Police 'Muss Up' Suspects While Law Remains Lax

How far is a policeman entitled to go when he bumps into a man known to be a desperado, but whom the courts can never seem to touch?

Police Commissioner Valentine of New York has the idea that the cop can go just about as far as he likes. He complains that his police have been too polite to racketeers, gunmen, and such like, and he wants to see these gentlemen mussed up a little.

The commissioners expressed himself in this vein after watching a man named Harry Strouss brought into a police lineup at headquarters.

Strauss has been arrested 18 times in the last seven years, on charges ranging all the way from homicide to thing, however, and when he was pinched he gave his occupation as a house painter.

He came in dressed like a fashion-plate, and it was his sartorial magnificence that exasperated the commissioner. appeals to the public by the greatest method which infor-

"This man is a paid assassin," said the commissioner. "Men like him should be marked up and mussed up. Blood should be smared all over that velvet collar. Instead, he straight and being on the square. looks as if he had just got out of a barber's chair."

Very few persons will quarrel with this idea, in itself. Unfortunately, when the police set out to muss people up. they aren't usually very discriminating.

For that reason, telling any police department to be brutal is a mistake. The brutality is certain to hit the wrong parties, sooner or later.

Nevertheless, we haven't answered the commissioner when we say his idea is dangerous. We must fuid some way of taking care of these outlaws who can be arrested 18 times and yet remain free to follow their own devices.

Something pretty shocking must be wrong with our criminal law and our method of administering it when a man can be accused three times of homicide, six times of carrying a gun, and nine times of felonies ranging from grand larceny to assault, without even so much as standing trial before a jury.

So long as such conditions obtain, the police are going to be brutal out of sheer exasperation. We can never abelish the third degree until we take a few of the kinks out

A WORD FROM HENRY FORD

We expect to announce our new 1935 cars, and have them in dealers' showrooms where you may see and examine them, on Saturday, December fort both in driving the car and riding in itdistribution will soon commence.

I have never been very much in favor of the custom of yearly models. Good motor cars do not become obsolete simply because the calendar turns a leaf. Our former custom was to put improvements on our cars as soon as we developed and tested them, so that there was continuous refinement and progress. The custom of introducing new models annually is justified when they are really new, and not merely equipped with new talking points for the purposes of salesmanship.

Last year's Ford V-8 was a good car, the best we had built up to that time. We don't say to any customer with a last year's car that his car is out of date. If it is giving him service, and if he is not in the market for a new car, there is no reason for him to feel that he is behind the procession. He still drives the fundamentally latest thing in cars. The new car has all the qualities and advantages of last year's car, with something added.

The improvements we offer are not experimental in any sense; they were thoroughly tried out under every conceivable circumstance before we finally adopted them. That, in fact, is our job all the year 'round-refining, improving, making new balance of qualities, always adhering closely to our principle of continuous growth in the basic purpose of the Ford car.

The 1935 V-8 engine is practically the same engine we built in 1934, because we have not learned how to build a better one. It has, however, some refinements; amongst which are the copper-lead connecting rod bearings, and the new type of crankcase ventilation.

Most of the improvements concern the riding qualities of the car. There is now more com-29th. The cars are coming off the line now and and it was always a very comfortable car to drive. This year we have paid particular attention to the comfort of the back seat rider. The rear seat is now forward of the rear axle, so that all passengers ride between the axles. With the new flexible springs, this gives what has been aptly described as "a front seat ride for the back seat passengers." Besides, it has permitted changes in the design of the body which have resulted in those lines of beauty so much in favor with automobile owners

> We have always had three fundamentals-Durability, Economy of operation and maintenance, and Comfort. Safety, of course, is taken for granted. The Durability is just what it always was; no one needs to be told at this late day that Fords are built to last. The Economy is even greater than before-an 8-cylinder engine with the economy of a four. As to Comfort, however, there has been a very considerable advance, as I think you will agree when you have tried the car out.

> We built more than 20,000,000 cars previous to the V-8. We have built 1,300,000 V-8 cars. The V-8, we believe, is the proper engine for the lowprice car field, which is our field.

> This 1935 car will be on display December 29th, with all details ready for your information. It is entirely probable that the prices will start at lower levels than in 1934. We want them lower because we expect to build a million cars and better next year, and the price must be right. If the price is right, people will buy; men will go back to work; a thousand related businesses will feel the new impulse. At least, we are trying to make 1935 a busier, happier and more hopeful year.
