Curtailed of CWA Funds Not Wanted; Bushick Says New Administrator Needed

As the result of a meeting of representative citizens from over the county in the county court Monday afternoon the County Civil Works association committee will recommend to the state CWA officials that the allotment of funds for Eastland county not be reduced.

The meeting was called by County Chairman Earl Conner for the purpose of ascertaining the true conditions in the county relative to farm labor, the state CWA authorities having asked for a report on whether or not CWA work should be curtailed in order that farmers might have plenty of labor for making crops.

Addresses were made by Will Tyler, rising star banker; W. C. Conway of Ranger; Forrest Wright, Cisco attorney; County Agent J. C. Patterson; "Chick" Gallagher, Desdemona; Bill Shultz, Rising Star; Jake Alford, Rising Star attorney; County Judge C. L. Garrett of Eastland; County School Supt. B. E. McGlamery of Eastland and Frank H. Bushick district CWA supervisor for this district of 23 counties.

The various speakers said that by no means should the civil works allotment of funds for the county be curtailed; that there was not a shortage of farm labor, but on the other hand many farmers had to have extra work, such as they were obtaining from the CWA in order for them to make crops. The meeting unanimously voted and instructed the county committee to report that the allotment of CWA funds should not be curtailed.

Board Chairman Earl Conner requested Mr. Bushick to make a report to the meeting of his work and plans in Eastland county. Mr. Bushick stated that upon his arrival in Eastland county he had felt it his duty to make a complete tour of the county and contact the leading citizens with the view of checking up on the efficiency of the CWA and relief offices and in particular to learn the financial and economic conditions of each community in Eastland county with the view of reporting to the government. He praised the public spirit he had encountered and also stated that he had been repeatedly requested by leading citizens that they might be present when he made his report. In deference to these requests and because he felt Chairman Conner would also want everything in connection with relief and CWA affairs in Eastland county, handled out in the open, Mr. Bushick stated his conclusions as to the administrative efficiency of the Eastland county organization, and stated that he felt it was his duty to recommend to the Eastland County Board and the CWA at Austin that a new administrator be appointed for Eastland county.

In the course of his talk Mr. Bushick stated that he found financial and employment conditions in Eastland county to be the worst he had seen and that he felt the Texas Relief Commission and the Texas Civil Works administration would do everything in their power to assist in the upbuilding of the county and the rehabilitation of the unemployed.

Eastland Rotary Club Backs CWA Program In Co.

Addressing the Eastland Rotary club Monday Frank H. Bushick, district Civil Works association supervisor for this district which includes Eastland and 22 other counties, made a plea for the united co-operation of Eastland county citizens in support of the CWA program for Eastland county. He especially stressed the necessity for harmonious action on the part of Ranger, Cisco and Eastland for the success of the program for the CWA and Child Welfare work.

Mr. Bushick states that conditions in Eastland county are the worst he has found in any of the counties he has visited. Mr. Bushick was given a rising vote of confidence by the Eastland Rotary club and as a result of his appeal for co-operation the Eastland club voted to adopt as its major project for 1934 full and complete co-operation with the co-operation with the CWA and Child Welfare programs in the county.

Mr. Bushick has been invited to address a joint meeting of the Ranger Rotary club and Lions club at the Gholson hotel in Ranger at 12 o'clock Wednesday and has consented to do so.

May King Case Re-Set For Feb. 7; Bond Is Refused

Criminal District Attorney Grady Owen has announced a resetting of the Mrs. May King murder case on Wednesday, Feb. 7. The case had formerly been set for trial on Jan. 22 in the 91st district court. Mrs. King was disallowed bond and remanded to jail in a hearing before Judge George L. Davenport this morning. Mrs. King was only recently transferred from the sanitarium at Gorman, where she was taken for treatment for bullet wounds sustained at the same time Leon Robinson, who she is indicted for slaying, was shot, to the county jail at Eastland.

Counterfeit Tax Stamps Seized

AUSTIN, Jan. 16.—Charges of counterfeiting cigaret tax stamps were filed in Justice of Peace court today against F. A. Melton and M. T. Bockery, Dallas, after state officers had seized stamps representing a value between $5,000 and $7,000. The men were arrested last night in Dallas, according to the State Comptroller's department. Equipment, spurious stamps and the two suspects were brought here by Texas Ranger Hannah and two tax supervisors of the cigaret tax division.

Flood Roars Baby's First Lullaby

Her feeble cries drowned by the roar of flood waters, Baby Lucille Sharp, shown above with her mother, came into the world as a violent storm raged around her marooned home in La Crescenta, Calif. A fire engine, rushed to aid of the mother, was halted a half mile away, and firemen carried a tubful of water over storm wreckage and mud to the house for the baby's first bath.

Disagreement Flares Up In Relief Meet

AUSTIN, Jan. 16.—Smothered flames of disagreement in the Texas relief commission broke through today and resulted in a seething session which ended in a resolution endorsing Lawrence Westbrook and department heads in relief administration. The vote followed a statement in the committee meeting that there was a movement in West Texas to have Westbrook supplanted by D. A. Bandoen, Stamford, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Commission members voting for the resolution were Ed Hussion, Houston; B. E. Giesecke, Austin; W. A. Brooks Jr., Dallas; Carl Estes, Tyler, and Robert Real, Kerrville. W. N. Chrestman, Dallas; Earle Adams, Crockett, and R. L. Holliday, El Paso, asked to be recorded present and not voting. Brooks brought the matter to a head.

"There is a certain man in this town saying that Westbrook ought to be removed because he is dominated by Governor Ferguson," Brooks said. "I resent that an individual citizen should try to put a man off the board in order to put a West Texas man in charge, one Mr. Bandoen. He's scheduled, I understand, to take the Colonel's place." Chrestman said he had never heard of this "West Texas business" until Estes told him about it last night and Brooks mentioned it here today.

"Governor Jim sent for me to talk about it the other day as though it was some sort of a threat," Chrestman said.

Congress Expected To Rusk Money Plan Through

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Congress appeared certain today to rush President Roosevelt's money policies into the law of the land. The gold reserve act, title of a bill carrying out the President's recommendation for taking into the treasury all monetary gold and revaluing the gold content of the dollar at a point between 50 and 60 cents, aroused constitutional dispute, but sentiment appeared in support of the measure.

Senate republicans were called together to discuss opposition strategy. Their leaders had little hope of defeating the program. The directors gave him a rising vote of thanks for the work he has done with the organization in the past year and pledged continued support for the coming year. The vice president and secretary were also unanimously elected. Allred, now is writing a bill under which he sees a way for the special session to legalize all kinds of hard liquor in Texas, under rigorous restrictions.

Price of Poll Tax Unchanged; Must Pay $1.75

Many people seem to have gotten the idea that the price of poll tax receipts has been reduced from $1.75 to $1.00, according to County Tax Collector T. L. Cooper, who states that many come to his office expecting to pay only a dollar and are disappointed when they learn that there has been no reduction in the price. Mr. Cooper also states that they will be allowed an extension of time in which to pay auto license, but that so far as he knows there will be no extension of time granted this year, and that midnight of Jan. 31 will be the latest hour for paying of car license.

The Weekly Times, which goes into the mails early Friday morning, reaches all of its readers in plenty of time for them to take advantage of the offerings of the merchants and does not reach them early the next week as do some of the weekly papers.

TRIAL OF DR. WYNEKOOP TAKING FORM

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The mystery of Rheta Wynkoop's death took form in testimony today as the state sought a grim defense for the life of Dr. Alice Lindsey Wynkoop, the victim's mother-in-law. The strain in the courtroom grew as the murder trial moved into the third day. "The whole courtroom is sitting on a bombshell," said one of the doctors attending the accused woman. "Dr. Wynkoop's illness is such she might collapse without warning," he said. "Her condition is grave."

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

MAGNIFY THE LORD: Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, Thy Lord be magnified.—
 Psalm 40: 16.

"IT IS FUN TO HUNT THE TIGER"

An Englishman, a famous big game hunter, including the tiger of the jungle, was asked by an enterprising newspaper to give an account of the thrill he enjoyed battling the ferocious kings of the jungle "in far distant places." He covered all the ground in a few words: "It is fun to hunt the tiger; it is hell when tiger hunts you."
 Uncle Sam went tiger hunting in the jungles of the Southwest. His very courageous and quick-action agents were sent on the trail by Joseph B. Keenan, an assistant attorney general on the staff of Attorney General Homer Cummings. Well, the returns are coming in. Keenan said that the boldest and the most desperate and most inhuman of these human tigers were "rats," that they were very brave men when they turned their machine guns on unarmed and defenseless victims and murdered without remorse of conscience. Furthermore, that when they were trailed to their lairs and compelled to face machine guns they were yellow and cowardly and real rats of the human family.

On the morning of Jan. 8 The Austin American carried a very thrilling story under this caption: "Only Four Big Time Desperadoes Left on the Federal Government's Long List." In other words, Wilbur Underhill had been shot to death by daring sleuths of the law, federal and state, in Oklahoma and that his passing reduced to four the list of most wanted desperadoes of the Southwest.

This is the list of the four fugitives who are hiding somewhere in the hills:
 Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, noted bank robber, murderer and machine gunner;
 Clyde Barrow, a Texas gunman accused of half-a-dozen murders;
 Ed Davis, Kansas robber and the only member of the band of 11 convicts Underhill and Harvey aBiley led in a break from the Lansing prison last Memorial day.
 Richard T. Galatas, sought dead or alive for participation in Kansas City massacre.
 These desperadoes ranged from North Dakota to the Gulf of Mexico in their wild flights from the officers of the law.

James Nash is Dead—shot to pieces in the Kansas City massacre of the agents of the law. He was said to be the brains of the Underhill gang.

Verne C. Miller, the Dakota leader of the gang, a former sheriff and a gallant soldier under the skies of France, was killed by his own gang.

Marvin Barrow, a Texan, was shot to death by Iowa officers.

All the famous kidnapers of the gang are behind the bars. They were given the same penalty by juries in a court of justice. Daily, gangsters are shot to death everywhere. Gus Winkler and Jack Kulatz, the latter a college-bred terrorist are in their grace. Winkler was a millionaire, or reputed to be. He was snuffed out of existence by members of his own gang. He had turned them in. Kulatz was the leader of what was known as the "collegiate trust of Chicago desperadoes." Well, the agents of justice did not give him a chance. They surrounded his hideout in a fashionable district of a Chicago suburb. He was shown the same mercy that he had shown his victims. Everywhere the country over Uncle Sam is on the trail of these desperate human tigers with bloody records to their credit.

Does crime pay? Not on your life when Uncle Sam launches a crusade and Keenan issues the order to his men: "Bring Them In—DEAD OR ALIVE."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT the more advertising you do, the more business you will get.

If wishing brought business, most business concerns would have more business than they could handle. It would be a good idea for them to cut out wishing and start advertising.

Advertising will stimulate any business and build it bigger and better.

Advertising will attract new customers, please old customers and hold both.

Advertising helps to sell right merchandise for the right price.

The stores that advertise always stand out distinctly and have force and influence in the city.

Circulators mailed out never are delivered at a cemetery, but are many times delivered to dead ones in a city.

Newspapers are read by live people. Use newspaper advertising. It is the best by test.

Now is the time to pep up and go ahead!

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

Texas Liquor—

The amendment says: "The manufacture, sale, barter and exchange in the state of Texas . . . of liquors . . . are each and all hereby prohibited."
 The Dean law says: "The manufacture, sale, barter, exchange, POSSESSION or TRANSPORTATION . . . of liquors . . . are hereby prohibited."
 The legislature can change the Dean law. Only the people by vote, after submission by 100 house members and 21 senators, can change the constitution.

Transportation and possession of liquor is not prohibited by the constitution. They are not a violation of national law. When the two words are stricken out of the Dean law, they will not be illegal in Texas.
 A long line of court decisions have pointed out that the Texas constitution does not prohibit transportation or possession of liquor, but recited the Dean law's provisions were valid anyway.
 The significance of this attack upon the liquor question in Texas, from a new angle, will be in its political aspects. Candidates for governor have been much troubled to take sides for or against resubmission and repeal. Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt is for resubmission and repeal. Sen. Clint Small is for resubmission, and let the people decide. C. C. McDonald is for repeal and liquor taxes.

Atty. Gen. Allred, a dry, has been silent so far on liquor. The drys want to do three things: 1, Save the amendment; 2, banish the bootlegger; 3, keep the saloon outlawed.
 In the beer amendment they allowed the general sale of the weak stuff, but not in saloons. The Hooper bill would not prevent resubmission or repeal, but readily on its face would make them more difficult and put them further off.

The earliest the people could vote on repeal, even if the next legislature had the votes to submit it, would be around Sept. 5, 1935.
 But it already is apparent that repeals will not muster 100 house votes or—electing only half the senate—21 senate votes in the next regular session for submission of repeal. That automatically means the constitution could not be changed before September, 1937.

Meantime, there are a good many wets in Texas who would favor a means of getting all the legal liquor they want at reasonable prices over continuing to traffic in the bootlegger's product at the bootlegger's price.

As between repeal and opening hard liquor to the access of everybody in eating houses, soda fountains and grocery stores, and limiting it to those only who ordered it sent direct to themselves, and drank it at home, the drys naturally would favor the restrictive terms of the Hooper bill. Not that all drys will support any sort of modification; but many see in it only a choice between the bootlegger on one hand and rigid state control, no bootleggers and half a million dollars taxes a year on the other hand. They see in it too, and readily, a means by which concession which they think would not perhaps increase the actual quantity of liquor sold in Texas, staying off the repeal of the dry amendment until the day of the swing-back from the present wet sentiment.
 Summed up, provisions of Mr.

Married Flirts

BEHOLD HERE TODAY
 GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married. The former was a girl who was once a friend of Tom's. They were married in New York. Gypsy is a friend of Tom's. They were married in New York. Gypsy is a friend of Tom's. They were married in New York.

CHAPTER XI
 THE streets were full of scurrying crowds. Already, although it was early afternoon, the lamps were lighted, moons glowing in a blue dusk. All along the avenue those lamps made a chain and people, hurrying past through the snow, shuffled on without noticing. The shop windows were gay with tinsel and ribboned boxes and glittering things to eat and to wear.
 The trouble was, Tom Weaver wanted none of these. He wandered along, with his coat collar up, staring and puzzling about what to get Gypsy. She should have (he thought) that delicious silvery squirrel coat in the corner shop. She should have a glittering string of real jewels to adorn her pretty throat. And he groaned to himself for a stupid fool because he could not buy her these things. Christmas! Oh, it would be a glorious thing if a man could go out with his hand in his pocket and buy what he saw—this and this and this—without ever asking the cost or counting it afterward! Only the trouble was, some of us have to consider the landlord and the grocer and the tailor. We'd lots to make a grand gesture, Tom told himself, only we're worshipping false slaves and we haven't brains enough to corral enough money to do it.

So he trudged along, staring moodily into first this window and then that one. Christmas was only four days away and still he had nothing for Gypsy. Ten dollars—fifteen—twenty—that was the very most he could spend.
 At last he bought her a bottle of menthol—mimosas. It was—and a book she had been wanting and a pair of gloves, long, sleek, white ones, Christmas morning he would add roses and her favorite candy. But he was still dissatisfied. His mood of discouragement hung over him. It was a half day at the office. He had nothing further to do and Gypsy herself was shopping. But he was not conscious of the Christmas spirit. He was disgusted with himself for not being a captain of finance—like Marko Broughton.

MEANTIME, Gypsy went briskly about her purchasing. She had things for Mamma and Daddy and the twins. She had a recalled rose-crepe kimono for Aunt Clytie. But Tom? He was last on her list, because closest and best beloved. He needed—oh, everything! Socks and ties and shirts and gloves. But what prosaic things, thought Gypsy, humorously, to put on the altar of the loved one!
 What she wanted, really, was to buy him one of those water-tight platinum watches. He carried his father's heavy old one and it stuck when you tried to open it. She wanted to buy him an opulent bi-satin dressing gown, so that he might look like a second-hand hero. She wanted to buy him a top hat because he would look so well in one, and Derek Bilas owned one. But how?

 After a while she got dreadfully tired. During the early part of the afternoon the crowds had given her a sense of mild exhilaration. But now that feeling had dwindled and she was conscious mainly of an ache in her shoulder and of immense fatigue. You were pulled this way and that. You never knew which way you were going. The crowd sucked you in and drew you along like the tide.
 Somehow she found herself in a little corner sweet-shop. It was more expensive than those she usually patronized, but she was actually too tired to go any farther at the moment.
 She looked down at the menu in its silver holder. Tea and toast would restore her feeling of gaiety. She sat back, giving her order, and glanced about her.
 Quite without warning, her eyes met those of the man at the next table. He had risen . . . he was bowing . . . now he was coming toward her.
 "Marko!" Gypsy murmured. And indeed he was the last person on earth you would have expected to find here.
 Marko's manner with her was perfect. No hint, now, of the discarded gallant. No, he was almost fatherly. How was she—and that handsome husband of hers?
 GYPSY found herself babbling to him of all sorts of things. The waitress fluttered over, removing his order to her table, and they settled cozily down to a talk. He was suave, he was polished, thought Gypsy, and yet you felt he really cared what happened to you—to all his friends. She told him about her afternoon. How Tom would have hated to hear her! But indeed there was nothing disloyal in her conversation. It was just an innocent outpouring.
 Presently Marko knew everything. About Tom's cut, and the watch she wanted to get him, but couldn't, and the apartment and all the rest.
 "My dear child . . ." His eyes were almost suffused. That was one embarrassing thing about Marko, he wept easily. "My dear child, you really must let me help you . . ."
 All at once she realized what she was doing. She caught herself up. "But really, Marko, I love it. It's fun. You mustn't mind what I say." She was bitterly ashamed of herself for having said anything. But that was the worst of being a babbler. Her mother had always warned her against it.
 "No, no." He was patting her hand now. He was all gentleness and sympathetic interest. "It's a shame a lovely child like you hasn't everything she wants. You must let me do something, really."
 There was more of this. Gypsy protested, she would gladly have bitten her tongue out to have recalled some of her confidences. At length she managed to convince Marko that she meant what she said. Of course he was used to women trying to get things from him! Naturally that was what he had thought she meant. Her cheeks burned at the thought.
 She finished her tea and Marko paid for it. His fur-collared coat his expensive soft hat made him look a little like a couple of open hands. Gypsy was conscious of being turning, to watch them as they left the shop. She was just about to give him her hand in parting when a great car slid up from no where and a uniformed man held open the door.

 "Nonsense, my dear, I'm dropping you wherever you want to go. Marko handed her in, and a fur coat was wrapped around her wet clothes. The door shut noiselessly and the motor slid forward. Marko held a lighter to his cigarette.
 "Look here," he said, exhibiting slowly. "I've an idea for you to earn some extra money. You can sell Saturdays, haven't you? At the college, you remember how you administered my library. It's sadly in need of a cataloguing. Something I've set you go around to. You could do for me."

GYPSY'S eyes were round with pleasure and excitement. There was something else again. Talk help from Marko was of course quite out of the question. He must understand, once and for all, that she wasn't in the class with the pretty ladies who "worked him" for the sweets of life. But if she could do some real work for him, what that needed to be done, that was another matter.
 "I—you're terribly nice to think of it," she murmured.
 The details were arranged. Marko was most businesslike about it. All no one in his senses, thought Gypsy with pride, could have suspected him of an unworthy motive. His man would be there to receive her, everything would be ready. Well, she would start work the following week, if she liked.
 "And, of course, I shall give you an advance," Marko smiled.
 Gypsy protested, but to no avail. A banknote was pressed into her reluctant palm. Marko had given her address to the chauffeur through the speaking tube, but she had scarcely noticed that she were drawing up before her car.

"Saturday, then!" Marko handed her out as though she were a princess.
 Gypsy turned and waved goodbye. Then she sped like an arrow through the flying snowflakes in the lobby. Surely that was Tom's tall figure she had seen, just rounding the corner. She was conscious of heightened color and quicker heartbeat. She told herself that Tom couldn't know about her parting with Marko just now—he did not like it, and there was no quarreling about it.
 The hallway held the elevator door wide and Gypsy slipped with it, stuffing the bill into her purse. She had scarcely done so before Tom strode through the lobby.
 "Here comes Milt Weaver," the boy grinned. Gypsy was telling herself that Tom had seen her. His look of pleased surprise at his greeting dispelled the suspicion. The words were on the tip of her tongue. "I just ran into Marko Broughton . . ."
 But she fought them back. Something warned her this was not propitious time to tell him. The banknote burned it seemed to her through the thin lining of her purse. Oh, she would buy Tom the platinum watch. She would buy him a really nice Christmas present.
 Because she had taken a lightning glance at the note just before Tom entered. It was a $50 bill.

PARIS MAY USE UNDERGROUND SPRINGS

PARIS.—Hot water is said to exist in great quantities beneath Paris. Municipal councilors are suggesting ways of utilizing it. It would be advantageous, they state, to sink a very deep artesian well in the neighborhood of La Villette, and to create a thermal station near the Auteuil and Longchamp race courses so as to utilize hot radioactive springs with highly mineralized water, which, if geologists are right, should be found under this district.

HOW TO SHAPE A PEAR

BERKELEY, Cal.—How pears get their shape was revealed here by Dr. W. P. Tufts, head of the University of California pomology division, and C. J. Hanson of the same department. Cross pollination of pears has an effect on the shape of the fruit, but this is due to the increase in the number of seeds produced rather than the effect of pollen on the fruit itself. Dr. Tufts added, the further south the orchard is situated, the shorter or the length of the fruit produced. Experiments show that the self-pollinated Bartlett pears were the longest.

ROBBER BREAKS RECORD

WEATHERFORD, Okla.—Weatherford escaped the wave of bank robberies which has swept over Oklahoma for years, until recently when the first robbery in this town's history took place. While officials of the Liberty National bank were home at dinner, $813 was stolen by a bandit believed to have been locked inside after entering and hiding himself from employes.

NICKLE GOT HORSES

HOLDEN, Okla.—When Lloyd Burris, youthful Hughes County farmer, received a nickel for good grades during his school days, he turned to "high finance." He purchased some corn and planted it, growing several bushels. Part of the crop was traded for a pig, which ate the balance and grew into a hog. The hog was traded for a calf, which was bartered for a pair of colts. Burris now has a dandy team of horses which cost him the nickel.

HOUSTON, Tex.—There will be less beer consumed in Harris county if the decrease in the number of establishments selling it is any indication. ALL-BRAN WILL ALWAYS BE A PART OF MY DIET

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Constipation
If you suffer from constipation, read this fine letter:
'I have been troubled for years with constipation. During this time, I have tried almost every known remedy. Then some one recommended eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and the proper results followed immediately.
'Since eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN each morning, there has been a general improvement in my health without the ill effects that I formerly experienced when taking other laxatives. Hereafter, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will always be a part of my diet.'—Mr. E. G. Himes, 1201 1/2 St., Los Angeles, Calif.
Research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise intestines, and vitamin B to aid assimilation. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.
The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much that in leafy vegetables. Isn't "cereal way" safer than risking patent medicines?
Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient to relieve ordinary constipation. With each meal, serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.
Be sure to ask for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It contains much more "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red and green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"Justification" Is Chosen For W. M. U. Program

Mrs. J. H. Munn, president of the Women's Missionary Union of the Olden Baptist church presided over one of the most interesting sessions held in months, when members met at the church yesterday for the three o'clock afternoon hour.

The lesson on "Justification" proved unusually valuable and highly inspirational. Prayer was said by Mrs. C. A. Howell, preceding the singing of the theme song, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

A business period closed the program during which time many interesting plans were outlined for the year. The lesson was attended by ten members. Next Monday's lesson will be held at the usual hour with all members urged to attend.

Mrs. Russell Has Charge Of Cisco Baptist Program

Mrs. Hugh Russell, active member of the Women's Missionary society of the local First Baptist church was named leader of the splendid program presented at the Cisco East Baptist church Monday afternoon.

Program proper opened with the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed with members saying in unison the watch-word, "Be strong and of good courage; thy God is with thee." The devotional given by Mrs. Minnie Love preceded the singing of hymn, "He is a Wonderful Savior to Me." Mrs. Nannie Walker said prayer, "For God's guidance in our program," bringing a beautiful thought for the subject following, "The Old Year and the New," with Mrs. Lee Mitchell taking the part of the old year and Mrs. James Cosby the new. "What is Missions" was well brought out in a talk offered by Mrs. Mitchell. Duet, "Give of Your Best to the Master," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Cosby. "The Church and Missions," presented Mrs. W. A. Lewis in another interesting talk closely woven about the lesson topic. "God the Father and Missions," another connecting paper, was given by Mrs. L. C. Keel. Others included on program: "Jesus and Missions," Mrs. Nannie Walker; song, "Let the Tide Come In;" "Holy Spirit and Missions," Mrs. G. W. Thomas, prayer; "That We May Be Empowered With the Holy Spirit in Our Missionary Work" and "Prayer and Missions," Mrs. Barker; "My Self and Missions," Mrs. J. G. McGee; prayer, "I Give Myself to Thee." Closing prayer, "That Each of Us May Really Be Missionaries, Giving Ourselves Wholly to the Kingdom of Service," Mrs. G. W. Thomas, president of the Ranger society.

This well composed program was pleasantly climaxed with a social at which time the Cisco president offered her appreciation for the parts taken by the out-of-town visitors aiding to a large degree in making the session one to long be remembered. A plate of sandwiches, pie and coffee was served by members of the entertainment and hospitality committee. A color note of white and orchid predominated the colors of the society.

Ruling On Cotton Option Assignments

WASHINGTON.—Stating that no future assignments of cotton options would be recognized, Oscar Johnston, manager of the cotton option pool of the agricultural adjustment administration, today announced a ruling covering the options which have been purchased from the original holders prior to Jan. 11.

This ruling was contained in a telegram to a Houston, Texas, cotton merchant and reads as follows: "Department prefers options be exercised and sent in by producer to whom option originally issued. Will recognize exercise of option by bona fide pledgee where producer will receive full benefit of proceeds of option. In view of fact that some options have heretofore been purchased, department has ruled that if purchasers will exercise options prior to Jan. 15 settlement will be made on basis January New York contract and proceeds remitted by check to properly authorized and designated assignee. This will only apply to options purchased prior to Jan. 11.

Arcadia Now!

Dolores Del Rio and Raul Roulien in a romantic episode of "Flying Down to Rio," RKO-Radio's stirring aerial musical extravaganza, which also features Gene Raymond, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

Assignments after that date will not be recognized.

Commenting on the ruling, Mr. Johnston said: "Only bona fide pledges of the option held by producers are required to be recognized. Persons will not be permitted to purchase these options from the producers and, with the exception contained in the ruling, all checks will be made to the original holder of the option. It will be the duty of the option holders in cases of a bona fide pledge to make the proper settlement with the pledgee. Persons who purchase options after Jan. 11, do so at their own risk and neither the department nor the original option holder can be required to recognize any rights of such purchasers when the option is called or assigned to the cotton pool."

Some 600,000 producers have options on approximately 2,400,000 bales of government-held cotton at 5 cents per pound.

Warns Against Buying Farmers' Cotton Options

WASHINGTON.—Pointing out that the sale of cotton options was prohibited and that the Secretary of Agriculture is not required to recognize pledges, Oscar Johnston, manager of the cotton option pool, today warned the public against purchasing the farmers' options and urged the holders to proceed in the regular manner to obtain full value on their options through governmental agencies.

Mr. Johnston made the following statement:

"There has come to my attention reports from throughout the South that various persons are engaged in buying cotton options from the holders. In some instances, I am advised, these purchases have been made at a loss to the optionee of as much as 100 points under March quotations.

"I would call public attention to the fact that the sale of these options is prohibited. The Secretary of Agriculture is not required to recognize pledges and where it appears a pledge has been made as a cloak to conceal an actual assignment, suitable investigation will be made to determine the circumstances surrounding such pledge or assignment. Where advantage has been taken of the producer, proper action will be contemplated to remedy the situation.

"Under the terms of the option, the holders have the alternative of calling and receiving the difference between 6 cents and the market price or of assigning their option to the cotton pool and receive an initial payment of 4 cents per pound. Checks are going out daily to the option holders who have exercised their privileges in the required manner. There is absolutely no reason for the holder of these options to sell or assign them to obtain their money. Persons buying these options at a discount are running a risk in that if it can be ascertained that the purchase was made in violation of the option terms, no pretended rights of such purchasers or assignees will be recognized. The contract requires that, where the option is called, the check will be made to the original holder who in each case is the producer who accepted the option as part of the consideration in the cotton adjustment campaign of last summer."

Some 600,000 producers have options on approximately 2,400,000 bales of government-held cotton at 5 cents per pound.

It means something

..that Chesterfield has a modern up-to-date Tobacco Factory in far-off historic Smyrna

So important is the handling of Turkish tobacco in making Chesterfield cigarettes that Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., maintains this specially equipped plant right in the heart of the famous Smyrna tobacco section. It is the largest and most modern tobacco factory in the Near East.

Turkish tobacco, you know, is the best "seasoning" there is for cigarettes. At all times Chesterfield has in storage—at this plant and in America—about 350,000 bales of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco.
