SAMUEL INSULL AS A "DAMNED LITERARY FELLER"

Samuel Insull, facing trial in the criminal courts of Chicago, is a very busy man. He is writing a book. He is working six days a week as "a literary feller." He is going to tell how he started as a poor boy in England, crossed the Atlantic ocean, landed in the city of New York, became the secretary and adviser to the immortal Edison, kept his eye on the job, became the ruler of a $2,000,000-000 utilities empire, became an invisible ruler of a dozen commonwealths, went down in the crash of 1929, became a fugitive from justice, was extradited from Greece by American authorities and now at 74 patiently awaits the verdict of 12 of his peers in the jury box. Robert Quillen may not be a prophet, but his guess is that Samuel Insull will be given a verdict of acquittal. If so, his book should be one of "the six best sellers" along in autumn time.

It is time that the pacifist politicians should realize the fact that their efforts, laudable though they may be from a moral and economic standpoint, are simply wasted, and give up monkeying with the security of the nation.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

OUT OUR WAY

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES
"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 8.
The Golden Text is: "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world" (John 6:33).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me" (Revelation 3:20).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing. He taught his followers that his religion had a divine Principle, which would cast out error and heal both the sick and the sinning. He claimed no intelligence, action, nor life separate from God. Despite the persecution this brought upon him, he used his divine power to save man both bodily and spiritually" (page 136).
Sports writers have praised Carnera for not staying down for the count of nine. Maybe he couldn't count that high.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY
"STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"
By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her mother and her fiancée, AMY JARVIS, that she can make a success of her life. She has her best friend with her, HOWARD JARVIS, who is engaged to Jane's sister, MARY. Jane is unable to bear the sight of Amy's happiness. Jane obtains a job in a New York real estate office.
Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She runs into her old friend, THORPE, a business man who is married. Later she tries to win him over by offering to have the expense of their child she discovers him contemptuously.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XV
No Jane requested herself, she didn't regret Thorpe. "I can get through by myself better than having him whining about," she thought angrily. "Afraid that he'll be found out and disgraced."
She tried to think of someone she could tell. There was Miss Jardine, but she wouldn't be able to hear Miss Jardine's questions and see possible satisfaction that Jane was in such distress. Miss Jardine had disapproved of Jane's apartment. She had, Jane was sure, seen a thought envious of Jane's quick success. As an aid in trouble Miss Jardine would not do.
And there were no girls or women in the Kandel organization to whom Jane could turn. They'd talk. They'd be sure to find out about Thorpe and the office she'd go through the office she'd run to wood.
The only person in the office who seemed at all possible was Kandel himself. Jane knew that he could understand. She could be blunt and straight with him and he with her. But there again, if she talked to Kandel, Thorpe would be implicated. And whatever happened Jane meant to keep silence about Thorpe. It was not so much to protect him as to protect herself for the future. She had learned the hard lesson that every person set into a secret increases its sharer by ten.
Of course, there was Aunt Rosa. But I'll walk straight into Haden before I tell her," Jane said stoutly. "She'd go off her head and she'd drive me crazy, too. The preaching I'd have to stand, and the way she'd carry on! Aunt Rosa's out once and for all."
Thinking of Aunt Rosa brought back Marburg. It's quiet streets and quiet shaded noises. And then suddenly her dream came back two girls walking under the elm trees as in a high green tunnel, two girls in light dresses, laughing together—why of course—Amy! Amy would stand by. Amy would not preach. Amy would hold her tongue.
She could trust and depend on Amy as on no other person in the world. There was relief in the very thought of her. Jane's quick advantage-seeking mind added the weight of Amy's promise—Amy had said that she was always her friend, that she would do anything, anything! Jane brushed aside as nothing the cruel stabbing things she had said and written to Amy. She had no bar to her appeal.
I was more difficult than Jane had foreseen to make contact with her friend Amy could not come to her at once, as Jane demanded. She couldn't, it seemed at first, come to her at all. Jane realized the justice of this. She knew that Amy couldn't dash off alone to New York at a moment's notice without giving Marburg an adequate reason and Jane had no intention that Marburg gossip should lay hold of her name.
But presently the opportunity came in an easy way. Old Professor Killest was suddenly seized with a longing for one last visit to the scenes of his student days in Germany, one last pilgrimage to the Kaiserstuhl, the Hohenwilt and the Eiffel crater lakes, Eschbach and Deitzen, at the spots where he had so happily collected his first geological specimens, and it was obvious even to himself that he could not go alone. Naturally he turned to Howard. He would pay all expenses. He would make the trip short—this last apologetically in Amy—but he did want power fully to go and to have his young aide with him. It was impossible to refuse the old man.
They rushed their preparations and sailed on the sixteenth of July and Amy came to New York to see them off. It was a very steamy day, and when the ship had pulled away from the pier Amy did not want to watch it down the river. She was tired from the stifling heat and distaste at this parting from Howard for though she was used to his field trips, this was different. He was so much farther away and besides, they had been planning to an abroad together in another year. It was all disappointing and stupid and nothing to be done about it. And now she must hurry to see Jane and find out what her mysterious, disturb the unhappy letters meant.
Amy hailed a taxi and gave Jane's address and tried to wrench her thoughts from her own feelings and get them into a proper state to meet Jane.
"If she's simply acting and working herself into one of her states as she used to do," Amy said to her self firmly. "I'd walk out on her flat. I don't want to bear any sense from Jane."
All the same, it was exciting to think of seeing Jane again, of seeing where and how she lived, and perhaps being friends once more. Maybe Jane had repented the way she had behaved about Howard and her wild accusations against both him and Amy but that seemed unlikely.
She wished the interview over. The real reason for it she never once suspected. With her eyes still dazed from the outside glare she walked hesitantly into the shadowy salon of Jane's apartment, and a shadowy, misshapen figure came hesitantly to meet her.
"Is Miss Terry—" began Amy.
And Jane's voice, shrill, trembling, "Amy—Amy!"
Then Amy knew why she had sent for her. She was so struck with horror and amazement that she could not speak, but she held out her hands and the two women clung together in silence, which presently broke into a chaotic murmuring half-speech, half-incoherent wordless exclamation.
"I knew—I knew you'd come. There was nobody but you."
"Jane—oh poor Jane!"
"Amy—Amy! I'm so afraid—it's all so dreadful!"
"But Jane—tell me—"
And Jane told. Not very much, not very clearly, but enough for Amy to understand the folly, the danger, the pity of what she had done. Amy understood something more. That for once Jane was not acting, not shamming. For once Jane was honest with herself and her audience.
"If you'll only stay with me, Amy. That's what I mind, being so utterly alone. If I only felt well I'd get through it by myself but I feel so strange. Sometimes I think I might die here without a soul around. You will stay with me, won't you? You won't leave me—"
"But how can I stay, Jane?"
"Only came on to see the boat sail. I didn't even close the house or make any arrangements. I haven't even any clothes with me except what I need for these two days." But already she was planning. Her mother would take care of the house, send her something to wear. And Howard was gone, would be gone for weeks. She might somehow manage it.
Jane felt her weakening. "You can telegraph that you've decided to make me a little visit. Then you can write. They'll certainly see nothing odd in that. No one will think anything odd of whatever you do anyway. Amy. Oh, stay with me." It's only another month. You couldn't go away and leave me now you've seen me."
The two girls looked at one another. Amy lovely as she had at first been in her fair serenity, her fair life, Jane tumbled and swollen and hollow-eyed, aged and ill. It hurt Amy unbearably to see her so. And Jane, half-glancing toward the nearest mirror, said, with a twist of dry humor, "I look like the WAGES of sin, don't I? Oh, and I meant to be so free, an glorious I ought to be shot for a fool."
"Don't! Jane dear, don't! I only wish it was my child."
"I'll give it to you, if you like. I'm going to send it away to be adopted as soon as it's born. I'm not going to keep it."
"Jane, you don't mean that. That's the wickedest thing I ever heard of. You wanted to have this child and now you're not going to take care of it! That's horrible. I— you mustn't even think of such a horrible thing."
Jane's great mournful eyes gazed at her friend in utter distillation. "Amy," she said, "do you really think I'd make a good mother? Wouldn't any child be better off with someone who wants it? This child, if it lives—it ought never to know who its mother is."

Candidates—
candidates or just "against" Governor Ross S. Sterling.
Hunter is reported choice of the oil field workers, and there are about 50,000 of them to vote. Allred seems to be favored by other large labor groups. No candidate can claim a solid labor support.
The week's end will also end a three-week test period said to have been set by a considerable group to determine if they would center on Witt or Small. Hearsay puts the meeting of the group at an Austin hotel and makes it politically strong.
Hughes, apparently, fears that Hunter is getting the Bohemian vote. At Austin he said that Hunter was the first candidate to be dry in English and wet in Bohemian.
Allred's personal vote appeal is to apolitical campaign what the sex appeal of some movie stars is to the boxoffice. It's indefinable, but it's there and it gets results. "Even his best friend" would tell Russell that he has no chance to get into the August run-off. He may get 25,000 votes. If Russell were not running and those 25,000 should go in a lump to some other candidate, they probably would decide who will go into the run-off.

Tree Planting Is Planned As Aid In Drouth Areas

WASHINGTON—A tremendous tree-planting project, calling for a belt of trees 1,300 miles long to protect drouth-stricken states from future caprices of the sun, is under consideration by the administration, officials of American Tree association said.

The chain of verdure would stretch 100 miles wide from North Dakota to the Texas Panhandle. Its magnitude would be such as to be visible from the planet Mars. Purpose of the tree belt would be to assure adequate rains for the great farm states, protect watersheds and correct soil conditions.

This gigantic phase of the national planning program of the administration would get under way through a $25,000,000 allocation already made by President Roosevelt for land purchases in drouth states and CCC enlistments, Charles L. Pack, president of the association said.

Pack said the entire program would take 10 to 12 years and cost $75,000,000. The tree chain would extend through the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and into Texas. He estimated 260,000 miles of fencing would be required to keep out sheep and cattle and that 280,000 acres would be planted with cottonwoods, green ash and other suitable timber.

It was indicated that many of the 25,000 CCC workers to be engaged for service in drouth areas would aid farmers in getting the project under way.

Wanted to Wait In Jail For Wedding

GREAT FALLS, Mont.—Alex Zwanetzek waded indignant when the judge here proposed to sentence him to 30 days in jail on a vagrancy charge. "I want 90 days, or nothing," the laborer demanded.

"My girl friend is doing 90 days in jail now. We're going to be married when she gets out. I haven't anything else to do, and I want to stay in jail till her time's up!"

The court granted Alex's request and he strode away to his cell.

That nudist wedding held recently at the Chicago World's Fair was the latest assignment the society reporters ever had. All they had to describe was the ring

Trick of Picking Up Snake Failed

FORT DAVIS, Tex.—Norris Creath boasted he could pick up a rattlesnake without being bitten. "It's a trick," he said. Creath picked up a three and a half-foot serpent by the neck. The "trick" failed when the snake bent its head and struck Creath on the hand. Snake bite serum prevented serious consequences.

Installment Plan Is Inaugurated By John Tarleton

STEPHENVILLE, Texas.—A plan for installment payments on college expenses has been announced by Dean J. Thomas Davis of John Tarleton Agricultural college for the 1934-35 session. Tarleton's "new deal" will make it possible for students to enter college in the fall by making a down payment of between $9 and $28, to be followed by four like payments Oct. 1, Nov. 1, Dec. 1, and Jan. 1. Spring semester payments may be made in four installments. These payments will cover fees, uniforms, books and other supplies, and, if the student stays on the campus, room and board. The variation depends chiefly on whether the student rooms and boards on the campus, and partly by the cost of uniforms and of school supplies. To cover the amount due the college, students will be allowed to borrow as much as $50 from the student loan, putting up a note as collateral. Hence it is necessary that those who wish to use the plan should file their applications not later than Aug. 18, or 30 days prior to the opening of the fall semester on Sept. 17.

Intangible Values of Pipe Lines Is Puzzle To Railroad Commission

AUSTIN, Tex.—Attempts to place a finger on the intangible value of Texas pipe lines is proving one of the most puzzling problems the state has faced in years. The intangible value is highly intangible. The state legislature was told that from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 in revenue from pipe lines might be forthcoming if they, like railroads, were subjected to intangible assets tax. If a preliminary valuation stands, the taxes will shrink far below one million. W. D. Williams, former mayor of Fort Worth who resigned to accept appointment on the state railroad commission, first undertook to make tax-tangible assets that are intangible. The theory is that a concern that can earn a given return is worth whatever amount of money would reasonably return that income on investment. Williams proposed that railroad earnings be averaged over a period of years sufficient to offset good and bad spurts, and that an intangible value be determined from that. Six per cent was assumed as the normal return. If a railroad earned an average of $100,000 a year, its valuation was fixed at $1,666,666. From this $1,666,666 there was deducted the value of its physical property, like stations, engines, round houses and tracks. The remainder was the intangible asset. As a matter of fact many railroads have experienced such a flop in earnings that they could successfully answer that they have no intangible assets. For some reason they continue to accept without protest an intangible tax. They are satisfied with reduced valuations. This is not entirely due to a big-hearted desire to help support the state and its institutions. As long as they have an intangible assets tax, the railroads are freed by statute from certain other forms of taxation, such as a gross receipts tax and a franchise tax. Applying the intangible asset theory to pipe lines has not been so simple. The same scale cannot be used. A pipe line is considered a much more hazardous investment than a railroad. A railroad once built is counted upon to continue operation indefinitely. A pipe line operates only until the particular oil field it serves has been exhausted. A railroad expects increasing earnings with age, in normal times. A pipe line expects an early peak of earnings, succeeded by a continuing decline. It is an open secret that 12-1/2 per cent was used by accountants of the state intangible tax board set to work on valuations. With this rate the total valuations are around $100,000,000. If valuations remain at that sum when hearings now under way are ended, the state will get a revenue of only about $770,000 a year instead of millions. Counties also will participate in raised taxes. The average county tax rate is 73 cents compared with the state's 77 cents. The figures get tricky when change of ratio is proposed for fixing the intangible value. Taking off a fifth, or adding a fifth to the ratio, does not raise or lower the valuation in that proportion. For each $100,000 earning an asset value of $800,000 exists the 12-1/2 per cent ratio is used. If the ratio is changed to 10, the valuation per $100,000 in earnings goes to a million. If 15 per cent is used the valuation is only $666,666 plus.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
TAKEN your list along but don't be too iron-clad about it when you go to market. Leave something to be decided according to the need of the moment and the attractive groupings on the vegetable and fruit stands. When making the list, the fresh fruits, meats and vegetables to be used should be kept in mind. Vegetables wanted for soups need not be as perfect as those wanted for table service. Coarse outer stalks of celery are quite as flavorful for soup as tender parts and much cheaper. Amount to Purchase. Close calculation as to the amounts needed is another aid to economical buying. Nearly all foods are cheaper when purchased in large quantities. But if there is danger of food spoiling before it can be used, nothing is gained by taking the larger amount. On the other hand, if a definite plan has been worked out to make use of the extra amount, the purchase is justified and advisable. It's often a good idea to market for two days at a time. The roast used hot for one meal may be sliced cold for the next, the extra spinach may be milled and served as a salad the second day, the outer leaves of a head of lettuce can be used in a cream soup—and so on. By the way, peas in the pod are deceiving, for unless the pods are well filled the yield of the valuable vegetable is small. One pound of well-filled green peas in the pod will serve two people. One-half pound of green beans will serve two persons generously. Ray for Two Days. One pound of fresh spinach will serve two persons with enough left for a salad for two if the spinach is combined with egg. Vegetables like beets, corn and carrots must be chosen in regard to size. One large beet or carrot is considered enough for the average serving, but if the vegetables are small two or maybe three will be needed. Of fruits and vegetables, two pounds per day per person are recommended by authorities. The average man doing moderately hard physical work needs from two to five pounds of vegetables alone each week in addition to five or six pounds of potatoes. People doing light work will not require so much.

NEW YORK.—The Egyptians passed it on to the Greeks, and then the Turks took it up, and we still have Jim London. We've had him for almost a score of years, and we're likely to have him for a long time to come. Wrestlers seem to improve with age. London was the first grappler to learn that the show is the thing, but long since has proved that he possesses a keener dramatic sense than any other behemoth who ever applied hammers and locks. And that's saying a lot in a field that does through the ages has out-throated the Barrymores. London's showmanship unquestionably has much to do with his being back on top again, which is where his victory over Jim Brownling in the Sunken Garden the other night put him. Those who saw London carry the antiquated dodge to its financial peak couldn't understand why the Jack Curley and Paul Bowser forces joined hands three years ago to squeeze out the Golden Greek. It was like Tex Rickard passing Jack Dempsey, Colonel Bert releasing Babe Ruth and his legs were good, or golfing Robert Tyre Jones, or the Golden Greek. LONDON is one of the most phenomenal attractions in sports history. Few ever have been able to go from town to town and pack places like he does. Four winters ago the trade actually broke in the Garden doors to see him practice his artistry with one Ferenc Holubak, and the doors had to be locked and the riot

V. V. Cooper Is Running His Race Upon His Merits

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT NO. 1, EASTLAND COUNTY

In offering myself as a candidate for commissioner of this precinct, it shall be my purpose to make the race on my own merits, qualifications and past record. My opponent is charging me, as former commissioner, with being responsible for the precinct being in debt when he went into office. In this connection, I desire to state that this indebtedness was unavoidable and was occasioned by reason of the fact that the State Highway Department required the widening of highways through Eastland County and about fifty-five miles of Highways Numbers 1 and 67 were in Precinct No. 1. It cost approximately $15,000.00 to provide right-of-way, remove and rebuild fences and purchase and install necessary culverts. Furthermore, one rain in June, 1932, washed out fifty-six bridges and culverts which of necessity had to be replaced and rebuilt at a cost of $4,000.00. Then again in the summer of 1932 the old bridge on Colony Creek at the Panhandle Lease had to be replaced with an 80-foot steel span and the wooden bridge on Ranger Thurber road in East end of the county burned and had to be replaced, the two costing approximately $4,500.00. The circumstances which caused the above expenditures were, of course, beyond my control and I should not be held responsible for them. In the expenditure of the above amount which were absolutely necessary, many of our unemployed citizens were given employment. Not only was it my official duty to make these improvements and expend these funds, but I, also, had the satisfaction of knowing that the money spent for labor went into the hands of many of our needy and worthy citizens. While in office I tried at all times to be conservative, I was not unmindful of my fellowman's material needs. I hope that you will bear in mind that while I was in office I did not have thousands of dollars of C. W. A. funds to spend on projects in my precinct as has your present commissioner. I will leave it to your present commissioner. I will leave it to your judgment as to whether or not these funds have been wisely spent.

Much is being said about first and second terms. I believe you are not so much interested in the terms as you are in the service which you will receive. I desire to mention a few things which I favor and will work for if elected: I favor building and maintaining good roads at the least possible cost and which would serve the greatest number of people. I believe a laborer should be paid wages that will enable them to properly support their families. I will give every consideration to the old, poor and needy of the county who are not being provided for otherwise. I will co-operate with the teachers and parents of the schools in my precinct, as I have done in the past, in bettering the roads leading to the schools and also properly grading and maintaining school grounds. I favor giving reductions in tax values wherever and whenever justifiable. I most respectfully request that you give my candidacy your careful consideration, then, if you believe with my qualifications and experience that I can serve to the best advantage and can favor me with your support and influence you may be assured that it will be deeply appreciated. Promising you, if elected your commissioner that I will be on the job at all times working for the best interest of our precinct. Very truly yours, V. V. COOPER. (Political Adv.)

American Sailors Fight With French

By United Press
NICE, France, July 7.—All shore leave from the American battleships Arkansas and Wyoming was cancelled today after street riots that left 20 American seamen injured and 40 in the ship's brig. Two of the injured were in serious condition. A police statement said the biggest riot, at the Cafe de Paris, started when a large bill was presented to a group of seamen and one of them said: "Take it off the war debt." The fight was on.

Railroad Workers Show An Increase

Caustic Judge Out for Senate

One of the nation's most colorful judges, austere, caustic-tongued George M. Bourquin, above, has resigned from the U. S. bench to run for the U. S. Senate from Montana as a Republican. A terror to liquor defendants in dry days, he was noted for his impatience with petty cases and his motto was, "This court may be in error, but never is in doubt."

Charlie Chan, played by Warner Oland, solves another blood-chilling mystery in the Fox picture, "Charlie Chan's Courage," coming to the Columbia Theatre today.

Who threw the deadly knife that killed a faithful Chinese servant? Why did a pet parrot scream, "Help! Murder!" Who killed the bird, silencing that scream forever? Who had been murdered at a millionaire's lonely desert mansion... and where was the body?
 These are the questions bristling forth from the story by Earl Derr Biggers that have to be solved by the enigmatic oriental detective created on the screen by Warner Oland. It is one of his most baffling mysteries.

Bernie Has Leading Role In First Film

Ben Bernie, of musical fame, featured in Paramount's "Shoot the Works," coming Monday to the Arcadia Theatre, revealed that his own career has not been unlike the part he plays in this, his first motion picture.
 In the film Bernie plays a band leader. He starts with a five-piece orchestra in the small-time, and finishes with a seventeen-piece band in a swanky cabaret.
 "Shoot the Works" was directed by Wesley Ruggles from an original play written by Ben Hecht and Gene Fowler, and features Jack Oakie, Dorothy Dell and Arline Judge. The film also features six songs. They are: "With My Eyes Wide Open, I'm Dreaming," "Take a Lesson from the Lark," "Do I Love You?" "Wave Your Ears Burning?" "In the Good Old Winter Time," and "A Bowl of Chop Suey and You-ey."

Marion Davies and Gary Cooper In Feature at Arcadia

As a complete contrast to her earlier light-hearted screen roles, Marion Davies contributes her finest dramatic performance in her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture "Operator 13," today at the Arcadia Theatre.

Miss Davies plays the role of Gale Loveless a northern actress who the famed Allan Pinkerton, General McClelland's chief of secret service, sends into the Southern lines to track down Captain Jack Galliard, scout in the staff of General J. E. B. Stuart.

Gary Cooper appears as Captain Galliard with whom Gale Loveless falls in love though she has been assigned to destroy him. The picture is replete with authentic historical episodes and in the cast appear characters whose names are famous in Civil War history.

For the setting, many places of historical interest in the rebellion were reproduced—famous Southern mansions of Virginia and West Virginia, military headquarters and hospitals, the charm and beauty of Southern plantation life, exact replicas of Washington street scenes of Richmond, Virginia and Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Music also plays a prominent part in the unfolding of the romantic story, including melodies of the Old South, as sung by the Mills Brothers, old-fashioned plantation dances and an entrancing song by Miss Davies.

Richard Bibb-slavy, former director of the Moscow Art Theatre and the man who aided Max Reinhardt in the production of "The Miracle," directed "Operator 13."

Charles Lay, promoter of the Elks fight cards on each Monday night, says that the card for the coming Monday is the best he has had since Dempsey was here.

The fans all know that Windham and Bill Deonowho will put up a real scrap. Those boys are matched for 10 rounds.

Jimmie Scallons and Orville Curtis are evenly matched and this should be a great match. Bill Donowho won over Scallons last Monday.

Red Rodgers and Little Blacksmith Smith will meet in a two-hour time limit wrestling match, which promises to be a real match between these tough youngsters. Rodgers has licked everything from the referee and promoter on down to his opponent and we were told that Blacksmith Smith sends Red word that the first time he gets rough with him it is going to be too bad for Red. Red merely grinned when he got the message and said tell Smith to tend to his own business.

Ladies are admitted free with each paid ticket to the ringside.

Fielding Averages Of Twilight Teams

Since only two games were played in the Twilight League this week, the following four teams are the only ones whose fielding averages were changed, the team averages being as follows:

TEAM	PO.	A.	E.	Pct.
Magnolia	41	15	5	.918
Fee Fee	42	15	5	.915
Lone Star Gas	42	24	8	.891
Marathon	43	15	12	.828

AGAINST DAYLIGHT SAVING
 By United Press

ST. LOUIS, — Opposition of moving picture theater owners, labor union groups and the Municipal Theater Association, which conducts the outdoor Municipal Opera in Forest Park here, resulted this year in death of a bill to provide daylight saving time for St. Louis. It died by unanimous vote of the Public Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen.

The only thing General Johnson likes about the third Darrow report on the NRA, more than he did the other two, is that this is the last.

To some, according to the news it turned out to be an unsafe and insane Fourth.

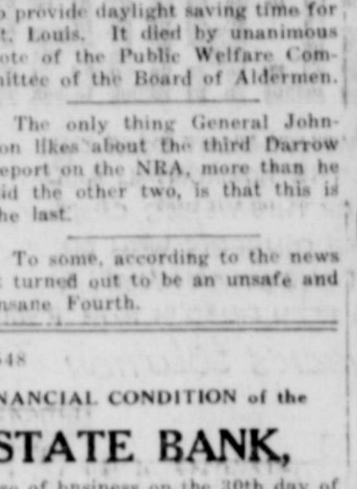

During all this fuss in Germany, did you know that a new president was elected in Mexico and quietly, too?
