A wealthy farmer in Turin, Italy, got into a shroud 12 years ago and has been waiting for death ever since. It's fun to be fooled.

AN OKLAHOMA OUTLAW SLAIN, GIRL CAUGHT

POTEAU, Okla., Mar. 3.—Ford Bradshaw, 26 year old Cookson Hills outlaw, was dead here today, the victim of seven bullets from the pistol of a beer garden operator whose place he tried to hold up last night.

In custody was Jackie Fields, Muskogee girl who has kept him company for the last year.

Bradshaw first attracted attention when he and his associates shot up the town of Vian, Okla., in port of the capture and fatal shooting of the late Wilbur Underhill.

Bradshaw was one of the principal persons sought two weeks ago in a 1,000-man raid on the Cookson Hills by officers of three states and the Oklahoma National Guard.

285 ENROLLED FOR FEDERAL ADULT SCHOOL

At a faculty meeting of the federal adult school, held Saturday afternoon, it was brought out that registrations for the second term showed 218 adult whites with 15 in the kindergarten department, 17 Mexicans and 35 negroes registered, making a total of 285 students in all for the term.

It was reported that a telegram had been received at Austin which indicated that the 10 per cent curtailment of CWA forces would not apply to the federal adult school and indications were that it would be carried on, as started, until the end of the second term.

Courses are being offered in guitar, vocal music, piano, vocational courses, home making, electrical engineering, commercial and general cultural subjects, as during the first term. Those who wish to do so may still register for any of these courses during the second term. Registrations are being received for the guitar classes in Room 15, between the hours of 6:30 and 9:30.

The attendance has been good for the past two weeks, in spite of the bad weather, it was brought out at the meeting of the faculty, but it is anticipated that the class attendance will be increased with an improvement in weather conditions.

To Conduct Free Cooking School

Mrs. Martha McDonald, famed culinary expert, who will direct and supervise the Ranger Times Free Cooking School, beginning March 20 and extends through March 23. She is a widely known authority and lecturer on the art of cooking and home economics. She will demonstrate the newest recipes for all dishes, many of them never before shown or told here in Ranger and will explain how the drudgery of kitchen work may be turned into a pleasure, making any kitchen in reality and actually a "Happy Kitchen." Housewives from Palo Pinto, Erath and Stephens county towns, as well as all Eastland county are invited to be the guests of The Ranger Times during this Free Cooking School.

ANNIVERSARY SEES DESPUTE OVER BUDGET

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3.—Bitter dispute over the budget, prices in the NRA and reorganization of emergency employment relief challenged Roosevelt today on the first anniversary of his inauguration.

In the achievement side the administration listed:

1. Large progress in enactment of its legislative program by Congress.
2. Allocation of $3,300,000,000 of public money.
3. Increased employment, improved business, reopened banks, and restoration of confidence in comparison with one year ago.

But administration leaders themselves, stated recovery is far from here. The immediate business as the second Roosevelt year begins is to bolster the NRA against abuses, emphasized this week, at open forum protest meetings.

As the meetings ended, Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, outlined the NRA problems as:

1. Insurance that price increases do not outrun wage increases.
2. Prevention of industrial or labor dictation against the public interest.
3. Elimination of chiseling through compliance.
4. Insurance of statutory rights of labor.

Maximum contributions by NRA to the solution of the purchasing power and unemployment problems.

USED WOODEN GUN TO SCARE PRISON GUARD

He and Negro Steal Machine Gun and Escape in Sheriff's Car.

CROWN POINT, Ind., Mar. 3.—Using a wooden gun to intimidate his guards, John Dillinger broke out of the county jail here today.

It was the latest of a series of daring law-defying escapades engineered by Dillinger whose career in crime gained for him the title of America's No. 1 enemy.

In a few hours after the escape, carried out in defiance of the extra guards posted by Lake county's woman sheriff, Lillian Holley, the car carrying Dillinger and a negro accomplice was sighted near Peotone, Ill., east of here.

Ernest Blunt, the guard who was intimidated by Dillinger's makeshift imitation of a gun and who was taken with the desperado in the sheriff's car, was released.

Blunt was thrown out of the car and was found by a farmer who took him to town. With him was the night mechanic at the Main Street Garage here from which Dillinger had his accomplice stole the car.

The two immediately joined a hurriedly organized posse and started in pursuit. Illinois state police converged around this section. In Chicago five squads of police were mobilized with orders to "shoot to kill."

The break occurred at 9:20 a. m. Blunt was covered by Dillinger's machine gun and the negro's pistol. Three employees of the garage were forced to hold their hands aloft while Dillinger picked out a car.

Dillinger escaped by using a wooden gun, Lew Baker, deputy sheriff and jail warden, said.

"None of the guards in the Lake county jail is allowed to carry a gun and when Ernest Blunt, guard in Dillinger's section, was confronted by what he believed to be a deadly weapon in Dillinger's hand, he submitted to the desperado, surrendered his keys and allowed the escape," Baker said.

"We found later the gun was a wooden one, though Dillinger took it with him along with the machine gun he got from the office and we don't have it as evidence."

Apparently Dillinger, accompanied by the negro, rifled the jail arsenal and were armed with real guns when they subdued the other guards, who were taken by surprise.

Broadway America Booster Club Is Formed in Ranger

H. A. Kyler, field representative of the Broadway of America, met with a number of business men of Ranger in the Chamber of Commerce offices, and perfected organization of a Broadway of America Booster club, of which A. J. Ratliff was elected president.

Mr. Kyler explained that much good for the Broadway of America and the towns and business houses along the highway, was being done through the co-operation of all the towns in organizing these clubs, which are designed to aid in advertising the transcontinental route so that more tourists might be obtained, which would mean more people visiting the towns on the Broadway and more transient business.

The money derived through the memberships is to be expended in advertising, principally in the east and along the west coast, so that tourists going to and coming from California would be induced to use the highway, which is the only year-round highway across the United States.

A committee is to be named for the purpose of securing "booster memberships" at $1 a year, from the filling stations, refreshment stands and other business enterprises along the route of the highway.

Ranger's club started out with a good membership from among the business men present at the meeting and it is expected that the number of members will be greatly increased.

COBB FOUND GUILTY OF TORCH DEATH

CLEBURNE, March 3.—H. L. Cobb, charged with the torch slaying of Thomas Gullett, 18, of Whitney, was convicted of murder in the first degree and was sentenced to 99 years in the state penitentiary. The jury deliberated two hours before reaching a verdict.

Gullett's charred body was found in the ruins of a burned barn on a farm near Burleson after he had been calling on his fiancée. He was reported by witnesses to have been seen with Cobb on the afternoon of his murder and the state built its case on circumstantial evidence.

Scout Troop Has A Good Meeting

Troop 9, Boy Scouts, met Friday night with 25 members present. The Stag patrol won the 31 prize for gathering the most old clothes for the poor, with a total of 500 garments and articles being secured for the needy during the campaign.

The scouts wish to thank all who aided in any way with their campaign, either by assisting them or by donating clothing or other articles that could be used by the needy.

The Flying Eagle patrol had charge of the program and picked two scouts from each patrol to enter a cracker-eating contest. The scout who ate four crackers and whistled first won the 10-cent prize.

Games were played by the scouts, after which they were dismissed after repeating the oath.

797 People To Be Employed By CWA This Week

According to information received at the county CWA office, Eastland, 797 people will be employed on the various projects and office work at the headquarters the coming week. Last week the number engaged in the work was 898 and the week previous 1,092. As can be seen from the figures, the decrease in the number of workers last week was more than 10 per cent which at an earlier date was announced as being the weekly cut.

Teachers engaged in the educational work in the county were not affected, this work being a unit of the federal emergency educational program.

Ill Feeling Cause Of Court Martial Attorney Claims

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Texas, March 3.—Ill feeling between Lt. Col. Henry Claggett and Maj. William Ocker, was advanced today as one of the reasons for the latter's trial by court-martial on charges of making derogatory remarks about a superior.

In making the opening statement for the defense, Attorney Charles Anderson said he would show trouble between Claggett and Ocker started in 1925, due to Major Ocker being called on to pilot officers.

Famous Flier Says Air Companies Start Propaganda

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3.—Clarence D. Chamberlin, flier, in a telegram today to Postmaster General James A. Farley, accused commercial air lines of promoting "organized propaganda" against the administration's cancellation of air mail contracts.

Secretary Dern Denies Sabotage Of Army Planes

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Secretary of War George Dern today said that rumors of sabotage of army mail planes had reached the air corps, but, so far nothing has been developed that would appear to substantiate the rumors.

In a formal statement Dern said, "No investigation of alleged sabotage of army planes has been ordered by me, nor have I been asked by the president to make such an investigation. Some rumors of the kind have reached the chief of the army air corps, and though they appeared fantastic to all of us, they have been followed up by the chief."

Former Mason of Ranger Tells of South America

A letter has been received by E. M. Glazner, secretary of the Ranger Masonic Lodge, from Cecil D. Alworth, who is now stationed in Venezuela, enclosing a check for his dues, and in which he gives some interesting insights on conditions in South America. Cecil is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Alworth, Strawn road, Ranger. The letter says, in part:

"This is a great country down here, except when it rains. I see a few natives in this country wearing the square and compass, but do not know what affiliations they have with our lodge. I was on the island of Aruba not long ago and find that they have quite a lodge there, where the American employees of the refinery go, but it was my misfortune to leave my lodge receipts in Venezuela and consequently could not attend."

"From news received here it seems to us down here that things are improving up there. I believe the depression is just hitting this country, or at least they are just feeling it since the inflation of the American dollar. Several banks have been reported in bad condition and several large mercantile houses have gone broke during the past 90 days."

"Give my regards to everybody. My address is care of Standard Oil Company, of Venezuela, Maracaibo, S. A. This place is located about 180 miles east of Maracaibo, along the Caribbean sea coast, but communication is through Maracaibo."

"Crushing Thru" Rehearsals Are Showing Progress

J. E. Meroney, president of the Lions club and assistant director of "Crushing Thru," the play to be presented by the club on the night of March 8 and 9, announced Saturday that the cast was becoming letter perfect in their parts and the indications were that the play would be the best that had ever been produced by local talent in Ranger.

Much care was taken in the selection of the cast and each was chosen because he or she was thought to be particularly adapted for the parts they will portray in the play.

Rehearsals will be continued each night next week until the opening night and the characters will be well up on their parts, Meroney said.

Miss Madeline White, who is director of the cast, is especially pleased with the cast and is having no trouble in getting it into shape for the opening night. She predicts that the presentation in Ranger will be one of the best she has ever directed.

THREE GUESSES

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF DURING THE PAST YEAR

By HARRY L. HOPKINS, Federal Relief Director

Editor's Note: Today is the Roosevelt Administration's first anniversary. Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator and one of President Roosevelt's right-hand men, in the following dispatch, tells how the administration has met the problem of unemployment relief in this first year and what it contemplates in the future.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—In the little more than nine months since the creation of the federal emergency relief administration, the lives of millions of men, women and children have been relieved of hardships resulting from unemployment.

More than $500,000,000 of federal funds have been spent for this relief.

In addition to the grants of money to the states by the FERA, the federal surplus relief corporation has distributed huge quantities of commodities purchased from market surpluses.

Besides the money spent for relief, $400,000,000 was spent on civil works employment.

Four million workers earned CWA wages on public improvements.

In return, the communities, the states, and the nation as a whole, benefitted by a vast number of streets, roads, sewers, water supplies, playgrounds, parks, schools, emergency education programs, swamp drainage, disease control, airports, erosion prevention, and a thousand and one other improvements.

The money has gone into the hands of CWA workers in every state, four territories and the District of Columbia. It has meant increased purchasing power in many channels.

The CWA is now undergoing demobilization, with completion scheduled for May 1. For some time, however, consideration has been given to long-range planning.

To give these people who have been fighting the battle a chance to work through the winter, seems to me not only a part of intelligent, but decent treatment of the unemployed, CWA, in itself, was intended as an emergency measure to meet the needs of this winter.

The handling of relief problems over the past nine months has revealed the wisdom of considering separate but co-ordinated treatment for three main phases of national needs. In general the three groups of people in need are: First, distressed families in rural areas. Second, those composing stranded populations, such as families living in single-industry communities where the industry has died; and third, the unemployed in large cities.

Relief funds for rural families will, in the main, be used to help them achieve self-support through agriculture, by assisting them in getting away from dependence on a single cash crop and change to the raising of commodities for their own support. Work for wages from relief funds will be provided to the extent necessary to provide limited cash income.

In solving the difficulties of the stranded populations, it is likely that many people will have to be moved, for in many instances the place in which they now live offer no promise of future employment or chance of self-support through agriculture.

Texas Relief Work Will Be Continued

AUSTIN, Mar. 3.—Uninterrupted relief work was assured for Texas today with notification an advance of $750,000 will be made until state bonds can be marketed. The money coming from the federal government is only an advance. When the state bonds are sold the state will be expected to carry on relief work without federal assistance until the state expenditures match the $750,000 and $1,750,000 already issued in excess of the state expenditure.

The amount of bonds will be determined at a meeting of the relief commission Monday.

MEDALS TO FOREMOST CHAMPIONS OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

There is a nationwide war on crime. This crusade has been endorsed by the President and approved by the department of justice. The United States Flag association is awarding a medal in each state "to the person who, during the year 1933, did the most to advance and encourage the enforcement of law in each of the 48 American commonwealths."

All of which is a reminder that the jury of awards is anxious to enlist the cooperation of the press not only in making nominations and suggestions themselves as to the person who in their judgment during the year 1933 did the most to advance and encourage the enforcement of law in the Lone Star state but also in securing the interest of the general public in making these nominations or suggestions.

"In our judgment," writes the attorney general, "the conferring of this medal will be a tremendous honor to the person entitled to receive it. The American gangster and law violator has been too much 'heroized' and that the United States Flag association is anxious to take a real step forward by endeavoring so far as possible, to offset this wave of maudlin sentiment by arousing interest in law enforcement."

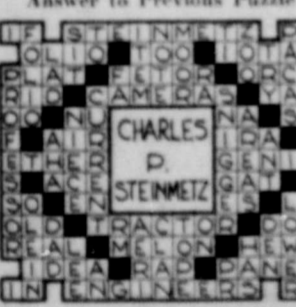

This is the slogan proposed: "Vicious, violent lawlessness must cease." And why not? Texas has given to the American public in recent years many desperate criminals. Many hideouts of outlaws have been uncovered in Texas. Many of the boldest bank robberies have taken place in Texas. Many of the most vicious as well as bloodthirsty criminals have been among the raiders who have crossed the borders of Texas in the years of the so-called depression.

Rhode Island Red A Steady Producer

AMES, Iowa.—The cackle of an Iowa State college Rhode Island Red hen was heard 305 times last year, and each cackle meant somebody's breakfast, according to poultry specialists at the institution.

The specialists said that although this is not a record, it is something "decidedly unusual." The average Iowa farm hen lays from 90 to 100 eggs per year.

Home Hygiene Has New Followers

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Rapid changes in economic life have brought clear realization of what home hygiene means to the family, Dr. L. J. Nuttall Jr., superintendent of Salt Lake city public schools, told the American Red Cross convention here.

"Since the recent changes in economic conditions, adults are realizing more and more that their education should not stop with graduation from school," Dr. Nuttall said. "They are taking up study courses of all kinds, including home hygiene."

Roosevelt Power Seen In Sooner States Politics

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Full power of President Roosevelt's popularity is being demonstrated in Oklahoma, where a political battle for succession to Gov. W. H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray is approaching white heat.

Republicans, as the July primary draws nearer, have been unable to re-form their shattered ranks for a genuine battle for state control. Lew Wentz, millionaire Ponca City oil man and Republican around whom the party's hopes centered, declined to enter the lists.

However, the Democrats, of which there seems to be an endless multitude, flocked into the governor's race, all on a "Hail Roosevelt" platform.

Murray for F. D. R.

Even Gov. Murray, who fought the President bitterly in the 1932 campaign and went into an "Achilles' tent" after he lost to Roosevelt, finally broke the ice to proclaim, "Support the President, and give him a chance. His heart is right."

Tom Anglin, State House Speaker, whom Murray endorsed for the next governor, includes in his platform fealty to the "New Deal."

Jack Walton, former governor, who is fighting back to the seat from which he once was ousted by impeachment, has indicated he will soon announce on a "support the President platform."

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

A few days later Jim Field's wife and daughter arrived at the camp.

BEGIN HERE TODAY PABBITO a handsome 17-year-old youth, works at the palatial Florida home of millionaire JIM FIELD. The son of a doted Englishman and a servant girl, Pabbito knows nothing of his parents. When a year ago he ran away from ANGELA, the old nurse in whose care he was left, she beat and otherwise mistreated him. Since then he has lived with ANITA NILES, a mysterious individual who has been better days. Their home is a shack on a lonely island. Field receives word from his estranged wife that she and their daughter, ESTELLE, is on their way to the Florida home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III THREE weeks later the servants, grasped in underlines that Norma Field was coming back to her husband after an absence of more than eight years. And she was bringing with her the child a girl of 15 who, doubtless, remembered little of her home in America. Workmen came to the camp to redecorate two suites in Field's own cottage. Pabbito had not thought he would see the rooms of which the servants talked with awe, but one day as he was helping one of the gardeners place a window box on a ledge outside the little girl's room Field strolled by. He passed, seeing Pabbito. "Have you seen the royal chambers?" he asked. There were times when Field was very democratic though the mood was likely to vanish as quickly as it had come. "Certainly not, sir," Pabbito answered. Field liked the answer. It made him smile a little. "Come in," he invited and Pabbito followed him. The lavender green and silver room which was Mrs. Field's seemed to Pabbito suitable for an old lady. He wondered whether Field realized that it looked a retreat for a son of a more order standing for too many sins of the bad world. Age and chill were to the blues and in the colors. He thought no woman could be gay in such a room. "Like it?" Field questioned. "I am too young to like even der," Pabbito answered. "I sup pose," he added, "it is a very beautiful room."

Field noticed Pabbito's startled glance at his daughter and smiled a little but he forgot it promptly in his utter absorption in Estelle who had, as his wife had written, changed remarkably since he had seen her. "And these are your rooms," he said a moment after Pabbito had become aware of how fast and how hard his heart could pound. Field wanted to put his arm around his daughter—a much praiseworthy gesture and usually an easy one for him—but he found himself stiffly conscious and afraid. He heard his wife moving around in the next apartment and heard her low-voiced orders to a maid. "It's lovely," Estelle said softly. "I hadn't dreamed there would be anything so grand in a camp—"

She spoke a little rattlingly and with the least bit of a foreign accent. Field, who was wont to think of desire and a full table as close companions, wondered with a little chill whether he could make his daughter like him. Making women love him, or pretend to, had been easy. But this was new. "The color is lovely," she said. "I mean the combination of colors."

He was glad he told her rather stiffly, that she liked it. "I thought," he explained, "that I would let you furnish the sitting room as you liked." Her eyes brightened. "Oh," she said warmly. "I would like that, father. It will be fun!" The "father" made him slip his arm through hers to press her arm to his side. He felt her hand creep into his and the gesture brought an almost forgotten sting to his eyes.

"Mother has told me much of you," he heard her say. "She said you were too busy here in come to see us but she always said I would like you." That, Field noted mentally, would be Norma's way to work in order to make him feel small and mean and in the worst he frowned a moment. Then he said a little weakly, "Well, I suppose I shall have to wait you now." She admitted that she felt a little tired. Then suddenly she turned, raising her oval face and he kissed her. The coup, Field thought, might not have been served into a banquet, but he smiled, thinking it.

Typical French Riot Harmless But Good Show

By THOMAS COPE
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS.—What the modern Parisian couldn't do without is an occasional riot.

With the exception of the bloody affair on the night of Feb. 6 in the Place de la Concorde, which forced the resignation of Daladier government, the 1934 riot generally differs from the 1789 model in one substantial particular: the offensive is entirely on the side of the public authority.

Today's cop—"flic" is the local term—carries a truncheon, a blackjack and a revolver. Today's rioter carries a lusty set of lungs and the insignia of the Royalist party in his button-hole. Often, too, a family name. Fascist canes, once popular, have been tabooed as a menace to the bearer.

Riots, usually staged after dark, are announced in the morning in the Royalist newspaper, the Action Française. Whatever a Left-wing government is apt to consider favorably a measure which the ultra-Nationalists consider unfavorably—such as paying the war debt to the United States—there is a riot.

The majority of casualties are incurred by the police, which falls all over itself for fear of hitting some favorite son. Next come innocent bystanders and newspapermen, the latter very obviously not favorite sons.

Despite repeated warnings from the police, the average Paris pedestrian has a constitutional aversion to running, or even walking fast, when he sees coming toward him a phalanx of blue-jackets.

The Royalist rioter, or demonstrator, does not suffer from foot-weariness when the cops threaten to lose their temper. He simply scurms, leaving peaceful citizens and reporters to take the shock of the onslaught.

Mob Use Firecrackers. Some of the latest riots, of course, were staged over the Stavisky affair, a case purely of internal politics. This was the fanciest show since 1926, when American tourists were beaten up in the Place de l'Opera because it took about five times as many francs to make a dollar as it did before the war.

The January, 1934, riots, were marked by an innovation which presumably made history for the Camelots du Roi: huge firecrackers were wedged in the street car tracks. Every time a trolley passed there were detonations like those of a real Wild West show. The first time this happened there was almost a popular panic. But no bullets whistled and patricians proceeded calmly on their way.

Riot night is like opera night. Long before the Camelots appear on Boulevard St. Germain, genteel burghers of another epoch, with their wives and grown-up children, pace the sidewalks expectantly.

With clatter of hoofs, clanking of saber sheaths, and "horse-feathers" streaming from brass helmets, the Republican Guard takes up its accustomed posts, while ordinary and special police arrive in enormous "rubberneck" wagons, which later may be used as Black Marias.

All takes place quietly, with a show of indifference comparable to backstage opera routine.

Stage Fun at Night. The rioters appear from nowhere, very much like the common, or prairie, coyote, and, generally speaking, pursue the tactics of the gentle quadrupel. Standing in groups of 50, 100 and more, they howl, yelp and holler: "Down with the government, down

Garden and Yard Hints From Club Women of County

TOMATOES IN EASTLAND COUNTY

Early tomatoes are the most profitable and in order to have the early tomatoes, I start my plants in a hotbed when the weather is still much too cold for the plants to grow in the field, states Mrs. C. B. McCoy, farm food supply demonstrator of the Romney Home Demonstration club.

The hotbed is heated with manure, more practical for the weather conditions in this section. The hotbed was made by the diagram given in the bulletin "Tomatoes in Texas." This bulletin is in the office of the county farm and home agents and will be sent on request.

The tomato plants are removed from the hotbed to cold frame as soon as they develop the third leaf. Transplanting is done for the purpose of hardening of the plants. Leave four inches between each plant and allow to remain in the cold frame for 14 to 20 days. These plants are large and stocky after this time and will be ready for planting in garden or field.

Model Home of Electric Age Is Placed on Display

MANSFIELD, Ohio.—A model "home of the future," more completely electrified than ever before has been attempted, has been opened here for public inspection.

It represents what engineers of 20 different departments of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company conceive will be available to the average household five or 10 years hence. If all the switches are turned on at once it represents electrical capacity equal to 864 servants at work, say the engineers. The house consumes 39 times more electrical energy than the average home of today, but its designers point out that already there is over-production of power in the United States, and when the gigantic government projects now under way are completed the availability of low-cost power in homes should be practically limitless.

The house is completely "air conditioned." That is, warm air in the winter and cool air in the summer is circulated through the house from a "weather room" in the basement. The lighting is all "shadowless." Sunken panel lights around the windows will give the effect of daylight streaming in at any hour. This modest home is equipped with seven radio sets. One of them is an all-wave affair. Another is installed in the family automobile, and it works one of the most marvelous automatic contraptions of all. Mother, driving home from bridge or tea in the family car doesn't have to get out and open cumbersome garage doors. As she approaches, she simply turns on her radio. The garage doors open, as though by unseen hands. She drives in, shuts off the radio, the garage doors close automatically.

The kitchen is one of those "straight-line production" affairs. The electric range heats up in a jiffy. The broiler broils a steak or chops on both sides at once. Food mixers, egg beaters and grinders of that sort are permanently installed, and all operate merely by turning switches. The dishwasher not only washes the dishes but rinses and dries them. Ultra-violet rays and infra-red rays are provided in bedrooms and bathrooms. Garbage and waste paper is automatically dumped into outdoor receptacles. There are no fuses to burn out, and the electric meter is outdoors.

France May Get Set of Blue Laws

PARIS.—A crusade has been launched in France to institute a set of Blue Sunday laws "to restore the Christian Sabbath." While no one expects the movement to meet with success, it proves that the puritanical instinct, supposedly dead, exists in the country celebrated for its spirit of freedom. For a third of a century, French Protestants have been crusading for a more religious observance of Sunday, but since the crusaders represent only two and a half per cent of the population, their efforts have consistently met failure.

Now, however, the campaign is taken up by the Roman Catholics, headed by Mgr. Mignen, Archbishop of Rennes, primate of Brittany. In his official paper, he sounds the tocsin against the pagan Sunday. His appeal concludes with the following remarks:

"May our frivolous century, finally understand the benefits of the Christian Sunday. A nation which no longer respects the Lord's Day is doomed to every decadence, to scepticism, to selfishness, to anarchy. Let us all work to restore the Christian Sabbath. Let us suppress every unnecessary activity, even the buying of goods and making of voyages on Sunday. To the Festival of Hell let us oppose the Festival of Heaven until the Great Sunday dawns which shall continue the eternal glory of the chaste and saintly joys of our pious Sundays on earth."

The movement is gathering force, and the participants of the truly Continental Sabbath, continue to enjoy their liberty against the day when their freedom may be curbed.

with the police, down with the thieves, brigands, assassins!"

When attention of the police is riveted on the main body of the demonstrators, squads of these break away and proceed to pull down trees, pull up shrubbery, overturn street cleaners' huts, smash the glass in "iron bun-caw-lows"—the convenient sidewalk lavatories—and carry benches into the middle of the road.

Sidewalk grills used to cover the sod around the trees also are thrown into the street and slipped into the slots of the street car cables, causing short-circuits which light up the scene for convenience of photographers and interrupt trolley traffic.

Rioters Beat Police. Sometimes an overzealous Camelot is collared by two or three policemen and fights back. A good whack on the head generally reduces the youth to reason. On one or two occasions, however, these tactics have excited the public to fury and on one night a half dozen "flics" were swamped by about 50 demonstrators and bystanders, led by a woman, and whose hands they received what the French papers described as "a severe correction." Reserves quickly cleared the street.

Toward midnight, after standing in the damp cold listening to insults for several hours and going without dinner, the police are apt to lose their temper. They charge the Camelots, who scamper away in all directions. It is wise for pedestrians to follow suit, because the police use blackjacks freely on most mature persons in their way, who might conceivably be Communists.

Captain Chris Aaberg was captain of the three-masted bark Suzanne that met a hurricane and was only brought to Savannah with much difficulty and then sold for scrapping.

Captain Aaberg was then given command of another three-masted Suzanne which now is sold on account of the economic crisis.

Some Vital Facts On Life Insurance

By ODELL BAILEY

It is noteworthy that in the year 1933 new life insurance policies have been purchased to the extent of approximately $13,000,000,000. It certainly is to the credit of the American people that they purchased, under existing conditions, this volume of protection for their dependents and themselves.

The growing volume of these benefits is significant as an indicator of the position which life insurance has assumed in our social and economic structure. We learn from adversity and this period of stress has not been exceptional in developing concepts looking toward the future progress of the institution of life insurance and the betterment of its service to policyholders. Life insurance as the resourcefulness to profit from the experiences of the depression years.

I cannot refrain from referring to what I believe must always be a controlling factor in life insurance is to measure up to its responsibilities and meet its obligations to society. I mean a due and constant observance of what may be termed the ethics of the business.

It is my observation that there has been for some years a growing consciousness by those in the business of the obligation of trustworthiness with all which involves strict adherence to this high standard, expressed in the intelligent management of a business so fundamentally sound, will sustain and justify the public confidence which must persist if life insurance is to develop its full resources and to its potential work in the world.

You may be surprised to know that insurance companies pay more money to living policyholders than they do to surviving beneficiaries. This should dispel the idea prevalent in the minds of most people that you have to die to win. If they could label their goods something besides life insurance, the average man would clamor for one of their several contracts to serve as an investment. Stock in business is nothing but a certificate of ownership. It promises nothing. That is property. A bond which promises certain returns, most of which have not been fulfilled in the last three years, is also property. A business house in Ranger or in any other city is property. Property is only valuable, however for what it will do and whether or not it will function as we want it during wars, pestilence or panics. Life insurance is also property. In making an analysis of what is good property, you will find several elements in life insurance property which are not present in other properties.

That is: money available for emergency purposes and especially the contingent of life. Most properties are bought on the installment plan of payment. Only life insurance property will be paid up if something unforeseen should happen to a man, or he loses his health. Money now seeking investment has as its first requirement that it must be safe, that it must return a reasonable amount of money, that it must be sure. Life insurance companies have investment contracts which will pay from 3 1/2 to 5 per cent compound interest on the investment portion of the deposit. Safe, sure, certain.

Select your life insurance man, counsel with him. You will be greatly benefitted thereby.

Replica of First Refinery To Be At Oil Exposition

TULSA, Okla.—A model of the first oil refinery which was built at Titusville, Pennsylvania shortly after the first oil well, the Drake well drilled in 1859, will be shown at the International Petroleum Exposition and Congress here May 12 to 19.

This will be contrasted with a model of the latest refinery, according to William B. Way, general manager. The first refinery did crude distilling and a large percent of the crude oil was thrown away as waste. The modern refinery uses every particle of the oil, even in some instances the very smoke which comes out of the stacks.

How this is done will be shown as the models will be in actual operation.

Utah Pen Warden Defends Leniency of Pardon Board

By United Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Critics of State Board of Pardons fail to make reasonable study of facts before attacking paroles, Utah State Penitentiary Warden Richard E. Davis declared.

"Those critics who complained that the pardon boards of the several states are too lenient have failed to make an investigation of the actual conditions under which paroles are granted," Warden Davis said. "They have looked only at one side of the question, disregarding the conditions which exist at penitentiaries and the status of inmates."

The gray-haired warden, whose position was under fire recently by a body of business men after a prisoner escaped and another, a paroled convict, killed his sweetheart, stood firmly in defense of boards of pardon in their "leniency" while dealing with paroles.

While a few paroled convicts are returned to prison, Warden Davis said a large percentage succeed in reinstating themselves in society. The number would be larger, if society would help them.

"Our critics fail to consider the great number of successful paroles. Of the 522 Utah state prison paroles released since July 1, 1928, only 77 have been returned for parole violations.

"The board has considered cases of young boys who do not belong among hardened criminals. We do everything in our power to release these boys to some responsible citizens, who will see to it they are given a chance to succeed.

"If it weren't for paroles, the Utah State Penitentiary would be large enough for all convicts sentenced to terms. The same applies to any other prison in the country. There are 315 prisoners in our institution. The capacity is

French Marine Program Third

PARIS—France was in third place for merchant marine construction at the end of 1933.

The total tonnage and ships being built in the various shipbuilding plants of the world officially is given according to Lloyd's Register as 757,577 tons comprising 206 ships. The figures by nations are: Great Britain, 331,541 tons for 90 ships.

Japan, 106,760 tons for 20 ships. France, 90,656 tons for 9 ships. Sweden, 64,640 tons for 14 ships. Holland, 40,540 tons for 12 ships. Spain, 35,724 tons for 16 ships. Denmark, 24,663 tons for 6 ships.

United States, 12,373 tons for 6 ships. Italy, 11,200 tons for 2 ships. Norway, 8,050 tons for 5 ships. Steam driven vessels total 336,443 tons comprising 98 units, and

Trucks and Horses Compete

BOISE, Ida.—The contest of horses versus machinery is on again, with a job of hauling sand to the Boise airport as the prize.

Teamsters were put to test their claims that their horses could equal the time made by trucks in hauling sand from pits to the airport. Although greater in numbers, the horses were declared to be cheaper for the work than trucks.

Advocates of the soldiers' bonus have urged their followers not to start another bonus march. Washington is cluttered up, already, with senate investigation witnesses.

of these steam vessels France has 76,080 tons among six ships; there are 102 motor driven ships comprising 418,254 tons, and of this France has 14,576 tons in three ships. In sailing vessels there are but six units under construction totaling 2,590 tons.

It is notable that France's position in third place is due to the construction of the de Luxe liner Normandie, although in number of units, exclusive of the Normandie, France would normally be in eighth place, with only about 22,000 tons. The tonnage of the super-le de France, as the Normandie is called, is 68,000, the largest unit of the French merchant marine fleet.

RANGER IN 1922

The year 1922 might be called a year of law suits, because there was hardly a session of the district court at Eastland in which a suit was not filed by some Rangerite, against some Ranger company or against some project. Most of the suits were for large amounts of money. But there was plenty of lawlessness in the city and there were numerous changes in the office of chief of police, several serving for only a few days.

On Jan. 4, after dry raids in the city, Chief of Police Davenport offered $100 for every pint of liquor found in the city, but on May 22 liquor valued at $18,000 was seized in a series of raids and was dumped in the gutter in front of the justice of peace office.

Jan. 31, C. R. Thompson, driller, was killed in a blast at a well, many charges of graft, fraud and mismanagement were instigated before the road was completed.

Jan. 31, C. R. Thompson, driller, was killed in a blast at a well, April 20 a blast wrecked the office of Wood & Co., with a loss of $30,000 and on June 15 Earl Baker lost his life in a well only 15 feet deep when overcome by gas.

The last day of January the city retired $45,000 in municipal bonds; Feb. 12 the high school bonds were sold and by April 3 merchants were paying off the script they issued when the banks were all closed. Henry Ford made a large deposit in the Peoples State bank on May 30, which gave the people more confidence in the financial situation here after the Ranger State Bank had opened on April 15.

Casingshead plants sprung up with several being installed; one by C. & S. which was started on Feb. 10; Feb. 18, building of two others was announced. The opening of the T. & P. Depot, scheduled for May 25, was postponed because of washouts along the line, but on March 12 the Masonic lodge announced they would erect a new building; Mar. 19 "crankless" telephones were in operation; April 11 contract was let on the high school building and on Oct. 22 announcement was made $1,000,000 would be spent on improvements on the Oil Belt Power company plant at Leon Lake.

Feb. 12 Charlie's cold drink stand was robbed of $500; on March 23 nervousness in signing a bill of sale caused arrest of three of a pipe stealing gang; March 31 raised bank notes made their appearance in the town; April 9, Earl Sober, alias Red Johnson, was wounded in a gun battle with officers; Aug. 22 a mad dog scare was in evidence; Aug. 27, Pearl Long, while on a lion's ride, was struck on the head and Leon Wilson was arrested; Sept. 22 Policeman E. L. Hargraves and Mrs. W. P. Torjans were wounded in a gun battle between the officer and her husband.

March 25 the first "wireless telephone" or radio was installed in the J. M. White store. April 12 the Lions club was organized with 31 members. On April 8 a tornado struck the east side, tearing down many rigs and houses. Several were hurt.

On Dec. 29 it was announced the fire loss had been cut 90 per cent from $400,000 the year before to only $35,000.

I cannot refrain from referring to what I believe must always be a controlling factor in life insurance is to measure up to its responsibilities and meet its obligations to society. I mean a due and constant observance of what may be termed the ethics of the business.

It is my observation that there has been for some years a growing consciousness by those in the business of the obligation of trustworthiness with all which involves strict adherence to this high standard, expressed in the intelligent management of a business so fundamentally sound, will sustain and justify the public confidence which must persist if life insurance is to develop its full resources and to its potential work in the world.

You may be surprised to know that insurance companies pay more money to living policyholders than they do to surviving beneficiaries. This should dispel the idea prevalent in the minds of most people that you have to die to win. If they could label their goods something besides life insurance, the average man would clamor for one of their several contracts to serve as an investment. Stock in business is nothing but a certificate of ownership. It promises nothing. That is property. A bond which promises certain returns, most of which have not been fulfilled in the last three years, is also property. A business house in Ranger or in any other city is property. Property is only valuable, however for what it will do and whether or not it will function as we want it during wars, pestilence or panics. Life insurance is also property. In making an analysis of what is good property, you will find several elements in life insurance property which are not present in other properties.

The various talks by the women were given in connection with charts, maps and exhibits.

The session was opened by the president, Mrs. F. M. Kenney, and the business brought, the Thursday club going on record as favoring cooperation with health projects of State Sanitary Supervisor Fleming Waters, and that a committee be appointed to confer with the city commissioners in regard to health projects. With needlework in hand the hour passed swiftly, to the undertone of radio music.

At 5 o'clock a dainty tea plate was served of sandwiches, potato flakes, olives, pickles, cake with whipped cream topping, and coffee, to club members, Mmes. Ira L. Hanna, Roy L. Allen, Joe Kramer, J. M. Beale, and hostess.

Guests were Mmes. John Fehl and Jack O'Rourke.

Artistic Recital Well Attended

The recital by the piano students of Mrs. A. F. Taylor, assisted by the students in expression of Miss Loraine Taylor, on Thursday night in the colonial room of the Gholson hotel, Ranger, was given in a beautiful setting of flowers with decorations done by Golden, the florist.

Guests of the recital were received by Mrs. Taylor, her daughter, Miss Loraine, and Mrs. Robertson of Rancier, and ushered by John Thomas Scott and D. R. Robertson of Ranger.

The recital was well attended. All the numbers presented by the young students were given from memory in smooth and musicianship fashion.

The work of the students in expression of Miss Loraine Taylor was outstanding in grace and beauty.

Out Our Way

The New Ideas Department

By MRS. ALICE D. TRUE RESPONSIBILITY

By Mrs. Alice D. True, Secretary Retail Merchants Association

Responsibility is always a sign of trust. Responsibilities are given to him on whom trust rests. As business develops, the life of the young man or woman in business are not made easier, but at the responsibilities become greater, he has the greater strength to bear them.

The great question is: How do we meet our difficulties; our responsibilities? Do we buckle right in with a grin, or are we one to say "It cannot be done?"

When Abraham Lincoln was a young man, he ran for the legislature of Illinois and was badly beaten. He next entered business, failed, and spent seventeen years of his life paying off the debts of a worthless partner. He was in love with a beautiful woman, to whom he became engaged, and shortly before they were to be married, she died very suddenly. Entering politics again, he ran for Congress and was badly defeated. He tried for an appointment in the United States Land Office and was defeated in this. In 1856, he became a candidate for the vice-presidency and again lost the race; this time he lost to Douglas. "What did he do? Did he give up and quit? No, in the face of all this, he eventually became President and one of the country's greatest men. Wonder how we would rally in the face of such difficulties.

We meet today face to face with our responsibility to ourselves, our fellow men and our country, and only in proportion to the seriousness with which we accept this responsibility, will we survive and prosper as individuals or as organizations.

The nation's business reminds us of an automobile. The farmer, manufacturer, wholesaler and jobber may be compared to the cylinders of the engine; the banks to the gasoline necessary as fuel. The retailer is the spark which ignites the gasoline and keeps the cylinders firing in order. The spark can be advanced or retarded to meet conditions, but when it misses fire or is delayed, there is trouble and the whole rhythm of the machine is thrown out of harmony.

The retailer today extends credit on character which is the greatest of all assets. Character, however is often confused with reputation, which is sometimes a very uncertain factor. Character is what you really are; while reputation is what people think you are.

There comes a time in the lives of organizations, as well as men, when they must put aside the things of a child and assume the responsibilities of manhood. We like the word responsibility; it means something. It spells strength and wisdom, and if we are to succeed, we must be proud of our profession and willing to assume all of the responsibilities that go with the job.

A very successful business man at one time realized his inability to cope with the many vexatious problems which confronted him daily. One evening while seated at his desk, he resolved that he would master these business problems so that if anyone in the establishment asked about anything, he would know the solution, and so it is that business develops the business man or woman. It makes him think until thinking becomes a habit. Someone said that the greatest thing in the world is to teach or inspire people to think. We must first dream and think then act, and such mode of conduct is bound to bring success.

Headliners To Top Elks Card at Ranger Monday

Joe Rivers, who will be making his first appearance here in several months, will trade punches with Bobby Driggers, Louisiana state champion, for eight rounds or less at the Elks arena Monday night.

Driggers, who is ranking his debut here, is, according to advance notices, one of the best boxers in the 135-pound division.

In the main event, Bobby Davidson, the boy wonder who downed "Tiger Billy" McEain last week, will show his wares against Peck Goodwin, rough-and-ready wrestler from Breckenridge. This match will be for two hours, two out of three falls.

Sammy McLarren, 158-pound scientific tin-eaz, and Wildcat Hood, Oklahoma City, will match holds in the semi-final of 45 minutes duration.

Famed Liar's Club Is Incorporated

BURLINGTON, Wis.—The Burlington Liar's club, which has gained national fame each New Year's day when the champion liar of the United States is selected, has been incorporated.

Incorporation papers sent to Madison were first returned for verification, but when members of the club insisted that for once they were "on the level," the incorporation was granted. The papers read:

"Formed for the purpose of preserving for posterity that distinctive form of American humor—the lie. Incorporators: O. C. Hullett, H. W. Schepning, L. J. Stang."

Hullett, president of the club, said plans are being made to publish the 25 best lies received in the contest each year.

Prospect Illustrated An Insurance Tale

Whisky 27 Cents a Quart In 1860

NEW ORLEANS.—Whisky was 27 cents a quart, cotton 12 cents a pound, and sugar 10 cents a pound in the "good old days" of 1860 in New Orleans, as reviewed by Prof. Lionel C. Darel, historian.

Turkulent elections held under the reign of Senator Huey P. "Kingfish" Long were tame compared to the 1860 voting. Six persons were killed that year in city election fracas; enthusiasts tore up granite paving blocks and barricaded registration offices.

"When one man challenged another to a fight or duel in those days," Darel said, "the fight actually took place. Newspapers didn't have anything to say about fights which never came off. By the time they got into print, they had happened."

Iowa Sisters Named After Three Virtues

JEFFERSON, Iowa.—The county recorder's office here recently brought to light the fact that there are three sisters who are named after the three virtues, Faith, Hope and Charity.

This Thief Bluffed His Way Through

AKRON, Ohio.—A nifty thief who stepped out of a story book long enough to steal two purses added a sparkle of fiction to plans for an elaborate Akron society wedding here.

The thief, inadvertently ushered about the palatial home of Mrs. A. H. Commins, was guided to safety by Mrs. Commins, who told police she was wrapped up in a novel she was reading that she believed the man one of her own servants until it was too late.

While Miss Alexandria Commins, Junior League member, who was to be married two days later, was packing a trunk in an upstairs bedroom, the thief, colored, climbed the porch roof and entered through a bathroom window.

He crept unseen through a room in which Miss Commins' sister, Mrs. George Hodgson, of Cleveland, was standing and made his way downstairs. Mrs. Commins, downstairs, believed the intruder to be her colored house servant, King, and kept her eyes on her book.

"I'll just take care of those," the burglar said, picking up two pocketbooks lying on a hallway table. One, Miss Commins said, contained $60 in cash and $175 in checks. The other contained $20 in cash.

"All right," Mrs. Commins told the police she said to the intruder. The thief walked to the front door, where he tumbled with the knob.

"You'll have to turn the latch," Mrs. Commins said.
"Thank you," replied the thief, as he strode off into the night.
