PLANS COMPLETE FOR BIG ARMISTICE EVENT

KEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Monday afternoon, 3:29 p. m. The boss just came in and said that because of NRA, today, the Cisco Lobes what have you, he wanted this turned in today so the office would have something to do early tomorrow morning. He caught us by surprise, but here goes.

S. Von Rooder called us Monday morning and said he had some cars to take the boys to Kerrville Friday, where they are to play the Schreiner Invitational. The note that was left on Von's desk said something about paying for each car. We thought it was an offer and immediately phoned him that he could buy a car at that price. It turned out that he had secured transportation for the entire team and didn't need any more cars.

We may say that we are pessimistic about the outcome of the Ranger game Saturday. In the history of the game, we are accused of being pessimistic, but we have grave reasons for our pessimism. Not that we can't win, but we may not. We know the game can be won, but we are afraid to put our best foot forward. We will take the game; if they are doubtful. But we hope.

Monday, Nov. 14, 1932, was four days before the Brown-Ranger game, we were "stop Thomas" movement.

Or at least we suggested the Bulldogs do something of the kind. In case you don't remember, Thomas was the Brown-Ranger player who had a bad habit of kicking a football and racing the field for touchdowns.

HOUR'S TRUCE IS CALLED IN CUBAN REVOLT

HAVANA, Nov. 9.—The government opened a bombardment of Fort Attaras, where 700 rebels are concentrated, at conclusion of an hour's truce.

A mission attempting to compromise to prevent loss of life apparently failed and government heavy artillery began pounding away at the walls of the fortress.

HAVANA, Nov. 9.—President Grau San Martin agreed at noon to an hour's truce with 700 rebels barricaded behind the walls of the Attaras fortress. The government hoped to arrive at an agreement for their evacuation.

The Uruguayan Minister was sent to the fortress, bearing a message from the President and to act as mediator in a last minute effort to effect a compromise and end the revolt.

Government forces began a bombardment of the fortress at 11 a. m. from heavy field pieces. The bombardment was proceeded by machine gun fire and sporadic long distance attacks by members of the ABC, supporting the government, but the small arms were ineffective against the heavy walls of the fortress.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 9.—State Senator Rusek was charged today by the federal government with misapplying and converting to his own use $2,037 in funds of the First National Bank of Schulenburg.

Rusek formally was active vice president of the bank. He was further charged with making false entries in the bank's books by changing the account of the Union National Bank, Houston, with $2,037 with intent to defraud the Schulenburg bank.

Artist Leaves Jail in a Hurry

A prisoner for five days on a charge that he was behind on his alimony, McClelland Barclay, noted artist and illustrator, left the Bridgeport, Conn., jail in such a hurry that the warden "couldn't see him for the dust."

PROCLAMATION

Armistice Day has been declared and recognized as a national holiday since the close of the World War. The reason for this is the fact that the spirit, energy and fighting ability of 4,000,000 of our countrymen forced the signing of the treaties among the Nations which brought to an end this tragic war, November 11th, 1918.

The destruction and carnage in this war was frightful and in our own forces the losses were fearful. As a result of the association of our soldiers during this great war there came into being an organization known as the American Legion, whose ideals are to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of this war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and Nation, and to promote peace and good will on earth.

In keeping with the spirit and memory which is fostered in the heart of every true American, the American Legion, with the help of the citizens express their feeling each year with their Armistice Day celebration.

Therefore, I, your Mayor, proclaim November 11th, a holiday, and ask that our people join the American Legion in this day of celebration.

(Signed):
HARRY A. LOGSDON,
Mayor of Ranger, Texas.

JOHNSON IS SPEAKING IN STRIKE AREA

OMAHA, Nov. 9.—Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson was enroute to Kansas City today to continue his appeal to midwestern farmers for support of the administration program.

In a wildly cheered speech here last night to an audience of 5,000 Johnson rebuked agrarians because of complaints that relief had not been faster.

PRIVETT GETS 16 YEARS IN MURDER TRIAL

Oscar Privett, charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Melvin Dunson, 18-year-old Ranger youth, heard for the third time a jury's verdict finding him guilty and assessing punishment at a long term of years in the state penitentiary, when the jury in Judge George L. Davenport's 91st district court, where Privett had been on trial since Monday, returned a verdict of guilty early Thursday morning and fixed punishment at 16 years in the penitentiary.

Privett had had two previous trials, one in 1930 in which he was given 30 years sentence and again in 1932 when he was given a sentence of 50 years after the former verdict had been reversed by the higher court. The second verdict was also reversed by the appeal court.

The jury received the case at a night session Wednesday night and at 11:30 reached a verdict, it was not returned into court, however, until about 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

Sub-normal mentality, tender age of the defendant and self-defense were defenses offered by counsel for Privett. Thirty-six witnesses were offered by them to prove that Privett was only 15 years of age when the crime was committed and that he was of such low mentality that he was unable to distinguish right from wrong.

The state, represented by Criminal District Attorney Grady Owen, contended that jealousy over a girl prompted Privett to kill Dunson and that it was premeditated murder. Privett, the testimony showed, took his gun, an off-brand revolver, went to the Dunson home and under the pretext that he wanted Dunson to go show him a house for rent, lured Dunson away from home and into the railroad yards in the outskirts of the city, where he was slain.

About three years of the time since the crime Privett has spent in the Eastland county jail. The jury verdict being more than 15 years makes it impossible for Privett to obtain bail while the case is being carried to the higher courts again. Judge J. Frank Sparks and L. H. Flewelen, attorneys for Dunson, will again appeal the case, it is understood.

At the two former trials of the case Privett himself took the witness stand. In the last trial, however, his attorneys did not ask him to testify.

Privett's parents live at Goldthwaite and were living there at the time of the killing. Privett is married, testimony in his trials, was offered to show that he married first at the age of 13. He was divorced and was married again.

A letter written by Privett to his mother in which he told her that he had killed a man and wanted she and her rest of his folks to come to him at Ranger, was offered as testimony in the case.

The old Burton Building at Seventh and Main streets in Fort Worth served as enlistment headquarters, where all preliminary examinations, etc., were held. Ambulance Company 40 was considered a Fort Worth company and was known as such throughout the war after it became attached to the Ninetieth Division.

Julie G. Smith was active in the organization of the company, which was first given the number 40. All the officers were selected from young physicians, who had been members of the Fort Worth School of Medicine. First Lieut. Will S. Horn was put in command, with First Lieut. Young J. Mulkey, James Frank Cadenhead, Eric D. Hodges and Harry A. Logsdon on the staff.

The company remained among the Army of Occupation from December, 1918, to May, 1919, leaving Germany May 19, 1919 for St. Nazaire, France, on the U. S. steamship "Kontakian." May 26 for the United States and landed in Camp Merit, N. J., June 7, 1919 and was demobilized in July, 1919.

Ambulance Company 359 saw 75 days service at the front.

Capitol Opened to Farm Strikers

In an unusual setting—the assembly room of Wisconsin's capitol—farm leaders met and voted continuation of their strike, gaining impetus in the Badger State, defying the order of Gov. Alfred Schmedeman to keep highways open. The picture above shows the meeting, attended by 500, in progress. No peace until cost of crop production is assured was their rallying cry.

History of Ambulance Company No. 359, Which Is To Hold Its Annual Reunion In Ranger Armistice Day

(Editor's Note: Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, captain of Ambulance Company 359, which is holding its annual reunion in Ranger this year, has compiled a brief history of the company he served as captain during the World War. This history, which should prove interesting, not only to the members of the company and those who saw service during the World War, but to all citizens of this community, follows.)

The call came in May, 1917, for the formation of 50 Red Cross ambulance companies, and under the leadership of Mrs. George Clayton of Fort Worth, president of the Red Cross, the Fort Worth chapter undertook the enlistment of a unit.

Julie G. Smith was active in the organization of the company, which was first given the number 40. All the officers were selected from young physicians, who had been members of the Fort Worth School of Medicine. First Lieut. Will S. Horn was put in command, with First Lieut. Young J. Mulkey, James Frank Cadenhead, Eric D. Hodges and Harry A. Logsdon on the staff.

The old Burton Building at Seventh and Main streets in Fort Worth served as enlistment headquarters, where all preliminary examinations, etc., were held. Ambulance Company 40 was considered a Fort Worth company and was known as such throughout the war after it became attached to the Ninetieth Division.

Julie G. Smith personally donated two large Army ambulances which were christened "Evelyn" and "Elicia Ann" in honor of two daughters. Ten additional ambulances were donated by the Red Cross chapter. The Assembly Club, a social organization composed of 100 of the leading women of Fort Worth, presented the officers of the company with an official touring car.

Numerous Social Events
Numerous social events were held by various members of the Red Cross for the officers and men of the company. Dr. Logsdon's diary especially mentions a barbecue on the lawn of the residence of Marshall Spooner. The farewell dinner dance on Aug. 17, to the officers and men at the River-Crest Country Club, at which time the keys to the touring car and the two ambulances were presented to the commander of the company.

The company received telegraphic instructions to proceed to Fort Sam Houston Aug. 20 and join up with the Ninetieth Division. On Aug. 31 orders were received from Washington assigning the ambulance company to the ambulance section.

Three Hundred Fifteenth Sanitary Train, with the numerical designation of Company No. 359. On June 12 the company entered Camp Mills, L. I., and every man was equipped with overseas service. On the night of June 27 the company rode by train and ferry to Hoboken, N. J., where they embarked on the Canadian Pacific liner H. M. S. "Melita."

REUNION OF WAR BUDDIES IS FEATURE

Parades, Sham Battles, Fireworks Display, Barbecue, Banquet Planned.

Plans were being completed today for the biggest Armistice Day celebration ever held in the City of Ranger.

Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, mayor of the city, has issued a proclamation declaring November 11th a holiday in the City of Ranger and urging all the citizens to cooperate in every way possible with the American Legion in making the celebration a big success.

The day's activities will begin with the members of Carl Barnes Post No. 69, American Legion, meeting in office of the chamber of commerce at 8:30 when they will go to the cemetery in a body to decorate the graves of their buddies who have passed on.

At 10:30 the big parade will form on North Commerce Street and the parade proper will start at 11 o'clock, moving up Main street.

Immediately following the parade the members of the Legion Post, Ambulance Company No. 359, in which Dr. Logsdon saw service during the World War and which will be in reunion here, members of the National Guard company and the citizens of the city will gather in front of the Gholson Hotel, where Judge W. S. Adamson will deliver an address of welcome.

At noon members of Ambulance Company No. 359 will be guests of the Carl Barnes Post and Company 1, 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guards, at a barbecue at the Ranger Country Club.

Following the barbecue the members of the ambulance company will go to the Ranger-Cisco football game, to be played at Chesley Field, Cisco, at 2:30.

At 7:15 p. m. a big sham battle and pyrotechnic display will be conducted at the Haugland Airport which will be free to the public and everyone is invited to attend. The battle has been carefully planned and will be much more spectacular than the one staged two years ago, with better lighting facilities and more fireworks and action.

Ambulance Company 359, which has held an annual reunion each year in Fort Worth, but which came to Ranger this year for their annual gathering, will be given a banquet at the Gholson Hotel, beginning at 8:30. The American Legion Tickle Band will furnish the entertainment at the banquet.

At 9 o'clock that night a dance will be staged at the Colonial Ballroom of the Gholson Hotel, and at the same hour the annual smoker of the 40 and 8 will be begun at the Legion Hall. These two features on the program will end the activities of the day.

The members of the National Guard unit, the committee to aid in the presentation of the sham battle, officers appointed and the Legionnaires who will aid in the battle are to meet at the National Guard armory at 6:30 in order that they can be given final instruction and be ready to begin the battle at 7:15.

Practically all organizations in town, including the Elks, Lions, and Rotary clubs, Carl Barnes Post and Chamber of Commerce, the National Guard company and the Ranger-Boy Scout troops are assisting in all the plans, to make this the biggest and best celebration of its kind in this section of the country in this or any other year.

The business houses of the town are to remain closed all day Saturday in celebration of the big event and more activity is expected around the town than on any previous Armistice Day.

On this anniversary of the conclusion of the direst conflict in the history of all time and of all nations, it is time for retrospection.

We believe times are returning to normalcy—all except the shattered, shell-shocked bodies and the bereft minds and morale of those who saw Flanders Field and faced the shot and shell of a maddened world.

To them, then, is due all deference and reference on this day—the first to respond yet the most futile to restore and recompense for an imprishable service.

May our own American Legion have a good time on this day—we congratulate Dr. Harry A. Logsdon and his company—we welcome them—yours has been the part of service, the aim and purpose of all good Americans.

To the Ranger Bulldogs—we will meet you in Cisco—with all of Ranger—take those Cisco Loboos for a good cleaning.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

DAVID BANISTER nodded to the waiter to refill his cup with coffee. He said slowly, "But it was murder—!"

"They couldn't prove it," Jim Paxton told him across the table. "Want a scrap of real evidence. Four or five days later his cap drifted ashore. Aside from that—well, he just disappeared and nobody knows any more about it today than they ever did. The woman wasn't even questioned. I've never understood that part of it. She was mentioned in his will, but not for a large amount. I think the wife contested later—"

David Banister

"Poor old Louie!" Banister raised the cup of coffee, then set it down again. "It happened that fall I was in Mexico," he said. "Never heard the whole story before."

"And neither has anyone else. The whole story of what happened that night on that yacht would interest a lot of people. If Louie Kane was murdered—"

"I can't believe it!" Banister interrupted. "I simply can't believe anyone would bump off old Louie. It just doesn't seem likely."

"Do murders ever seem likely?"

"Of course. Lots of them go—when you know the facts. Inevitable! But I can't believe Louie Kane was murdered, even if he was a double-dealing old pirate with a plenty of enemies." Banister looked up suddenly. "There was something about the wholesale cunningness of the fellow—," he went on. "Why, Louie would stand and lie to you until he was black in the face—and know that you knew he was lying—and I'm damned if I didn't like him while he was doing it! Say, do you remember the time Alex Schneider was so sure he had the nomination for senator sewed up and Louie got the boys together in his room at four o'clock in the morning?"

"Sure I do!" Paxton grinned.

"And I remember how Schneider hit the ceiling when he found he was beaten. But the best trick Louie Kane ever pulled was that time down in Pittsburgh—"

They were at it then. For half an hour the two men were lost in reminiscences. Stories about Louie Kane, the ruthless local political boss whose death on his private yacht 15 months before was still surrounded by an aura of mystery. Stories of the adventures—and such adventures!—of two young newspaper reporters who had followed run-of-the-mill news, written about politics and crime and the conventions of fraternal organizations, about court battles and beauty contests and the nice strike. The two had worked together sometimes; at others they had been rivals. Dave Banister, still in his teens, and Paxton, a year or two older, both of them willing to break a leg to give the Tremont Evening Post an exclusive banner line story for its same edition.

was Banister who sat back, listening intently, now and then interrupting. Not a handsome man. The most generous judge would have rated Dave Banister's features no better than "common or garden variety." Nevertheless there were qualities in that face—intelligence, tolerance, generosity. That much of what Dave Banister was could be read at a glance.

Tremont society—for it was chiefly Tremont society that was gathered about the tables in the oak-paneled, crimson tapestried hotel dining room—enjoyed this opportunity to inspect David Banister. Tremont society had known him not at all in the old days. Now they were aware that, with the publication of his first novel a year before, Banister's picture had appeared in newspapers and magazines. There had been a motion picture made from the novel. There had been some short stories, too, under his signature in a weekly magazine, boasting the largest circulation in the country.

It was the Hollywood phase of Banister's career that seemed most glamorous to Tremont, whose 140,000 population patronized two dozen motion picture houses. There were those who wondered why, after such triumphs, the young man should be back in the home of his boyhood. Looking at him as he sat at the table with Jim Paxton, it was hard to believe Banister was making the visit to his aunt because, as the Evening Post had stated, he needed a rest. David Banister seemed the picture of health.

Paxton was talking now—jerkily, with that characteristic nervous emphasis. "I think Burns is in Guatemala," he said. "At least he was the last I heard. And Snodgrass—remember Snodgrass, don't you? Well, by George, he's raising chickens!"

Banister smiled. "A worthy enterprise," he commented. "May life come when you're on a boat. You never get them sitting at a desk in an office. When I think of those old days—oh, well, what's the use? I suppose I'm getting old!"

"Almost 30, aren't you?" Paxton asked, smiling. "Well, the offer's open. We'll take you on at The Post any day. By the way, if you're really going to stay here for a while, Nora and I want to see a lot of you. She'll be back next week. Want you to come out to the house soon. We'll have a crowd in for dinner. They all want to meet you, you know. You're a celebrity!"

"I'd better warn you," he went on, "that Nora is expecting you to give her the low-down on Hollywood. Who's getting the latest divorces and why. Whether it's really true that the star's pot deck wears diamond collars. And I think there was something in one of the gossip columns about you being seen at the Brown Derby, lunching with Mae West or Baby Peggy or one of the other beauties. Nora'll be sure to ask about that—"

"Wait a minute!" Banister stopped him. "I don't know anything about Hollywood's private life. All I did was work there."

"Try to make Nora believe that!"

"Well, if Nora has any such ridiculous notions in her head—which I doubt—you'll have to remove them. You're talking like Aunt Kate! Amusing as it was, I have discovered that my aunt is one of the nation's most inveterate movie-goers. Never misses a change of pictures at the State. That's where she is tonight."

"You still have to answer for that luncheon at the Brown Derby. Was it Mae West or Baby Peggy?"

"Neither. I tell you mere mortals aren't invited to take part in the gilded social whirl out there. Authors are herded into small cages and told to start pounding the typewriter!"

"Well, I've warned you," Paxton said. "If you haven't any true stories of the movie great you'd better start manufacturing some. Anyhow we'll get up a little dinner next week. And how about some golf Saturday?"

BANISTER applied the flame of a lighter to his cigarette before he spoke. "My golf's a sin and you know it," he said levity. "A great one you are to talk about Louie Kane's pirates! You haven't a chance in a thousand of repeating me in on that West Haven course!" He glanced down at his wrist watch. "Lord!" he exclaimed. "It's nearly nine o'clock. I had no idea it was so late."

Paxton said, "Let's see if we can't round up a couple of others for some bridge. Sam Paradise is usually around here—"

Banister shook his head. "Sorry," he said. "I'll have to be getting on. It's been great to sit here, chewing the fat about old times. Hope we can have another session soon."

"Of course we can," Paxton agreed. The dining room was almost deserted as they left the table. To the headwaiter's bow Paxton said casually, "Good night, Frank."

Outside in the lobby the two men hesitated. Banister said, "I think I'll take a cab. Can I see you off anywhere?"

The other shook his head. "No," he said. "I think I'll see if I can find Paradise. Stop in at the office tomorrow, why don't you?"

"Maybe I will," Banister promised. "Well, I'll drag along now. Good night, Jim."

"Good night, Dave."

try it myself some day. Lord, but that was a crazy gang we used to have on The Post! I wish there was a single thing in the world that I could get as excited over nowadays as I used to over Louie Kane's political rallies or a three alarm fire or an oil-still hold-up."

PAXTON'S right eyebrow raised quizzically. "How about having a first novel accepted?" he demanded. "And later hearing that it's a best seller? How about signing fat movie contracts?"

"But that's not what I mean," the other protested. "Of course I got a kick out of it when 'Exit the Lover' was published and when I read some of the reviews. The favorable ones. I wouldn't pretend I didn't. But that's not the same thing at all! I'm talking about excitement, the thing that keeps you from sleeping for nights at a time—and not caring; that makes you go cold and hungry and work till all hours and risk your foot neck, all the while feeling so all-fired glorious that you could dance up and down Sixth street! That's what I mean. Has anything made you feel like that lately, Jim?"

"No."

"Well, there used to be things that did. Lots of them! Here you are, editor of the Evening Post, with a private office, secretaries to jump when you press a button, directors' meetings to preside over, and I'll bet that down in your heart there are times when you envy the youngest cub on your staff. I'll bet you'd give a good deal to change places with him—"

"Are you trying to tell me a letter to you would? Because I'll make you an offer. You can go to work as a cub reporter on The Post, any day, old man!"

Banister grinned. "Think you're selling my bluff, don't you? All right, you are. Just the same, Jim Paxton, you know as well as I do that the real thrill is unswayed"

Lone Star Gas Feels Ruling On Advertising Wrong

DALLAS.—The Lone Star Gas company does not feel a recent ruling of the Texas railroad commission makes clear its rights in advertising. L. B. Denning, president of the company, wrote recently to Sam P. Harben, secretary of the Texas Press association.

The railroad commission at Austin recently made public a letter in which it said it allowed the pipe line company to advertise.

Denning's letter to Harben said the commission had ruled the company's advertising must be for the purpose of securing new business.

Quarterback Was Almost a "Goat" In Football Game

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Football players do strange things under stress of competition, as exemplified by an unusual act of Quarterback Joe Coleman of Texas Christian university in the recent Centenary college game.

Joe was sitting on the bench. Centenary had the ball on the Texas Christian 11-yard line. The game was aggressive and there were only a few minutes left to play.

Coleman spied a Centenary player on the far side of the field squatted along the sideline, apparently laying out for a sneak play. The sneak, if successful, would have meant certain defeat for T. C. U.

As Centenary came out of the huddle, Coleman rushed on the field, without consulting his coach. He quickly reported to the referee and trotted over to cover the man laying out. The Centenary player, however, was outside the field of play, a substitute, evidently sent to the sideline to keep track of the position of the ball.

Joe's action cost his team five yards on a penalty for delaying the game, giving Centenary the ball on the 9-yard line, first down and goal to go. Texas Christian held, however, and Joe's well-intended quick-thinking turned out harmless instead of making him a "goat."

Ease Pain, Headache in Few Minutes

For Quick Relief Say BAYER Aspirin—When You

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia—the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

These results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

PICTURES OF SILVER By BEULAH K. HICKS Acts 16:9-15, 25-31

"Believe on the Lord Christ and thou shalt be saved," the words of our Golden Text the theme of all Paul's belief messages.

"And a vision appeared to me in the night." A man of Macedonia, recognized by his manner of dress and confirmed by speech stood before Paul, beseeching him and saying, "Over into Macedonia and help me."

Paul forgot about his disappointment in his plans to go to Asia, followed the leadership of the Spirit wholeheartedly. There no hesitation.

"We sought to go forth into Macedonia," concluding that had called us to preach the gospel unto them."

"Concluding" represents the Greek word implying careful thought. Paul summed up his experiences and knew that the gospel was the greatest help that could bring anyone.

I am not ashamed of the Gospel for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth Romans 1:16.

Paul went to Philippi which the chief city of Macedonia, not the capital.

Sabbath came and Paul and associates, finding no synagogue went down to the river bank on whose side was a prayer place. A prayer place was a simple enclosure open to sky and near where water could be easily obtained.

They sat down and began teach the women gathered. The God opened the heart of Lydia, a seller of purple, probably a woman carrying on her husband's business. Lydia was a very successful dealer for she and her household, children, servants and trade assistants were baptized.

She then invited the men of to visit in her home. Again glimpse the independence of Lydia who always paid his own way; was reluctant to go. "And she strained us." This is a strong in Greek, implying the overness of reluctance. She wanted more of God from them than that she might. Rejoice in the always. Again I will say Phil. 4:4.

The text skips over to Paul's party who had been beaten, rods, leaving them maimed, crippled and cast into the prison for healing a slave owned by a company of utter supposed to be fortune tellers.

The outer prison was vile, the inner prison was foul, no fresh air, slimy, damp, with odors and swarming with vermin. Their feet were fastened in so that they could not move. Paul did not forget his men. The prisoners heard their prayers. "And suddenly" a stone building trembled until the doors fell down.

The jailer sought death, but the prisoners had escaped, clumped the protecting power of God and cried out to be saved. Believe, earnest words, Paul believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved, at house, Rom: 16:31.

relative to the Federal building project for your city. This project has been submitted to the Special Board for Public Works for consideration under the provisions of the National Recovery Act. No action has yet been taken by the Board but we are hopeful that some definite information will be available in the near future although we are, of course, unable to state exactly when the Board will act or in what direction.

Your reference to the advertisement recently posted for leased quarters has been noted. Even if the Federal building project is approved it will be impossible to complete the construction of the building prior to the expiration of the existing lease and it accordingly becomes necessary to make arrangements for quarters after that date. However, any agreement that may be entered into will be subject to cancellation in the event a Government building is completed and occupied and this action will have no adverse effect on the Federal building situation in Eastland. Trusting that this letter will give you the information you desire, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Dates Tell Story of U.S. Prohibition

NEW YORK.—Dry crusaders usually date the start of the American prohibition movement from an "essay on the effects of ardent spirits upon the human mind and body" written by Dr. Benjamin Rush, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, in 1875.

Prior to this, however, there were a number of restrictive laws passed by the colonies beginning with the Maryland statute of 1642 fining drunkards. In 1648 Indians held a temperance meeting in the St. Lawrence valley and in 1733 Oglethorpe, founder of the colony of Georgia, prohibited importation of liquor.

Other milestones in the prohibition movement follow:

- 1808—First temperance society formed.
- 1813—First state society formed, Massachusetts.
- 1826—First National society.
- 1832—Spirit ration for soldiers abolished.

Kidnap Gang Is Though Broken

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Operation of a well-organized and powerful gang of kidnapers, which collected more than $500,000 from victims during the past three years, was revealed today with arrest of 12 men.

Confessions have been obtained from some of the alleged kidnapers under arrest, investigators for the state attorney's office said. All are to be charged with kidnaping, a crime punishable by death in Illinois. The confessions it was stated, cleared up at least nine major kidnapings in the Chicago area and may result in the solution of five others. Additional arrests were expected.
