Banquet Highlight of P-T-A Program Tonight

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

A Texas girl has been receiving a lot of publicity, with pictures in the papers and everything, because she denied she was engaged to Cornelius Vanderbilt. We deny, emphatically, that we are engaged to Joan Crawford. Now bring on the photographers.

We see by the papers where a gasoline price war is being waged in China. Prices were cut from $1.10 a gallon to $1.05, and finally to $1. No wonder the Chinese walk. We would, too, at such prices.

Today's most useless information: Saturday will be New Year's day in Siam.

Our solution for getting a beer bill passed in Texas would be to try on a clause saying that 3.2 per cent of the tax revenue would go to the school fund. That was the way the gasoline tax, the cigarette tax and several other measures got through. And it was one of the reasons for advocating the sales tax, which seems to have died a natural death because no one but the school teachers really seemed to favor it.

After looking over the senate journal of the 43rd Texas legislature, which is sent to us by Sen. Wilbourne B. Collie, we were about of the opinion that 24 senators would be enough to send it to Austin because most bills showed that only 24 senators voted, but then we ran across one instance where the journal stated "The bill was finally passed by the following vote: Yeas, 24; nays, 8."

According to our bookkeeping department 24 and 8 adds up to 32 and as there are only 31 senators we tried to determine who had voted twice, but couldn't. But it probably doesn't matter anyway, because there is a possibility that it could have been a mistake made by the printer, rare as such a thing would be—according to the printers, who blame all mistakes on editors.

For the information of whoever it was who asked us yesterday, the major league baseball season opens on Wednesday, April 12, this year, which is the date on which both the American and National leagues swing into action.

Flying ants took our office by storm yesterday afternoon, getting down our collar, in the typewriter, on the desk and everywhere we tried to work the ants got on us.

We couldn't find any satisfactory way of getting rid of them so we just quit work and went down to see what was going on, if anything.

Well, the baby found on the doorstep of Bill Hassen of Eastland has been given a good home. Henry Davenport, county commissioner, has legally adopted the eight-pound, one-week-old baby and is as happy as can be with his new son. Some tough broncs will be on hand and a good show is promised.

RANGER SHOOT WILL BE HELD NEXT SUNDAY

The American Legion Rifle club of Ranger will officially open their 1933 season Sunday with an all-day shoot at which a large number of out-of-town shooters are expected to contest for the cash prizes.

Team shooting will also be held in the large bore rifle class with the total scores of the teams counting in the contests.

Business Men of Eastland to Meet

The second of a series of monthly meetings of Eastland business men will be held at the high school cafeteria next Thursday night at 7:30. A good program is being planned and all business men who are interested in Eastland should be on hand.

THE POET'S... CORNER...

REMINISCENCE
Do you remember the place where you were born?
The shady nook at the bend in the brook
And beyond the fields of corn?
Do you remember the wand'ring lane,
Where the old log fence was down?
And the little calf you tried to tame
When it bare cool walk around?
And at the end of the lane, the orchard plot,
And the apples you would steal?
And then, of course, the whipping you got,
And then the way you'd feel?
Do you remember all those things?
They seem so long ago,
What with elevators, trains and planes,
Those days seem all too slow.
But still we remember those days gone
And to our selves we sigh:
And though the world keeps moving on,
And years go flying by,
We still recall where we were born;
The shady nook at the bend in the brook,
And beyond—the fields of corn.

HARD WORKING SUPREME COURT JUDGES

This cheerful little earful comes from the capital of the nation: "The supreme court has reached its goal. After years of hard work it has prepared to hear cases as rapidly as counsel can present them and when it convenes Monday, March 13, only 21 cases will await hearing."

A lot of people talk as though the present depression is a storm of perpetual darkness and not a passing storm. Of course, no one can say that the days of sunshine are really near, but there are many signs that we have passed the worst and that brighter days will come.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma
ALFRED G. HILL, editor of the Fort Collins (Colo.) Express-Courier, says:
"There's a lot of fun ahead!
"No matter how much good has come to us as foolish individuals in this process of being deflated, we haven't enjoyed it.
"Now we have reasonable basis for some kind of upward turn—not just around the corner, but straight ahead and mighty hard pushing and pulling at that.
"But there's the chance for more smiles. Invoices should be marked up instead of down. We'll be looking back—not to talk about how high prices were in 1920 or 1929, but how low prices were in 1933 and 'how much better things are now.'
"Let's be more able. We'll possess more good common sense. We'll have more realization that the primary means of working out our various destinies will be in our own actions and our own good judgment.
"We'll be on firm ground—not kidding ourselves. And we'll have the satisfaction—Yes, the fun—of building up!"

Texas Wind Wares Out 3 Flags Yearly

AUSTIN.—It takes three flags a year atop the University of Texas main building flag pole to withstand the weather.

At the end of four months the once bright and unblemished flag is torn to tatters by wind and rain, Sam Kieschink, who takes care of the flags, said. Kieschink orders the flags six at a time.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Pictures of Silver

By BEULAH K. HICKS
Mark 7:24-37

Christ, in the third year of his ministry, April, 29 A. D., weary and worn from teaching, healing and all manner of demands upon him; realizing that his time was short to train his disciples, retired with them to the region of Tyre and Sidon.

Here in this region, that was beyond the boundaries of the Jews and in a land of heathen people, Jesus hoped to find the required peace necessary for rest and the teaching of his disciples.

That luminous personality of love, patience and forbearance could not be hidden. Here, the heart-broken mother, found him and made her appeal for her child possessed of a demon. This appeal so direct from the heart when she addressed him as deity in Math. 15:22 as "Lord, son of David," did not at the time seem to touch Jesus for he answered her not a word.

His beautiful countenance encouraged her for her plea went on. At length he spoke and in those words taught a mighty lesson. To this Syrophenician woman, whom the Jews regarded as a dog, he asked the question which brought out her faith and humility when she quickly answered, "Yes, Lord; yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs."

This faith and humility won the blessing for Christ answered, "For this saying go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter."

She went home in the joy of her faith, finding her daughter laid out upon a couch, exhausted from the conflict as the devil left her but calm and sane.

Jesus in what seems a tired, pensive mood, taught this lesson to the haughty, ceremonially clean Jews. "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd."—John 10:16.

In the next division of the lesson we find Jesus in Decapolis healing the deaf and dumb man. Jesus drew him away from the multitude, using signs that the poor man could not fail to understand, touching the defective ears and tongue, looking up to heaven showing him that his blessings came from above.

You can picture the man's joy that he could again hear the voices of friends and find words to answer them. The words that were expressed by the multitude, "He hath done all things well."

How straight to the heart the messages of this chapter find their way even to this day.

In the first verses he speaks of the prophecies of Isaiah calling people hypocrites, honoring God with their lips, but not with the heart and teaching the traditions of men and leaving the commandments of God.

Today we need to fall at the feet of Jesus in as much humility and faith as did this mother for her child; let Jesus touch the defective parts of our hearts as he did the ears and tongue of the deaf and dumb man.

Not until then can we get rid of those unclean products of our inner selves; evil thoughts, lustfulness, and many others.

Not until then will come joy and peace in purity of the heart, that Jesus tell us about in this lesson. Then we will learn to "keep thy heart with diligence; for out of it are the issues of life."—Proverbs 4:23.

Then we can also claim the promise, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Joe Jones to Enter Private Practice

Joe H. Jones announced Thursday that he had tendered his resignation to Grady Owen as assistant Criminal District Attorney for Eastland county. Mr. Jones said that, under existing conditions, the business of the office was not sufficient to justify him to remain there and give his time to it. He will open a law office on the third floor of the Exchange National Bank building. His resignation takes effect April 1st.

Mr. Jones served two terms as Criminal District Attorney and was not a candidate for the third term. It was understood at the time he accepted the position of assistant that he only expected to remain until he could make arrangements to enter private practice.

Mr. Owen does not contemplate employing another assistant at this time. He thinks that, under existing conditions, he can care for the business of the office.

Novices Sleep On Long Air Flight

CHICAGO.—If you never had made a night flight on one of the coast-to-coast passenger planes, would you be excited or sleep? The answer is you would probably spend most of the night sleeping, as United Air Lines stewards report that 75 per cent of the travelers sleep most of the time.

Furthermore, the longer people travel the more they sleep, yet even the first timers, after the novelty of watching the beacon lights and the illumination of cities below wears off, go to sleep. While transports do not have Pullman berths, the chairs are adjustable and the stewardess tucks a blanket around the traveler, turns out the light, and soon the passenger is in the Land of Nod.

Subsoiling Will Increase Crops

By J. C. Patterson, County Agent

That crop yields may be increased by subsoiling was successfully demonstrated in Eastland county last year by both 4H Club boys and farmers who cooperated with the county agent. Seven potatoes on subsoiled land made 400 bushels per acre as against slightly less than 100 bushels on the acre alongside which was not subsoiled but handled exactly the same otherwise. This increase was exceptional and is not to be expected generally. A 35 to 50 per cent increase in yield should justify all trouble and expense of subsoiling. The fact that some crops in these demonstrations last year were drowned out by too much moisture proves that the deep plowing holds the soil water longer and will be of advantage in years of normal rainfall. The 1932 rainfall in Eastland county was 44 inches as compared to normal average of 27 inches.

In the absence of proper subsoiling tools the method used in the 1932 demonstrations was to bethel land then run a bull tongue plow as deep as possible in the furrow then at once bed back on this. At planting time this furrow was opened and the seed planted just above where

World's Foggiest Spot Is Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The foggiest "spot" in the world is in Sacramento.

The spot is foggy 24 hours a day every day of the year with a humidity rating of 100 per cent.

It is a room in the material testing laboratory of the state division of highways and the fog is made artificially by the state testing engineers. The perpetual fog is used to study the effect of moisture on concrete, samples of which are stored in the room.

One I Love by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY When JANET HILL learns that CARLYLE has been engaged...

SHE felt better now that she had got that out. It was easier to go on. "After I found out I was going away. But I needed the job and I didn't know where to find another. There aren't many jobs just now. I've been reading the want ad columns every day."

He stopped her. "But that's nonsense!" he exclaimed. "Listen, you aren't going to leave this job. Why, it's just the thing for you! Lots better than working downtown in an office. Mrs. Curtis thinks a lot of you, too. I've heard her telling Betty she couldn't get along without you!"

His concern was genuine. The laughter was gone from the dark eyes now. "Promise me you won't do that, Janet," he urged. "You really think it's all right for me to stay?"

"Of course I do! I want you to."

"I don't know," Janet said doubtfully. "I don't know exactly what I should do. I've been thinking about it for several days now. I'll see that there's nothing to be embarrassed about. You needn't worry about that. Only we can be friends, I hope. There isn't any reason why we shouldn't be, is there?"

There was a flash of that quick, winning smile. Janet said, "The color deepened in her cheeks. "Then let's shake on it."

Their hands met. Janet said quickly, with a voice unsteady from emotion, "I've got to go now. I-I'm late."

In another moment she was hurrying up the stairs. She did not stop until the door of her own room had closed behind her. Then she sank down on the edge of the bed. She was cold and every bit of strength seemed to have ebbed from her body. She clenched her hands together tightly, shivering though her heart was pounding.

"I won't see him again!" Janet resolved. "I mustn't let him know I feel the way I do!"

SHE didn't go down stairs again until she had heard Mrs. Curtis telling someone that Mr. and Mrs. Janet had been dining out. Then Janet bathed and dressed and went down to the library.

Rolf proved to be as good as his word. Three days later he and Betty moved into their apartment and during those three days Janet saw him only once. He was with Betty then, on their way to some sort of engagement. He was wearing dinner clothes and Betty's wrap had slipped back to reveal her newest evening gown, a bizarre creation of coral and gold.

Janet passed them on the stairway. Betty was speaking to Rolf and did not even glance toward the other girl. Janet, after that first swift look, kept her eyes from meeting the man's.

With the young couple gone, she had hoped that the household would return to its quiet orderliness but this did not prove true. There were still parties. There was still Betty and Betty's demands. Where all the money was coming from to maintain the Carlyles' elegant new home Janet had no idea. She knew Mrs. Curtis had paid a year's lease on the apartment and furnished it. But there were other expenses.

Though Rolf was still at the Atlas Advertising Agency it was unbelievable that his salary could meet these demands. Janet had heard Betty had money in her own name. Perhaps that was formance, with several lions and tigers escaping from the arena and creating pandemonium in the milling crowds.

Beatty's supporting cast in "The Big Cage" includes Andy Devine, Vince Barnett, Wallace Ford, Mickey Rooney, Raymond Hutton, Robert McWade, James Durkin, Wilfred Lucas and other screen favorites. The picture was directed by Kurt Neumann.

There is behind the scenes a love story, that is so vitally a part of the picture, that it suggests the dual quality that made of "Variety" such a great picture of show life.

Actual thrills of danger, rather than those of dramatic situations created by the writers of motion picture stories, feature "The Big Cage," the Universal circus drama which is coming to the Lyric theatre, Eastland, Monday.

This remarkable picture presents in its leading role the daredevil Clyde Beatty, youngest and greatest of the world's Animal trainers, who is seen in hair-raising performances with 43 jungle bred lions and tigers. Beatty is the only man who ever combined lions and tigers in a circus "act."

In this story, written by himself and Edward Anthony, based on his own life, he is seen developing the performance which has made him the greatest attraction of the tented-show world. It was just such an act as this that he made such a sensational success at Madison Square Garden last year that he actually crowded the huge garden to its capacity in the worst show year in history.

The major part of "The Big Cage" is told against the little-known background of a circus winter quarters, and its action finds Beatty as the center of a series of spine-tingling incidents in which he actually takes his life in his hands. The climax of the picture takes place in a mammoth circus tent during a per-

Marionettes Will Present 'Cinderella' At Ranger High

"Cinderella" with a cast of Marionettes, headed by a portrait of Ann Harding as the heroine, will be presented by the Monroe Hollywood Marionettes in the auditorium of the Ranger High school on April 4, 1933, under the auspices of senior class at the matinee at 2:30 o'clock.

This lovely and loved fairy tale will be presented in a colorful Spanish setting. Marie Dressler, represented by portrait Marionette acts the role of the stepmother and Don Jose Mojica's portrait Marionette enacts the role of Prince Charming with great romantic appeal.

For the evening show a whimsical and amusing story of the Forty Niner days and a lost gold mine, "The Lost Adams Digging" will be presented by the Marionettes.

The company carries a cast of very beautiful Marionettes, many of them portraits of noted movie stars, modeled by Monroe Dressler, sculptor, who is the director of the company. And what these little figures can do, and the amazing and delightful illusions that they can create upon their own little stage, a veritable theater in miniature, can hardly be described.

Marionettes have the ability to intrigue adults, especially men, who are fascinated by the mechanics and technique of their manipulation. For children the little figures become living people right out of the fairy land of their fairy tale books.

The average Marionette is controlled by five strings, although especially tricky Marionettes may have any additional number of strings, depending upon the particular action that is required of them. The company carries its own complete stage, lighting effects, amplifiers and music reproducers, so that everyone in every part of the auditorium can hear distinctly.

Gander 'Watch Dog' Died at Age of 20

BEAVER DAM, Wis.—George Tillema's gander is dead at the age of 20 years. The fowl was picked up as a stray gosling when Tillema found it wandering along a country road 20 years ago.

Tillema said the gander was not only a pet, but also acted as a sort of watch dog, emitting strident honks at the approach of strangers.
