Rev. J. W. Kramer To Hold Revival At First Baptist

Rev. G. W. Thomas, pastor of the First Baptist church of Ranger, has announced that Rev. J. W. Kramer, one of the most outstanding evangelists of the United States, will conduct a revival service at the First Baptist church of Ranger beginning Sunday, June 18.

Rev. Kramer has just completed one of the most successful revivals ever held in Texas, with 100 people in crowds and in new memberships received, and has had similar success wherever he has held revivals.

He recently conducted a revival at the Tremont Temple Baptist church of Boston, where more than 600 people attended many of the services and where many were converted.

The evangelist will be accompanied by Grant Sinclair, who has been called the "golden-voiced man," who will conduct the musical programs, organize the choir and lead the singing. Mr. Sinclair has had remarkable success in work of aiding revivals, both in his singing and by his organization work.

'Silent Partner' Of Rail Empire

"Silent partner" is the term Senate inquisitors are applying to Mantis J. Van Swearingen, rail magnate. While his brother, Oris P., has been questioned during the Morgan hearing, Mantis J. has said virtually nothing. The younger of the Van Swearingens is shown here in the Senate hearing room.

Gymnasium And Auditorium Is Being Planned

Since the meeting of the citizens of Ranger, held some time ago to discuss projects under the R. F. plan that would furnish work for the committee to sponsor and which would be of material benefit to the town as a whole, the city auditorium-gymnasium committee, composed of J. C. Smith, R. F. Lowrey and J. A. Throver has been busy engaged in getting up plans and figures to present to the school board for consideration at a regular meeting tonight.

Plans for an auditorium which will cost the school board nothing if the old building at Tiffin, can be erected, the committee has been financed under the self-liquidating loans of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and using R. F. C. labor.

The building would be made of materials to be secured from the Tiffin school and an abandoned office building at Tiffin. The building would supply enough lumber for the project, and some to spare.

The building would contain of space, a basketball court, gymnasium with ample seating capacity, and an auditorium capable of seating more than 1,000 people. A consulting engineer of this district has assured the committee that the loan can be made and has agreed to use his efforts in aiding the committee in every way, it has in announced.

In addition to the other arrangements, the building would have a stage and seating facilities for sports of any proportions likely to be held in Ranger with many features that will make the building most desirable from every standpoint.

The plans are now in shape to present to the school board, R. F. Lowrey announced today, and at meeting tonight the proposition to be presented to them by the committee. It is expected by the committee that when the details of arrangements have explained to the school board the proposition will be so attractive that the body will have no hesitancy in approving the plans and donating the school building, which is not in a good state of repair.

Buck Brothers Facing Trial In Kidnaping Case

BARNSTABLE, Mass., June 13. The Buck brothers, Kenneth and Cyril, Cape Cod garage men, went on trial in the brown stone county courthouse here Monday, charged with the kidnaping of 10-year-old Peggy McMath.

In addition, they are charged with extortion of $10,000 from Peggy's father, Neil C. McMath, member of a Detroit and Harwich family. McMath originally paid $70,000 for the return of his daughter, but Cyril Buck, 41, who had acted as contact-man in the search, returned $10,000, which was to have been his share. The rest of the money was found in Kenneth's home after his capture.

Claim Confession

Kenneth, 37, a dark, crisp-haired and jobless, in 23. State and local police claim to have secured confessions from him in which he takes full blame for the actual commission of the crime. His lawyer, Elias Burwick, however, contends that he was not a "third man" as the actual plotter.

Cyril has contended that his only interest in the case was the return of the child to her parents, who live in a 22-room Cape Cod cottage at Harwichport. He said that he knew nothing of the crime until his brother approached him and asked him to be contact man with the McMaths. But authorities point to the fact that he first asked the McMaths for $250,000 and Kenneth has said he told Cyril to get "all he could" from them.

CONTROL OF CURRENCY IS WORLD NEED

LONDON, June 13.—The imperative need of currency stabilization and an insistent demand for settlement of war debts to the United States occupied the world economic conference today at its second day.

The U. S. delegation shunned the meeting.

Despite the barring of war debts from the agenda, Prime Minister MacDonald's reference yesterday was repeated by the Italian finance minister, who insisted there must be a final debt settlement.

The absence of the American delegation, except one member who came in near the end of the session, aroused considerable speculation among the delegates. It was that Sec. Hull was detained by the necessity of making slight revisions in his speech to be delivered tomorrow, but the delegates were surprised to see the vacant American chairs.

There was no indication of the injection of the war debt issue into the conference had anything to do with the absence of the Americans.

Sec. Hull had been scheduled to make the first speech today. Suddenly, without explanation it was announced he had waived the opening time. The United Press understood MacDonald's war debt maneuvering caused Pres. Roosevelt to cable Hull suggesting several alterations in his speech. Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain, in his war debt speech before the house of commons, will announce the cabinet has decided upon at least a partial payment of the war debt annuity due Thursday to the United States.

WILL CONDUCT REVIVAL HERE

This nationally known evangelist will conduct a revival at the First Baptist Church of Ranger beginning Sunday, June 18. He will be assisted by Grant Sinclair, soloist, who will have charge of the musical features of the revival.

MORTGAGE BILL IS APPROVED BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Roosevelt today signed the $2,200,000,000 home mortgage aid bill.

The measure, part of the president's emergency legislation designed to give relief to mortgaged home owners.

It establishes a home owners loan corporation with $200,000,000 provided by the R. F. C. The home loan administration is empowered to issue $2,000,000,000 which would be exchanged for home mortgages.

Owners of homes valued up to $2,000 would be aided under the plan. They could exchange up to 80 per cent of their first mortgages for the bonds, which would not exceed 5 per cent interest rate and would be of long-term type.

Increasing bitter dispute over the veteran's economy threatened to deadlock congress and delay adjournment.

Pres. Roosevelt flatly refused to grant further concession on payment to veterans. The president threatened to use his veto power if necessary to prevent further riddling of his economy program.

The veto of the measure would be likely to prolong the session of congress many days.

Senate market investigators today ordered the inquiry into commercial and private bankers to be resumed at 10 a. m. June 26.

New Boss of Texas Roads

Fireworks are expected with John Wood, above, in office as chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, which has a majority opposed to Governor "Ma" Ferguson. Wood has been Governor's Ferguson's assistant secretary, and took office after the Senate adjourned. His first appointment was rejected by the Senate.

Ranger Twilight League Formed Monday Evening

At a meeting of the managers and captains of the soft ball teams Monday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce office it was voted to call the league the Ranger Twilight League, in which 10 teams have been entered. This will allow each team to play one game a week with a game each afternoon as soon as a schedule has been worked out.

A schedule committee composed of W. W. Buzzardson, Ben Whitehouse and Bill Mayer was elected to plan the schedule this afternoon.

It was voted that a roster of players for each team would be furnished to Ben Whitehouse, who was elected secretary-treasurer of the league, sometime this week and that when changes were made in the roster the additional names would be submitted to a committee composed of managers of teams, who will also decide on other local rules that may come up. Players were limited to members of the organizations entering teams or to members of the clubs, with not more than three boys under 21 years of age on a team at one time.

Teams entered in the league yesterday at the meeting were the Rotarians, Lions, Legion, Elks, Times, Barbers, National Guards and three teams from Lone Star, tentatively called Lone Star Team Nos. 1, 2 and 3. No player is to play on more than one team.

All decisions on the ball field are to be left entirely to the umpire, but any other controversies may be taken up with the committee of managers, the two teams in the controversy not having a vote.

An umpire-in-chief, who is to be selected by the schedule committee, is to appoint umpires for each game. It was voted that the rules for the game, different from regular baseball rules, be printed in the paper in order that the managers and captains of all teams can clip them out and keep them for their information. The list will be found elsewhere in this paper.

MATTERN IS OVERDUE AT NOME TODAY

Crowds Wait All Night For Word From Aviator And His Plane.

NOME, Alaska, June 13.—Some apprehension for the safety of Jimmy Mattern was felt here today with receipt of reports that heavy fogs had settled over the Bering Sea along the route of his flight from Khabarovsk.

The fact that Mattern was several hours overdue here, if he maintained the speed of Post and Gatty on this leg of their world flight, added to the anxiety.

Post and Gatty from their camp at Khabarovsk to Nome in 15 hours and 45 minutes. The same schedule would have brought Mattern to Nome at about midnight. Nome time or 3 a. m. Pacific Coast Standard Time.

Mattern, however, said before leaving Khabarovsk that if he encountered bad weather, he might land at Petropavlovsk, until conditions improved.

A large crowd that remained at the airport throughout the night still was scanning overcast skies for sight of the flier early today.

Mattern left the airfield at Khabarovsk at 4:15 a. m. today (1:15 p. m. Monday C. S. T.). The distance here is approximately 2,300 miles and Mattern hoped to be back on the American continent within 20 hours of the take-off.

Mattern was delayed at Khabarovsk more than 40 hours while his monoplane was thoroughly overhauled and refueled for one of the longest and most dangerous legs of his trip.

Fair Has Changed Prosaic Labors

CHICAGO.—In the general exhibits building of A Century of Progress, scientific legendreman transforms prosaic commercial processes, such as sales accounting and auditing into thrilling and awe inspiring dramas.

In five pavilions one may view the first murals on steel ever created—scenes depicting the manufacture of steel. They were painted, however, in a manner different from other murals. The scenes are the result of particles of sand shot from a Thomas special gun, striking the steel, beside a modern, high-speed printing press, while a complete factory, turning out shirts for laborer and farmer is just a few steps removed from another factory manufacturing a complete line of history. Visitors study the manufacture of paper through a miniature paper mill.

One of the most astounding devices of the entire series is in the business equipment pavilion. Here an operator punches the keys of a typewriter, or an adding machine, and the machine turning out a card in which holes are punched, are then fed through another machine which adds, subtracts, multiplies, and sorts the cards according to color, or numerical, or alphabetical order.

Gorman Woman's Brother Killed

Select Jury In Frank Bida Case

A jury in the case of the State of Texas vs. Frank Bida which went to trial in the 88th district court was selected Monday afternoon. The state's attorney went immediately into the presentation of evidence of various witnesses indicating that the morning of March 12 last year the garage and filling station at the corner of West Commerce and South Mulberry streets in which Bida was operating a filling station and general repair business was blown up, possibly with dynamite and burned.

The testimony of fire chief A. W. Hennessee which was given at a former trial and read at this trial by former court reporter, Mrs. Daniels, due to the absence of Mr. Hennessee indicated that the building had been covered with gasoline previous to the explosion and fire.

The jury as selected is as follows: H. H. Durham, Ranger; A. D. McFall, Carbon; J. E. Shirley, Cisco; W. E. Barton, Ranger; R. O. Bray, Ranger; V. L. Donovon, Cisco; L. M. Ables, Okra; L. E. Vaughn, Cisco; C. Burns, Okra; A. L. Clark, Cisco; W. E. Walton, Ranger, and J. D. Barton, Eastland.

KENNETH HUGHES IN THE TEXAS PICTURE

Kenneth Hughes of Carrizo Springs has completed 429 crates of Grade A packed strawberries from one and one-half acres, which brought a gross of $771.95, or a net profit of $501.35. Berries were Klondike variety and no fertilizer was used. In addition 22 crates of field-run and 60 crates of over-ripes were used for canning and home consumption.
Bernarr McFadden, publisher of Liberty and other periodicals, has returned the verdict that millions of Americans must be placed on the farm in order to reduce the army of the idle and restore prosperity to the republic. Indeed, the famous vegetarian and physical development champion has thoroughly convinced himself that the millions of idle acres should be tilled and the idle in city and town should furnish their own tables and work out a common destiny as agriculturists.
All the alleged wise and the near wise of the American world have plans of their own for the restoration of purchasing power and the re-employment of the millions thrown in the discard in this machine age of a new civilization. man was made to work. Down the ages man was compelled to hustle.
He worked out his own destiny and created his own fortune.
Every since civilization began the diggers have been the winners. They traveled a rough road but they fed themselves and their dependants. The dole was unknown and the hustler won the top place.

TEN YEARS PEACE FOR EUROPE

Mussolini continues to walk the international stage of action. He is responsible for a peace pact for 10 years which pledges the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany to prevent wars in Europe. Mussolini proposed the four power pact on March 18. What will happen after 1944 remains on the knees of the gods.
A miracle man is Mussolini. He is not a grafter. He is said to be as poor as a church mouse. He holds to the Cleveland theory that "a public office is a sacred trust."
He has lifted Italy into Alpine heights from the valley below.
He was a gallant soldier in the World War. He is not a pretender. He loves Italy and he would place his country first with hopes for peace with all nations. He does not appear to have racial prejudice or religious intolerance.
His theory is that the state should keep its hands off the church and the church should keep its hands off the state in all climes and countries.

A dictator of the Mussolini type is not a dictator of the Hitler or the Stalin type. He may rule with an iron hand but his honesty to date has never been impeached or his patriotism ever impugned. He will pass out of the picture some day and then what will happen to Italy?

ROOSEVELT GIVEN A FREE HAND IN HAWAII

President Roosevelt may name a non-resident governor for Hawaii. The house passed a bill permitting the same requested by the president and the measure was sent to the senate where speedy enactment followed. This is as it should be sent to the island to exercise executive control.
For 50 years two or three families, the descendants of missionaries and developers have had a vise-like grip on the island and the laws and the shipping as well as the plantations of the Hawaiian territory where the American flag floats. Indeed, this clique has dominated from top to bottom until the day has come when the Japanese are in the ascendancy and yet the sons of the proud families not of native but of overlord lineage are the practical masters of law and commerce and all the industries. Their rule should be broken. President Roosevelt has the naming of a real governor who will conduct a house cleaning of this gem of the Pacific.

STORY OF YALE COLOR TOLD

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale's official color, blue, was conceived amidst strife and turmoil, according to an old story.

Yale first was established at Saybrook in 1702. When the college was moved to New Haven 14 years later, over the protests of Saybrook, quantities of blue paint were used in an effort to destroy the property being moved. The color stuck.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Births, deaths, marriages . . . happiness, misery, sorrow: a resume of the post office.

We all hang around there three or four times a day. Eagerly we watch the mails, as eagerly flip the dial on a box, then . . .

I watched them come and go yesterday for a few eventful minutes. People I knew and some I didn't . . . not much lagging around that place.

There were a couple of June-struck youngsters behind a post box. Mexican by birth, gazing into tell-tale eyes, the world outside their own existence a mere nothing . . . dull, meaningless.

No restraint in their easy chatter. I was a few steps away. That didn't matter. I couldn't understand. I think they took an evil pleasure in the knowledge. I felt cheated, womanlike.

A breathless mama hurrying in to grab the latest news from Jr. The boy is away on a job, making good we hope. The proud smile on her face answered the question in the affirmative.

Oh-oh, poor dad . . . somebody's dad. These family men were that heaven-forbid-a-dun expression. The relief in his eyes as he emerged minus the dreaded bill was positively comical . . . I felt better, too.

Uncle Sam! How calm those fellows are behind the windows, with the destinies of the town flowing through their fingers.

Births, deaths, marriages . . . happiness, misery, sorrow: a resume of the post office.

It seems there's a lot of trouble in Chicago these days over the native question of nudism. Just what society hopes to gain by discarding the modern remnants of apparel, we can't decide.

Perhaps it's a harking back to the days of Adam and his inquisitive wife. We've all been eating a lot of fruit we couldn't afford within the past few years.

But man, having acquired the ability to wear clothes, and woman, having learned to tilt a flopping hat and retain her self admiration, balks at the practice.

And so it is, these back-to-nothing-at-all fans group themselves into colonies, and police are puzzled, and officials worried, and moral men horrified. And the papers get a story.

We are told the socially elite are turning to profitable pastimes: editing, painting, even business hours in full.

We must remember the socially elite are one among us now. Suddenly the wheels of fate have stopped and man finds himself mixed up with the fellow behind him, as well as the boss.

Those of us who were, are no more; and those of us who never were, are a little stunned to discover we are. In other words, the mower has just about smoothed the grass down to monotony.

And so it isn't a case of he who has, has, and he who has not, has not. Life has become too simple for the punctuation. It's all dwindled down to a concise "He who."

Italy Plans Fight To Keep World On Gold Standard

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
ROME.—Italy intends to fight for the maintenance of the gold standard as the basis for international currency and will defend this policy at the world economic conference, the United Press learned from government authorities.

The United Press was assured that the maintenance of the gold standard had become a cardinal principle of the fascist monetary program. So firmly is the government committed to this policy that the word "inflation" has become taboo from Italian newspapers.

Deflationary Tendency
Instead of inflation, the movement of currency here has steadily followed a deflationary tendency. The note circulation decreased from 14,699 millions lire at the end of 1931 to 13,460 millions at the end of 1932. Tendencies since the first of 1933 also have been accelerated toward further deflation. The amount of gold reserve at the end of March was equal to 49 per cent of the total note circulation, whereas only 40 per cent is required by law.

April and May showed further deflationary tendencies and the latest report by the Bank of Italy stated that note circulation had decreased to 12,860 millions and the amount of gold reserve had reached 6,528 millions which is 50.8 per cent. This is the highest reserve held by the Italian bank of issue in modern times.

Mussolini Firm
Mussolini has been firm in his adherence to the policy of sound money.

He has no sympathy with any inflationary policy, the United Press was informed. Even with the present monetary program of the United States, the Duce is not in agreement as a policy for Italy. The American "controlled inflation" however is not regarded as serious in its present form because that inflation has not reached the stage where its influence to devalorize the dollar is felt greatly.

ment, the record of commercial failures still stands out as the first in Texas to show a pronounced and sustained favorable trend, it is stated in the report for May of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. For almost a year, there have been fewer commercial failures in Texas each succeeding month than there were in the corresponding month a year before, the Bureau's report shows. According to weekly reports to the University Bureau from Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., 56 commercial firms went into bankruptcy during the five weeks of May, or 30 per cent less than the number during the corresponding five weeks a year ago. Total liabilities amounting to $1,044,000 were reported for May, as compared with $1,516,000 during May, 1932, a decline of 31 per cent. Although both in the number of failures and in the total liabilities involved, May showed a substantial increase over April, yet there are only four cases since 1920 in which either the number of insolvencies or their liabilities for May were lower than they were this year.

The total book value of the assets of the failure concerns amounted to $358,000, or only about 34 cents on the dollar; however, during April, only 28 cents on the dollar was available for creditors on the basis of book value of assets.

Of the total number of failing concerns, 15 were dry goods and apparel stores, 8 were manufacturers, 5 each were drug stores and combination groceries and meat markets, and 4 each were general stores and plumbing or electrical shops.

French Doubt Practicality Of The Tariff Truce

By United Press
PARIS.—Pessimism over the economic practicality of the tariff truce for the duration of the world economic conference is growing in France.
Despite sincere wishes by French economists for the success of the conference, it is freely admitted in many banking and industrial circles that the interim tariff truce, lasting possibly until the end of 1933, would be disastrous for France.

Truce Agreement
Doubt that France can live up to the truce agreement signed at London was clearly implied in several items included by the senate in the 1933 budget. One was a tax on radios and radio tubes, which if approved by the chamber will be in open violation of the London agreement. The proposed tax falls on the domestic as well as the imported article, but is none the less not within the letter of the tariff truce.

Economists studying trade prospects for the remaining months of 1933 cannot see how France can as a matter of economic self-preservation, avoid additional import levies.

Heavy Deficit
The two inexorable factors underlying the situation are that the nation is confronted with a 1933 deficit of 3,498,000,000 francs, as foreseen by the senate; and that France is unable to compete successfully against the United States and Britain with depreciated currencies.

The recent warning by Prof. Raymond Moley, chief of Presi-

Eighty-two-year-old Kentucky woman, after visit to white house, declares her only remaining aim is to go to heaven. Republicans probably will insist she's on the wrong road.

Was he happy—ask his wife—she too was joyously happy for the whole thing was so simple—all he did was to put 3 tablespoons of Radox in a gallon of hot water and soak his feet 20 minutes—the next morning he was on the job with never a pain or an ache in his feet—a Radox footbath will fix up your weary, burning, aching feet overnight or money back at Paramount Pharmacy or any real drugstore, 45 cents a package.

dent Roosevelt's "brain trust," against too great optimism in regard to achievements at the world economic conference, was read with bitter agreement by French economists. In view of the position of the dollar and the pound, and a tariff truce which they are bound to maintain, while on the gold standard, they are far from confident that the conference will work an early improvement in the French trade position.

CHAPTER I

His eyes blurred. Barrett saw her lips tremble. "But what is that?" he asked, leaning toward her.

"Well, partly it's seeing so much of Dick's family and finding out how they feel about things. The picture are so truthful it's almost a trial to dine with them. The other day Dick found a new servant had tied and—disappeared!"

"He didn't love her," Barrett pointed out, smiling a little.

"No, but could he love anyone who fled?" Marcia questioned, a spark in her voice. She went on quickly without waiting for an answer. "But that's only part of it. In January I'm going to have a child!"

"My dear!" Barrett leaned forward to lay a hand upon her. "I'm so happy for you!"

She smiled and for a moment the smile dispelled the somberness that would so easily eclipse her dark, Spanish beauty. Her hand turned beneath his to grip his fingers.

"Thanks, Barry. Sweet of you. But what I wanted to say—Dick's only child—must not be threatened!"

"How?" he asked, perplexed. "I don't follow you."

"Well, Mr. Dexter brought the boy to town the other day," she said.

"But I don't see—"

"He brought him to see me. He presented himself—and the child—in the most assured manner. I was away, thank heaven! A new maid whom I dismissed immediately for him. Mr. Dexter said he thought I would want to see my brother's ward. There was something in the way he said it, Barry—"

"I'll attend to that," Barrett promised angrily. "What happened?"

"Well, he said your check for his salary had been delayed and that he needed the money."

"He lied. Did you give him anything?"

"Yes. All I had at the moment. I think a little over $300—"

"That was very foolish, dear," Barrett commented levelly. He stared, frowning, at a rug at his feet.

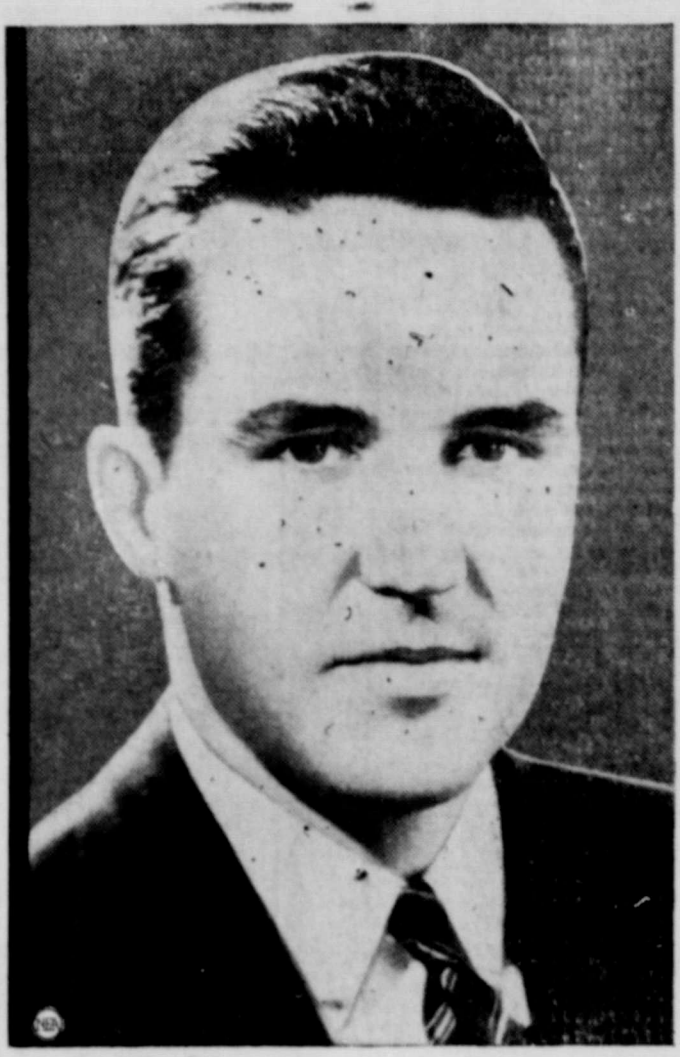

"I was in terror for fear he'd say until Dick came. There's a young fellow resembling about the boy. He looks so much like you, Barrett. He's going to be tall and lean and strong and he has the same square chin. Anyone seeing him would notice it. They couldn't fall in. I want you to get him out of the country—"

She leaned toward her half brother. "Barry—you'll help me?" she asked. She added, weakly, "There's no one else to whom I can turn. No one else!"

Barrett rose to his feet to pace the room. He was aware of Higgin's entering, carrying a shaker and tall-tinted glasses on a tray of flanges mending the fire and mending away. Marcia, a small, snub-nosed, dark beauty, sagged back in the chair she made seem so small. She sipped her cocktail, set it down on a nearby table, and the cork of glass setting mahogany was laid in the heavy stillness.

At last Barrett spoke. "I can't promise you anything," he said at last. "I'll have to see what's best for the boy."

"Barry, you're not going to be unreasonable about this!" she said, pleadingly.

BARRETT COLVIN

He smiled a little mischievously. "Anyone who dared to oppose Marcia was invariably 'unreasonable.' But, poor child, that was not her fault. She had been pampered, petted, indulged absurdly, and that fact had made her tragedy."

"I must do what I feel to be fair to the boy," Barrett repeated, "and I'll start by firing Dexter," he ended grimly.

"If people see him and hear he's your adopted son they'll think he's more than adopted," Marcia pointed out. "He looks—so like you now!"

"I know that," Barrett agreed. "I've always known it. We have strong characteristics as a family. But I'm not worrying about that, Marcia. I want to be certain to do the thing that is best for you, for him, for everyone."

"Oh!" she murmured miserably. For a second she closed her eyes. Opening them, she glanced at a small, jeweled watch that ticked against her wrist. She rose quickly and Barrett rose. "I must be off," she said in almost her natural way. "We've a dinner engagement. And, dear, when are you coming to see us? Not that I quite know when we're free, but I'll look it up and let you know. Will you come to dinner?"

"Of course."

"We haven't time now to settle anything but I know you'll come to my viewpoint. You'll realize it's the only one!"

"Well, see. I'm only trying to be fair!"

"You won't be fair to me if you keep me in terror!" she contested hotly.

"I think we'd better not discuss it now, dear," he said firmly. She raised her slender shoulders. Her chin went high. Without a word she turned toward the hall.

Barrett felt his heart rise. Coming down the steps of the house opposite was the girl he had seen before. The girl who had been "Little Elinor Stafford" and an ugly duckling. She was beautiful now, he saw, as she crossed the windy street, followed by the stiffly deferential Jensen.

"I'll wager you don't remember me!" he said as she neared the curb.

"Oh, but I do!" the girl contradicted shyly yet with a flush that he did not understand. The grip of her small hand was strong and honest. Her deep violet eyes met his levelly. Barrett felt suddenly within himself a glow of an almost forgotten warmth.

"It was so kind of you, Mrs. Radnor, to offer—" the girl began.

Marcia cut her short. "Hop in, child!" she said. "I'm late now. I ride Dick down town every day to meet home with him. Isn't that incurably romantic?"

"I think it's nice," said Elinor. Barrett laughed; a laugh prompted by pleasure. It was exactly as he would like her to think. "Nice."

"Aunt Ella wants to see you, Mr. Colvin," said Elinor Stafford.

"I'll go to see her very soon," he replied, "but you used to call me 'Barry' and I resent the change. A man should hang around to keep the home fires burning."

She smiled at him. Marcia, consulting her small watch again, murmured something about having to hurry on. The door of the motor purred and Barrett watched them disappear.

Elinor Stafford, he decided, was the sort of youngster one needed to meet on a day when the air was weighted by chill mist and one's temples were throbbing gray. She was so different from Marcia with her genius for finding tight corners and for dragging everyone near her into those corners too. Poor passionate, impulsive, blind and selfish Marcia! Well, this time he would think first of the boy who deserved first thought.

After all, he and Marcia, though comparatively young, had not the years ahead of them that the child had. Marcia's child, his ward, Gerald Moore.

The house seemed strangely empty as he returned to it, rather dim and, in spite of a comfortable temperature, a little cold.

For some reason he did not clearly understand a vision of Elinor Stafford's face remained before him. He wondered when he would see her again.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARRETT COLVIN, 35, returns to New York after four years' absence. He is rich and has made a name for himself as an architect. The first to greet him is his half-sister, MARCIA, 18, a younger, selfish and spoiled MARCIA is happily married now. Years before Barrett shielded her when a youthful flirtation ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. She is worried because the boy's mother has threatened her with blackmail and declares her husband will never forgive her if he learns the truth. Barrett agrees to deal with the matter, HAROLD DEXTER.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

BARRETT COLVIN turned impatiently to his desk. It was ridiculous of him to keep thinking of the girl. In an effort to put her out of his mind he opened and scanned a letter or two.

A few years ago he had thought that if the small group who understood his work felt it was good his ambition would be reached. Now here he was—reading all these words of praise and instead of feeling pleased he was wondering what it would be like to take a girl of Elinor Stafford's sort to dinner or the theater.

He poked bills into pigeon holes, decided to get rid of Dexter promptly and as soon as he could to make a trip to the Connecticut farm house where his ward lived.

Probably, Barrett reflected, he would bore such a girl as Elinor Stafford. He had always despised middle-aged men who devoted themselves to young girls. Why the devil was he giving the matter so much thought, anyhow? There wasn't a chance in a hundred of his taking this particular girl any where. Of course he might happen to meet her at Miss Ella—

He pushed aside the letter he was reading, disgusted with himself. He wrote his age, 35, on the desk blotter. Elinor Stafford was 19 or 20 he judged. Of course she would marry some youngster, some youth in her own set. She would have a home, children, all that she should have. Lord but the house seemed quiet!

She had such gentle eyes. She would be very sweet with children.

Barrett rose suddenly, wishing he were back in the desert, wrangling with some native who would not have sacred ground disturbed—for the price offered. Dreaming of a bathtub and brushing the sands of time from Mr. B. Griffin's desert and, until things cleared up—the question of Gerald's future settled and Marcia's baby born—he would not go on any expedition, no matter how tempting.

Again Barrett Colvin settled at his desk. Then he drew back sharply. Beneath the figure "35" he had written "19 or 20."

MARCIA, meantime, turned to look at Elinor Stafford. "She has young beauty," Marcia thought. "Real beauty muted by the wrong sort of clothes." A girl with Elinor's coloring and her chestnut brown hair should not, of course, wear gray tweeds. With her youthful slimmness and slightly angular lines she needed softness. Perhaps, Marcia reflected with that keenness women have in measuring one another, it was Elinor's mother who was responsible for the girl's ill-chosen costume. That would be exactly like Lida Stafford. Yes, indeed!

"You were calling on your aunt?" Marcia questioned. She was only making conversation. Mentally Marcia was telling herself that she must bring Barry to her point of view about the boy.

"Yes," Elinor answered in her usually shy way.

"I hope she is as well as usual!" Marcia went on. Of course she knew Miss Sexton's relatives could not really be wishing any such thing. How they had hovered, like human vultures, around the automobile and acid old lady who made the changing of her will a favorite indoor sport!

"She's quite well, thank you, Mrs. Radnor. She saw you drive up and spoke of how well you were looking about the boy."

Marcia's expression became slightly strained. She had always suspected that Miss Ella Sexton knew more than anyone else about the secrets of Marcia's past. Miss Ella had piercing eyes and a suspicious, inquisitive turn of mind. How Marcia had flushed 10 years before when Miss Ella had beckoned her across the way from the old house to say, "I saw you riding in the park—"

At the head of the third floor stair Elinor tapped upon a worn door.

Those bride paths and Lon Moore riding behind her—when people were near. She had been a little fool but so hungry for romance. There had been little of it in the great house ruled by her stern father.

AND now, why had young Dexter, the boy's companion-tutor, come to her? But Barry would fix that. Barry always did fix things. Half of his acquaintances must owe him money! Oh, of course Barry must come around to her point of view. Getting the child away, far away, was the only wise thing to do. Somewhere in South America, perhaps. Completely away from everyone they knew.

"Has there been much going on for you young people?" Marcia asked, suddenly remembering the girl beside her.

"I don't know, Mrs. Radnor. I haven't—many friends."

"Why, that's not right! You're really, Elinor, quite sweet."

The gratitude that flashed in Elinor Stafford's eyes took Marcia for a second beyond her troubled self. She laid a hand upon the girl's.

"Child," she said quickly. "I'm going to be housebound soon and perhaps you'll be good enough to come to see me once in a while." Again Elinor's eyes raised. The girl was obviously pitifully lonely. Marcia continued, "We'll find something amusing to do—"

"I'd love it, Mrs. Radnor!" Elinor answered with young intensity.

"Well then, that's that. You live on Park Avenue, don't you?"

"Yes, but—" Elinor faltered. "I was on my way down town, when you mind dropping me somewhere near Washington Square if it's out of your way?"

"Not at all!" Marcia answered. "Are you going in for art, dear? Personally I think the rather overdone."

The girl did not answer for a moment and when Marcia saw she saw that Elinor was flushed, Marcia laughed delightedly. "You're having an affair?" she asked. "Oh, no, really!"

Marcia thought, amused, "Oh, how embarrassed she is!" "Mrs. Radnor, Elinor is quickly 'I would rather not see anyone kind that you dropped down town."

"No one shall know. I'm sure I'm kind about keeping your secret," Marcia assured her.

"I knew you would be," she said with a grateful look.

Marcia flushed a trifle, but a trifle. The flush showed with a hint of warmth beneath her benedict skin. Secrets and lies—how she loathed them! How Dick loathed them! He would never forgive her, but she mustn't let herself be over such things. The doctor said, "Keep cheerful." An order! As if one could do as one will! Marcia was impatient the whole world, doctors included. "Did you know I'm going to have a child?" she asked.

No, I didn't," Elinor answered. "You are a dear!" said Marcia. "Yes, I am. But my friends don't feel that way. They say, 'Poor darling!' as if they were something calling for sympathy. That's the usual reaction. 'I think it's a most uniprime reaction.'"

"Yes, isn't it?" Marcia drew easily, carelessly. There was silence.

"I think I'll leave at the next train, please, and I thank you much, Mrs. Radnor—and for bringing me to see you. But my friends don't feel that way. They say, 'Poor darling!' as if they were something calling for sympathy. That's the usual reaction. 'I think it's a most uniprime reaction.'"

Electrolux Placed in Window With a Gas Meter Attached

C. G. King, local manager for the Texas Louisiana Power company, has installed one of the new, air-cooled Electrolux refrigerators in the window of the office, with a gas meter installed nearby so that everyone may see the actual amount of gas consumed by the box.

A card tells the reading of the meter at the time it was put in the window and, after a week, the actual consumption of gas is to be figured out and put on the card.

The box is to be opened each day for 30 to 40 minutes, the average time a box in a home is opened for the purpose of getting food, ice, water and other articles from the refrigerator.

After this test the Electrolux is to be left open and the meter again checked so that the very minimum of gas consumption can be checked.

The air-cooled Electrolux is one of the latest inventions in home refrigerators, and is reported to be the cheapest to operate of any of the mechanical refrigerators.

Gray now owns three publications. He recently celebrated his sixty-fourth birthday.

WASHINGTON.—Charges that the cement trust is now racketeering in prices will soon be investigated by the senate if Secretary of the Interior Ickes has his way. Ickes, it will be recalled, advertised recently for bids to supply 400,000 barrels of cement for the Boulder dam project, and 10 companies responded, each fixing a price 60 cents higher than the prevailing price six weeks earlier. Ickes rejected the bids, saying that before his department would be "held up," he would recommend that Uncle Sam manufacture his own cement.

Not only that, but Ickes has filed a complaint with the federal trade commission alleging that there is a powerful ring of cement manufacturers. The F. T. C., it seems, has already been gathering data which seem to prove Ickes' contention. All the evidence, it is said, will be turned over to the senate for action.

Supporting Mr. Ickes' complaint will be another from Illinois, where Governor Horner rejected the uniform bids of 16 companies which offered to supply 3,300,000 barrels of cement for $1.62 a barrel—a price of 62 cents higher than the price last year. The cement was to have been used in construction of highways to relieve the unemployment situation in that state.

Ickes has been advised that Los Angeles county officials recently purchased 50,000 barrels of cement at $2.01 a barrel, and the situation there also will be investigated, it is said. The secretary will show that A-1 cement can be manufactured at a profit for a dollar a barrel, and his contention will be that uniform price-bidding is prima-facie evidence of collusion. He says the cement trust is making advantage of federal and state public works programs to make a "clean-up."

The presence of Newton D. Baker's name on the J. P. Morgan list of "insiders" is not likely to strengthen Baker's position as special counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters in its fight against the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers.

The ASACP demands that a royalty be paid all its members whose works and musical compositions are used by radio stations. Baker as a receiver of favors from Morgan will enter the court contest with a black eye, and the ASACP attorneys, it is said, are delighted by the sudden turn of events engineered by Mr. Peck.

ODD SENTENCE GIVEN OUT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Jim Pilato and Vincent Scario bickered and argued on many occasions. Frequently did they hail each other into Judge H. B. Abernethy's court of misdemeanors. Their last appearance resulted in an odd sentence. Daily must Scario and Pilato appear before the bar. They must raise their hands in a sign not unlike Signor Mussolini's fascist salute. Judge Abernethy responds with a similar sign. Then the two are led to adjacent seats in the courtroom where they must remain—in close contact and where they cannot argue—for several hours.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

This week Friday the Ford Motor Company completes 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

NERVOUS WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

When an nervous it seems as though all of the "nervous" are all of the same kind. "My nerves are all of the same kind" is a common expression from some women who have become nervous and run-down that her nerve no longer stand the strain. A woman should allow herself to rest in this condition if she can help it. She should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. For every 1000 women have taken this wonderful tonic to give them renewed health and vigor.

Out of every 100 women who report they are benefited by this tonic, 1000 say a bottle for your drug-store and watch the results.

45 Members Hear Lesson From Acts
Forty-five members assembled in the basement of the Church of Christ Monday afternoon and profited greatly from the lesson taken from the 21st chapter of Acts, with the Rev. D. W. Nichol in charge of the Bible hour.

Students from Boles orphans' home presented a fine program of entertainment at the church last evening at 8:15 o'clock, under the direction of C. T. McCormack. While this group of 21 children were in Ranger various homes of the members extended their warm hospitality. The summer tour will cover a vacation, including those who made the highest averages during the term just drawn to a close.

Plans are being made for the children to pay a return visit for the official opening of the church, which promises to be soon.

A large audience was delighted with the entertaining program given in their compliment.

Prayer Service is Held at Stephens Home Monday Afternoon
The Women's Missionary union of the Central Baptist church enjoyed an inspirational meeting held at the home of Mrs. H. H. Stephens, Pine street, Monday afternoon combining a prayer service and business session making doubly interesting and important the well observed program. Mrs. E. S. Brink said the devotional, while Mrs. L. L. Bruce, president, presided during the discussion of interesting subjects.

Many reports were capably given and a schedule of study worked out for the remainder of the season.

The pleasing hostess passed a refreshment course to Mmes. Bruce, Brink, J. L. Reed, W. E. Mitchell, S. C. Mahoney, Frank Hicklin, Roy Baker, W. P. Powell, T. A. Arney, S. M. McClelland, Sivalva, C. C. Cash, and Pauline Frye.

Box to Be Sent to Reynolds Orphanage

Each person desiring to make donations to this worthy cause are asked to leave articles at the home of Mrs. Baker, 504 Travis street.

Study of this organization will be resumed around the first of July, again made unusually interesting by the direction of Rev. L. B. Gray, pastor of the church, who was in charge of the most instructive course of study drawn to a close.

Reports of President and Officers of W. M. S.
The hour was made quite interesting Monday afternoon at the Women's Missionary society meeting held at the Methodist church through the reading of summarized reports heard from all officers and the president, Mrs. Eddie Hazeman, who offered in full a well rounded out report of the annual district session which convened here at the church last Friday.

Open letters were also read from various denominations throughout the entire Methodist area adding a note of rare interest so in keeping with the program arrangement.

A "friendship" luncheon was planned for next Monday to be held at the church at 12:15 o'clock. This event is usual in creating much interest among the members and holds the promise of one of the most successful and pleasant social happenings of the season thus far.

PEOPLE'S FORUM
Signed letters to this paper will be carried in this column, but names will be left off when requested. No anonymous letters can be printed, however. Those letters express the views of the writer and may not be construed as the policies or beliefs of this paper.

I observed a newspaper article recently, that has kept me somewhat perplexed, and is quite beyond my comprehension, as to its true meaning, it ran thus:

"Happy depression, that brought us to our senses."
To me, it seems the depression, has given us a jolt, that will require years and years, to overcome. A few years ago, during the World War, the same expression was very familiar, it was generally said, "Surely the ravishes of war, and its results should teach us a lesson, the general public, and the American people in general, were much too extravagant, they should economize, and be more conservative." But did it teach anyone a lesson?

When we were released from the bondage of war, we rejoiced and ran a rapid pace seeking the pleasures we had been denied.

I'm sure, there are some, whose income provides for them, the comforts of life, and there are a few, whose meager salaries provide for them, the actual necessities of life, but what of the millions and millions of people, that are in dire need and distress.

Every organization in every city and town, is over-burdened to the breaking point, and cannot meet the demands made upon them.

More homes have been wrecked and more suicides committed, because of people having been made desperate, during this depression, and the coming generation will be equally as great sufferers, as the present generation. Fortunes have been lost and life savings sacrificed, through the loss of property and savings accounts, which had represented a substantial future.

Thousands of fine, genuine young men and women have been deprived of extending their education, which handicaps their success, for the future, and that of their posterity.

How many times during a day do we over-hear the remark, upon the meeting of friendly acquaintances, with a wry, twisted smile, a shrug, and forlorn gesture, they remark, "Well, I've joined the army." "Yeah, the ranks of the unemployed." And many are they who realize, the impossibility of ever being employed again.

Anyone within constant observation, of the great Broadway of America, and witness the pathetic sights of homeless families, unsheltered men, women and ragged huddled, crying children, trudging along, going nowhere, having nowhere to go, they certainly are no objects of elation.

And should the depression abruptly cease, there are millions that would be, very much as I imagine, those feel who are shipwrecked, and washed ashore and begin with their bare hands to adjust circumstances, that will take generations to accomplish.

BY SISTER MARY

If you feel that it takes too much precious time to roll and cut out cookies in order to keep your cookies soft, then try a shorter method. You can save from one-fifth to one-half the time and make no sacrifice of quality.

One short-cut method of cookie making is to shape the dough into a roll, chill it thoroughly and slice it with a sharp knife.

Rolls Oats Cookies
These cookies are spread in the pan and cut after baking.

Use one cup brown sugar, 2 eggs, 3-4 cup shortening, 1-2 cup sour milk, 2 cups rolled oats, 2 cups flour, 1 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon salt.

Cream shortening and beat in sugar. Add eggs well beaten. Mix well and add rolled oats. Mix and sift flour with salt and cinnamon and combine with raisins. Add soda to milk and stir until dissolved, adding at once to first mixture. Mix slightly and add vanilla and remaining dry ingredients. Mix until smooth and spread on a baking sheet which has been oiled and floured. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in squares when cool.

Drop Vanilla Cookies
One-half cup butter, 1-2 cup granulated sugar, 3-4 cup flour, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 table-spoons chopped almonds, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and sugar until very light. Stir in flour sifted with salt. Add egg well beaten and beat the mixture hard. Drop from the tip of a teaspoon about two inches apart on an oiled and floured baking pan. Flatten with a knife dipped in cold water. Sprinkle chopped almonds on top of each and bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

Drop Ginger Cookies
One cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 1-2 cup shortening, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream shortening and sugar and add molasses. Add one cup of flour and mix well. Mix and sift remaining flour with salt and ginger. Add egg well beaten to first mixture. Mix and add dry ingredients. Add milk with soda dissolved in it. Mix and drop from teaspoon on to an oiled and floured baking sheet. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.
