A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TRUSTING GOD: O Lord my God, in thee do I put my trust; save me from all them that pursue me, and deliver me.—Psalm 7: 1.

SEN. ROBINSON FOR REPEAL OF PUBLICITY CLAUSE

Sen. Joseph Taylor Robinson of Arkansas is for the repeal of the publicity clause of the R. F. C. He has a reason as well as an argument for repeal. All the people who read the newspapers are aware that the present law provides that the R. F. C. "shall make and publish a quarterly report of its operations to congress." Senator Robinson, minority leader and spokesman, offered an amendment striking out the word "publish" and providing for monthly reports to the president and the senate and the house. His argument: "We are hearing from every part of the country that publicity regarding R. F. C. loans has been causing trouble with the banks and in some instances very serious trouble. It does not appear that the publicity provision has accomplished anything wholesome and it is my opinion that there is a general demand for modification of the statute in this particular."

Speaker Garner has the floor. If publicity of loans is responsible for raids on financial institutions, perhaps the Arkansas senator is on the right road. Confidence has been pretty thoroughly shaken in America. Credit has been made a "frozen asset," so to speak. Wild men who let loose wild rumors are largely responsible for conditions as they are. This is the hour, or should be the hour, of the builder and not the leveller. It is the hour for constructive leadership and not destructive. Builders are needed everywhere—and builders of confidence should be given the right-of-way.

WISCONSIN LAWMAKERS FACE TO FACE WITH TOUGH PROBLEMS

Wisconsin, ruled by the LaFollettes, father and son, for many years, was passed on to the democrats in the general election last year. Now a democratic governor and a democratic legislature face the problem of how to pay for a government that normally costs $57,000,000 a biennium with revenues of $54,000,000. Well, there is a way "to cut to the bone."

Ohio is one of the most conservative of commonwealths. Its lawmakers are considering a bill proposing a two-year moratorium on foreclosures against real estate mortgages. Hawkeye farmers appear to be in the saddle. They asked the senate of the legislature to pass a bill for a moratorium on delinquent tax sales up to Dec. 4, 1933. Mortgage relief measures are hobbling up everywhere in legislative halls the nation over. How far will they go?

LEADING AGRICULTURAL COUNTIES OF TEXAS

Bascom N. Timmons, Washington correspondent, tells the readers of the newspapers he serves two Texas counties, Nueces and Ellis, were among the 50 leading agricultural counties of the United States, according to a ranking based on the 1930 census announced by the commerce department. Nueces county ranked 24th with crops and livestock. Ellis ranked 47th in the nation, and in crops alone 30th. Los Angeles county, Calif., with crops and livestock worth $90,706,077, nearly twice as much as any other county in the 48 commonwealths, ranked first. Yes, California has sunshine for sale—as well as the staples of the farm and ranch and orchard and garden.

ON WITH THE DANCE

Now what was the reply of Financier Baruch? "I agree with you in what you want to do, but you can't do it that way." President Hoover made his swan song speech on the same day that the financial Napoleon and the Texas statesman made history in "their joint debate" before the senate committee. President Hoover declared that all the nations of the earth must go on the gold standard, that all must disarm, that there must be a revision of war debts before peace may come to the world or prosperity restored to the sons and daughters of men.

All of which is a reminder that on November election day, just last year, the American people at the ballot box repudiated the policies of President Hoover and his advisors and declared for a new deal from top to bottom under the big dome of the capitol of the republic. NOW, WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Many advocate a restorative policy to bring back prices to the 1929 level by a concerted money action by the creation of as much new money as gold stocks will bear without endangering the gold parity of the respective currencies, and thereafter keep stable. These thoughts are well worth careful consideration.

"The Famous Faculty Follies of 1933, starring those Ranger high school teachers who are "sports" enough to accept the challenge so graciously extended by the student body of Ranger high school. All who have criticism to offer might trouble to read this short essay and then remodel their views.

Oooh! Jigsaw Puzzles!

I think someone is founding an asylum for these poor fanatics and now I'm afraid its sweeping the high school, heaven forbid. Some of my best friends were found wandering, vacant-eyed, around the halls this morning, pulling their hair and murmuring "Jigsaw, jigsaw," and now even the foods 3B classes are planning a jigsaw party. Imagine!

Cuba Crabb was the week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. Grasse, of Breckenridge. She came back with a new permanent and several hours loss of sleep; but a revival of spirits. We wonder who is responsible for this revival in Cuba. Then there's the story (truth not fiction) about the high school girl who called her boyfriend a "slot machine." They did seem to "click" pretty well.

DANCING ON GLASS

ILLUSION.
 In India, the fakirs present a spectacle to tourists. Two lovely performers break bottles and lamp chimneys before the eyes of the audience, and throw the jagged pieces into a box already filled with broken glass. They step barefooted into the box and do an Oriental dance in the glass without injury.

EXPLANATION:
 The performers toughen their feet in a strong solution of alum water and thoroughly rub them with pulverized resin before they appear. They throw the freshly broken glass around the edges of the platform. The glass on which they actually do dance is very thick, heavy, and filed or ground so that the sharp edges are rounded off. The girls just pretend to dance on the sharp glass.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED
... IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

One of the tricks of cigarette advertising is to pretend that "Heat Treatment" is an exclusive process, making one cigarette better than any other.

EXPLANATION: All cigarette manufacturers use heat treatment. It is a routine process of manufacture. The first Camel cigarette ever made was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of Camels produced since has received the necessary heat treatment.

Harsh, raw tobaccos require intensive processing under high temperatures. The more expensive tobaccos, which are naturally mild, call for only a moderate application of heat. Heat treatment never can make cheap, inferior tobacco good.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is the most important statement ever made in a cigarette advertisement. Weigh its words. Consider what it means. Then try Camels. Camels are fresh... in the air-tight, welded Humidor Pack.

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

The Alamo! Ninety-seven years ago today, March 6, the massacre of the Alamo was the formative event of the foundation of the state of Texas.

The heroism of the defenders, depicted in poetry, told in history, and etched in painted form on canvas, this bloody spot on the historical map of Texas, remains an ever present and heroic sacrifice.

The Alamo, a mission church at San Antonio in what is now Bexar county, had been converted into a fort, and on the historical date known to every Texan, this fort was occupied by 150 men, leaders of the revolutionists in the Texas war of independence.

We are told that though attacked by 3,000 Mexicans under Santa Anna, this handful of men held their ground, approved for from Feb. 23, to March 6, when Santa Ana took it, and with this immense body of soldiers and capturing the fort by storm.

All but seven of this little group of patriots died, six of these being murdered after they had surrendered. Only one man escaped to report the horrific engagement. This sacrifice were lost the lives of the celebrated David Crockett and Colonel James Bowie. The memory of this fearful massacre, as such it was, proved the ever glowing coal to the fire of patriotism for all Texas in subsequent decades, and "Remember the Alamo" became the war cry in the Texas struggle for freedom.

Mexico thought it was wiping out a fort, but learned that the birth of a republic arose. After the Alamo the battle of San Jacinto brought its own reward and shows that Texas history has been molded on sacrifices that will last through the ages.

Texas was the twenty-eighth state to join the union, and is represented by the twenty-eighth star in the field of blue in our American flag.

The Alamo building was not a mission building itself but a chapel attached to San Antonio De Valera and the other missions. The building is presumed to have acquired its name from local designation for a grove of poplar or cottonwood trees which grew adjacent to the mission. The structure was repaired in 1754 and was not the original San Antonio De Valera mission.

In 1778 in response to demands for a half-way post between the missions and presidios in East Texas, on the treacherous Louisiana border, and the Spanish posts along the Rio Grande, the mission San Antonio De Valera, and Presidio was established at the springs of the headwaters of the San Antonio river.

The picturesque background of the history of the Alamo, as we think of it, has drawn thousands of tourists to the location, who have inspected with reverence the interior of this old mission, viewed with shudders the tiny openings through which the defenders of the fort and Texas liberty, fired upon their enemies; touched with reverence the old stone fountains that held the scanty water for this handful of men, and shuddered over the grim interior of this once daily rained, with a pitying thought for the brave men, who lost their lives in the cause of Texas freedom.

Shall we, who can look back upon this sacrifice, remain cold to the call for the permanent establishment of the archives of time, of a centennial that shall forever emblazon for posterity the history of the Alamo, and of subsequent Texas?

Our battle cry of 1933 is "On to the Centennial in 1936; Remember the Alamo."

British scientists are planning a new attempt to flash messages to Mars. We don't know what system of communication the war gods use, but he seems to keep busy humping on old Mother Earth hillsides of static, storms and low visibility.

WHY AM I HERE TODAY?
JANET HILL, now Miss CARLYLE, have been engaged almost a year. They have out of their marriage because Janet insists they must have $500 in a savings account. Janet enjoys spreading money and the thing necessary to save this amount is successful to him Janet works an executive at the Hamilton advertising manager of Every Day Magazine, and she is employed at an advertising agency. Janet, deeply in love, is not suspicious when Carlisle breaks to see her. One night he breaks an engagement with her. MISS LAMBERT, who lives across the hall, tells Janet she has seen Carlisle entering a theater with another girl. Janet says she has seen Carlisle work and tells him what Mollie has said. Carlisle becomes angry, says their engagement is meaningless and that if Janet really wanted to marry him she would have done so long ago. They quarrel. Janet is miserable, hoping Carlisle will call or come to see her but he does not.

She learns that Carlisle has gone with his BETTY KENDALL, niece of a member of the firm for which Carlisle works. Carlisle has taken a job in her uncle's office.

Mollie advises Janet to go out with other young men and show Carlisle she has forgotten him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rolf stood looking at her. He said, "Why—Janet!"

CHAPTER X

IT seemed to Janet that she had been thinking of Rolf and no one or anything else but Rolf since the day she had last seen him, the day their engagement had come to an end. But when she came face to face with him again Rolf Carlyle was far from her thoughts.

It was on the Saturday following her trip to the movies with Mollie. Janet was in front of the Brewster Hotel. By odd coincidence it was almost exactly the same place where she had seen Rolf with Betty Kendall on that other Saturday.

It happened this way: Janet had had a very special task to perform that morning. Bruce Hamilton was out of town. He had departed unexpectedly the day before, making hurried preparations. In the midst of half an hour of rapid fire dictation Hamilton had suddenly stopped short.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "I forgot about Miss Graham!"

Janet knew about Miss Graham. She was an important member of the advertising staff of Fisher-Loomis, Inc.—one of Every Home's best clients. Miss Graham was coming to Lancaster to arrange some demonstrations of Fisher products. Very high type demonstrations with educational value. The plan was to persuade one of the local women's organizations to sponsor the affair. Since Fisher Loomis had been buying a page of space in every issue of Every Home Magazine for more than six months and there would be a new contract to discuss before long it certainly behooved Bruce Hamilton, the magazine's advertising manager, to show Miss Graham every courtesy.

"She sets in Saturday morning," Hamilton said. "I was to have lunch with her." He paused, frowning at the metal ink stand before him, and tapped his desk meditatively.

There were several moments of silence. Then all at once he exclaimed, "See here—how's this? Why can't you go to see Miss Graham and take her to lunch?"

"But, Mr. Hamilton—"

"He was smiling. 'You'll like her,' Hamilton assured the girl. 'And you can do it, too. Tell her I'll give her a ring Monday morning and arrange to see her later.'

"You see," he went on, eyeing Janet, "if you don't go I'll have to ask Dawson. Somebody's got to be there. If Chambers was here he'd take care of it but he isn't here—and Dawson puts his finger into this department too much as it is. Don't say anything to Miss Graham about the new contract. I'll take care of all that. Tell her we want to be helpful in every way we can—"

AND thus Janet Hill found herself lunching at the Brewster Coffee Shop Saturday noon. She had never been in the hotel before but Miss Graham was stopping there. Janet thought Miss Graham was one of the most attractive women she had ever seen. She marveled that such a beauty should want to devote her days to figuring prices, okaying proofs, discussing column inches—all the dull routine of business in an advertising office. Miss Graham, however, didn't seem to think it dull business. She asked questions about Lancaster and talked gaily, interestingly of other cities she had visited.

Janet was fascinated. She was so interested in all Miss Graham said that the excitement of lunching at the Brewster was forgotten. Over the coffee and dessert they sat talking until suddenly Janet realized how late it was getting. She offered excuses, smiled and blushed when the older woman laid her a compliment, and said goodby.

She had carried out Mr. Hamilton's instructions exactly as he moment. Then Rolf said, flushing slightly. "Which way are you going?"

DID he wonder why she happened to be coming from the Brewster Hotel? Janet failed to enlighten him. It was Saturday afternoon and she was not due back at the office but for some reason she didn't want to tell Rolf that. She didn't want him to think she had nothing to do with a half-holiday but go home and stay there now that she was no longer engaged to him. For an instant she considered pretending that she had a date. Then she said, "I have to do some shopping. I'm on my way to Landings."

Landings was the town's largest department store.

"Going that way myself. Mind if I walk along?"

"Why, no. Of course not."

They walked the length of the block. Rolf spoke of the weather which was pleasant and said that spring certainly would be there almost any day now. Janet agreed, adding that some of the shrubs in the park were beginning to show buds. Rolf, with a slight air of self-satisfaction, told her he was handling a new account. It was a good one. He went on to mention some trivial office gossip.

Janet's face was an effective mask. No one would have guessed to look at her that her heart was pounding feverishly, that her hands in their neat black gloves were like ice. The color that had left her face at the surprise encounter came flooding back and her heart was singing with excitement.

But at Rolf's mention of the Atlas Advertising office that singing ceased abruptly. Janet spoke before she could check the words. "I understand you have a new girl in your office. Miss Kendall?"

"Oh, yes." Rolf's tone was casual. If Betty Kendall's name had any special significance for him he did not betray it. "She's D. R.'s niece—maybe you know that. Doesn't know anything about writing ads, of course, but I suppose she can learn."

"She's very pretty," Janet said. "I saw her picture in the Times."

Apparently Rolf thought this statement needed no comment. There was something he wanted to say and it did not seem to come easily. They had reached a corner where the only building was set back from the street. There was no one else near. Rolf showed his step and said, "Listen, Janet, I want you to know I'm sorry about the other night. We shouldn't have quarreled that way. I mean I wish we could be friends—"

She looked at him swiftly. The young man's eyes were straight ahead.

Janet's own voice sounded hushed and a trifle breathless. "I'm sorry, too," she said. "I didn't mean all those things I said. I shouldn't have said. Only—well, I guess I misunderstood. I thought you were in love with that other girl. With Betty Kendall. Oh, Rolf, these two weeks have been terrible! I couldn't eat or sleep or anything. I've wanted to talk to you. I've wanted to tell you I don't feel the way I did about getting married. I mean I was wrong. We don't need to wait until we've saved $500. We don't need to wait at all. I'll marry you any time. Today! This very afternoon if you say so!"

She stopped, suddenly alarmed.

What an innovation! What a difference in the quality and taste of coffee. It takes to give you the kind of coffee you've always wanted. And what is more, the heating element makes a marvelous little toast steve after your coffee is ready. Egg and bacon frying and toast making is a cinch. Merely remove the Vaculator and you can use the hot plate any way you wish.
