PEERING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Just a few days ago we mentioned something or other about receiving entry blanks for the track meet to be held at the Fat Stock show and offered to give them to Eck Curtis, or someone, if he had a team to enter. We have forgotten just what it was we said and we are not inclined to look it up because, though we write this stuff, we are never guilty of reading it.

Anyway, the other afternoon Curtis stopped us from chiseling in the magazine racket by looking at the pictures in the movie magazine without buying one and told us why he wasn't going to have a team to enter.

The reason, boiled down to a few words, is because he doesn't have any track team. And the reason he doesn't have any track team is because he doesn't have any track team. He started out by listing those who could be on the track team but neglected to study hard enough to pass enough of their subjects to be eligible, but gave that up as a bad job and told us who were considered.

After Years of Controversy Negroes Appear To Have The Right To Vote In Primaries

DALLAS.—The last bar to unreserved exercise of the franchise by negro voters has, at least in theory, been thrown down in Texas.

A recent ruling by a federal judge at El Paso, following U. S. supreme court rulings on the same subject, gives negroes the entire Democratic primary elections, and the consensus today among political observers was that next July 28 will see unprecedented numbers of colored voters taking advantage of their newly declared rights.

Not since adoption of the 15th amendment to the federal constitution has the negro legally been kept from the polls at general elections. But since "the tragic era" of reconstruction following the Civil War the white majority in Texas has found means to abridge the negro's franchise to considerable extent.

In the days of "carpet baggers" and "Radical Republicans," who sought to exploit the negro vote to their own ends, the means was not a particularly subtle one. Clubs and guns in the hands of Knights of the Ku Klux Klan kept terrified former slaves in their cotton patches on election day.

Gradually, however, less direct action was taken. In East Texas in the '70s, after a white Republican, E. J. Davis, had been raised to the governor's chair on a wave of negro votes and a few negroes had been elected to the legislature, a novel technicality was effectively invoked.

When federal and state elections came simultaneously two ballot boxes were used in each polling place. Negroes were permitted to cast federal ballots but were denied state ballots. Thus the election of state officials was reserved to the whites without attracting the unfavorable notice of the federal government.

In 1902 the state adopted a constitutional amendment intended further to curb the negro who would vote. The amendment provided that before a citizen was qualified to vote in any election held in the state he must have paid by Feb. 1 of each year a poll tax of $1.75.

The majority of negroes in Texas, it was reasoned then, would not find it feasible to pay the tax. The following year, after practical politicians seeking the negro vote found a means to circumvent the intent of the amendment, a law was passed by the legislature making it a felony for one individual to lend to any other the $1.75 with which to pay the poll tax.

Subsequently cities with home rule charters adopted poll tax ordinances and recently the state attorney general's office ruled payment of municipal poll taxes also was a necessary qualification to exercise of the franchise in the state.

Prior to 1903 the question of negro participation in Democratic primaries was not an issue for the reason that there were no primaries. The state and local Democratic executive committee picked their candidates in their own con-

A 25-YEAR PLAN FOR CONSERVATION OF NATURAL RESOURCES

Harold L. Ickes is an independent republican who went all the road in the campaign of 1932 to do his part in bringing about the defeat of Herbert Hoover and the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt. He is one of the ablest men in public life and one of the most thoroughly independent of the leaders of the New Deal in the big picture. He has ever been a champion of the conservation of the national resources of the nation. Chicago is his home city. He planned it from Washington to the banks of Lake Michigan and speaking before the Chicago Dental society's annual convention he described "the reckless exploitation of natural resources as having serious cost in lives and property." Furthermore, he said, the Roosevelt administration has a 25 or 50-year plan for conservation of natural resources. Included in the plan was the development of more water power projects like the two great ones at Boulder Dam, and in the Tennessee Valley. He mentioned specifically the study now under way of the Mississippi Valley and the survey of the water resources of the nation now being made by the national planning board. He placed in the record this bit of interesting information "This administration is planning ahead for the next 25 or 50 years."

It appears that the thinkers—who think along patriotic as well as intelligent lines—are in the saddle today and not the speculators or gamblers of by-gone years. History making—yes. But what of the future?

SOUTH DAKOTA RETIRES FROM THE COAL BUSINESS

South Dakota, after 15 years of expensive trials, has retired from the coal business. This was one of the non-partisan governmental ventures. More than 40,000,000 in debt as a result of the failure of its state owned enterprises, South Dakota merged off another $185,000 loss by getting out. It is disposing of its mines at Haynes and selling its lease on another—a relief project. This leaves only one state business venture of the program enacted in 1919 by the Dakota lawmakers—a cement plant at Rapids City which had a loss of $309,000 recorded against it. Tom Berry, one of the leading stockmen of the state and a democrat was elected governor in 1932. He was authorized by the legislature "to pull the state out of the coal business." Now Berry and a majority of his lawmakers are said to be favorably inclined toward a constitutional amendment which would bar the commonwealth from engaging in another "business venture." The plunge of 1919 cost the taxpayers $40,000,000 in bonded indebtedness which they are carrying from year to year.

New Grid Rules Are Not Drastic

By United Press

ITHACA, N. Y.—The new football rule changes will not alter the game as much as some people think they will, in the opinion of Gil Dobie, gridiron mentor at Cornell university.

The only decided change, Dobie believes, will be the development of more "daring" attacks due to the easing up of the regulations on the forward pass.

Dobie does not think the new rules will work any changes in the defensive tactics of teams.

The elimination of the five-yard penalty for the second incomplete pass is a decided advantage for an attacking team, Dobie said.

"This new ruling about several men being able to handle the ball on a kick is more of a novelty stunt than anything else. "In the old days they used to have what they called a multiple kick, but it never was particularly effective. It is possible that the new rule may be worked into a deceptive play in the form of a quick kick from a reverse formation."

Boston Abandons "New Deal" Boxing

BOSTON.—The "new deal" shows by Boston Garden to revive interest in boxing have been abandoned.

Based on the idea of providing plenty of action and developing new talent, instead of stressing famous names, the shows only drew slim crowds. Only about 1,400 attended the last one.

The Garden will now revert to its old policy of securing the best possible contenders for its feature bouts.

Employment 16.6 Above Last Year

AUSTIN.—Employment as reported by 1,165 Texas establishments for the week ended Feb. 17 showed a decrease from January 1934, or 2.4 per cent but an increase of 16.6 per cent over February, 1933, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The payroll for the same period increased 13.7 per cent over last year, but decreased 7 per cent from last month. These figures do not include employees on the federal emergency relief program.

How Are YOUR Nerves?

Do your responsibilities give you that "dragged through a knot hole" feeling? Do you come home tired, irritable, with nerves all askew?

Whatever your job or place in life, healthy nerves are worth any effort. Check up on your habits—your eating, your sleeping, your recreation—and do not overlook the subject of smoking. Turn to Camels. For the sake of your nerves. Any impartial leaf-tobacco expert will tell you that:

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand. An important fact to nervous people!

Camel pays millions more—for your enjoyment. And how much better Camels taste—mild, rich in flavor, delightful. They never get on your nerves... never tire your taste.

"DIVING TAKES HEALTHY NERVES AND SO DOES MY OFFICE JOB."

Miss Elizabeth Harben, Secretary, Garden City, L. I., says:

"I know that deep-sea diving calls for healthy nerves. But, believe me, you can also feel plenty of real nerve strain being a secretary to a busy office executive! Telephones, callers, dictation, and a million other demands all take their toll. As to smoking—I smoke a great deal, but I'm careful in the choice of my cigarettes. I prefer Camels. They don't make my nerves jumpy, and I like their flavor better."

Frank Critley, Champion Deep-Sea Diver, says:

"Deep down under 300 feet of water, working feverishly under terrific pressure—no place for a nervous man! A diver's nerves must always be in perfect condition. I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. They never upset my nervous system."

ered the foremost living author-

In the early days of the Texas primary," Love told the United States, "the matter of qualification of voters was left to the county Democratic executive committees.
It was the general custom to place at the top of the ballot the names of the white Democrats.
Some counties the word 'white'
was left out. In a few, notably San Antonio, negroes were permitted, even encouraged,
to vote.
By 1907, however, the demand for a uniform "test" became so great that Gov. Tom Campbell persuaded the legislature to prescribe the sentence, "I am a Democrat," as the test to be printed on ballots throughout the state.
Despite this apparent liberalization of the attitude toward the negro voter, the primaries remained overwhelmingly in the hands of white Democrats except in a few communities where the negro population was in the majority.
By 1925, however, the legislature felt the need for an effective restraint on the negro voter. It amended the Terrell law by adding a provision which read:
"In no event shall a negro be eligible to participate in a Democratic party primary election held in the state of Texas, and should a negro vote in a Democratic primary election, such ballot shall be void and election officials shall not count the same."
Dr. L. A. Nixon, a negro crusader for negro rights, made a test of the provision and the case was carried to the supreme court at Washington. The supreme court held the amendment unconstitutional.
In 1927 the legislature made another effort to preserve by law
the Democratic primaries for white Democrats. It incorporated in the election statutes a provision which authorized the state Democratic executive committee to prescribe the qualifications for party membership and the qualifications for voters in the party's primaries.
At all state conventions since then the delegates adopted resolutions to the effect that only "white persons shall participate in the Democratic primaries."
A year ago Nixon won a fight carried to the United States supreme court which, in a decision written by Associate Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo ruled the statutory provision of 1927 unconstitutional.
But not until Feb. 7, this year was the supreme court's decision invoked in Texas. Nixon, who was barred from the polls when he ought to vote in the last Democratic primary, was in court again.
Federal Judge Charles A. Boynton
at El Paso ruled that negroes legally could vote in Democratic primaries in Texas and awarded Nixon a $5 judgment against the election officials who had refused him a ballot.
As a result of Judge Boynton's decision, political leaders are agreed, the long fight to keep negroes from the primaries is lost.
As yet, no movement has been started to devise a new legislative means of accomplishing the purpose.
"Sentiment in Texas still is strongly against negro participation in Democratic primaries," Love declared. "The court rulings represent no liberalization of attitude within the state."
That the negro vote has acquired considerable significance since the ruling is indicated by the fact that no candidates for office yet had expressed themselves concerning Judge Boynton's decision.
What the Democratic executive committee will do remains to be seen.
One member, John Davis of Dallas, believes the committee at its spring meeting will recognize the negro's right to the primary franchise.
"I am going to vote in favor of giving the negro to cast his primary ballot," Davis said, "and I believe other committee members are in accord with me."

Stock Loss Deductions One ground for deduction frequently employed by taxpayers in that claimed by reason of losses sustained on the sale or exchange of stocks and bonds. I hope I can make this particular provision of the Revenue Act, as amended by the National Industrial Recovery Act, perfectly clear. The deductions may be claimed for losses on stocks and bonds which are not capital assets—that is, which have not been held for a period of more than two years. However, losses of this nature may not be deducted in excess of gains of similar nature. To make the matter entirely plain, a person

These same general limitations are applicable to both corporations and individuals as well as other taxpayers, with the exception of dealers in securities as to stocks and bonds acquired for resale to customers in respect of transactions in the ordinary course of business. In defining stocks and bonds for the purpose of limitation, the statute specifically excludes bonds issued by the government, a state or a political subdivision thereof. This exclusion includes bonds issued by the government of the United States or a State or political subdivision and also bonds issued by a foreign country or foreign municipality. "Family Religion" To Be Subject of Revival Sermon

"Family Religion" will be the theme of the sermon by Dr. W. W. Chancellor tonight (Monday) at the First Baptist revival. Those who have heard the evangelist on this theme before state that this will be perhaps the greatest sermon of the revival. Families are being invited to attend tonight's service and occupy seats together. A Bible will be given the largest individual family in attendance.

Sunday's services were largely attended, and some 14 people united with the church at the two services. At the evening service the large auditorium was well filled.
 At the morning service today, Dr. Chancellor brought a message to a large group of Christian people on the subject "The Way to Gaza" or "The Way of the Christians." The way to Gaza, he said, was a desert way—and an obscure road—but at Gaza there was a great blessing to be performed; a great blessing in store. So it is with the Christian, the evangelist said, he must be willing to go the obscure, unnoticed way if necessary in order to perform the duty and receive the promised blessings.
 The services each evening at 7:30, and mornings 10 to 11 o'clock. The public generally, and all Christian people, are cordially invited to the services.

Yesterday was one of the best days of the new year for Central Baptist church. Like other churches in this community, its Sunday school attendance has been below par because of the flu epidemic in the city, but yesterday a number of families who have been out because of sickness found their places in its services.
 The adult department of the Sunday school was the banner department, with over 100 adults in attendance. This increased attendance is due to the splendid work of the five organized classes. The entire Sunday school attendance was 251.
 At the morning hour the pastor spoke to a filled house on "God's Call to Soul Winning." At the evening hour, Dr. R. H. White of Los Angeles delivered a splendid message on the "Blessings of Suffering." A number of visitors from Eastland, Olden and Staff were present to hear their boyhood friend, Dr. White, speak. Dr. White is a brother of Mrs. A. K. Wier.
 The Baptist Training school under Morris Jeffersons showed an increase in interest and attendance and again the duits union was the banner union.

Romance, Melody Are Blended For Cat and the Fiddle

A new romantic musical co-starring team makes its bow to the Arcadia theatre starting today, when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new hit, "The Cat and the Fiddle," opened a two-day engagement.

Ramon Novarro and Jeanette MacDonald are the co-stars and already they have been hailed as a sensational "find" wherever the picture has been shown.

Both are widely known for their concert work, in addition to their fame as screen stars. Both recently returned from extended concert tours of Europe, where they are popular both on the screen and the musical stage. Novarro, in fact, was literally mobbed by admirers when he appeared in public and Miss MacDonald is generally conceded to be the reigning favorite of the French people.

 Their teaming by M-G-M is generally conceded to be a master stroke of showmanship.
 "The Cat and the Fiddle," which concerns an idyllic and thoroughly modern love affair between two ambitious young music students in romantic Brussels, was adapted from the stage success by Jerome Kern and Otto Harbach. It embodies such song hits as "The Night Was Made for Love," "One Moment Alone," "Try to Forget," "She Didn't Say Yes," "The Love Parade" and "A New Love Is Old."

Appearing in support of the stars is a notable cast including Frank Morgan, Charles Butterworth, Jean Harsholt and Vivienne Segal. William K. Howard directed.

 Someone tipped off the coach that most of those who failed to make some of their grades did so in order that they would not have to come out for track, which the coach doubts, but he said that they were all making passing grades again as soon as the danger of having to face a cold March wind in a track suit had passed.
 Among those he listed as ineligible for one reason or another, mostly grades, were Bryan, Anderson, Payton, Jacoby, Agnew, Donoho, Rhodes, Walsh, Caraway and Gray. There were a couple of others, he said, but he didn't remember, off-hand, just who they were.
 He has been keeping books on them for the past few weeks.

though, and has each of them listed with the subjects they are taking and he checks up on them regularly. As soon as one gets a little doubtful he gets them off to one side and talks it over with them and tells them to get busy and make better grades, or something. Anyway, after the conference they begin studying harder and get better grades. Which is something.
 A few who might be track team material are not coming out for other reasons, though, such as having to work after school and not wanting to be on the team anyway. So, with a three-man track team, none of who have had much experience, it is doubtful if Ranger could put out much of a team. Reports from Eastland are not much better as far as a track team is concerned, where we have it on unofficial information that only six boys have been working out and few, if any, of them have ever been in a meet. So Cisco or some of the smaller towns will probably walk off with the county meet and unless they have good track material there is little chance of Eastland county being well represented in the district meet.

We drove by the football park yesterday afternoon and it is just like it was a few weeks back. If it is not harrowed and dragged pretty soon we would suggest that someone put in a cotton crop there, or something. At least it is in much better shape for planting cotton than playing football.

Grange Approves Football Passing Rule

NEW ORLEANS.—Harold "Red" Grange, "Galloping Ghost" of collegiate and professional grid-irons, approves of the newly adopted college football rule on forward passing, which permits a team to pass into the end zone without losing the ball.
 "I was glad to see the rules committee change the forward pass game, teams will take more chances, there'll be more scoring, and the spectators will find the game more enjoyable," Grange said.

Cancer Experts Praise the X-Ray

PHILADELPHIA.—An effective treatment for certain forms of cancer, recently announced from the Middlesex Hospital in London, has been used with gratifying results in the Temple University Hospital, Dr. William N. Parkinson, dean of the university medical school, said.

The treatment, known as the fractional X-ray method, was discovered by Dr. Coutard, a French scientist.
 "We have followed the method here for the past three years," Dr. Parkinson said, "and have had very satisfactory results."
 "It is not applicable to all cases of cancer. In fact, there are special types in which a few large doses of X-ray will accomplish more than a so-called 'Coutard series.'"
 "We have used the method in cases of cancer of the tongue, esophagus, lungs and practically every part of the body, but it will be necessary to continue the work for several years before we will be certain which methods are best suited to each type of cancer."

THE ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY
PABLITO, a handsome 17-year-old fellow, works at the restaurant home of millionaire JIM FIEDL. When Fiedl's daughter, ESTELLE, arrives he falls in love with her almost at sight.
 Pablito knows nothing of his parents—a titled Englishman and a servant girl. As a child he ran away from ANGLIA. A penniless old man in whose care he was left, stole them. He has lived with MORRIS NOYES, wanted by police for a murder years before. FIEDL FIGHTS, a guest at the Field home, sees Noyes flee to the swamp where he overhears a man and girl planning to rob the Field home during a masquerade party the following evening. Pablito gives Noyes money to go to Havana and promises to meet him there later.
 Noyes is disguised as a tenebrous, goes to the masquerade in order to talk to Estelle.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

SHE smiled liking his manner of speech, but frowned an instant later because she did not like the meaning of it.
 "That is foolish," she said.
 "I wish it were things would be so much simpler. You see, as it is, I have to acquire the proper armor—finger rings—something and a lace—i mean a check book. And I have to learn the password which is knowing the right people. There's so much I haven't that I need!"
 "You are very clever," Estelle said. "Who taught you about all those things?"
 "I can't tell you," he answered a little wryly creeping into his voice. "For a moment she was chilled, failing to see loyalty in the wall between them. "But I'm not clever," he added.
 "I wish I could see your face," she said.
 "I see yours in the dark or light and I see it most of the time."
 SHE was vaguely depressed by the sweetness that made her thick and overwhelming an aura around her and by the transiency of such sweetness, which she knew because on the morrow the maid would begin to pack for the flight north.
 "Are you going north?" she asked.
 "No." He sat looking down at her steadily and unrepentingly in a few short hours miles would lie between them. Suddenly she leaned toward him and he felt her hand on his. He turned quickly to grip her fingers and remembered the fact that her hand was small and soft and that he must not hurt her.
 "We must be friends," she said not quite steadily. "I do so want us to be friends."
 For a moment he pressed her hand against his breast where the hard pounding of his heart would speak for him. Then abruptly he released it to sit away from her. His strong teeth set on his lower lip, frowning from his effort to recapture a little steadiness.
 "The fine automobile part doesn't matter," she whispered.
 "Oh, but it does!" he contradicted, his voice almost harsh. "I have lived one life and looked on at another and it has taught me a lot I would have missed if I had been walked inside the one or the other. But I'm going to work for the right to come back and pound on the front gate. I'm going to work for nothing else but that. Will you remember that? He had to stop to get his breath. "Will you remember?" he went on. "That I am coming back and that I shall never forget it and that I'll live on my dreams about it."
 "Yes—" he heard her whisper.
 He drew a deep breath, then lifted her clasped hands from her knees to kiss first one and then the other. She shrank a little because she loved it so. His white-cased, brows drawn close by feeling. "You needn't be afraid of me—ever—in any way. Will you remember that, too?"
 "Yes," she whispered again, and thought, "I wish he would kiss me." She did not care whether the thought were wicked or not; she wished he would kiss her!
