PILOT'S NERVE SAVED FOUR PEOPLE'S LIVES

By United Press
WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Aug. 30.—Pilot Lou Foote's courage and presence of mind in the face of serious damage to his plane and flames that burned him painfully, were credited today with saving the lives of members of the "third Boze rain-making expedition" which ended yesterday in near disaster.

The premature explosion of three bombs in the plane as it soared near here, blew out one side of the plane. In the plane were Foote, James Boze, sponsor of the rain-making flight, Miss Gertrude Jefferies, and a newsreel photographer.

The ship was destroyed by fire in a few minutes after the landing. The previous rain-making attempts had been followed by showers but Boze attempted the flight yesterday when skeptics credited natural causes.

Boze, given treatment to alleviate pain from his burns, had not announced further plans for another assault on the clouds.

Lions to Attend National Housing Meet Wednesday

Due to the fact that the entire time following luncheon, was devoted to business, the Lions club found it necessary to postpone until next week the program prepared by Prof. R. F. Holloway on the Texas Centennial. The program is looked forward to with a great deal of interest, as the centennial is daily becoming more important to every Texan, and every Lion who possibly can is planning to be present.

Lion R. W. Fesmire, vice president, who acted today in the absence of Lion President Colonel Brasher, told the club of the coming next week of Robert Stewart of Fort Worth to address the business men of Ranger on the national housing act. Mr. Stewart is coming here on the invitation of Ranger people to help in laying plans and getting started in obtaining money for repairs to homes in Ranger on money borrowed on the NHA plan which guarantees financial institutions against loss and makes it possible for loans to be made without the old-time red tape, formalities and signers.

After discussion of the national housing act and its importance the club voted that all who could, meet with all the Retarians and other business men possible, next Wednesday noon at the Gholson hotel ballroom to hear Mr. Stewart and learn of everything that can possibly be done to secure more loans for Ranger homes. Included in the same motion the club agreed to hold their regular luncheon next Thursday in order that the membership attendance contest and the Texas Centennial program could be carried on without interruption.

A most welcome visitor in the club today was a former Ranger and member of the club, Dr. C. C. Craig, now of Lubbock, who is here transacting business.

Ranger Stores to Close Labor Day

At a meeting of members of the Retail Merchants association held in the office of the secretary Wednesday afternoon, it was unanimously voted to have all the stores in Ranger close for Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 3, and on Armistice Day, Monday, Nov. 12. Seven merchants who were not present were advised by telephone.

Since Armistice Day falls on Monday this year the stores will close all day Monday, which is the day on which the Ranger-Cisco baseball game will be played.

No particular plans have been made for a celebration of Labor Day, but the American Legion and national guard are co-operating in plans for the biggest Armistice Day celebration ever held in Ranger. As yet the plans are only tentative, but a more diversified program is being contemplated than has been staged in previous years.

Newspaper Offices Will Close Monday

The offices of the Eastland Telegram, the Eastland Chronicle and the Ranger Daily and Weekly Times will be closed all day Monday, September 3, in celebration of Labor Day.

No daily paper will be issued from either office and the entire personnel will have the day off.

The daily papers will appear again on Tuesday afternoon, while the regular issues of the weekly papers will be published on Friday, reaching the subscribers as usual.

Rehabilitation Is Explained at Meet Wednesday

A hurriedly summoned group of Ranger citizens met in the office of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night at 8 o'clock to hear an explanation by County Project Supervisor Kawolsky.

The round-table discussion which followed the talk brought out several points that had not been clear in the minds of those present.

By rural rehabilitation is meant a step in the government's program to offer an opportunity to a person on the relief roll to render himself self-supporting.

In a few words, the program is just this: The government proposes to lease a small tract of land from a landowner (this landowner may be on the relief roll) and in lieu of rent will make improvements on the tract leased not to exceed $75 in materials and not to exceed $150 in labor. These improvements may be repairs to the house, to the barn, constructing a water tank, terracing, etc. In other words, the landowner lets the government have the land rent free and in return the government makes the improvements as above set out. The lease expires Dec. 31, 1935.

The government then places a relief client on the land. This client might be one recommended by the landowner. The client or tenant should be one who has had experience in farming as he will be expected to produce his own living. Of course the government will continue his budget until he no longer needs it but he must be able to show that he has the ability to get on his feet.

Many of the people are living in houses on farms now on an agreement with the landowner whereby they receive a house rent free for no benefits to the landlord at all. The rural rehabilitation plan provides that the landlord may have the benefit of the improvements that the government will make.

The tract of land required shall be such that a person can make a living thereon but shall exceed 25 acres. The landowner makes no agreement with the client or tenant. This is done by the government. The government makes an agreement of lease with the landowner and the government makes a contract with the client or tenant, who must be selected from the relief roll.

Any landowner who has a tract of land with a house on it and who desires to assist in this worthwhile program is urged to get in touch with the relief office and sign an agreement of lease and get your places improved while at the same time you are doing your part towards helping a family who wants a chance to get back on the farm and a chance to be on his own.

The co-operation of all citizens is earnestly desired and solicited. Those having land to lease should bring with them their abstract or deed so that a correct description may be inserted in the agreement.

A relief client who owns a tract of land and has a house on it should be the first one to come in and sign the lease agreement. For further information consult W. P. Woods, rural supervisor for this district, whose address is Breckenridge, or your local relief office.

The public is invited to attend this meeting which promises to be one of interest and worth while to every person who attends.

HIGHWAY PLAN IN WEST TEXAS BEING URGED

STAMFORD—The development of a regional highway plan for West Texas to comprehend the present and future needs of the area was launched by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Monday.

In a letter to the 203 directors of the regional chamber in the 191 affiliated cities and towns James D. Hamlin, president and R. H. Nichols, chairman of the regional chamber's territorial development commission sought their cooperation by giving a statement of the arterial highway needs of each county in the territory.

They said: "For the purpose of being of the maximum assistance in securing for the West Texas territory an adequate state and federal highway system, we propose, with your assistance, to develop and champion a highway plan that will comprehend our area's present and future needs. The principal regional need is the development of arterial highways.

"As a beginning in the development of this plan we must know the state and federal highway needs of your town and county. Therefore, want you to immediately submit a report giving the needs of your county and section, stating by whom approved and submitted. We suggest you cooperate with your local chamber of commerce and public officials in the preparation of the report. Do not include any lateral or local roads, as we expect to interest ourselves only in promoting development of the major arteries of highway traffic.

"From these reports from our affiliated towns we shall undertake to prepare for West Texas a plan for developing and building our highways. We expect this plan to become a part of the work of the National Planning Board, and to assist in the preparation of the plan we have secured the services of Julian Montgomery, well known planning engineer of Wichita Falls, who served for a time with the National Planning Board. When the plan is completed we expect to submit it and advocate it with all possible vigor before the State Highway commission, with the view of hastening the day when West Texas will have a complete highway system.

Water Supply Projects Will Be Submitted

AUSTIN, Aug. 30.—County relief administrators were notified today to submit projects for combating water shortage and for safeguarding existing water supplies in drought areas.

The order was issued on completion of a survey showing 50,000 families hauling water for domestic purposes, six municipalities importing water and 20 with supplies for only 30 days more.

A federal grant of $150,000 to be used for materials and equipment for water supply projects was announced. Relief labor will be used in the projects.

'Little NRA' May Be Formed As An Enforcement Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Beset by new resignations, troubled NRA shouldered forward today with plans for code enforcement, possibly through the medium of a "Little NRA."

Recovery agencies, in throes of controversy centering about Hugh Johnson, was revealed to be moving forward in spite of difficulties, with a proposed compliance drive.

The campaign would be directed through a "Little NRA"—regional headquarters in 12 cities so that enforcement officers could localize their efforts and take account of special conditions.

Post Will Try Out Stratosphere Suit

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Wiley Post said he would make a flight today at Curtiss-Reynolds airport to test equipment he will use in an attempt to penetrate the stratosphere.

On the main flight, to be attempted within a day or two, Post will attempt to reach an altitude of 50,000 feet, establishing a new record.

Allred Refuses to Comment On Talk With John Garner

AUSTIN, Aug. 30.—Attorney General James V. Allred refused to confirm or deny reports that he had been at Uvalde yesterday in conference with Vice President John Garner.

"I believe it is customary for a vice president to speak for himself," Allred said when asked if Garner desired to be democratic national committeeman from Texas.

The attorney general will leave during the day for Cleburne, having accepted an invitation to attend an anniversary celebration.

Work Progresses On Morton Valley School Building

Work is progressing rapidly on the new $21,000 school building being erected at Morton Valley, which will make the school one of the best equipped and most modern school structures in the county.

The contract was let to W. R. Truss of Abilene for erection of the building, the contract being let on Tuesday, June 12, and work starting on the building about two weeks later.

The fixtures for the school, which are the most modern that could be procured, were contracted for two weeks prior to the letting of the contract for construction of the building. The contract for fixtures and equipment was let to four companies.

The building was made possible by the sale of bonds which were made possible and saleable because the Morton Valley school is one of the few in the county which operates on a cash basis and which has never been in debt.

Excavations Show Development of Man

NUNI-TAGIL, U. S. S. R.—Excavations in an ancient peat swamp near here have shown that "primitive" man in the Ural district was not so primitive after all, in the opinion of Prof. D. N. Edding, head of the Soviet archaeological expedition which arrived here recently.

Among other articles found by the expedition were wooden idols of man, various utensils decorated with carved images of birds' heads and wooden images of elk, their backs scooped out to serve as bowls. These indicated that "primitive" man in this region had attained a rather high degree of artistic skill.

All Nazi-Jewish Relationship Is Ordered Banned

3,000,000 copies of the order have been printed and await distribution to Nazi party members. It was believed the order was result of the resolution at the conference at Geneva and was intended as a warning against the intensification of the boycott against German goods abroad.

Business House Repairs Included In Federal Plans

Although the credit channels opened up by the provisions of the National Housing Act are expected to be utilized mostly by home owners, the benefits of this all-important piece of legislation are by no means restricted to this class of borrowers.

The same sources that supply the funds for improving houses are ready to make advances to owners of industrial, commercial and other business properties—up to $2,000, of course—for needed renovation and modernization.

Industrial and commercial leaders are quick to concede that a well maintained store, apartment house, garage or factory is one of the foundation-pieces of a successful, paying business. New clients and customers are attracted by convenient, sanitary surroundings, and by the same token, old ones are retained.

Owners of business properties who undertake improvements at this time will find themselves able to repair and modernize at prices which, although on the rise, are still many percentage points below the level of normal years. A glimpse into the building supply and equipment field will disclose, also, important and far-reaching innovations in the realm of property maintenance. The keen competition that developed in the construction trades as a consequence of declining activity during the era of economic stress has been productive of advances in design and utilitarianism that the almost revolutionary in character.

$49,964.74 Asked For County Relief

Relief needs in Eastland county for September will approximate $49,964.74, according to an estimate prepared by the relief office which was forwarded to Austin Aug. 27.

The 9,600 in Eastland county on the direct relief rolls at present indicates a slight increase over figures in the past, those connected with the administrative department state.

Medical attention expenses are on the increase. Last month the cost of medical care for those on the relief rolls totaled $825.

As the resolution was adopted the third called session of the legislature automatically lengthened into a full 30-day session, or perhaps longer.

Ferguson Forum May Be Suspended

AUSTIN, Aug. 30.—After more than 17 years of publication, the Ferguson Forum, weekly edited by former Governor James E. Ferguson, may be discontinued.

Today he wrote: "On account of hard times our subscription list has been reduced to where the revenues are not sufficient to publish the paper. I have made arrangements, though, to continue the paper for a few weeks yet and give the people an opportunity to say by their subscriptions whether they want the Forum to continue."

JOHNSON WILL CONTINUE TO FIGHT FOR NRA

BETHANY BEACH, Del., Aug. 30.—Administrator Hugh S. Johnson said today he is determined to fight to the finish for the policies he believes should guide the NRA in its efforts to restore prosperity.

"I am not going to allow the progress made this far to be nullified by interests which are oppressing me on any such silly pretext that my administration has been insincere and intemperate," Johnson said in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

"If the accomplishment of restoring America's industry—millions of units—is to be offset by someone's appraisal of my characteristics, we are certainly carrying personality to an extreme.

"I am not engaging in a row with anyone. I have a job to do and I intend to do it. I will not let that work be undermined by any shouting about the administration or other petty attacks."

Other articles made by the disabled veterans include rugs, purses, Afghans, baskets, and hand-tooled leather.

Proceeds go to patients who made the articles.

SAMUEL INSULL DEMANDS SEPARATE TRIAL

Samuel Insull, speaking through his attorneys in a Chicago court, demanded a separate trial. He asked the severance and stated his objections to being tried with 16 co-defendants on charges of using the mails to defraud. In a nine-page petition he accepted full responsibility for the operation and control of all the companies and promised a full and frank disclosure of all his business operations. He blandly, as well as boldly, stated that eight defendants, including his son, were guided by him in all matters of general policy and the other eight defendants were "identified with him only incidentally" in serving the various Insull corporations. His trial is scheduled for Sept. 18, and Dist. Atty. Dwight H. Green declared the government would oppose the granting of a petition for the severance despite Insull's assumption of full responsibility.

Samuel Insull is 74. For years and years he was the monarch of all he surveyed. He was the dictator of a power empire. He was rated as more than a multi-millionaire. It was said of him that he had accumulated a fortune of $500,000,000. Well, his nerve has not deserted him. He is not whining or begging for mercy. He is not hunting a seagoat. He assumes all responsibility. All his executives were his messenger boys. He was the throne and power behind the throne and he is ready to go to the bat with the prosecutors of the government and let the chips fall where they may.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

If there is one thing more than another that the American people enjoy in greater measure than anything else, it is freedom of speech.

The ravings of our politicians count for little, if anything at all—but in common with all political parties, they enjoy the freedom of speech, which is the heritage of all Americans.

The people of America read. Events of the day are studied with closer attention than is generally imagined. The lessons learned have taught them never to endanger the freedom of the press nor the freedom of thought, for the individual constructive criticism of parties in power is always a good thing. It keeps them on the job with their eyes open. The vast weight of public opinion is on the right side.

The power of the press is a power to be reckoned with. It not only builds public opinion, but it expresses public opinion.

THE SPIRIT OF '36

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY BOOTS RAEBURN is the prettiest girl in Larcheck, fashionable New York suburb, but her father's financial reverses make it hard for her to keep up with her crowd. Wealthy SILVIA BIVENS schemes to force Boots to resign from the Junior. Deeply hurt Boots accepts the attentions of RUSS LEED, the swimming instructor. She realizes she is in love with Russ when he tells her he is going away. He wants her to elope with him but Boots asks for time to think it over. She decides the time when her mother will hear about her withdrawal from the club. Chaggy and restless, Boots goes for a morning walk and meets a young man named Lou. They have a long talk and Denis is moved by the girl's obvious unhappiness. Boots goes to New York on a shopping trip and the train meets her. She asks her father to marry him and Boots considers it the best way out of her troubles. Denis sees her in a hotel lobby with Russ.

Russ demanded, stretching his length out in a deep overstuffed chair with sagging springs. HIS brother's wife shrugged shapely shoulders. "Oh, I guess maybe," she told him vaguely. "I was going to take a run over to Brooklyn to see the folks, but that can wait. But what are you going to do with her—where are you going to go afterward? Back to the old folks?" Russ grinned. "Might not be a bad idea, at that." Lou, taking no part in the discussion, switched on the light in a curious looking lamp which had obviously been picked up in one of those gaudy booths which offer prizes for shooting down a certain number of wooden moving ducks on a trolley. The base of it was fashioned of imitation copper and represented a geisha girl, curiously attired in a pair of scapies and a beaded brassiere. The shade was deeply violently pink. Under this extraordinary lamp Lou unfolded the evening paper and began absently to read. The room, high-lighted by the geisha girl's bulb and by various side fixtures on the distempered walls, was revealed as a living apartment some nine or ten feet square. Two mean rectangles of windows looked out on the street, gullions of trees. The only articles of furniture in the room were a table, bed, covered with a scalloped and tasseled cover of dark green corduroy, the two chairs the men occupied, and a gaudy table with two imitation candlesticks upon it. There were no books. There were several pictures in cheap gilt frames of toothy film stars in various incendiary attitudes. Lou's wife, who had been christened Sophie and who now answered to the name of Gloria, was always promising herself "to put up some drapes" but somehow she "just never got around to it." Small wonder that the room presented, therefore, an uncompromisingly bare appearance.

Lou heaved himself up from his chair. "O. K. Come on kid, I can read in the bedroom. Fix him up here." Gloria opened her mouth to say something sarcastic and closed it again. It might be worth while to kid Lou's brother along if he was really marrying some society doll up in Westchester. Gloria rather fancied the idea of seeing the profligate, yachting crowd at first hand instead of peering at their exploits as shown in the news reels. So she arose with an appearance of amiability and began to open the collapsed day bed. Gray and dingy sheets were revealed and a discouraged looking young man, face down, sound asleep in Gloria's cherished living room. The trio separated without formalities. Russ, left alone, hung off a few garments, allowed two shoes to hit the floor with vehemence, and presently the beams of the street lamp stealing in revealed a muscular young man, face down, sound asleep in Gloria's cherished living room. MEANTIME DENIS Fenway, riding home on the 10-30 train, shaking from his feet the dust of the city's not pavements, was conscious of a deep sense of irritation and disappointment. Naturally, he told himself for the hundredth time it was none of his business what Boots Raeburn did with herself. Why, he scarcely knew her; he only spoken to her, all told, five or ten minutes. Yet there had been something so virginal, so untouched about her that it had been a shock to see her smooching that obviously second-rate hotel on the arm of a big brute, — "I've seen that chap before," Denis told himself, annoyed at his inability to remember when or where. As the train clicked over the ties, eastward bound, the girl grew cooler, became salty. Denis sat crunched in his open palm. "The life guard," he said aloud. "Yes, he remembered now. Ah, but probably Boots had met the fellow by accident. There wasn't any real significance in their being together. For an instant a chill feeling of guilt swept Denis conscience. Why hadn't he acknowledged the fact that he had seen her, at least by a bow? Why had he looked away, so quickly and coldly, pretending he did not recognize her? He admitted he had been a bit caddish in his reactions. "Oh, well, tomorrow he would call her up and let her know about this opening at the publishing house. It might lead to something. Or perhaps he would drop her a line sit down at Lois' little guest room desk when he got home. He liked the idea of writing that girl a note. Something simple and friendly. He might even suggest their meeting in town for tea whenever she went in to see Mastererson. He got off the train at Larcheck in a fine glow and swung up the street away from the station, smiling to himself. Yes, he would do that. He could imagine what that girl looked like in the early hours. He didn't have to imagine it. He'd seen her no later than this morning. She was like some white and gold Undine, rising from the foam. He told himself poetically, liking the sound of the words. Falling asleep, an hour or two later, he wondered how soon he would have an answer from her. (To Be Continued)

Alabama Warns Public About 'Hot' Gasoline Buying

By United Press BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Warns has been issued to motorists by against purchase of "hot" gasoline. "Hot" motor fuel is described that bootlegged into the state without payment of taxes. Buy the illicit gasoline constitutes a violation of the law. The contraband is brought in the city in unmarked tank trucks from "wildcat" oil fields. On occasions, according to authorities, is transported in milk cans at a rate. Lower prices, occasioned by escaping the tax, provide a lure for automobile owners, but gasoline is said to be inferior in quality. Harvard is conducting a series of tests to study fatigue. It should include the Harvard accent, which fatigues many people.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON—All through this drouth and the attendant official worry, the administration's higher-ups are not forgetting what they consider their one biggest problem—"the 10,000,000 unemployed." The drouth is a temporary natural catastrophe, a serious enough as such, presenting grave political dangers and threatening to destroy popular support of the farm program. But when the big New Dealers go into a huddle, their most persistent question to one another is: "What are we going to do with the ten million?" The nearest the New Dealers have come to an answer is a general agreement that there is no other alternative than putting people back to work. That would leave it up to employers to keep on paying billions for relief and let the government build up an extra-economic system for millions—such as the Federal Emergency Relief Act. Administration has started with its self-help, production exchange enterprises—which means a permanent cut in national commercial buying power, or seriously take on the job of putting those millions back to work. ROOSEVELT is being urged by some of his closest advisers to put this problem squarely up to the country. Because his recent cross-country trip convinced him of the tremendous popular support of his New Deal—influencing the leftward implications of his Green Bay speech—there is strong likelihood that he will. Pressure from those advisers is becoming stronger for a plan which will stimulate existing fac-

CONSUMERS WARNED AGAINST UNWARRANTED PRICE INCREASES

WASHINGTON.—Dr. Frederic C. Howe, Consumers' Counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, today warned consumers against being stampeded by false rumors about the food situation but urged them to follow closely the actual effect of the drought lest they be victimized by unjust price advances.

"Exaggerated reports are being spread as to prospective increases in the price of foods," Dr. Howe said. "That misrepresentation takes advantage of consumers and exposes them to raids by profiteers."

"But consumers should follow closely official reports on the movement of food supplies and prices. These will help them to buy wisely and economically and to spot unwarranted price increases."

Some food prices will undoubtedly rise, Dr. Howe pointed out, partly in line with usual seasonal changes, partly because of drought-reduced supplies, as in the case particularly of meats and poultry products. But there will be food sufficient for the larger part of the usual American food requirements.

"We are going to give consumers every possible help in judging the fairness of price changes," the Consumers' Counsel stated. "We are going to do everything we can to develop intelligent buyer skepticism, and tell the housewife how to feed her family well on low-priced but nutritious foods. We are inviting food merchants of Washington to tell us their side of food problems as they may develop."

"Through the Consumers' Guide our own bi-weekly bulletin, the press, and the radio, we have been reporting for more than a year on changes in retail food prices and their relation to prices received by farmers, on food supplies and on ways of buying intelligently. We will continue and expand this service."

The Consumers' Counsel's efforts in the face of rising bread and cotton textile prices last summer and fall, Dr. Howe said, had demonstrated the possibilities of checking price advances by informative publicity. By publicizing changes in bread prices in relation to ingredient costs, the public was kept informed as to justified changes. The majority of bakers cooperated and for nearly twelve months the price of bread has kept in close correspondence with legitimate price increases.

"The first defense against profiteering is the consumer who demands to be shown why he should be charged more for some product," said the Consumers' Counsel. "We want every consumer who is not satisfied with the explanations he is given for price increases to write to us about them."

As to the present movement of consumer prices, Dr. Howe pointed out four facts: First, the present rise, which started in the last half of April when some drought effects were first anticipated, had advanced the general level of food prices only slightly more than three per cent by the end of July, for the country as a whole.

Second, food price changes have not been uniform in this period for all sections of the country. Cities in the South Atlantic states showed an average drop of four per cent from the end of April to the end of July; in Western states there was the greatest increase, 7.7 per cent; in other states, the increase was approximately the same as the average for the country.

Third, all foods have not changed in price in the same amount. Meats went up most—6.7 per cent from April 4 to July 31. Next, cereals 3.5 per cent. Dairy products advanced 2.6 per cent. There was an average drop of 0.2 per cent in the prices of all other foods.

Prices of beef cuts have gone up somewhat more than pork prices; round steak, nine per cent; rib roast, five per cent; chuck roast, four per cent. Large supplies of cattle, forced to market by the drought are likely to hold beef prices from going up much for several months.

Lamb Consumer prices of different lamb cuts dropped from two to five per cent in the three months from April to July. More lamb will likely be brought to market in the coming months. Ordinarily this would hold prices down, but lower supplies of cattle and hogs next winter may tend to keep prices of lamb up somewhat.

Poultry Hens cost consumers four per cent less at the end of July than three months earlier. Eggs went up 19 per cent in the same period, somewhat more than the usual seasonal increase. Like most meats, the supply of poultry has been temporarily increased by the drought and the resulting lack of feed.

Potatoes Cost consumers much less than they did this time last year, and 26 per cent less than in April, due to rather large crops in southern and intermediate states. Winter supplies are expected to be about as big as last year's.

Fourth, so far the spread between farm prices and city retail prices—that is, the charges for all transportation, processing and marketing—does not seem to have been increased more than enough to cover increased wages and processing taxes.

The increased cost to the consumer of a month's supply of 14 foods for the typical family was 51 cents from April 24 to July, the difference between $17.75 and $18.26. Processors and distributors of these foods took 14 of these 51 cents. The rest went to the farmers.

"Farmers are still getting only a little over a third of the consumer's food dollar," Dr. Howe said. "From 1924 to 1929 they received almost half. In getting a fair share of the consumer's dollar to the farmers part of the problem is keeping marketing. Consumers can help in this by questioning any marked increase of retail price which is out of line with the advances in price farmers get for the raw material in that food."

Bread White bread again went up 0.1 cent a pound loaf in the last two weeks of July. There was a similar rise in the price of whole wheat bread. Bread price increases during the past three months have been closely in line with increases in flour prices. There should be no further advances in bread prices unless wheat and flour prices continue to go up.

Cereal Products The July 31 price of flour was four per cent over the April figure. Macaroni was up two per cent. Wheat cereal was unchanged. The world carry-over of wheat appears to be about equal to last year's and stocks in the country are adequate to prevent any shortage except in certain classes and grades. Whether or not the wheat market goes up further will depend largely on the trend of prices in foreign markets.

Dairy Products Butter prices to consumers rose six per cent in the three months; milk prices, two per cent. There has been no change in cheese prices. Wholesale butter prices rose rapidly in late July and early August. Cheese prices, on the other hand, have been rather weak. Cheese production has been higher than last year and stocks of cheese on July 1 were the highest on record. Some drop in cheese production is expected during the rest of the year.

Pork Meats crept up in price more than any other group of foods. For many weeks up to the middle of July, the retail prices of all pork cuts had been rising. In the last two weeks of July they shaved off a bit. During the first two weeks of August wholesale prices of hogs started upward again, so that probably the next retail price report will show some advances in pork product prices in city stores. Prices of cured pork are now decidedly above April levels, but fresh pork has increased only about four per cent.

Beef Prices of beef cuts have gone up somewhat more than pork prices; round steak, nine per cent; rib roast, five per cent; chuck roast, four per cent. Large supplies of cattle, forced to market by the drought are likely to hold beef prices from going up much for several months.

Lamb Consumer prices of different lamb cuts dropped from two to five per cent in the three months from April to July. More lamb will likely be brought to market in the coming months. Ordinarily this would hold prices down, but lower supplies of cattle and hogs next winter may tend to keep prices of lamb up somewhat.

Poultry Hens cost consumers four per cent less at the end of July than three months earlier. Eggs went up 19 per cent in the same period, somewhat more than the usual seasonal increase. Like most meats, the supply of poultry has been temporarily increased by the drought and the resulting lack of feed.

Potatoes Cost consumers much less than they did this time last year, and 26 per cent less than in April, due to rather large crops in southern and intermediate states. Winter supplies are expected to be about as big as last year's.

Other Fruits and Vegetables Prices of most fruits and vegetables changed from April to June in line with their usual seasonal changes. Supplies are somewhere around normal, although the drought has cut down supplies in certain areas.

Justice is becoming too deep to fathom. A Jersey City barber who stabbed a crooner was ruled insane, while the crooner escaped with no penalty.

London's Servant Problem Is Solved

LONDON.—British housewives are jubilating over the welcome news that their old enemy, the servant problem, is dead—or if not quite dead, very nearly so.

According to the latest tables of the Registrar-General, there are now 183,000 more girls employed in household work in Britain and Wales than there were at the time of the 1921 census. The total number of girls doing this kind of work has now reached the figure of 1,332,000, an increase of 16 per cent on 1921.

Missourians Are Married 70 Years

QUEEN, CITY, Mo.—Married 70 years! That's the record of Mr. and Mrs. Betsy E. Collins of Queen City.

When they recently celebrated their seventieth anniversary of married life Collins pronounced his views on matrimony and was particularly zealous in denouncing the modern institution of divorce.

"It's a shame the way young folks get divorced these days," he said. "It seems they get married just for fun. Of course, it's human nature to get out of sorts at times, but I'd never leave my woman to suffer. I've been mad enough at times to skip out and go back to the army, if I didn't believe as I do."

The New WATERLESS WAY

While the New Utility Cooker brings to you the possibilities of enjoying old-fashioned meals in addition, it permits you to prepare foods by the newer methods of cooking without water.

Science has discovered that there is so much natural moisture in all meats, vegetables and fruits that it is entirely feasible to cook them with little or no water.

About the only reason why we have cooked with water was to avoid burning. Water distributes the heat evenly, conducting it away from the point nearest the fire.

However, after we have cooked our foods we have poured off the excess water and with it we have poured the bone-forming, teeth-building minerals; the iron, calcium and phosphorus that constitute the essential elements which the human system must have. With the new perfected Utility Cooker you can prepare foods deliciously tender and full of these health-building elements. The Utility Cooker is ideal for the housewife who wishes to practice this modern, more healthful and more economical way of cooking.

MAGNOLIA IS WINNER FIRST SERIES GAME

Magnolia won the first game of the "World Series" to determine the championship of the Ranger Twilight League for 1934 when they defeated Lone Star by a score of 11 to 8 Wednesday afternoon.

The largest crowd ever to attend a soft ball game in Ranger was on hand for the opening of the game, which started at 6:00 o'clock as will the remainder of the games. The two teams will play until one team has won two of the three games of the series.

Both teams made three outs in quick order in the first inning. Lone Star making a snappy double play to retire the side after Smith had reached first safely on Littlefield's error. The first three Lone Star hitters flew out on long flies to the outfield, Roberts taking one and Koch two.

Magnolia scored first, making four runs in the second inning on three hits and two Lone Star errors, while Lone Star came back in the last half of the second to tie the score on one hit and three errors.

Magnolia carried its rally over into the third inning to score three more and added one in the sixth and three in the seventh, while Lone Star scored three in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Magnolia made 13 hits to seven in Lone Star, while Lone Star made nine errors in the game to six for Magnolia, both teams being off form on fielding.

Magnolia accounted for all the extra-base hits, getting two home runs, two triples and a double, while all Lone Star hits were singles.

Houston Works To Get the 1936 Texas Centennial

By United Press
 HOUSTON—Houston is determined to have the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936 if it takes a bond issue of $3,000,000 to get it.

Already the militant challenge of more than 1000 Centennial leaders and an army of volunteer workers is ringing in the ears of every citizen. House to house canvass of the city to obtain signatures of property owners pledging their support for the bond issue is under way.

It was Houston's first step to bring the Centennial to this city, where it would be held on a vast park site two miles long.

Nineteen thousand Houston property owners are eligible to participate in a bond election. A report of the centennial leaders and volunteer workers will be made next week. If sufficient signatures are obtained to assure passage of a bond issue, Houston's Centennial committee will make a vigorous fight for the celebration.

If the drive fails, Houston will abandon its efforts, leaders said. However, a successful campaign was predicted.

"We want to sound out the sentiments of the people of Houston on the Texas Centennial," Clarence Wharton, chairman of the local Centennial committee, said. "If the people do not want it we will abandon our efforts. If they do want it we will put up the greatest fight that Texas ever saw to get it."

Wharton said that after the Centennial Houston would have one of the finest sites for a permanent annual fair in this section of the country.

"We could stage a fair for the vast trade territory of Houston, extending from Sabine to the Rio Grande, an area of 100,000 square miles, from which thousands upon thousands of people would come to Houston every year," he added.

"The Dallas Fair is the power-house of Dallas. By getting the Centennial here we could establish a fair here that alone would repay us for the $2,000,000 expenditure contemplated."

Criticism against the Centennial bond proposal was made by the Taxpayers' association and bankers on grounds that it was "foolish to advocate such a large expenditure of money in these awful times."

"We will feel like bowing our heads in shame if this celebration is held anywhere except in the shadow of San Jacinto," former Governor W. P. Hobby said.

"One needs only to read Texas history to understand how strong is Houston's claim to the observance. Historically, it is the logical site for the celebration."

Charles H. Bryan, leader of the pledge card drive, warned that loss of the Centennial would mean loss of Houston's supremacy as the largest city in Texas.

It was estimated that the bonds will mean a tax payment of 7.9 cents on the $100 valuation for the first year, the amount being reduced each year thereafter.

"The city that gets the Centennial will reap untold thousands of dollars in benefits," Bryan said.

 WASHINGTON—Motor boats cruising in bathing areas are as dangerous as automobiles driven in parks and playgrounds, H. F. Enlow, director of First Aid and Life Saving Service, American Red Cross, believes.

High speed of small motor boats and the difficulty swimmers and bathers experience in getting out of their way combine to make motor boating in congested bathing areas extremely hazardous, the Red Cross official said.

Enlow pointed out an increase in the number of accidents this season directly traceable to motor boats. Twice, he said, accidents resulted in death. He blamed the boat's propeller for most of the serious injuries.

Accidents, the director declared, are due wholly to carelessness and "disregard of the rights of others." "Motor boats," he averred, "should be barred from all swimming and bathing areas just as rigidly as automobiles are prohibited from operation on beaches and in parks and playgrounds."

He added that the practice of maneuvering high-powered outboard motor boats among bathers should be forbidden by law and heavy penalties attached to violations.

To My Loyal Friends and Supporters in Eastland County:

Permit me to express to you my sincere gratitude and to assure you of my deep appreciation for your unflinching efforts in my behalf.

To those who did not support me, I trust that my work in the Forty-fourth Legislature will be such that there will be no regrets of my election.

In order that I might serve you honestly and efficiently, let me take this opportunity to urge you to advise me on all legislation of public interest. This office belongs to the people and you may be assured that your wishes will at all times be respected.

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE A. DAVISSON, JR.

Sheriff Stops Theft Of Breck House

By United Press
 BRECKENRIDGE, Tex.—Sheriff J. W. Morrow was somewhat skeptical when a voice over the telephone pleaded: "Come quick, Sheriff. They're stealing a house."

Fearing a joke, Sheriff Morrow nevertheless hastened to the scene. Sure enough there was a small house in the process of being loaded on a truck.

A conference was held. It developed the house had been sold but not paid for and the owner was unwilling to let it be moved without proper financial arrangements.

Eastland Mavericks Will Start Training

Coach S. J. Petty has called the first practice of the Eastland Mavericks and all candidates for places on the team have been requested to report for the fall training grind on Saturday, Sept. 1, at which time suits will be issued and the regular call for practice issued.

Only five lettermen will be back on the Maverick team this year, but the spring training season showed enough talent among the rookies for a light, but fast and shifty team.

Houston Works To Get the 1936 Texas Centennial

By United Press
 HOUSTON—Houston is determined to have the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936 if it takes a bond issue of $3,000,000 to get it.

Already the militant challenge of more than 1000 Centennial leaders and an army of volunteer workers is ringing in the ears of every citizen. House to house canvass of the city to obtain signatures of property owners pledging their support for the bond issue is under way.

It was Houston's first step to bring the Centennial to this city, where it would be held on a vast park site two miles long.

Nineteen thousand Houston property owners are eligible to participate in a bond election. A report of the centennial leaders and volunteer workers will be made next week. If sufficient signatures are obtained to assure passage of a bond issue, Houston's Centennial committee will make a vigorous fight for the celebration.

If the drive fails, Houston will abandon its efforts, leaders said. However, a successful campaign was predicted.

"We want to sound out the sentiments of the people of Houston on the Texas Centennial," Clarence Wharton, chairman of the local Centennial committee, said. "If the people do not want it we will abandon our efforts. If they do want it we will put up the greatest fight that Texas ever saw to get it."

Wharton said that after the Centennial Houston would have one of the finest sites for a permanent annual fair in this section of the country.

"We could stage a fair for the vast trade territory of Houston, extending from Sabine to the Rio Grande, an area of 100,000 square miles, from which thousands upon thousands of people would come to Houston every year," he added.

"The Dallas Fair is the power-house of Dallas. By getting the Centennial here we could establish a fair here that alone would repay us for the $2,000,000 expenditure contemplated."

Criticism against the Centennial bond proposal was made by the Taxpayers' association and bankers on grounds that it was "foolish to advocate such a large expenditure of money in these awful times."

"We will feel like bowing our heads in shame if this celebration is held anywhere except in the shadow of San Jacinto," former Governor W. P. Hobby said.

"One needs only to read Texas history to understand how strong is Houston's claim to the observance. Historically, it is the logical site for the celebration."

Charles H. Bryan, leader of the pledge card drive, warned that loss of the Centennial would mean loss of Houston's supremacy as the largest city in Texas.

It was estimated that the bonds will mean a tax payment of 7.9 cents on the $100 valuation for the first year, the amount being reduced each year thereafter.

"The city that gets the Centennial will reap untold thousands of dollars in benefits," Bryan said.
