TEXAS RELIEF COMMISSION TO MEET MONDAY

KEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

What? we were asked by a man with an inquiring nature without the ambition or energy to look it up, "is the meaning of this business we have had so much about since the first of the year?"

and we hasten to explain that word really has several meanings of a similar nature, but only meaning as far as the air mail routes, about which he was referring, are concerned.

Formerly, in England, it was a lot of money made by the payment to the crown and for special taxes were assessed became an annual English word.

is also a sum of money granted by one state or country to another, which is friendly, for the use of carrying on a war.

so far as the air mail is concerned it is a grant of funds or property to a private person or company to assist in the establishment or support of an enterprise deemed advantageous to the public.

practice subsidies are chieftained in aid of transportation, prizes, as to ship, canal, rail, or air.

A subsidy may consist of a simple gift or may consist of a grant in excess of the usual price for any service, such as carrying of the mails. It may consist of funds to aid in establishing or maintaining a service or more powerful than the would justify under normal conditions.

subsidy is sometimes misused much as it is used to designate the entire payment for services such as carrying the mails, it should be used in only to the excess payment in addition to the regular charges, and not in order that the expense service might be paid in the case of the air mail, as is the case of the situation and definition of the word, a premium would be allotted to pay for carrying the mail. If this was sufficient for the upkeep, repair and operation of a line of air, a subsidy would be added to reimburse the company for the use it had been out, plus a small profit on its investment.

Sporadic Hunt For Pretty Boy Is Pushed Today

By United Press

LOS ANGELES, March 1.—The sporadic hunt for Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd was resumed in South California today in the wake of the arrest of Ed Davis, identified as an escaped Kansas convict. Within a few hours after Davis had been taken into custody, a squad of heavily armed detectives left for an undisclosed destination. The detective captain said they hoped to find Floyd at the end of their journey.

No trace, however, was found of Floyd, the officers revealed on their return.

Davis was linked by federal authorities with the Kansas City union station massacre of June 17, 1933.

VOTING PRECT. NO. 1 DIVIDED, NEW ONE NO. 27

Hereafter, voters in the Eastland precinct cast their ballots at two voting boxes instead of one, the county commissioners at their August session dividing precinct No. 1 into two precincts. Before that date, voters had only one designated place for the casting of ballots.

The new precinct, which was created last August, is number 27. Precinct 27 imaginary line runs north with Daugherty avenue to the Texas and Pacific railroad track, thence east with said track to Eastland and Breckenridge paved road and then north to the county line.

Precinct 1's division line goes east to the Eastland and Carbon paved road, then in a generally northern direction to points which intersect Daugherty street in Eastland, then north with Daugherty to the Texas and Pacific tracks after which the line runs east with the track to where it is crossed by paved road leading from Eastland to Breckenridge, after which it extends to the county line.

Funeral Is Held Wednesday For a Child At Olden

Funeral services were conducted at the First Baptist church of Olden Wednesday for Jimmie Ray Brown, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lester Brown, who died at St. Louis, Okla.

The services were conducted by Rev. H. R. Stephens of St. Louis, Okla., who conducted the services in that town before the body was shipped to Texas. Interment was in the Olden cemetery following the services at the church.

Carnera-Loughran Fight to Be Held

MIMAMI Fla., Mar. 1.—Despite overcast skies and high winds, Madison Square Garden will go through with the Carnera-Loughran fight tonight. The decision was reached after a lengthy conference today between the garden president and Jimmie Johnston.

FORCED SALE MORATORIUM IS NOW A LAW

AUSTIN, March 1.—A moratorium on forced sales of real property in Texas became effective today when Governor Ferguson signed the senate bill to that effect.

Beginning today, a debtor faced with a forced sale of his property may go into district court and upon proper showing before the judge, secure temporary stays of sale.

No stay may extend beyond Feb. 1, 1935, the date of self-limitation in the bill.

Tax delinquency of more than two years shall constitute a barrier to such relief, but it may be removed if the judge finds the debtor to have a substantial equity in the property involved.

TOTAL RURAL SCHOOL AID IS $30,000

By United Press

Salary grants out of state aid for Eastland county schools for 1933-34 total $13,582, according to B. E. McGlamery, county superintendent.

In addition to these grants the state aid fund will pay approximately 12,000 for transportation aid in the county and about $4,000 for high school tuition for boys and girls of the rural districts. The grand total for this year, Mr. McGlamery thinks, will reach about $30,000, which is the largest amount ever paid the county from rural aid funds.

Despite the fact that the depression has affected the schools of the county they are now in the best condition financially in the past two years, Superintendent McGlamery says.

Following is the manner in which the salary grants out of state aid are distributed among the schools of the county:

Robbers of Bank At Mesquite May Be Barrow Gang

DALLAS, Mar. 1.—Four bandits who hoisted their members of Clyde Barrow's gang held up the First National bank at Mesquite, 12 miles south of here, and escaped with between $1,500 and $2,000 today.

The leader of the bandits walked into the bank, accompanied by a man armed with a machine gun. The other two bandits remained near the entrance. The assistant cashier, the only person in the bank, was forced to lie on the floor. The bandits seized all the money in the cage, walked to their car and sped away after circling the town square.

The assistant cashier's description of one of the men tallied closely with that of Raymond Hamman believed possible one of the other men might have been Barrow, himself.

The assistant cashier said the leader told him: "We mean business. You are fooling with Hamilton and Barrow now."

State Rests In Torch Death Case

CLEBURNE, Texas, March 1.—The state rested its presentation of circumstantial evidence against H. L. Cobb of Hill county on trial here on murder charges in the slaying of his neighbor and cousin Thomas Gullett, 18, whose body was found in a burned barn.

The court recessed to allow attorneys for the defense to seek a witness who, they said, saw Cobb change the front tire on his car the afternoon before the body was found.

Roosevelt Asks Guarantee Upon Loan Bank Bonds

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1.—President Roosevelt plans to send a special message to congress today asking guarantee of the principal of $2,000,000,000 of home loan

Ouster as RFC Director Urged

By United Press

WASHINGTON, March 1.—America's proud aviation development was thrown into new controversy today when Secretary of War George Dern denounced proposals to create an independent air corps outside the confines of either army or navy.

Mr. Dern told Representative J. M. McSwain, chairman of the house military affairs committee, the unified air corps plan under consideration by the house committee would so disrupt the army's military effectiveness he would prefer to have no increase in strength rather than see it adopted.

Dern also opposed two different proposals he said had been introduced, one for creation of a separate air force and the other for construction of an air force of 3,000 planes.

The second measure, he said, has the defect of tearing down vital elements of the framework of defense. To increase the air force to 3,000 planes would provide an air force so far beyond any sane estimate of our needs its passage would be construed only as evidence of ardent militarism or immediate war.

Twenty-Four Dying After Picnic Meal

By United Press

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif., March 1.—A community dinner of 22 Filipino lettuce pickers, to which their two American employers were invited, today resulted in the agonizing death of nine workers.

Fifteen others, including two white employers, who partook of what they thought was a delectable dish of mushrooms, were expected to die. No hope for recovery of any of the men was held.

The Filipinos were employed on a ranch. Heavy rains last week brought up large beds of fungi in the hills around the ranch. The men spent Tuesday gathering what they believed were mushrooms and invited their employers to dine with them.

All ate heartily. Late Tuesday night they became ill and were brought to the county hospital. Since late yesterday the men have been dying at the rate of one every two hours, doctors said.

Governor Urges Celebration of Roosevelt Day

By United Press

AUSTIN, Mar. 1.—Gov. Ferguson by proclamation today designated March 4 for celebration of the first anniversary of the presidency of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Churches, schools and clubs were urged to make the day "one of memorable appreciation of the fine services rendered our country by President Roosevelt."

At this time, the governor suggested pledges of loyalty and cooperation be renewed.

30-HOUR WEEK IS URGED BY LABOR HEAD

By United Press

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A 30-hour week under manufacturing codes to increase employment was urged today at the NRA protest round-up by John Frey, secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor. Forty hours now is the average.

Frey's expression of the federation of labor view was not new to NRA Administrator Johnson, who already is determined to attempt further expansion of employment under codes. He is expected to present his program during or shortly after the conference which convenes next Monday.

A 10 per cent reduction in hours with a 10 per cent increase in hourly wages, is widely believed to be the program Johnson has in mind. This would mean a 36-hour week.

President Roosevelt will address the opening session of the code conference at 11 a. m., Monday, the white house announced today.

TWO AVIATION BILLS SCORED BY SEC. DERN

County Bar Asks Additional U. S. Judge Be Named

By United Press

The Eastland County Bar association of which Judge Earl Conner of Eastland is president and Mrs. C. C. Robey, also of Eastland, is secretary, met recently and passed by unanimous vote a resolution asking that an additional United States district judge be appointed for the northern district of Texas.

The fact that there are only two judges actively in the district; that the docket is badly crowded with more than 1,000 pending cases, and that within the past nine years it has been necessary to call eight district judges from out the state, three of whom presided in the district for a total period of 22 weeks, were among the reasons urged as to why the appointment should be made.

The secretary was instructed to forward a copy of the resolution to each of the United States senators from Texas and to each Texas congressman.

EASTLAND CO. HEALTH ASS'N. HOLDS BANQUET

By United Press

Tuesday was a busy day for the Eastland County Health association, which terminated its planned activities with a banquet at 7:30 p. m., on Connelley roof, and a dance following.

Guests within a radius of 150 miles, including those interested in the association, physicians and their wives, and officials, to the number of 45, attended.

Fleming Waters, supervisor of Eastland county sanitation work, presided as toastmaster.

The incidental program opened with a voice solo by Miss Maxine Henderson of Olden, in a dramatic rendition of "I Love Life," and "False Prophets," with Miss Marguerite Adamson of Ranger as accompanist.

Miss Wilma Beard of Eastland presented Misses Jackie Belew and Helen Rosenquest of the Junior high school in a group of dance numbers with Miss Beard at the piano.

Joe Caruthers of Cisco also charmed his audience with a group of ballads, closing with "A Perfect Day," with W. Griffith of Cisco as accompanist.

The first address of the evening was given by Dr. F. T. Isbell, county health officer, in a discussion of public health program, in which he specially commended the work of the county health nurses, and stated "sanitation is at the root of all health."

County Superintendent of Schools B. E. McGlamery was presented, and expressed his appreciation of the work of the nurses in the rural communities, and that this general sanitation department had effected a great deal of improvement in rural schools and grounds.

Superintendent of Cisco schools, E. N. Cluck, the next speaker, emphasized the improvement in the work of the school children, who had been given "a meal a day" through the direct relief program, and commended the work of the Cisco nurses in their work of revealing the defects among the school children, and that as a result of this survey the Cisco Lions and Rotary clubs, with other civic organizations, would take up the work of remedying these defects.

Dr. E. Roy Townsend, city health physician, was presented, and stated he thought all people should be inoculated against preventable diseases, and expressed his opinion that socialized medicine was on the way, and that physicians would be paid by the state to care for general health conditions.

Mr. Waters then presented Mr. Driscoll, Eastland county CWA administrator, who pledged 100 per cent co-operation of the Texas relief commission in the carrying out of the program for sanitation work.

Hunter M. George was then presented by Mr. Waters, and Miss Joiner, head of Eastland health nurse work, both of whom merely acknowledged their introduction.

The banquet was closed in a pleasing talk by Mr. Waters concerning the work of his department, and what he hoped to accomplish for the good of humanity.

CALL ISSUED AFTER BOND BILL SIGNED

By United Press

AUSTIN, March 1.—A special meeting of the Texas relief commission was called today for Monday morning.

The call was issued after the governor today signed the legislative measure authorizing the issuance of $7,750,000 relief bonds. The commission will make formal request Monday to the Texas bond commission for sale of the relief bonds.

Meantime a telegram was sent to Washington asking a federal advance of $1,000,000 to take care of needs on a minimum basis until bond proceeds are available.

At present the relief commission is without a dime for direct relief. Last available funds have been allocated to counties for this week's needs.

It is unlikely the actual money to be received from sale of bond will be available before the middle of March.

By United Press

Miss Kenneth Wier, assisted by Miss Marguerite Adamson at the piano, today led the Lions Club members in singing when they met at the regular weekly luncheon.

Miss Madeline White of Kansas City, who is directing the Lions' play, "Crashing Thru," which is to be presented at the high school auditorium on March 8, announced that she was having wonderful success in casting and directing the play.

Each Lion was given a number of tickets to sell between now and the opening night of the play, with T. J. Anderson as chairman of the advance sale committee.

The remainder of the meeting time was taken up with discussion of plans for the local talent play.

CUMMINGS SUBMITS THE DRAFT FOR GANGSTER CRUSHING

Atty. Gen. Homer Cummings has submitted to the congressional judiciary committee a 12-point legislative program designed to give the justice department power to convict gangsters, kidnapers, racketeers and criminals operating in interstate commerce. Senator Ashurst (d) of Arizona and Rep. Hatton W. Summers (d) of Texas received letters from the head of the department of justice saying that "legislation should be limited to functions to be performed by a central agency and not to invite problems of political subdivisions." He declared the program was justified under the commerce clause of the constitution. It calls for the death penalty for kidnapers, registration of all firearms, the making of all stolen property sent into interstate commerce subject to federal prosecution, and makes it a criminal offense to extort or seek to extort by telephone, telegraph, radio or oral message and to intimidate or otherwise interfere with interstate business or in any way to interfere with banks with criminal intent.

Crime should be crushed the nation over. Racketeers should be blotted out or sent to prison. Kidnapers should be given the limit. Bank robbers should be put away. Highwaymen should be "herded together." Uncle Sam has been very successful since the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt in the smashing of bands of ruffians who prey upon the lives and fortunes of law abiding people and slay with impunity and without remorse of conscience. Ever the law should be held uppermost in the sisterhood of states.

KANSAS LAWMAKERS ASKED TO ENACT MORATORIUM LAW

Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas has called a special session of his legislature for March 1 to pass a new mortgage moratorium law. All the states in the wheat and corn belts of the upper country appear to be clamoring for moratorium legislation. In 1932 the farmers, mostly republicans, deserted the party of the elephant. They placed Roosevelt at the head of the government. They elected democrats to the house of representatives. In 1933 the tillers of the soil who deserted the republican party in the Rocky Mountain states and the Missouri Valley states were enthusiastic advocates of the New Deal program. Now where will they land on November election day of this year?

Parents who understand children know where to place the blame when a youngster mopes, keeps to himself, or is "ugly" toward others. Sluggishness ruins any disposition, and that's what is usually wrong. But it's just as wrong to dose that child with sickening cathartics. Until 15—or older—a child's bowels need but little aid—a very mild form of help. Stronger things often upset the stomach or weaken the bowel muscles. For the happy solution of this problem see what to do, in the next column:

There are happy, healthy boys and girls who have never known the bitter taste and violent action of castor oil—or similar cathartics. The only "medicine" they ever get—or ever need—to help the bowels is plain California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fruity syrup has the natural laxative action that assists Nature as it should. Next day, the child feels and acts himself, and has a normal appetite. But use the real California Syrup of Figs, with the word "California" on the label and on the bottle.

Eastland Girl Returns From A Visit in East

Mary McCarty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milburn McCarty Sr., returned Sunday night from Hanover, N. H., where she attended the annual winter carnival at Dartmouth college.

In commenting on the trip, Miss McCarty made mention of the unusual weather residents of New Hampshire were experiencing. On one day, according to Miss McCarty, the thermometer registered a temperature of 52 degrees below zero. Because of the weather it was necessary that she postpone her return to Eastland for several days as trains were unable to make their scheduled runs.

While attending the many activities at Dartmouth, Miss McCarty was the guest of Deborah Holmes, who had been appointed duchess by The Dartmouth, student publication of the college.

Miss Holmes is a student at Smith college, Northampton, Mass. Winter sports being enjoyed by sport enthusiasts this period of the year, Miss McCarty states, include skiing.

On the trip she visited Sally McLaughlin, from Dallas, who attends school in South Head, N. H. According to Miss McCarty, the trip was an unusual one and she enjoyed it immensely, her only regret being that her visit was of short duration.

Her brother, Milburn Jr., is a student at Dartmouth and is editor of the student publication, "The Dartmouth." Young McCarty plans to attend Harvard after completing his stay at Dartmouth.

A dogged drawn by nine Eskimo dogs brought food to residents of Long Island, N. Y., when they were snowbound, recently. Just one of the comforts of commuter service.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

CHAPTER I

It all began some 30 years ago when a young Englishman saw a maid, Mary Marriage, in the upper hall of an old place that is well known in England. It was a spring day and perhaps that had something to do with it; and she had a fine prettiness that he was to learn was not echoed in her mind or speech.

He kissed her and, because he was young, he confused passion and love; it is done often. He kissed her again. "I love you," he said, "and I don't care who knows it!"

Then he looked up at the old portraits on the walls of the spacious hall and something of tradition and set habit that they implied made him suggest a meeting that night beyond the grounds. Mary, poor child, was willing. He was of the gentry and she of the servant class. One said "Yes" and "Thank you" to one's betters. She stood plucking at the edge of her apron, even then—through the gift of two kisses—lost to love.

A month later the village and the tenants celebrated the young man's twenty-first birthday. With that done he announced his intention of "seeing the world a bit" and started for Italy where he had sent for Mary.

In Italy they both learned the length of the stretches between passion which, while indulged, obliterates differences. And futilely they strove to hold that which had never been theirs, save through imagination: he with forced hollow echoes of his old want for her and she with pitiful little attempts at "conversation."

When she told him about "the baby" he grew up. Something that was good for him happened to him when he saw her sitting before him, sagged and humble and utterly at his mercy. He covered his young eyes then to shut her out but he still saw her and heard her saying without words to him, "And what will you be doing with me—now?"

He knew, by that time, that he couldn't marry her. She had never expected that and her lack of expecting it added to the burden he had assumed—so easily! The title that would be his some day and her memories of her own life of work had made her the more his servant and him the greater sad.

"I'll send you away," he promised, "and I'll always care for you and—the child."

She whispered a shaken "Thank you," and began to cry from relief. For she knew, from night after night of trying awake thinking of it, that her place with the decent folk of home was gone. She couldn't go back to them now. They wouldn't have her.

Estelle Field

and summer followed he found himself to be increasingly uncomfortable. England is not large. It would be better to have Mary in another country. He thought of the States, so big and far away.

Mary sailed for New York in December and one day when the sea was rough and the sky was bleak with gray she died giving birth to a son.

The passengers were shocked and sobred but none of them felt the tragedy so fully as did Concepcion and Helen Villaverde, two young Cuban girls traveling under the chaperonage of a poor relation.

"The small boy baby will be returned to his father?" Concepcion questioned the white she wiped brown eyes that filled easily with tears.

The aunt lifted her fat shoulders. "Dios mio! And how?" she questioned in turn. "The lady was registered only from England and England, while small, can be large when a child of this nature seeks its remaining parent."

Mary's status had been clear almost from the start of the voyage. She had been "shamed to the sinning heart" of her and it showed.

"Who, then will become of it, the baby?" asked Helen, with usual energy for a daughter of the tropics. She had meanings to good deeds, a love of adventure and—why not?—Senora Villaverde had means. To adopt the baby, that would entertain, she reasoned, remembering none, but afterwards when there seemed nothing to do but to wave a fan and rawn. She made her suggestion to Concepcion who was enchanted. The baby was of utter whiteness, a mark of real distinction in Cuba where the color of skin, with other hues, is often obscured as night falls.

THE Captain did not, at first, know what to do about the matter but he did know the length of governmental red tape and how it can tangle to restrict motion. And, too, he knew that if the baby were returned to England he would be reared in some foundlings' home which would be a poor substitute for the one now offered him.

"I will say yes," he stated after full consideration of the danger that he ran. Concepcion drew a deep, shaken breath to close her eyes. Helen said a triumphant, "He is named Pablo Tomas Francisco Villaverde y Blanco!"

The chaperoning aunt shook her head; she doubted whether the Senor Villaverde would be pleased. She found dread increasing as she looked toward the moment when the Senor and Senora Villaverde would meet her, their daughters, and this child at Key West.

"Your parents, I fear they will not approve," she told the girls, which proved a mild description of what was to be.

Senor Villaverde was at first speechless; la Madre was not. "Do you know what will be said?" she screeched, looking from one to the other of her offending daughters. "It will be said that instead of an education, Concepcion acquired something else. Would I ask you, any Christian believe this tale of adoption? No! I know the world and it is the plous who believe the worst. It cannot be! Concepcion said she would kill herself if the child were taken from her and Helen joined her chorus. Senor Villaverde y Blanco said he would seek the counsel of a Key West friend who might be able to suggest a foster mother for the infant.

Senor Villaverde's friend suggested Angela a pious crone who on the Cathedral steps whined for alms. Then Angela was summoned and she came with the white and servile robe of the professional hearer. She would care for the child, she promised as if it were her own. And that one of her own was an idiot from a blow on the head that she had given him, made the promise seem a loss real.

THE small white baby was given to her merciless custody and she departed satisfied that the price for caring for the child would be a great deal of time and Pablo, little Pablo, the small white baby, was to learn nothing of love and quite everything of fear and physical hurt. In the Helen and Concepcion married and with this done and children of their own, their dream of claiming Pablo faded.

Thus ended his influence upon them and their influence upon him, though the abuse from Angela sustained.

When Pablo reached the age of seven he knew his world well. There was a flimsy shack of one room which shook with the wind and grew damp when rain fell. In this was a bed, a broken stove, a man-a-shirt table and broken crockery. Also there were Angela's sons, all survivors of earthquakes who had come and gone. By the sagging door was a picture that was called (for some reason) "La Santissima Madre de Cristo."

Angela's brood were hard upon Pablo. She, too, was hard upon Pablo and the same her needles left on his body made the harder on him, for they brought from her a vague shame that she must still by self-justification.

"I give you a home and you rob my own of their bread! What do you get for this?" began many of her tirades which ended in yet another scow on Pablo's brow. The monthly remittance from Cuba would go in one day for drink and after that was forgotten. "It's charity I give you! Charity!" Angela would scream.

As time passed her ways became known. She was rarely sober, the towns whispered. The Key West friend of Senor Villaverde decided he must report Angela's evil ways, her position of influence upon the child that had been given her. But he retired to write this letter after a too heavy dinner and after he had penned a few lines his legs turned blue and his head dropped to the desk. There had been too many heavy dinners for him.

For this reason Pablo was to suffer yet a little longer from the wrath of Angela. And then came the night of unbearable agony and the strange man and the new life that was to make him all he became.

Whose Fault?

If a Child Won't Play with Others?

Parents who understand children know where to place the blame when a youngster mopes, keeps to himself, or is "ugly" toward others. Sluggishness ruins any disposition, and that's what is usually wrong. But it's just as wrong to dose that child with sickening cathartics. Until 15—or older—a child's bowels need but little aid—a very mild form of help. Stronger things often upset the stomach or weaken the bowel muscles. For the happy solution of this problem see what to do, in the next column:

There are happy, healthy boys and girls who have never known the bitter taste and violent action of castor oil—or similar cathartics. The only "medicine" they ever get—or ever need—to help the bowels is plain California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fruity syrup has the natural laxative action that assists Nature as it should. Next day, the child feels and acts himself, and has a normal appetite. But use the real California Syrup of Figs, with the word "California" on the label and on the bottle.

Turkish Movie Stars Fought By Dervishes

ISTANBUL.—The film industry in Turkey had a most unpropitious debut at the holy village of Eyoub on the Golden Horn at Istanbul. Enraged by the "unholy" make-up on the faces of the actors, and the operations of the cameramen, a mob of Bektaishi dervishes attacked the company. They were pacified without any serious casualties.

GUN TRAPS MURDEROUS

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The menace to human beings by gun traps was stressed by the Pennsylvania Game Board. Three men hunting 'coons had a dog killed and narrowly escaped being wounded themselves when the animal stepped on a wire attached to a shot-gun trap. Upon searching the vicinity, three gun traps were discovered. Two were baited with meat and one had a wire strung along the full length of a log. The man responsible for the setting of the traps was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

LINCOLN, Neb.—Nebraska nimbards

have been invited to participate in a statewide crow shoot, sponsored by the Nebraska Isaac Walton League. Predictions have been made that the large, unloved, black-plumed birds will fall in great numbers during the contest which will continue throughout 1934. Awards are to be made to the crow hunters turning in the largest number of "scalps" for the year.

By Cowen Dartmoor Prisoners Spurn Church's Aid

LONDON.—Dartmoor prison has long been reckoned one of the toughest of British penal institutions. The prisoners mutinied there in 1932.

Now the Bishop of Exeter thinks the trouble is that they do not have compulsory attendance at Sunday service.

Instead of being to chapel, the convicts lie on their beds and read novels, the bishop told the house of lords. Rude songs were sung at the prison concerts, he charged.

Out of a total of 200 Church of England prisoners, the Sunday congregations often numbered only five, said his lordship.

And the growing tendency towards impudence in modern crime is reflected in the conduct of the prisoners. The prison chaplain was threatened that if he didn't make the concerts more amusing, the prisoners would get him dismissed, said the bishop.

The bishop himself withdrew his application to hold a service for the inmates after the mutiny, when the governor told him that he could not be responsible for his safety.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

KATHARINE HAVLAND-TAYLOR

CHAPTER I A

THE small blond boy was a curious animal, unaccountably keen small animal. He knew the colors of the sky and what their forecast: that sea water stopped itching; that the stale food to run with it where no one could snatch it from you; and he knew exactly what mental reactions came from Angela's various degrees of drunk eness.

He held a lighted match between cupped palms and, looking down, said, "My God!"

On his eleventh, uncelebrated birthday he had his first lesson in love and its loss. He found a bird with a broken wing, he held it close to his heart and the feeling this set in him led him to make small sacrifices. Then one of Angela's men came across him and wrestled the bird from Pablito to break his neck. After he had gone, laughing, Pablito held the bird close again and salt water came from his eyes. Many of the scars on his back would never fade, but this broke on his mind never in any sense healed.

It was not long after this that the shock from Angela's men had eaten the bread her eldest son said: "Would she doubt her own?"

"One thing! The son of an who went away in this and did made him who came home with another son! That Concepcion Villaverde y Blanco, four months!"

To himself Pablito repeated the name still it was hurt on a peg of his mind.

Angela took a step toward Pablito. She was between him and the door he saw shaking. "And you the fruit of sin, you my child, drea of their breast!" she screamed. Pablito's mouth was dry from hunger and fear. It would be had and he was made (stuck). The day and a half with out food had left him dizzy, on my malot (very ill).

"I get their fifty money, a few centavos and seven pesos, and now eat—you eat!" She raised her stick.

fearlessly where he would; shop windows; theaters; warmth; good food. But he had only—his shack and the loneliness there.

"Come again, Mr. Smith," said Jake.

"I probably shall," said Noyes bitterly.

His shack was far from Key West and on a remote, stretch- ing finger of an island. He hurried toward it, for the night was cold and of the ink-dark quality that is made by a storm in the tropics. "Not too pleasant to be out," he thought and stumbled over something soft. After several futile attempts he held a lighted match between cupped palms and, looking down, said, "My God!"

Pablito, again aware of life, shook from fear. Had not Angela often said, "No, had a man's strength now I would make you suffer!" and here was a man.

lantern lit, he sat by Pablito on a couch. Pablito kept putting his arm. He didn't know why, nor why the man had sea water in his eyes when he said, "We'll stick together!"

NOYES rose; the child must be fed and cared for. Pablito, looking around, saw a shiny thing on a shelf ticking. Pablito asked what it was in his low-class, but ready Spanish, and in faltering Spanish Noyes answered, "The driver of civilized slaves, a clock. One eats, works, loves, sleeps at its bidding and the clock hands and my inclinations have never agreed!"

The books Pablito was to learn by heart he saw as boxes; there were chairs, a bed, a table and a stove that Pablito recognized by the fire in it. There were pictures, too. One of a woman and a child made him murmur, "La Madre Santissima de Christo!" Noyes said wearily, "No, not it is my wife and my child!"

Norris Noyes, having assembled food, carried Pablito to a chair by the table. The boy sat up, the food, stuffing it into his mouth, with grumpy fingers.

The man was again making queer noises but now Pablito didn't mind. Noyes had said in English, "Unless you mend your ways you won't make a good chap at Princeton!" Then he laughed, not quite steadily for laughter was almost forgotten by him and it hurt a bit to recover it.

Pablito picked up a fork. "What means this?" he asked.

"It's a tender," said Noyes. "They have great importance to people who are not tall enough to see over small measures."

The strange noise made Pablito feel afraid again. He slipped from his chair to stand by Noyes who looked shyly for a moment and then, looking determined, lifted Pablito to his knees. Over the child's head he could see the portrait of a woman with another little boy in her arms.

Pablito felt the arms that were around him tightening.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of pills, use water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and happy and full of sunshine.

For they don't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your discomfort is food sitting in your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel dazed and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable cathartics, acting when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

Just don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of a substitute. Use at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

A link from our chain is missing and it will be hard to replace. The dear one will be resting. But we cannot forget that sweet face.

We shall cherish the thoughts of her faithfulness. No matter when or where she was called. So struggled to go and her thoughtfulness. Will doubtless be remembered by all.

Her motto was "Others" I know. She was eager to do for all. Her kindness to those around her. Stood out like a bugle call.

So as a sovereign and friend to her.

PHILADELPHIA.—The ragweed, and not golden rod, is the chief cause of hay fever, according to Dr. Louis Tuft, associate in immunology of the school of medicine, Temple University.
