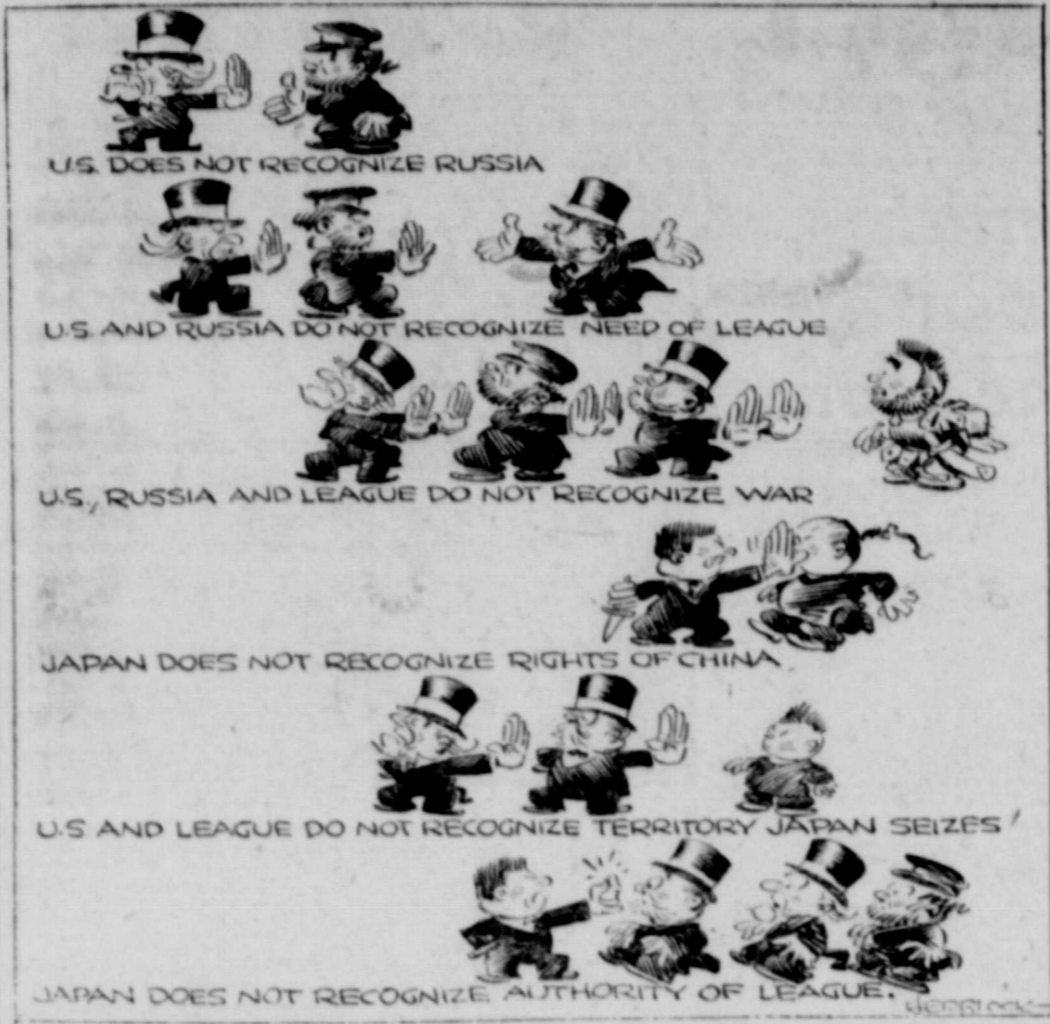

There is good in every city. Help to develop the good. You should always remember there are two sides to every question. You might be on the wrong side; if so, don't hesitate—get on the right side!

Don't postpone work for your city. Do your share in developing the opportunities before you.

The citizens of your city are sort of related. As a unit they are responsible for what work is done and what is left undone.

The mark of a good citizen is his willingness to do that which will be a help to the home city without regard as to whether or not it is personally agreeable to him. However, the knowledge that he is helping the home city should make it agreeable.

Now Go On With the Story

DERRICK SHADOWS By V. MARIE STEPHENS

The repeal wrangle is beginning all over again. Play Pollyanna and be glad we had a few weeks rest from the subject, relying on the kidnapers and suicides and murderers for news. But now that we're back to liquor it's interesting to find how many prohibitionists of the last round have gone wet in so short a time, and how many wets, thinking it over, have done an abrupt right about face.

No use getting upset over it, no use losing any sleep over anything. Tomorrow positive conditions will be negative. If you're disappointed in someone just quiet down, tomorrow he'll be disappointed in you. Life gives us a fifty-fifty chance to give the other fellow the same. Thanks for the even break and cooperation, if one wishes to become philosophical.

Everything runs in waves these days: crime waves, flu waves, air waves, and permanent waves. Any one of the four mentioned gives the victim a most unnecessarily useless thrill. About the only thing we haven't run into is a money wave... but the breakers have been plentiful. Ship ahoy!

We visited a flourishing cactus ranch recently oohing and ahing over the little plants as though we hadn't them all our lives. You know a change of atmosphere and background brings out the good points of a thing... goodness knows, most of us need it.

People, if they wish, can live. You don't have to preside at a director's meeting or boss a road gang to eat. The fellow who rescued a tangled mass of stickers from behind a rock and set a price on the plant had an eye for business. And people paid the price and cried for more because the world suddenly went rustic and wanted a bunch of cacti to replace lilacs and violets and roses. Modernistic.

Do you know that the high school and junior college library has received a collection of interesting and educational books? After all, what do you know about your local schools? This new shipment is not a stack of fairy tales and huzzles... the list includes political, economic, art material. Boost your schools.

Now that the shooting is over for the time being and the big risk taken, Roosevelt is to be surrounded by a heavy guard and urged to refrain from unnecessary public appearances. Now that the horse is stolen, let us put padlocks on the barn. We're an intelligent bunch, Americans all.

But since we're going to discuss the affair, and everybody is, I admire the little woman who held her breath and knocked the would-be assassin's last bullet wild. Not many of us would have the courage to jog a murderer's elbow, president-elect or no.

They warn us a new flu epidemic is breaking out. Whereupon, we all plunge our feet in boiling water, drink gallons of soda water, eat dozens of lemons, and otherwise prepare ourselves to take it. Most of us are still moping sadly around after the last attack. Another should finish us quietly, doing away with the slow motion age we're developing into.

Men Who Build Our Community

MRS. ALICE D. TRUE, Ranger

It is almost impossible to write a series about men who build our community without mentioning some of the women who have also helped. Mrs. Alice D. True comes under that head. Mrs. True came to Ranger in August, 1918, to work for an oil well supply house, and did this kind of office work, with two companies, for four years, gaining some valuable experience, both in office work and in coming in contact with business men.

After serving in that capacity for four years she was selected as assistant to Karl Jones, who was secretary of the Ranger Retail Merchants association. For two years she worked as assistant to Mr. Jones, learning much about the credit business and learning to like the work better than any she had ever before.

Ten years ago she succeeded Karl Jones, becoming secretary of the Ranger Retail Merchants association, a position she has held since that time. During her term as secretary, she has had many experiences and has seen many changes in the life of the city. Each year she, with the other people holding similar positions, take examinations in credit association work and each year she passes these examinations with high grades. She has already taken the examination for 1935.

In the years she has been active in the work in what has now become her chosen field, she has never missed a state convention of the Retail Merchants association of Texas, a record that can be claimed by but few secretaries over the state.

In addition to attending state conventions, she has attended two national conventions, one in Los Angeles, and the other in Washington, D. C. From these conventions she had added to her store of information about the credit work and has brought this information back to Ranger to put it into actual practice.

In speaking of her work she says that, even if it were not necessary to make a living, she would like to continue in the same kind of a job she now holds, because it has acquired a hold on her that she cannot escape. She is called on often for small services, for which she makes no charge, and is used as a bureau of information about subjects foreign to her work, but she always tries to give answers to any questions answered.

One of her first experiences, after becoming secretary, was with a man who came to the office with the intention of "beat-

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY, NEA Service Writer

THE dried vegetables, peas, beans and lentils, are the best food bargains the home-maker can buy. Rich in calories and mineral salts, but poor in vitamins C and G, many savory dishes can be made from these vegetables.

Because these vegetables are rich in protein we often hear them called meat substitutes, but with the realization that a great difference exists in the nutritive sources, of proteins from different sources, legumes are not considered an adequate substitute for meat unless they are served with such protein foods as milk and eggs.

The legumes have a high starch value and consequently potatoes should not be served in the same meal with them.

Soak beans over night in water to cover. Add enough water to more than cover and simmer until tender, about four hours. After beans have cooked one hour add onion and salt. When beans are very tender and there is not more than one cup of liquid over the beans, rub through a sieve or potato ricer, carefully rejecting all skins. Coleman to Represent Breck Mutual Company

Gus Coleman, formerly well known newspaperman of this section of Texas has been appointed as local agent for the Mutual Life Insurance company of Breckenridge, according to an announcement made Saturday.

The Breckenridge company has been in operation seven years, during which time it has paid out more than $130,000 in claims to the beneficiaries of policyholders in the company. It has also established the enviable reputation of paying them off promptly on receiving the death notice, in many cases paying the claims on the day the death occurred.

A. M. Smith, president of the company, is a prominent Breckenridge man, having served last year as president of the Chamber of Commerce there and is well known throughout the state as being an authority on life insurance matters.

In appointing Coleman as agent here, Mr. Smith feels that his wide reputation will enable him to contact all sorts of people and tell them the advantages of the company.

Students Quit Exam Room

SYRACUSE.—Manufacture and sale of "ribbing machines" to Syracuse university students seeking aid in passing examinations has been charged here in an investigation of cheating among undergraduates.

For many years students of the College of Applied Science have followed the honor system in examinations. During a recent mid-year examination five engineers taking the course walked out of the exam room, declaring to the professor that they refused to compete against students cheating to pass the test.

There was a rigid investigation by the faculty, who discovered that in colleges not under the honor system cheating in examinations was apparently the accepted thing, with many ingenious methods used. Evidence was obtained that "ribbing machines," consisting of long strips of onion skin paper rolled at either end on match sticks, were sold for $5 to students. The entire course was outlined on the paper and students, by skillful manipulation in the palm of their hands, were able to find the answer to any question asked.

The five College of Applied Science students who walked out of the exam room were commended by the university administration.

Texas Is Leader of Moratorium Plans in State

DALHART, Tex.—A native Texan who became foreman of his father's ranch when he was 14 years old is leader of the farm moratorium movement in North-west Texas.

He is 60-year-old R. J. McGowan of Texline, a stalwart appearing man with iron-gray hair and a quick, youthful step. McGowan uses reading glasses only when the type is unusually small or the light poor and his appearance belies his age.

His purpose is fathering the moratorium movement in this section of Texas, he said, is two-fold—that of establishing agricultural in a prominent place in the American economic structure and to prevent disorder.

"I am one of them," he said proudly relating his experiences on Texas and Oklahoma farms. His father's ranch in Wise county came under his supervision in 1884 when the senior McGowan became partially blind. With few exceptions, the remaining years of his life have been on the farm or in farming communities.

"And I am proud of it," McGowan continued. "Right now I am trying with every ounce of my strength to gain for the farmers and for agriculture the place it rightfully deserves in the American economic structure."

More seriously, he added: "My real purpose is fostering the moratorium movement is to prevent revolution and bloodshed. I want now to go to the core of the trouble—restitution."

McGowan believes that restorative action ridding the farmer of economic worries is necessary today. He quotes from the Bible citing passages wherein Nehemiah commanded the lenders to leave off tithing, to restore to the people their lands and homes, all people would have plenty," McGowan said.

Shepherdess Favors Her Hills to City

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark.—"Dot" Crews, shepherdess of northwest Arkansas, has "forever renounced" the city for the haunts of her native hills, and has accepted an active partnership with her father, Tom Crews, successful farmer and stockman, residing near here.

Miss Crews several years ago took a business course and decided to quit rural life. But after a few months, in which she served as a stenographer in a business office, she became convinced the country offered greater possibilities.

When she received a letter from her father proposing that if she would come home and take care of his flock of sheep, he would give her half of the twin lambs in the future, and two thoroughbred heifers and a pig, she came quickly. That was three years ago.

She is a good business manager and keeps books for herself and father. "Dot" believes the farmers of the mountainous section are making a big mistake by not raising more sheep and goats.

A Moment Before Would-Assassin Fired

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, waving to the cheering crowd in Illinois Park, Chicago, Feb. 18, barely a minute before Giuseppe Zangara fired five shots at him. He escaped injury, but Major Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, indicated by arrow at lower left, was hit and dangerously wounded, and four others were shot.

At his hour by the pastor. Paul said, "I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision." Nor should we be.

Christian Endeavor, 6:45 p. m., Ladies' auxiliary, Monday, 3 p. m.

Choir and orchestra practice, Saturday, 6:45 p. m. It is expected that the men of the church, especially the officers, will conduct the morning service on Feb. 26.

George Washington was a regular attendant on his church, and a worthy man in it, though Mr. Vernon was eight miles from Alexandria. Dependableness and regularity and not all of Christianity, but they are a first class beginning of it. You are invited to the Little White Church on the Hill, where these and the other Christian virtues are sought for by the majority of the members.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
"Mind" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Feb. 19.

The Golden Text is from Isaiah 14: "The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand."

Passages from the Bible will include this from Isaiah 55: "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; for my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord."

The lesson-sermon will also include the following from the (Citations to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The categories of metaphysics rest on one basis, the divine Mind. Metaphysics resolves things into thoughts, and exchanges the objects of sense for the ideas of Soul."

These ideas are perfectly real and tangible to spiritual consciousness, and they have this advantage over the objects and thoughts of material sense—they are good and eternal.

"The testimony of the material senses is neither absolute nor divine. I therefore plant myself unreservedly on the teaching of Jesus, of his apostles, of the prophets, and on the testimony of the Science of Mind. Other foundations there are none. All other systems—systems based wholly or partly on knowledge gained through the material senses—are reefs shaken by the wind, not houses built on the rock" (p. 269).

Adventurer Started On Wheat Race

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Sea fever has taken a 22-year-old Milwaukee adventurer on his second voyage in the famous Australia to England wheat race aboard a windjammer.

The youth, Charles Reilly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Ubbeln, socially prominent Milwaukeeans, signed articles aboard the Finnish bark Viking for the third time. After a summer at home, he rejoined the crew of the Viking, a 4,000-ton square rigger, at Copenhagen, Denmark, and sailed for Adelaide, Australia. This year 19 windjammers are entered in the race.

Last year Reilly spent 128 days at sea aboard the Viking on a voyage from Sydney to Queensland. The windjammer did not sight land all the way, he reported. During the wheat race last year, Reilly converted the Viking was blown 6,000 miles off her course and was forced to heave to for two weeks while a storm raged in the "roaring forties."

Cripple Ended Freight Train Trip

FORT WORTH.—The freight train trip of George Adams, 19-year-old cripple of Ardmore, Ok., ended here when he and his wheelchair were carried to the office of juvenile officers.

He explained he was enroute to Lubbock, Tex., to secure work as a radio entertainer playing the harmonica. Police dissuaded him. He was returned to Ardmore with two companions to lift the wheelchair and its burden on and off trains.

SANDSTORMS CAUSE BLUE COLOR

AMARILLO.—Residents in the Texas Panhandle and South Plains have seen get "the blues" each time a blinding sandstorm strikes. Dust in the air causes a deflection of light making metal objects reflect a bluish green, weather men have observed.

Attorney Held

Noah Roark, Dallas attorney, left below, is being held for murder following the death of Justin Stein, top, who was shot to death when he ordered Roark to vacate offices in the building of which Stein was manager. Stein's secretary also was shot, but is expected to recover. William McCraw, right below, Roark's attorney, is shown conferring with his client.

ASTORIA, Ore.—Rumors wandered in from Nehalem, Ore., to the effect that Leonard Wallulis, champion ax man of the northwest, had shaved himself with a double-bitted ax. Local tenorists disbelieved the feat.

So, Wallulis, strange and Paul-Bunyanlike though it may seem, came here, and before a host of bathers, proceeded to navigate a five-foot ax over his face, cutting out a handsome growth of beard en route.

His wife proudly avowed the "oversize razor" maintained that "skin you love to touch" appearance.

Tree-in-the-Rock Protected By State

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Wyoming's famous "Tree-in-the-Rock" is as cherished and protected today as it was in pioneer times when it guided the plodding caravans to the new west.

For 80 years at least it has stood a lone sentinel near Sherman Hill surrounded only by sage brush and prairie grasses. It has even the posing of the Indian. At one time it was considered sacred by two tribes of redmen, the Cheyennes and a branch of the Sioux and was protected by them.

The stage lines of pioneer days passed by it and frequently the passengers would request the coach driver to stop so they could view the only rock in the monotonous of the sage-brush sea.

"I saw the coming of the first 'Iron Horse.' Although it was miles from the nearest station, the lone tree was a regular stop for the trains on the Union Pacific railroad.

As the puffing locomotive of the early days train approached the tree its speed slackened. The engine stopped directly opposite the tree and the fireman would jump from the cab up 'Yow a bucket of water on the tree."

A story circulates among the "old timers" that the surveyors of the original line of the Union Pacific were ordered to slightly deflect to avoid destruction of the tree and the rock in which it grows.

When the tracks of the railroad were rerouted in 1899, passing several miles south of the tree interest in the landmark failed to slacken.

Now the original roadbed of the railroad is a transcontinental highway.

In order to protect the tree from tourists' vandalism, which threatened to destroy it, an iron fence has been erected around the tree and stone.

Ford V-8 Proves People Now Know Engine Details

The fact that the great majority of motor car owners, both men and women, are mechanical-minded, was conclusively demonstrated the past week when the new Ford V-8 cylinder, 112-inch wheelbase motorcars were first placed on display in the showroom of Leveille-Maher Motor company, Ford dealers at West Main street.

The 75-horsepower V-8 cylinder engine, with its new aluminum cylinder head and rubber mounted bearings, the new double-channel, double-drop X-type frame, newly designed head and cowl lamps, bumpers and horns, skiffed front fenders, smaller wheels and larger conveyance appeared to attract fully as much attention as the new bodies with their flowing lines, distinctive interior appointments.

The new V-8 car is the fastest and most powerful car since Henry Ford launched into volume production of motor cars. It is exceedingly flexible in traffic and capable of a sustained speed of 80 miles an hour on the open road.

The secret of its power and speed lies in the improved V-8 engine and its new cylinder head design. Because aluminum dissipates heat more rapidly, the aluminum cylinder head permits unusually high compression pressure which results in increased speed, power and smoothness; unusual acceleration and fuel economy.

The cylinder heads have combustion chambers of improved design and are fitted with new 18-millimeter spark plugs with high heat resistance qualities. The high heat resistance of the spark plugs also obviates the tendency toward detonation or knocking, eliminates "hot spots," and reduces carbon deposits.

The 90-degree type crankshaft is fully counterbalanced and the pistons and connecting rod assemblies are matched in weight to produce unusual operating smoothness. The engine is fitted with downdraft carburetor, air intake silencer and high type fuel pump.

Through achievement of Ford engineers, the two cylinder blocks and crankcase are cast in a single piece, the cylinder blocks being set at an angle of 90 degrees. This design provides an exceptionally compact power plant. Basically, the engine is similar in design to the first Ford V-8 engine introduced in 1932.

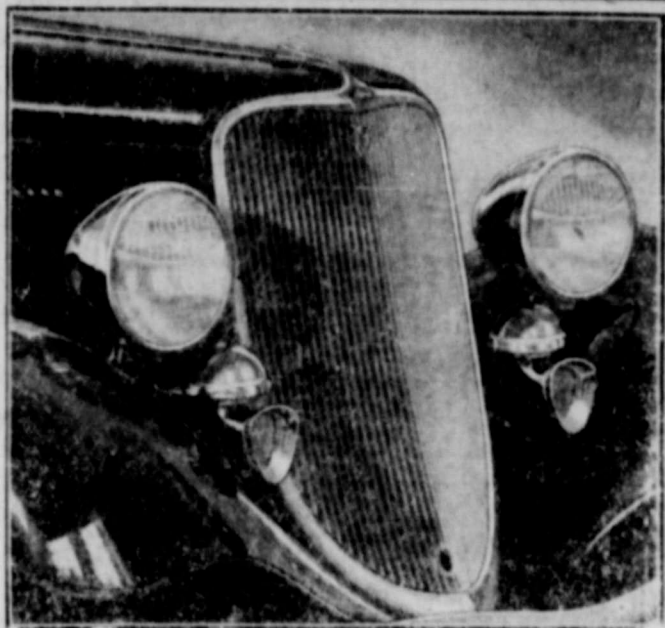

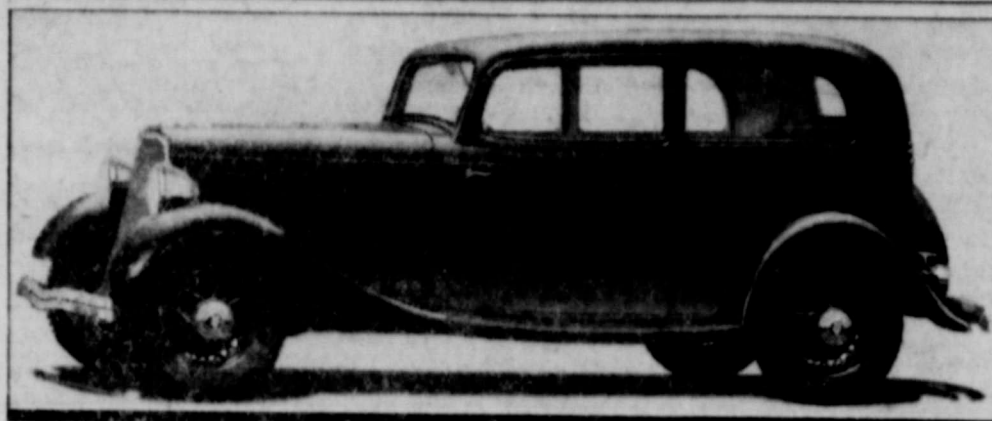

The engine reaches its power peak at 3800 r.p.m. This point is unusually high in the speed range, the car is capable of negotiating steep grades at high speed.

The new frame is also one of the unusual features of the car. It consists of four channel members, one on each side, which form the main body of the chassis and are joined by a semi-circular member on which the rear end of the power plant rests in a rubber mounting.

Still another feature of the new chassis, although not visible to the eye, is the new three-quarter steering axle drive. The pinion is mounted in a double roller roller housing at the front and a straight radial roller bearing at the rear. This design permits maintenance of permanent alignment of the pinion with the ring gear under all driving conditions and results in extremely quiet axle operation.

The wheels are 17 inches in diameter and of the Ford welded steel spoke type. Tires are of 5.50 inch section. The frame is cushioned by transverse cantilever springs. A new Ford Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers which adjust automatically for every condition in weather or road surface condition.

Ford Introduces Larger and More Powerful Car

Above—The new Ford Tudor sedan, one of the 14 beautiful new body types. Below—The attractive front end of the new Ford V-8 car with 112-inch wheelbase and 75-horsepower eight-cylinder engine. All deluxe cars are equipped with two matched tone horns, cowl lamps, two rear lamps and safety glass throughout.

Sharkey Cycles

The heavyweight champion of the world, Jack Sharkey, is having the time of his life on a vacation in Bermuda. Above you see the champ as he pedals his trusty bicycle around his Coral Beach cottage in the sunny south. He is expected to return soon and announce training for a title fight sometime this summer.

HOKY AND SLIDES Henry L. Farrell

The Last Laugh

THE setting would be perfect for one of those last laugh episodes—and an ironic and mocking laugh at that—at the expense of Bill Tilden, if it were not for Mr. Tilden himself.

When the U. S. L. T. A. finally announced the other day that, after all these years, its august self would sanction an open tennis championship, in which amateurs would meet the pros, as in golf, it appeared that the laugh was on Big Bill. For only the other day in Chicago Tilden mournfully declared himself out of the picture.

Bill Bill was 40 years old Feb. 10. It seems a pretty good age at which to retire from such a back-breaking sport as tennis. Tilden has seen all there is to see, has won everything there is to win in tennis.

Quit Now? BUT when the amateurs and pros gather at the Germantown Cricket Club in Philadelphia in summer, don't be too sure that Bill will not be there. His sudden appearance would be altogether in keeping with his life, a career of surprises.

Bill might say to himself: "Why, those lads are still mad at me. They wait until I have announced my retirement and then they decide to have an open championship. Maybe they want to see the last laugh. Well, let's see now who really will have the last laugh. I feel great. I'll play. I'll fool them."

Time after time, Big Bill has sat down before his portable typewriter not only to disband the U. S. L. T. A. but to criticize the gear oil organization.

What if the U. S. L. T. A. did have a rule forbidding a player in any tournament writing for publication about it. In other words "covering" the event?

Did that mean anything to Bill Tilden, many times the champion, and the man who has done more than the U. S. L. T. A. to build up the game in the United States throughout the last decade?

It did not. Big Bill usually sat and wrote whatever he pleased, and they had to like it, because Tilden for ever so many years was all there was in tennis—and don't be too sure when the date for that open rolls around that he isn't in there yet, taking his cut.

Hated and Applauded TILDEN has been as great a champion at his own game as Dempsey at fighting, Jones at golf, Grange at football—yes, even Babe Ruth at baseball. There were times in his career when the public hated him for shabby showmanship that seemed to be carried too far. But there were more frequent occasions when the world applauded him for his defiance of the very peculiar by-laws of the U. S. L. T. A.

He quit the Davis Cup team cold in 1924 when the committee questioned his status as an amateur because of his writings. One year his row with the august U. S. L. T. A. reached such proportions that the ambassador to France had to step in to insure the presence of Tilden in the Paris finals.

If his galleries did not sympathize with him, he insulted them, too. For that reason he has had not so much of hero worship as Ruth or Dempsey. But Tilden never needed it.

He loathed on the courts in important matches whenever he felt like it, playing just as little as he could until the issue became important. When he had to turn on the steam he did—and won.

He may be ready and willing to turn on the steam again at Germantown—and if he does—well, 40 is not so many years after all.

Jim Corbett Loses His Last Fight

"Gentleman Jim" Corbett, who did more to elevate the standards of the prize ring than any other fighter, who died at his home at Bayside, Long Island, Saturday, after an illness of more than two weeks.

"Gentleman Jim" Corbett Loses Fight stage, Corbett decided to fight the most aggressive, hard-hitting champion America had ever seen.

In 1892 the match was arranged and sportsmen the nation over, including Corbett's friends, bet heavily on the Boston strong boy. The match in New Orleans, was the first ever arranged under the protection of the police.

Corbett "bicycled" during the early rounds of that fight—the forerunner of Gene Tunney's great act with Dempsey in Chicago, years later. Yet, in the third round Corbett had succeeded, with five fives, in breaking the bigger man's nose.

In the 21st round, with Sullivan badly worried, Corbett followed home a left hook with a smacking hard right to the jaw, and an ex-world's champion rolled on the floor. The betting had been five to one against Corbett.

That night, while his friends were celebrating with champagne, Corbett drank milk, and a new legend was established. "He drinks milk because he wants to set an example to boys," the amazed sporting world learned.

For five years Corbett reigned as undisputed champion, and continued to build up the "Gentleman Jim" reputation that was his wholesome pride, he dressed well—like the banker he might have become. He strove for an appearance of culture and refinement.

Out Our Way

By Williams

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

The wisdom of the Almighty could never have been more thoroughly shown in any way better than when he ordained six days that thou labor and one day rest.

We Americans rush along so fast, stop so seldom, and think so little, that when Sunday comes we are too tired to think, and only rest for the one day of days, which is a fool within our souls is really a fool truly ours in which to loaf, without any fear of that All-Seeing Eye, who would not accuse us of neglect of duty, or honesty of soul, if we follow his mandate and observe this one time set aside for this purpose for the entire human race.

Often the wonder comes of that great Leveller, that commands all of all peoples. And Christ as a great and the greatest leveler of conditions of any man that ever lived.

No discrimination as to whom his seventh day shall apply. No matter thought if in or can be afforded; if it should not be afforded. No just the straight commandment to king and peasant. "This shall be the Rest."

But the cleavage of the six work days and the one rest day is no more distinct than that separation of right and wrong.

We are either right about a thing or we are wrong about a thing, and we can never take the attitude of having six days of wrong doing, that can be balanced by one day of right doing.

It is strange too that harmony worked out in seven full notes; that the week works out in seven days. We have been told by specialists that the system changes every seven years. However that may be, the Sabbath day is upon us, and as Ellen Gates once sang:

Nay, nay! Do not tell me that God will not hear me; know He is high over all; at I know just as well that he always is near me and never forgets me at all."

SPOTLIGHT

Sheila Shayne, dancer, refuses to marry Dick Stanley, son of wealthy parents, who is in New York trying to learn to write plays. Sheila's idea of marriage is a cozy little home far from Broadway. Although she has spent most of her life on the stage she would be glad to leave the theater.

Sheila joins a road show company and in a small midwestern city she meets Jerry Wyman. Jerry is attentive and Sheila falls in love with him. Soon his affection seems to cool and he writes infrequently.

Sheila returns to New York and a few months later joins another road company, this time as featured principal. The show plays in Jerry's home town but Sheila sees him only once. After that she has no word from him. The tour comes to an end. Then Sheila learns that Jerry has married a girl in his home town.

She tries unsuccessfully to get a part in another play. When her money is almost gone she is hired as a model at Henri's fashionable shop. There she sees Dorothy Trevor, Dick Stanley's cousin. Dorothy invites her to lunch but Henri tells Sheila the models are not allowed to have social engagements with customers. When Sheila leaves the shop that night she finds Dorothy and Dick waiting for her. Since there seems no way to refuse without offense she drives away with them. They go to Dick's apartment for dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII

Dick and Sheila followed Dorothy to the curb and saw her enter her car. Dorothy knew Dick wanted to talk to Sheila alone and did not stand her invitation that they should come with her. After a few moments' banter Dorothy said good-night and the huge limousine disappeared silently around the corner.

Sheila watched almost wistfully. Was it fair that she and Eve and Tillie and dozens of others had to toil for every cent they owned when some girls had so much and did nothing to deserve it? Not that Sheila begrudged Dorothy Trevor her fortune. Nor did she ordinarily bewail her own fate. Tonight, however, Sheila was tired. It seemed unfair that this other girl should have everything in the world to make for happiness while Sheila herself must toil and save and sacrifice. No, it didn't seem fair.

Standing alone in the quiet street, Sheila said none of these things. It was he who finally broke the silence.

"Would you like a taxi," he asked, "or shall we take the bus?"

"I don't think it will be crowded at this hour. Wonderful car," she said. "It's marvelous," Sheila agreed. "Foreign isn't it? I've never seen one like it."

Dick told her the car bore a French trade name and was extremely expensive. "The whole family thinks it's shocking," she went on. "But after all it's hers. I guess she has the right to do as she pleases with it."

They started walking slowly toward Fifth Avenue. The street was almost deserted except for a few pedestrians. Now and then a taxicab rolled past and in the distance a lumbering bus was disappearing.

"Does Dorothy have lots of money?" Sheila asked. "I know she's considered one of Henri's best customers."

Dick nodded. "Oh, yes, she has money, all right. More than she can spend. It's all in her own name, too. Her father was Warren Trem. Maybe you've heard of him. Built up an enormous fortune on Wall street and died while he was still comparatively young. He left the entire fortune to Dorothy."

"She doesn't seem a bit of a snob," mused Sheila.

"Oh, she's not," Dick spoke loyally. His cousin, for all their playful quarreling during the evening, occupied a warm spot in his heart. "She isn't in the least bit snobbish. Why should she be? She's always had money and doesn't think anything about it. Dorothy's a little thoroughbred."

"Well, I like her," Sheila agreed. "She's different from anyone I've ever met and I like the way she does things. She's pretty, too. Money hasn't spoiled her."

They boarded a bus and presently were skirting the north boundary of Central Park. The little pond on which sailors continue their aquatic propensities back at them, here and there a rippling water-rocket on the rippling water. Roked on and roared as it went. Jersey lay girdled with lights across the stretch of the Hudson.

"I like your river better than this one," Sheila said impulsively. The silence had grown tense. Dick seemed to be on the verge of some sort of declaration and Sheila was afraid to hear it.

"My river? Thank you. I like it better, too."

The bus dattered into upper Broadway. Cruising taxis, a strolling couple or two were the only signs of life here. The bus dipped into the hollow of 157th street, rose again with the Heights and halted with a jerk in the 170's. Sheila rose and clambered down the steps, followed by Dick.

They walked down the street toward the apartment building where the Sampers made their home.

"What are you planning to do this fall?" Dick asked carelessly. "Will you go on the road again?"

Now they were on the doorstep of the building. "I don't know," Sheila hesitated. "I may. The job at Henri's is temporary, of course. Trevor got it for me, by the way. In fact, you didn't guess it. It's seasonal work, though, and Henri won't need me very long. I hope I get a part in a show soon."

"Do you still dislike the idea of playing on Broadway?" asked Dick without meeting the girl's eyes.

Sheila glanced away hastily. "I don't know. Beggers can't be choosers, I mean," she went on quickly. "That show business is like everything else. It's in a bad way now. Everybody has to take what they can get and I'll have to do the same."

"There's always Mandrake," Dick suggested thoughtfully. "I doubt if he'd give me anything now."

Sheila's voice was lifeless and Dick did not pursue the subject further. He had not seen Mandrake for weeks. Perhaps it was true that the producer's interest in Sheila had waned. She had declined to appear on Broadway in a part other talented dancers would have clamored for. Mandrake might have decided to waste no further thought on her, considering her too temperamental. Still there was a chance that something could be done. Dick decided privately to call on Mandrake casually some day soon and find out. It could do no harm and it might help Sheila.

"If Mandrake had a god part I think he'd give it to Frances Barton," the girl added.

"But she's not such a wonderful dancer."

"She's very good, Dick, as a matter of fact. And she's built up asked sympathetically.

"No. Go to sleep like a good child!"

But Sheila herself did not sleep for a long while. She snapped out the light and then lay still and wide awake. She was thinking of Dick, no longer the attentive, pleading sweetheart but a pal, a friend. He had talked to her exactly as he might have to any of a dozen girls. Asked about her work and showed friendly interest. Now that Dick was apparently out of reach he seemed much more attractive.

Was it possible that she could be falling in love with him? With Dick? Was it possible that she had been mistaken in her devotion to Jerry?

All that Sheila was sure of was that she was very tired and miserably unhappy.

She arrived at Henri's promptly next morning. The day moved much as the one before it except that it was easier because she knew what to expect. True to her word, Dorothy Trevor arrived in the afternoon and ordered several frocks. She must have said something to Henri about Sheila because he drew Sheila aside just before the end of the day and said quietly, "This once I shall close my eyes to the fact that last night I saw you drive away with Miss Trevor. Oh, yes, I saw you! See that you don't do it again however!"

ONE EGG

You can cook an entire meal with Natural Gas

With the exception of water and condiments, natural gas is probably the cheapest item that enters into the preparation of any meal. Statistics, based on average consumptions, show that it costs the average Ranger family only ONE-THIRD OF A PENNY per person per meal to cook the natural gas way. At 15 cents per dozen, the cost of ONE EGG will more than cover the fuel expense for cooking an entire meal for a family of three.

No other fuel is as convenient and economical as natural gas for cooking. Use it freely but don't waste it.

WASHINGTON.—The National Association of Broadcasters is in for more trouble. It faces a suit which the Columbia and Brunswick Phonograph companies are said to be preparing to defend their property rights in records which they sell.

The N. A. B. recently advised all stations that they need not fear damage suits for broadcasting records, even though a notice on the disc expressly forbids their use for such purposes. Columbia and Brunswick are said to be pooling their legal resources for a test case.

Report of the impending suit has thrown the broadcasters into confusion. They charge the Music Publishers' Protective association with having inspired the makers of the records to place the label, "Not Licensed for Broadcasting," on their products.

Objection to continued use of records for broadcasting is made in behalf of artists as well as the companies. Royalties on the disc have been falling off, it is reported, because repeated use of records gives the listening public a surfeit, from which it easily tires. On the other hand, when a recording can be used by 400 stations a day, the singer stands to lose contracts for personal appearances before the microphone. The recording companies, with millions of dollars invested in plants, and with exclusive contracts to fulfill with the artists say that another two years of such alleged infringement of their rights will destroy their business.

The next director of the budget will be Walker D. Hines of Chicago, wartime director general of railroads when they were under federal control. That is the report here. Hines has been at Warm Springs conferring with Mr. Roosevelt, and is said to have been offered the post when Swagart Sherley of Washington eliminated himself from consideration.

On the same day the report was circulated, Hines applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to become a director in a railway express company. Jack Garner's oft-repeated assertion that contributors to the Republican war chest were favored recipients of tax refunds during Andy Mellon's Hamiltonian administration of the Treasury Department is being recalled. It seems that a tax refund of $45,000 and an abatement of $5,870.

000 to the estate of Secretary Mills' father has set some of the boys down here thinking. Ogdin as the executor claimed, after lapse of more than a year, that he had overestimated the value of the estate, and his department found that he was way off schedule. The undertrappers have an alibi. They can point out that he is the champion overestimator. Look what he did to federal income when he tried to estimate that!

Interviewed by trans-Atlantic telephone from London, Henry Ford was quoted in an English paper as saying that certain competitors and bankers were responsible for the strike which tied up operations in his plants. This seemed to coincide with the representations of a labor leader that Wall Street has a financial stranglehold through interlocking directorates on certain American industries. The coincidence led Senator Black of Alabama to demand that the stock exchange investigation by Senator Norbeck's special committee show more signs of life. But that committee is at a standstill ever since some assertedly astounding information was dug up. They say it is loaded with too much explosive material, and the committee hesitates to touch off the fuse. It must be dangerous when members of the committee like Blaine of Wisconsin and Couzens of Michigan are ready to let go.

Tom Miller, whose horse of the Harding administration, who was promoted from the job of alien property custodian to a berth at Atlanta Penitentiary, has been pardoned and restored to full citizenship by President Hoover. Miller was sent South for a stay of six months when a jury found him guilty of having defrauded the government five years ago. The Old Guard of the G. O. P. is reported to be getting ready for a comeback in 1936, and will need all the help it can get, said a wag here yesterday.

Now Mr. Roosevelt knows how it feels to have a bunch of Senators treading on his tail. Ambassador Lindsay's visit at Warm Springs was all that was needed to set off the fireworks. Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana will be a thorn in the side of the next administration if any proposition to reduce the foreign debts is sent to the Senate. He will have plenty of Democratic support added to the Republican strength. It would be political suicide for any member of Congress to urge or vote for debt reduction, no matter what pretext is offered for it.

vigorous attempts in the House by the Drys to restore the budget figure. The department will have to get along with only $8,440,000. Not only that, but the House has placed a ban against its use for employment of stool-pigeons, liquor-buying and wire-tapping.

The vote on roll call was 174 to 165—110 Democrats, 63 Republicans and one Farmer-Labor voting against snooping and 62 Democrats and 103 Republicans voting to retain paid informers. It looks now as if Prohibition is to be used again as a political football by the Republicans after the Democratic kickoff on March 4.

The Association of National Advertisers is jumping all over the National Association of Broadcasters accusing commercialized radio with being a racket for chislers. Stuart Peabody, president of the advertisers, served an ultimatum that padded prices on radio talent which supply "cuts" for go-betwens will hereafter be taboo if his organization can stop it. Peabody is sales manager for the Borden Condensed Milk company of New York, which uses morning time on a National Broadcasting company country-wide hookup. The Association of National Advertisers numbers more than 200 national advertisers, he says. "Advertising cannot continue to support the parasites who inflate the cost of radio talent," he told his organization.

"The advertiser doesn't mind paying a fair price for talent, but he wants the talent to receive it and objects to having it split up six different ways to support a lot of radio hangers-on who do nothing to earn the money. If the boosting of salaries doesn't cease, the advertisers will lose faith in those who control the broadcasting business."
