BULLDOGS AND LOBOES TO CLASH MONDAY

COLORADO AND TAX MEASURES ARE VOTED ON

By United Press
AUSTIN, Nov. 10.—Two bills were finally enacted by the legislature today as its fourth special session neared its final hour. The senate adopted a conference report on the Hornsby-Hughes bill setting up a permanent policy of discounts and penalties for tax delinquents. The house approved the bill yesterday. The Colorado river authority bill also was finally enacted today when the house voted 75 to 39 to accept the same bill approved yesterday by the senate with only one dissenting vote. Both house and senate recessed until 7 p. m., tonight. The constitutional limit of the session is midnight. Opponents of the Colorado bill charged that under it R. W. Morrison, San Antonio capitalist and second largest contributor to the democratic national campaign fund will make a profit of $1,555,000 as a result of the negotiations with receivers for the old dam. "Teapot Dome was bad; this is rotten," shouted Representative J. C. Duvall of Fort Worth. Final action on the bill practically cleared the docket of the session.

Three Suspects In Urschel Case Are Held In Oregon

By United Press
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 10.—Three persons said to be suspects in the federal cleanup of the Charles Urschel kidnaping case, were brought to the county jail here today from southern Oregon. Police records showed the prisoners were Clara Feldman, purported wife of Albert Bates, one of the kidnap gang leaders, her son and the latter's wife. Federal agents said they had taken $440 in $10 and $20 bills from Mrs. Betty Feldman, but they did not specify if it was part of the $200,000 ransom payment.

Pennsylvania Buys New Locomotives

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 10.—The Pennsylvania Railroad today placed an order for 57 streamlined electric locomotives, involving an expenditure of $15,000,000. It was one of the largest locomotive equipment orders ever made by an American railroad. The engines, capable of operating at a speed of 30 miles an hour, will be installed in the railroad's high-speed passenger service, to be inaugurated between New York, Philadelphia and Washington in February.

HOPKINS WILL PROBE RELIEF EXPENDITURES

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins today met the challenge of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, ordering a prompt and thorough gathering of any information on alleged "shameful waste in giving out funds." Hopkins assigned his investigation division to the inquiry, directing all facts available with regard to Borah's charges be obtained. Earlier Hopkins said he was willing that congress should initiate an investigation of relief expenditures, provided "Senator Borah will be good enough to furnish me with a bill of particulars regarding what he characterizes as the 'shameful waste in doling out funds.' If so, I promise him quick action." A FERA representative will be instructed to interview Senator Borah, asking him to elaborate on the evidence, if any, at his disposal. If Senator Borah reveals any irregularities, Hopkins appeared ready to act to remedy them.

Lions Club Has Good Program at Weekly Meeting

One of the longest and surely one of the best programs ever presented to Ranger Lions club was that given at Thursday's regular luncheon. Beginning immediately after the Lions were seated the program lasted until 1:40 o'clock and was exceptionally good from start to finish. Lion Sol Perstein deserves a lot of credit for his efforts in securing so much talent on one program. The Choral club of Cooper school under the able direction of Miss Doris Mitchell and Mrs. H. D. Smith as accompanist, came into the banquet room in two lines marching in time to their theme song, "Smile Darn Ya Smile," when the two lines of pretty little girls in red and white plaid dress

TWO TEAMS ARE WELL TRAINED FOR THE GAME

Record Crowd Is Indicated By The Advance Ticket Sales Saturday.

The annual football classic between the Cisco Lobos and the Ranger Bulldogs will be played at Lillard field Monday afternoon at 2:30, for which a record crowd of the year is anticipated. Both teams have taken their final workouts in preparation for the game, and both are keyed up for the game, which is expected to be one of the closest contests of the season in the Oil Belt. The Lobos have been given a strenuous workout by Coach Dexter Shelley, for the Ranger game, and they have recovered much of the spirit which the Eastland Mavericks crushed in their first victory over the Lobos last week. In fact the Lobos are expected to be an inspired team when they advance on Ranger, determined to take the victory back to Cisco with them. The two teams have played annually, with the exception of 1932, and in the past six years the largest margin of victory earned by either team was the 3 to 0 defeat of the Bulldogs in 1930. In 1931 the teams played to a thrilling 13 to 13 tie at Lillard field, the last meeting of the two teams in Ranger. In that game the Lobos took a 13 to 0 lead in the first half of the game and toward the last few minutes of the game many Cisco and Ranger fans left the field, confident that Ranger had been snowed under by the Lobos. But in a belated spurt the Bulldogs scored two touchdowns and kicked one goal to tie the score.

In 1933 the teams met in Cisco. Ranger scored first, when Joe Briley intercepted a Cisco pass on his own 20-yard line and raced 80 yards for the touchdown. Anderson kicked the goal, but Cisco came back by recovering a fumbled punt deep in Ranger territory and smashing through the line for 20 yards and a touchdown. The attempt to kick goal failed and Ranger was the victor by a one-point margin.

The game tomorrow, in the opinion of many of the local fans, will likely be as close, or almost as close, as the previous Cisco-Ranger games, because the Lobos are expected to put up a much better game against the Bulldogs than they did against the Mavericks in Eastland, or even better than the game against the Breckenridge Buckaroos, which ended in a 14 to 13 victory for the Buckaroos. Advance sales of tickets in the reserved seat sections indicated Saturday that the crowd would be equally as large, perhaps larger, than the one which attended the Abilene-Ranger game at Lillard field earlier in the season.

ROOSEVELT TO GET PROGRAM IN GOOD SHAPE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—President Roosevelt moved today to whip into shape his social legislation program, now in nebulous shape, by naming a special council representative of all phases of economic life to help formulate the legislation. The advisory council will assist the committee on economic security which has studied various unemployment insurance and old age pension methods for months. It was believed the new group, representing education, industry, labor, social agencies and agriculture would be endowed with the job of formulating a program which would have the backing of all fields of economic life. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, was named chairman.

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Finance Must Become Servant of Industry

Although the question whether recovery should precede reform is still unsettled, there is one field in which majority opinion unquestionably wants to see reform take precedence. That field is the stock market.

The measures passed by the last Congress have not been in effect very long, but it is not too early to glance at the situation and see whether anything more needs to be done.

John T. Flynn recently wrote an extremely penetrating analysis of the whole stock market situation. In his final article, looking to the future, he suggested certain steps that might be taken to prevent Wall Street from regaining its old dominance over our economic life.

To begin with, he asserts that our whole financial system needs recasting. He would have a national banking system, a complete divorce between savings and ending institutions, further restrictions on the activities of brokers, a revision of our corporation laws to require federal charters for all firms engaged in interstate commerce, and abolition of all holding companies.

Second, he would have all such restrictions that deal directly with stock exchange activities written solidly into laws which the securities exchange commission would be directed to enforce. Under the present law the commission makes its own regulations on these subjects.

This, says Mr. Flynn, puts the commission under direct pressure from Wall Street to adopt a "liberal" attitude, and may eventually result in nullification of the people's will.

In discussing any such measures, it is important to keep clearly in mind the underlying purposes of this or any other financial reform program.

The things we have learned since October of 1929 prove pretty clearly that our financial machinery got badly out of gear in the last decade. The machinery of finance, credit, and exchange exists to make possible the functioning of a large and complex industrial society. It became perverted. It grew to be an end in itself.

It got so that it was more important, and more lucrative, to perform sleight-of-hand tricks with this financial mechanism than it was to produce the goods and services which the nation needed.

All that the reform program seeks to do is to restore a proper balance. Finance must become industry's servant again, and not its master. Continuance or modification of the reform program should be judged on that basis.

'Dusting the Covers of Texas History' for The Texas Centennial Celebrations of 1936

No cheering crowds or eager citizens met the dusty, ragged group of men who trudged thru the streets of Mexico City to the palace of the Viceroy. Casual bystanders commented on the fact that an explorer named Francisco Vasquez de Coronado was returning from a two-year search for golden treasure.

"He looks very sad and very weary," said one.

"He looks completely worn out and shame-faced," said another.

"It was mad of him to think there would be gold and silver in a far-away land," said one who had possibly seen the group leave on their journey.

Coronado had nothing to say.

He did not fear to raise his eyes to the crowd, and there was no disconsolate slouch to his shoulders. He was erect, though humiliation was in his heart. To report failure to the Viceroy, after the Viceroy had given of his own personal funds for the trip! It had become difficult to keep the army together, and they made a poor sight as they straggled into the city one by one.

Viceroy Mendoza was solemn as he looked at the bowed head of Coronado, as Coronado kneeled to kiss his hand. Mendoza thought of his friends who had died on the exploration... his slaves who were gone... the lack of treasures... the empty money vault. So this was the end of dreams for a wonderfully rich kingdom; a future of wealth and ease! Kindly he summoned Coronado to his feet. There was no need to upbraid the explorer, for he had truly done his best. Mendoza blessed him, and sent him back to his little territory of New Galicia, to continue his governorship after his absence of two years. In time Mendoza was to forget the bitter disappointment and become one of the best rulers Mexico ever had.

After Coronado left the Viceroy he disappeared from the minds of the people. Soon after his return he gave up the governorship of New Galicia, and no one is exactly sure what happened to him. It is well to believe that he took his family and settled down on his farm in the mountains of Mexico to earn his living by the soil, eventually forgetting his trip to the land of the Indians.

Coronado's expedition opened the way for future settlers and explorers. Because of the geographical knowledge he and his men brought back, the pathway was made easier for those who followed. The Texas Centennial in 1936 will honor men like Coronado, who had enough courage and vision and perseverance to stick to their goals, and accept defeat because they knew they had done their bit toward civilization, though it might be small.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 When CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead DAN BLEEKER, publisher employs SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

MORDEN had been investigating the affairs of FRANK R. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent contractor claiming to be Catholic and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS.

The day following MORDEN's death Cathay dies of poisoning. GRIFF learns MORDEN had visited the apartment of ALICE LOFTON, pretty and unemployed. He confers also with KENNETH DOONE, across the gate of killing MORDEN, and they are arrested.

MRS. BLANCHÉ MALONE, for whom MRS. CATHAY and CARL HAYNE, detective employed by her, have been searching, is located. GRIFF and Bleeker interrupt a conference between the three. Arrested in the taxiway, Bleeker at a table tells Mrs. Malone to talk.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII
 GRIFF frowned at Bleeker. "You continually revert to the material," he said. "You see things objectively. I prefer to turn back the hands of time and to reason what is going to happen from a philosophic contemplation of what has happened. I repeat that Blanche Malone was beautiful, that her beauty was of the type that makes for misery. It is the same in which the moth sings himself and it is such a pathetic thing that goesyally the flame from this beauty sings the wings of the beauty itself.

"Had she been, perhaps, a little more discreet, had it not been for this uncontrolled flame which swept through her very being, she could have gone far. Had she not gone through suffering she might have retained her beauty.

"And mark you this, my friend: Suffering and beauty do not go together. There is a certain type of ethereal beauty which is perhaps developed by suffering—rather it is a cold, spiritual something, the type of beauty which one admires in a snow-capped peak which is illuminated by moonlight. But it is not the type of beauty one embraces, and, after all, since woman is what she is, the only type of beauty that she cares for is the beauty that is embraced. No, my friend, suffering and beauty do not go together.

Bleeker's tone was unsympathetic.

"Go on," he said. "Show your self a good time. You think you've discovered something I've overlooked. It makes you feel superior. You're serious and your seriousness makes you want to talk and keep on talking. I'm just a target for your talk. Go ahead and talk! Don't mind me. Hell, I'm just the guy who hired you! I don't count."

GRIFF's tone was patient.

"Please," he said, "believe me. I am not talking for the sake of talking. You cannot understand murder unless you can understand the things which have led to that murder. There is nothing so important as an appreciation of motives."

GRIFF ceased speaking and Bleeker frowned and turned away.

"When you are ready to talk facts," he said, "I want to listen."

In the meantime, consider you're talking to yourself, not to me. I don't give a damn about your philosophy. I want facts."

GRIFF sighed, the sigh of one who has bared his innermost thoughts in an attempt to make an explanation, which, when it is expressed has become an explanation at all, but merely a further ground of misunderstanding.

"This," said GRIFF, "is the hotel where Mary Briggs is registered under the name of Stella Mockley. Perhaps her real name is Stella Mackley and the name that she gave the police was one which was assumed for the occasion."

At least," Bleeker said with more than a trace of impatience in his tone as he thrust a bill into the outstretched hand of the cab driver, "we will get something definite here, not merely a mass of philosophies and theories."

"We are," GRIFF admitted, "approaching the end of our chase. Soon we will have all of the straws in our hands and then we can see the direction in which those straws are pointed—a direction which MORDEN must have deduced from only the single straw which we kings was in his possession. It is unshanny. It is in short, unbelievable. I still think there must have been something of luck that entered into it, although when one sees it, it is so absolutely simple that one wonders it did not crash home to the consciousness long before."

Bleeker, apparently without listening, pushed on past the criminologist and barged through the swinging door of the hotel.

"Caution," GRIFF whispered. "Let us not rush in here, my friend... ah, it is too late!"

GRIFF paused by the doorway Bleeker looked, followed the direction of his gaze, and also paused.

A big man with stooped shoulders was standing talking with a man at the desk. Bleeker's eyes squinted for a moment in an attempt to refresh his memory. Then he muttered in an undertone, "It's Charles Fisher—Mrs. Cathay's lawyer."

He stepped behind a potted palm dragging the publisher with him.

THE two men stood motionless. Fisher did not once glance in their direction but finished his conversation with the man at the desk. He stood for a moment, apparently undecided. Then, flinging his chin up as one does when reaching a decision to plunge boldly into some unwelcome situation, he strode toward the elevators.

GRIFF squeezed the publisher's elbow.

"Quick," he said. "We can't give him the advantage."

The two men crossed the hotel lobby, their feet pounding the flagged floor with quick impatience.

An elevator door slid open. Two women and a man got out. Fisher stepped in. The elevator operator

 CHARLES FISHER, the lawyer, shook his head. "I am not prepared to go that far," he said addressing GRIFF. "It depends somewhat upon the facts surrounding the administration of the poison, believe that the authorities hold that a death by accidental means implies that the means by which the death is brought about must be accidental. In other words, an accidental death is not a death by accident means. It's rather a fine distinction with which the layman is not ordinarily interested, although he should be, because a large number of persons have similar clauses in their insurance policies."

"A most interesting legal point," GRIFF said. Bleeker who had been standing silent, looked from one to the other.

Fisher suddenly smiled. "Well," he said, "I'm standing here gabbling like some gossip woman. I've got work to do and I presume you gentlemen have too. It was a real pleasure to have seen you."

He bowed slightly, turned abruptly to the left, strode purposefully down the corridor, paused and knocked on the door of a room.

GRIFF and Bleeker stood by the elevator where the lawyer had left them, watching him attentively.

The door of the room opened a few inches. A woman's voice said "What is it?"

THE lawyer's booming voice came down the corridor, plainly audible to the ears of his listeners.

"You," he said, "were a witness to the will of Frank Appleton. Mr. Appleton is dead. There is a contest on concerning his will. I am an attorney from Riverview who represents the Appleton heirs. It is important that I should talk with you. You'll excuse me for not telephoning before I came up, but—

"But I don't know any Mr. Appleton," the woman's voice said.

"I beg your pardon," the lawyer insisted, "but this is room 927, is it not?"

"It is," she said.

"And you're registered here?" Fisher asked.

"Certainly I'm registered here," she said. "I'm Virginia Stratton and I don't know any person by the name of Appleton. I don't know anyone in Riverview and I didn't sign any will as a witness."

"Most strange," said the lawyer. "I can't understand such a similarity in names. You've got the same name as the witness to the will and I was advised by detectives whom I employed to locate the missing witness that you were registered here in the hotel."

"Well," said the woman's voice. "I don't know anything about the will. It's probably a mistake in identity. If you'll pardon me, I'm dressing."

The door slammed.

Fisher stood for a moment as though undecided what course to pursue. Then he shrugged his shoulders, turned and walked down the corridor toward the two men who were waiting at the elevator.

The lawyer's smile held just the proper amount of apologetic sheepishness.

"Not often," he said, "that my detectives make a mistake like that. I keep the best firm in the city and they chase down witnesses and addresses for me. This was just one of those unusual and unfortunate circumstances of a similarity in names."

HE pushed his finger on the bell button for the elevator.

"You're going down," asked GRIFF the lawyer nodded.

"You were mentioning something about insurance," GRIFF said. "Who is the beneficiary under Cathay's insurance policies?"

"The wife Mrs. Cathay," the lawyer said. "She's also beneficiary under the will, but there are certain provisions in the will that I didn't like. I warned Cathay against them."

"Do you discuss them?" GRIFF asked.

"It might be a little irregular," Fisher told him, "but I don't mind telling you that the one that I objected to most strenuously was the gift to his chauffeur. A matter of $15,000 in cash."

"He was quite attached to his chauffeur?"

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders. "You can draw your own conclusions," he said.

"How long had the chauffeur been with him?"

"Not quite a year."

GRIFF frowned.

"Isn't that rather unusual?" he said.

"It is most unusual," the lawyer said.

"I am wondering," said GRIFF with his eyes narrowed, "if perhaps the gift in the will was not to insure silence on the part of the chauffeur concerning some fact about which he might have known, rather than because of friendship?"

The elevator came to the ninth floor.

"You," said the lawyer, "are at liberty to draw your own conclusions."

"And," GRIFF said slowly, his eyes slitted thoughtfully, "if I had been tricked into making any such provisions in a will I would dislike to be careless about leaving medics around. That is, medicine that I was going to take. Fifteen thousand dollars in cash might be quite a temptation to the average chauffeur."

THE lawyer stepped into the elevator, bowed formally.

"Gentlemen," he said, "you both have the privilege of reading my mind, but you will both remember that I have made no expression of opinion concerning the subject matter of our discussion."

The elevator door slammed shut and dropped down the shaft.

GRIFF stood by the shaft watching the arrow of the indicator.

"We'll see what floor he stops at," he said.

The hand of the indicator came to the seventh floor and paused.

GRIFF raced for the stairs.

"Come on," he said.

The men ran down two flights of stairs, came out in the corridor of the seventh floor, looked up and down the corridor. There was no sign of the lawyer. They ran to the place where the corridor made a right angle turn and looked to the left. The lawyer was just entering a room.

GRIFF chuckled.

"This," he said, "is going to be good."

Upon swift, noiseless feet he led the way to the room into which the attorney had disappeared and tapped on the door.

There was a moment of silence. Then there sounded surreptitious rustlings, the hissing of a whisper. GRIFF knocked again.

A young woman opened the door, staring at them with alert, dark eyes.

"Miss Mockley?" asked the criminologist.

She nodded.

"We want to talk with you," said GRIFF, "and the fact that Mr. Fisher is also here doesn't need to matter in the least."

In the next installment Stella Mockley, alias Mary Briggs, answers some questions.

Go on with the story
 "Go on," he said. "Show yourself a good time. You think you've discovered something I've overlooked. It makes you feel superior. You're serious and your seriousness makes you want to talk and keep on talking. I'm just a target for your talk. Go ahead and talk! Don't mind me. Hell, I'm just the guy who hired you! I don't count."

GRIFF's tone was patient.

"Please," he said, "believe me. I am not talking for the sake of talking. You cannot understand murder unless you can understand the things which have led to that murder. There is nothing so important as an appreciation of motives."

GRIFF ceased speaking and Bleeker frowned and turned away.

"When you are ready to talk facts," he said, "I want to listen."

Breckenridge Is Winner Over the Ranger Netters

BRECKENRIDGE—The Ranger tennis team invaded the Breckenridge High School tennis camp yesterday in a vain attempt to duplicate the defeat that the Eastland team handed the local team a few days ago.

Most of the local boys played satisfactory games that enabled them to turn back the Ranger team without a single loss by the following scores:

Bob Griffiths and W. T. Tipton vs. John Thomas Scott and Eugene Kribbs, 6-1.

Joe Burris and Bernard Clegg vs. Willard Boss and Raymond Berry, 7-5.

Sam Ross Sloan and Bennett White vs. Tom Reese and W. B. Crow, 6-0.

Aaron Grant vs. Raymond Berry, 6-4.

Joe Burris vs. Eugene Kribbs, (2 out of 2) 2-0.

The experience that the team has gained in its recent matches is expected to help them put up a good fight against the Abilene squad Saturday morning.

The Breckenridge High School's chances for favorable tennis recognition this year would be increased quite a bit if more girls would try and make the team, and practice regularly as the boys are doing.

Ford Is Planning To Build Million New Cars Next Year

DEARBORN, Mich., Nov. 10.—Henry Ford announced today the beginning of another of those titanic industrial drives which, from time to time throughout the last 30 years, have caused the world to wonder and, in the minds of millions, given him the stature of a modern giant.

Early in the day Mr. Ford announced plans to build, during the coming year, "1,000,000 cars or better."

Later in the day, officers, engineers and statisticians of the Ford Motor company, asked for figures showing the magnitude of the movement in terms of goods and dollars, disclosed that commitments have been going out for several weeks on a buying and productive program that will run into a total cost of more than $415,000,000, to be spent during 1935 and 6,008 suppliers scattered all over the United States.

When large scale production is resumed—now planned for early in December—the Ford monthly payroll in the Detroit district alone will run to $6,861,000.

In discussing his industry Mr. Ford indicated that "so far as the Ford Motor company is concerned the depression is over."

"Our experience during the last six months," he said, "and what we see in the future tells us a year of improved business is ahead."

"Do you think 1935 will end the depression?" he was asked.

"Why, the depression would be over for the whole country very soon," he answered, "if American industrialists would just forget these alphabet schemes and take hold of their industries and run them with good sound American business sense. They should take hold of their country, too, in the same way and run it with good sound American common sense."

When production is resumed all additional jobs will be given to former Ford workmen or other mechanics in the Detroit area.

It is estimated that when the drive to produce 1,000,000 cars is in full swing, 87,000 men will be employed.

The project calls for the spending of tremendous sums. For example, it is estimated that the bringing in of raw materials will require 164,000 cars and outboard products 160,000 cars, involving payment of freight bills, largely to the railroads, of $74,000,000.

TO SPEAK ON PENSIONS W. L. Coley of Fort Worth will explain the Townsend old age pension plan at the courthouse in Eastland Wednesday night, Nov. 14 at 8 o'clock. A similar meeting will be held at Odessa at the same time. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Arch-Bishop Denies Church Planned a Mexican Revolution

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 10.—In an open letter to President Rodriguez of Mexico, Archbishop Leopold Ruiz Y Flores, former papal delegate to Mexico, today denied that the Catholic church was attempting to start a revolution.

"Mexican Catholics know perfectly well the church does not wish to, nor should it defend its rights by means of a revolution," he said.

"The word 'defense' in my letter refers therefore to the use of peaceful means," he added.

NEW YORK—So he married the boss' daughter, and was kicked upstairs, and was one can't blame Clark Griffith for selling Joe Cronin, his son-in-law, for "far in excess of $125,000," and being the payee in the richest deal in the history of baseball.

The owner of the Washington club asked $250,000 for his manager and shortstop when Tom Yawkey, the Boston Red Sox magnate of many millions, opened negotiations during the world series. And one can't blame Griffith for enabling his son-in-law to accept the best manager's job in the game, for that is what the Boston assignment is, with Yawkey's unlimited resources and willingness to spend. Cronin gets a five-year contract at a "tremendous salary."

Hero of the Hub

THE Cronin deal seems to be the most satisfactory closed by Yawkey. When you are putting out $20,000 for players like Dusty Cooke and Lyn Lary, you scarcely can go wrong even when you cough up "far in excess of $125,000" for a Joe Cronin.

Baseball men declare that Cronin, who celebrated his 28th birthday on Oct. 12, is worth $125,000 as a shortstop along, and his demonstrated leadership enhances his value.

Long highly regarded here, Cronin, a personal Irishman, will be the most popular individual in south Boston since Jim Maloney was shaking his fist at Jack Sharkey.

Blow to Babe WITH all of Yawkey's money, Cronin will have his head-aches in Boston. Unless the old ring returns to the South.

Huge Electric Sign To Welcome Visitors To A.P.I. Convention

DALLAS, Nov. 9.—The most spectacular electric sign in the entire southwest will blaze forth a welcome to American Petroleum Institute delegates when they convene here for their convention Nov. 11. The sign, made in the form of Pegasus, winged horse of mythology, now made familiar as the symbol of Mobilgas, is mounted atop the Magnolia building tower.

The sign measures 38 feet from the tip of Pegasus' nose to his flowing tail, and is 31 feet high.

Mounted on a steel tower on top of the Magnolia building, the sign is 106 feet above the pavement, about the height of a three-story office building. The two sides of the sign are 14 feet apart. The sign will revolve twice every minute.

At night the huge sign will be outlined with Neon light. It is said the shape of the horse may be seen for a distance of three to five miles, depending on weather conditions.

When Pegasus, in Greek mythology, beheaded Medusa, the blood sinking into the ground produced a winged horse. Minerva, Goddess of Wisdom, caught and tamed him, giving him the name of Pegasus.

and Pegasus he has remained throughout the ages. He has no mate. Nor has he ever had.

"Pegasus, red-winged horse trade mark of Mobilgas," said Fred M. Lege Jr., vice president and director of sales promotion of the Magnolia Petroleum company, "has always symbolized speed and power. That is why he was selected as a fitting symbol for Mobilgas."

This great sign, at the pinnacle of Dallas, will remain as a permanent fixture on top of the Magnolia building after the American Petroleum Institute convention, flashing its welcome for many miles in every direction from Dallas.

CAT RIDES ON FLYWHEEL

BRETON, Alta.—Tabby, a pet cat, is the latest champion of the world's "loop-the-loop" record. It made 7,500 consecutive loops in an hour and 15 minutes. Tabby strayed into a sawmill near here and jumped into the rim of a flywheel. Somebody started "loop-the-loop" at the rate of 100 revolutions per minute. The cat remained in the wheel 75 minutes before workmen heard it cries. When the wheel was stopped, Tabby jumped out, and staggered away in a bush nearby. It has not been seen since.

HUGE STILL DISCOVERED

MONTREAL.—A huge illicit liquor distilling plant, equipped with secret doors and an underground "getaway" tunnel, was raided by Royal Canadian Mounted police here. Two men, who attempted to escape through a tunnel leading to a nearby garage, were arrested. Police said the still was the largest seized here in years. It occupied the whole second floor of a building, and had a capacity of 15,000 gallons.

Buy a Poppy

By WALTER ALDERMAN
Please buy a poppy mister;
Lend a helping hand, I pray.
A mite in kindness given
Gathers goodness on its way.

The flags are furled, the bugles still;
Silent the measured tread.
In hearts where once dwelt martial thrill,
Forgiveness reigns instead.

But there are those who call to mind,
And fight the battle yet;
The war-scarred ones—those left behind—
The ones who can't forget!

Unseeing eyes, a missing limb;
'Twas their's, the sacrifice!
To you a dream, long since grown dim;
To them—life, at a price!

So buy a blossom lady;
Please wear a poppy red.
Be loyal to the living,
And eode honor to their deda!

service. Mr. Pearl Hunt and his singers will be with us and it will be a great treat. This is an annual affair in this church and the pastor has never preached to these boys, just before the Cisco game, that has not brought victory. Come and enjoy this splendid fellowship.

The Adolphian Study club will not have their regular meeting Monday but will meet Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Perry. All members are urged to be present.

Every member of the church should strive to be present at all the services for today. Come and worship with us.

Open Forum Is Urged By Readers

Several readers of The Times have suggested that The Times publish an open forum column, and invite all citizens to write stories pertaining to things that would be of interest and benefit to the city as a whole.

The Times has agreed to this—all we ask that each article be signed to show good faith. The name of the writer will not be published unless instructed to do so by the author.

These stories will not be the policy or the opinions of the paper but will be the beliefs and opinions of those writing same.

The Times columns are open to its readers at all times and articles will be appreciated and published if written in good faith and for the purpose of constructive criticism or for bringing to the attention of the public needed improvements in some phase of the city's social or civic life.

Diving Suit and Octopus Represent Great Sea Tragedy

South Seas expeditionary work is a very risky business as its best owing to the fact that these peculiar waters are infested with man-eating sharks, the deadly octopus and other flesh eating members of the ocean colony.

It was during the first expedition conducted by Captain Griffin that the diving member of the crew, Hans Nelson, was strangled to death by the giant 10 foot octopus now on exhibition at the deep sea exposition now showing in this city. The lecturers give a thrilling account of the futile attempt of the crew to rescue the diver, after the octopus had become entangled in the air lines a hundred feet under water.

The diving equipment as well as the octopus are both on exhibition, as well as a Mola Mola weighing over a ton, a 1625 pound sea turtle said to be about 400 years old, a giant porpoise, and hundreds of other strange sea life. There is nothing artificial stuffed or mounted in this exhibition. Each and every specimen being perfectly preserved by the secret chemicals used in the new Griffin Process, which presents the specimens life like in the flesh, as the day they were removed from the ocean.

The exhibition will be in Ranger for these days inclusive of Sunday night, Nov. 11th, and can be seen in the huge exhibition ship at the corner of Austin and Pine streets opposite the City Hall.

E. A. RINGOLD GIVES SOME INTERESTING FIGURES ON CITY AUDITORIUM PROGRESS

In a letter to the Ranger Daily Times, E. A. Ringold, school tax collector of Ranger and secretary of the Ranger school board, has set out the progress made in building the city auditorium and gymnasium and the work done on collecting taxes, giving some interesting figures. The letter follows:

"In answer to your request for information regarding the actions of the board of trustees with reference to plans of completing the auditorium and recreational building now under construction.

"At a meeting of the board of trustees held Oct. 31, a letter from County Administrator H. E. Driscoll was read to the board showing that the relief department had granted to the Ranger Independent school district an additional allowance of $4,470 to be used for skilled labor on the auditorium building. This is in addition to the amount previously allowed for common labor.

"In order to carry on the work, the school district will have to buy all of the material which will cost approximately $8,000 and pay some incidental labor bills not allowed by the relief office, which is estimated at $1,000. In order to carry on the work the board of trustees went on record as being ready to do everything in their power to complete this building and pledged a part of the collection to taxes now delinquent for the purchase of material. It is estimated that approximately one-fourth of the amount of taxes now delinquent can be collected, therefore, the completion of the auditorium building depends on the delinquent tax payers of Ranger.

After some discussion, the board admitted that it is true that some that are delinquent are absolutely unable to pay at this time, however, they feel there are a number who could make arrangements to pay up. The government has provided ways to help people to save their property from foreclosure where the property owner is willing to do their part.

"In 1920 the tax value of the Ranger Independent school district was $19,966,385; in 1922 it was $10,138,187; in 1925 it was $8,460,422; in 1930, $7,267,664, and in 1934, $3,808,500. The delinquent taxes from 1920 to 1933 inclusive, shows over $90,000 delinquent for a period of 14 years. Approximately $25,000 of this amount is against Real Estate that is considered collectable, the balance is against outlying lots which have no value and have been abandoned since 1920 and lots where houses have either been burned or have been moved away and personal property that has been burned or moved away from this district during the period of 14 years.

"The school district has a bonded indebtedness of $376,500. It was originally voted $480,000 but follows: $200,000 for the building and equipment of the Convener, Vaux and Tiffin buildings; $95,000 for the building and equipment of the high school and $81,500 for the stadium and school. The school has reduced this indebtedness $103,500 since the bonds were voted. There are now $273,000 amount of interest on the amount of $376,500. Most of the school bonds were sold by the state government and therefore there is a very low possibility of getting an adjustment on the amount of these bonds.

"In 1930 there were 2000-2500 pupils in the school and in 1934 there were 1600-1700 pupils in the school. This is a decrease of 400-800 pupils in 4 years. This is due to the fact that in 1934 the school was closed for 60 days because of the epidemic of the 6-year-old being admitted) in

"The board of trustees are now faced with the unpleasant duty of ordering suits filed on all delinquent taxes or allowing the schools to close for the want of money to pay their teachers. The board of trustees have made a contract with W. S. Adamson to handle the legal end of collecting delinquent taxes and are going to push the collections in every way possible in order to save the school situation in Ranger, however, it is going to take the cooperation of the entire citizenship of this community to bring about a condition that will enable the trustees to complete the auditorium and maintain the standard of the schools present standard. This movement is naturally going to be maintained by the assistance of all the civic clubs and other organized bodies in Ranger, as well as, the assistance of the press in bringing this situation to the attention of the citizens of Ranger and the patrons of the Ranger schools."

period of silent prayer will follow, during which the assembly will face west.

W. F. Walker, of the Cisco school board, who is considered one of the best speakers in this section of the country, will deliver a 15-minute patriotic address in keeping with the celebration.

J. E. Meroney, chairman of the parade committee, has announced that the parade will assemble on Commerce street, with all entries coming into the block from the north end of the street, and that the tentative arrangement will be, first the Legion post with the colors, then the Cisco Lobo band and pep squad, the American Legion auxiliary entry, Boy Scouts, Lions club float, Miss Mitchell's choral club from Hodges Oak Park school, Cooper school float, Rotary club, Ranger high school band and pep squad, national guards and commercial cars.

Following the parade and the patriotic address, a luncheon will be held at the Country club for all ex-service men of this section of the country with a few invited guests, selected from among those who made the celebration possible.

In the afternoon the big attraction will be the Cisco Lobo-Ranger Bulldogs football game, which is to be played at Lillard field.

Beginning at 7:15 and continuing until 8:30 will be a free vaudeville followed by a street dance, with the Ranger high school band playing for the occasion.

The vaudeville numbers will include specialty dances by Cecilia McDowell, Estay Ruth Yorker, Dorothy Henry, Lois Bragg, and Margaret Watt; selections by the Ranger Rhythmettes, consisting of Marjorie Clark, Merle Stewart, Gladys Daniels and Bobbie Davenport; a novelty twin act by Misses Madeline and Margaret Lee; glee songs by Miss Doris Mitchell impersonation, Boris Belovsky; The Old Accordion Man, by Mrs. Lee Galley; poverty numbers by Harry Henry and Johnny Ducker, Lonnie Hanning, J. J. Kelly and Henry Hanonid, Turpin and his banjo; and a grand finale by the American Legion Tickleband, under the direction of Dr. Harry A. Logsdon.

The Ranger high school band, under the direction of R. L. Maddox, will play for the occasion and music for those who wish to take part in the street dance to follow.

At the American Legion hall a short, impressive ceremony is to be held, with G. E. (Bob) Robinson, post commander of the Carl Barnes post, in charge, after which a smoker for all members of the post and all visiting Legionnaires will be held.

People's Forum

We are told that Burdett mastered fourteen languages while working daily in his blacksmith shop. Knowing that this man accomplished so much by regular and systematic use of his spare moments should be an incentive to us to better employ the time we now habitually fritter away. If we will honestly check up on ourselves at the close of day we usually will be surprised and a little chagrined at the way and manner we have spent our minutes. If it is advisable to budget our expenditure of money it is much more vital that we keep a close check on how we spend our time, for we may recover a wasted fortune but time lost is gone forever. The only way to stop this crime of neglecting to improve this precious gift of time is to stop it. Mental and spiritual growth can only be maintained by the assimilation of mental and spiritual food. This food should be taken with the care, regularity and frequency necessary to proper development.

There is now being conducted in Ranger a school designed to help us form habits of study-leading to cultural and skillful improvement in the worthwhile things of life. The government undertakes to furnish qualified instructors, the school board generously offers housing facilities; the necessary text-books; the results are strictly up to us. Work is offered in the regular school subjects and also in music, woodwork and practical electricity. Other subjects will be offered if there is a demand. Evening classes five nights a week from 6:30 to 9:30. Come to the High School building tonight and enroll, choose your subjects and use your time, which is your most valuable asset, in self improvement. You can make yourself a better citizen, a better associate and our country the better by having lived in it.

YORK, Neb.—R. J. Wels can do more with one shotgun charge than many Nimrods can accomplish with a whole box of shells. While hunting near Geneva, Neb., Wels fired at two ducks flying low over the surface and was gratified when he saw he had brought down both. He was astonished, however, a second later to see a large jackrabbit leap from the bushes and fall over dead. He investigated and found part of the charge apparently passed between the birds killing the rabbit.

County Jail Is Being Repaired

The Eastland county jail—unchanged since its erection in 1897—is undergoing radical changes.

T. Ross of Gorman, supervisor of the job, stated that expenditure of between $2,500 and $3,000 is involved in the remodeling. Ceilings and walls are to be replastered and some stones unturned for 37 years will be taken out, Ross stated.

Ross on an inspection tour of the jail pointed out decaying wood in the floors, plaster on the wall gradually falling off, marks left by rains throughout the years which has resulted in damages because of the leaky roof and other things.

Bricks from Marshall, the same as in the courthouse, will be used in place of the first line of red brick on the outside of the building. The jail will assume an entirely different appearance after the repairing, Ross stated.

"Cleopatra" Brings New Coiffure Aid To Feminine Lure

After going through a cycle of 20 centuries, coiffures are turning again to the styles worn in Rome and Egypt at the time of Cleopatra and Julius Caesar, according to the nation's foremost beauty experts.

The trend, already inaugurated, is being heightened by the influence of hairdresses worn by Claudette Colbert, Claudia Dell, Gertrude Michael and others of the feminine principals in Cecil B. DeMille's "Cleopatra," coming Monday to the Arcadia theatre, in which Miss Colbert is featured with Warren William and Henry Wilcoxon.

The Roman headdress worn by Claudia Dell as Octavia consists of double bangs of stylized curls, giving a lacquered effect which is further carried out by more rows of flat curls across the top of the coiffure.

High on the back of the head is a bunch of cork-crow curls confined by a jeweled ornament which matches the ear rings. The gowns, jewelry, shoes and other articles of apparel worn by the principals in DeMille's pageant of the life and loves of one of history's most famous queens, are also expected to furnish a high spot in the forthcoming season's fashion. The influence of the Cleopatra styles are definitely to be seen in the advance fashions now showing in metropolitan centers.

The Sigma Epsilon chapter met Nov. 8 at 7 o'clock at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Parks at 214 South Austin street, with 18 members present.

The purpose of this meeting was to initiate five candidates for membership. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Von Roeder were given honorary memberships to the chapter. The candidates were: W. O. Shaffer, Jack Wagner, Raymond Stockmire, Ernest Blackwell and Forest Lyon. The regular ritual was carried out and then the fun began.

The first application was the dress of science. We couldn't exactly say what this beverage was composed of but from the expression on the candidates' faces it must have been delicious. After this they were blindfolded, and Mr. Von Roeder applied the "board of education." They were led into the backyard and the members of the chapter completed their education with a board.

Much to the sorrow of the candidates, they were then asked to disrobe their feet and parade down the nice smooth street in front of Mr. and Mrs. Von Roeder's home. This parade ended in nice, sticky molasses. They then had the good fellowship of feet washing and the untieing of various knots in shoestrings. Then they had to accomplish the task of dressing their feet with blindfolds still on. The final sensation was the fall from Fike's Peak (we'll let you guess what that was).

When that part of the program had been completed the luncheon was over and Lion R. F. Holloway and Lion Harry A. Logsdon were presented for their part on the program. It would be impossible to recount the stirring talks made by both these men whose voices betrayed their deep emotion in several parts of their talks about war days and war buddies.

Prof. Holloway told of the part he played in the camp in San Antonio with the W. M. C. A. to which he was assigned when he volunteered for service. He told of how it was the duty and privilege of the department he was in to take the boys fresh from home—probably for their first time—who came to camp in tents and instill in them a fighting spirit and give them an outlook that was bright and in fact send them on a few months later light of step and singing.

A thrilling story of the days in the Ambulance Corps of the 90th Division during training in Texas and in service at the front was given by Dr. Harry A. Logsdon who was a Captain and a surgeon during the conflict. He gave an account of the days and nights of working hour after hour over the torn bodies of comrades in heavy shelling and the roar of the big guns and the times when the light from the firing of the guns was so brilliant that a newspaper could be read at night from their light. His talk was made immensely interesting by the souvenirs he passed from time to time to illustrate parts of his talk.

Visitors at the luncheon were Rupert Ringold, Miss Susan Hitt, H. S. Von Roeder, H. L. Baskin.

FAMOUS FILMS BOOKED FOR ARCADIA FOR COMING WEEK

Ranger theater goers will have a splendid schedule of pictures for the coming week as some of the season's most outstanding pictures have been booked by B. E. Garner, local manager of Paschall-Texas Theatres.

Sunday Mae West will be shown in her latest feature "Belle of the Nineties," in which she sings several songs the way that she has won her many followers, both on the stage and on the screen.

Monday and Tuesday Cecil De Mille's famous "Cleopatra," starring Claudette Colbert and Warren William, with a strong supporting cast, will be featured. Cleopatra has some of the most gorgeous costumes and scenery of any picture ever produced and combines one of the most interesting periods of history with the most famous love affair in ancient or modern times.

Some of the costumes worn by the two principals cost many thousands of dollars and the effects they create would alone make the picture one of the season's most spectacular.
