ARGUMENTS IN BRUNO'S TRIAL BEGUN TODAY

Reilly's charges were that the now famous "kidnap ladder" was on the estate after the kidnaping was a "state plant" and it had never been used in the past.

Our Task Is To Avoid Necessity of Relief

One of the dangers we face in considering any unemployed relief, no matter how it is set up or what benefits it may provide, is in the end only a substitute for something better.

Recent argument over different relief measures seems to have taken it for granted that there is, somewhere, a magic formula which, if we only could find it, would solve this vexing question forever.

It is most important for us not to forget that even the wisest relief bill is only a poultice. Even if every idle worker in the land were drawing ample relief allowances under a scheme which magically prevented the financial load from burdening the taxpayer the real problem would remain. We would still face the task of getting these idle men back to work.

There is going on in Washington now a lengthy argument between proponents of different kinds of relief. One kind is typified by the administration's relief measure, which would operate through state systems and would give jobless men an allowance ranging somewhere around $50 a month.

The other, infinitely broader, is represented by the Lundeen bill, now being discussed before a House subcommittee.

This bill would boldly pay all persons past 18, who are jobless through no fault of their own, a weekly sum equal to the prevailing rates in their locality. Those on part-time work would draw from the government the difference between their part-time wage and the prevailing wage.

Now this bill, naturally enough, is drawing superlatives from each camp. People whose viewpoint is that of the political left are hailing it as a measure which will at last do justice to the unemployed; conservatives, on the other hand, see in it a piece of extravagance which would commit the government to unbearably heavy expenditures and would promote idleness.

What both sides are apt to miss is the fact that our real problem is to arrange things so that no unemployment relief bill will be needed.

The immediate need may be to take care of the jobless, but the long-range need is to get the jobless back to work.

Any relief bill, strictly speaking, is a piece of extravagance—a sign that our economic machine is out of gear somewhere.

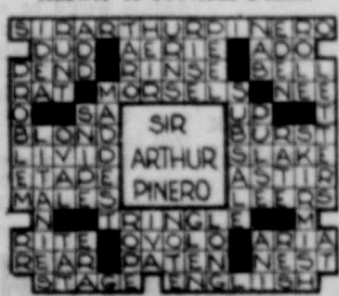

No matter how wisely we plan for a relief bill, the problem won't be solved until we have fixed things so that the jobless man can get a job and not a handout.

Dr. Ditmors Found The Vampire Bat Legends Erroneous

By United Press
 READING, Pa.—Speaking here recently Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of the Bronx Zoological Park, New York, discussed the characteristics and habits of the vampire bat, famous in legend and literature.

Dr. Ditmars said that there have been so many misconceptions and erroneous ideas about the supposedly gruesome bloodsucking creature, and very little actually known of its habits, that he set out on an expedition to the Chilibillo caves in Panama, a known habitation of the mysterious creatures.

Two years ago he was successful in bringing back with him one of two bats he had captured.

"One requisite in keeping these bats alive is a plentiful supply of fresh defibrinated blood," Ditmars said. "They are blood-lappers—not blood suckers—and in order to obtain their favorite food are equipped with a pair of lancet-like teeth which make a shallow wound that bleeds freely for hours, thus providing them with an abundant supply of their beverage."

Enlisting the aid of films, Ditmars showed the results of inducing a captured bat to drink from a supply of beef blood brought along for that specific purpose. He obtained a film of the creature lapping up the blood in the same manner that a domesticated cat would use.

The curator discovered many peculiarities of the bats. He pointed out that the vampire bats walked about high on their legs and could jump into the air for a take-off, contrary to the habits of the majority of the bat tribe.

A year ago the government of Trinidad discovered the vampire was biting cattle and spreading rabies. Ditmars' services were requested and he again set out to the tropics and brought back seven more of the bats, which now are under his observations.

This famous bat, contrary to usual belief, is only one-fourth the size of a rat and has a wing spread of 14 inches, Ditmars explained.

"Eyes" Will Probe Secrets of Earth

By United Press
 WASHINGTON.—"Underground eyes" designed to probe secrets of the earth have been developed by engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads.

E. R. Shepard, Bureau research engineer, said the "eyes" were machines which determined the character of materials under earth. He said the device would enable a person "pretty good at figures" to decide most desirable sites for excavation purposes.

Designed especially for highway and bridge engineers, the machine may be used to locate gravel deposits and other surface materials, and to explore foundation sites.

One of the devices is operated by an "electrical resistivity method." Electric current is introduced in the earth through spaced electrodes, the average electrical resistivity of a zone of earth comparable in dimensions to the electrode spacing may be measured.

Another machine is operated by a more simple "seismic method." Dynamite is placed in the earth and exploded under controlled conditions. Resultant sound waves travelling through the earth are captured at various locations by time and other characteristics are recorded on a moving photographic film.

Womaniac Fish Expert Never Made Catch

By United Press
 WASHINGTON.—A scientific knowledge of fish doesn't make a fisherman, according to Miss Louella Cable, who has a record of "many casts, but no catches."

Miss Cable is regarded as "Washington's outstanding woman authority on fish." She is secretary to Elmer Higgins, scientific division chief of the Bureau of Fisheries.

In addition to her scientific work, Miss Cable draws life scenes for the department. She knows thoroughly the lives and practices of practically every type of fish, but hasn't discovered the means to fishing success. After a recent fishing trip, she said:

"I couldn't catch anything."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The Virgin Islands are a couple of small islands which for a long time have been acting like big bad boys. You can't tell where they'll spread next.

Apologies by Secretary Ickes to Jim Farley, Homer Cummings, and Pat Harrison for his department's handling distribution to the press of a magazine article criticizing them—inferentially along with their friend, Federal Judge T. Webber Wilson, sitting in the Virgin Islands, sitting in a whole string of irritations.

What between noble attempts to rehabilitate the poverty-stricken islands and incessant warfare between Wilson and his political backers on one side and Gov. Paul Pearson, supported by Ickes and other liberals, a prodigiously disproportionate amount of New Deal time has been spent in worrying about those islands.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Rex Tugwell, and many others have been interested. Alternating complaints against Pearson and Wilson have resulted in investigation after investigation by Ickes. Dismissals have resulted.

The administration political machine under Farley has been constantly irritated because the idealistic Pearson, a Hoover appointee, was retained by Ickes. Except for Wilson, a lame duck ex-congressman from Mississippi, the islands have been kept out of the hands of the politicians.

Family Reunion Held at Kokomo

Rev. and Mrs. R. D. S. Gregory were host and hostess at a family reunion celebrated at the home of their daughter, Mrs. J. C. Donaldson of Kokomo on Feb. 5th.

This was a day spent in reminiscence, recalling no doubt, fond memories of the past, also the sad recollections that had befallen some of the family circles. Yet, this was not all their thinking—they were living the day with four children, Kokomo; Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Donaldson of Kokomo; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. WASHINGTON gossip probably is no dirtier than the gossip anywhere else, but it's often difficult for celebrities to act like human beings without the more inveterate dirt-spreaders flaring out something more or less sinister. Thus the latest insinuations are based on the sequence of events in which Mr. John Boettiger was mentioned as Mrs. Anna Doll's future husband, the government investigated the alleged movie trust, the movies hired Mr. Boettiger, the alleged movie trust was indicted, and Mr. Boettiger thereupon married Mrs. Dall.

Of course Mr. Boettiger was previously a Washington correspondent for the New Deal's most virulent journalistic foe, so there seemed to be something graceful in his retirement from that job. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

Multiple Color In Dyeing Is No Longer Mystery

PHILADELPHIA.—Scientific research at last has solved the problem of multiple color dyeing. It is called "checker-board dyeing," according to Elmer C. Bertolet, head of the department of chemistry and dyeing of the Philadelphia Textile School.

Speaking here recently Bertolet explained the latest development in the science of textile dyeing. Colorless material may now be dipped into a vat of dyestuffs and changed into a vivid design of two or more colors. Likewise a group of different fabrics may be inserted into the same dyeing vat and each one of them emerge a different color.

The discovery of the checker-board dyeing came as a result of long chemical research with dyestuffs and of the fibers employed in making textiles.

Scientists discovered elemental differences in chemical and physical makeup of various fibers. They found the differences of chemical reactions.

From these discoveries dyes have been developed which color rayon and not wool and vice versa. Following this it became possible to color a piece of material made of rayon and wool—or other combinations—in one vat and the different types emerged in different colors.

Bertolet discussed the differences between all the kinds of fibers—animal, silk, wool, cashmere, goat's hair; vegetable, as jute, cotton and asbestos; those types offer different elements to dyers, he said.

Erast, on the other hand, is this country's outstanding legal crusader against literary censorship and has won many court cases involving attempted suppression of books and magazine issues.

WASHINGTON gossip probably is no dirtier than the gossip anywhere else, but it's often difficult for celebrities to act like human beings without the more inveterate dirt-spreaders flaring out something more or less sinister. Thus the latest insinuations are based on the sequence of events in which Mr. John Boettiger was mentioned as Mrs. Anna Doll's future husband, the government investigated the alleged movie trust, the movies hired Mr. Boettiger, the alleged movie trust was indicted, and Mr. Boettiger thereupon married Mrs. Dall.

Of course Mr. Boettiger was previously a Washington correspondent for the New Deal's most virulent journalistic foe, so there seemed to be something graceful in his retirement from that job. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

"OUT OUR WAY" - - - - - By Williams

SILKEN SPINDLES by Laura Lou Brookman

© 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY... Gale Henderson, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, Phil, support their invalid father.

Steve Meyers who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. Gale goes skating, breaks thru the ice and is rescued by Brian Westmore whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Gale disappears before he learns her name.

Vicky Thatcher, daughter of Robert Thatcher, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian. Gale goes on an errand for a neighbor, Mrs. O'Connor, which takes her into the country. It is a stormy night and she misses the return bus.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XXII... The coupe came to a stop and the door opened. A man's voice called, "Want a ride east? Be glad to take you."

Gale stepped forward. She couldn't stand there in the sleet and cold for four hours; that was certain. She tried to see the man in the car but his face was in darkness. "I do want to get home," she said. "I missed the bus."

"Yes, I saw the driver pull away and leave you. That was a mean trick," said Gale. "All at once the man was out of the car, coming toward her. 'Why, Gale Henderson!' he exclaimed. 'I didn't know it was you! What in the world are you doing here?'"

Gale looked up at Brian Westmore. She hoped he would think it was the cold that made her lips tremble as they did. She said, "I didn't recognize you either."

"But you mustn't stand here shivering. Here—get into the car." He helped her into the coupe, and a moment later was beside her. "Say, I'm glad I came along just when I did," he went on. "It's a rotten afternoon—you shouldn't be out in it."

He said, concerned, "You're cold, aren't you? Take my coat." She shook her head. "Oh, no," she said. "I'm warm now. Really I am! Tell me, do you always go around rescuing maidens in distress? I believe this is the second time you've saved me from an icy death."

Brian laughed. "As a career," he said, "I can't think of anything I'd like better than rescuing maidens in distress. Would you give me a letter of recommendation or testimonial?"

Business Continues To Move Forward Despite Uncertainties

By United Press

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 11.—Business continues to move forward at a satisfactory rate despite the uncertainties created by the possibility that the Supreme Court may declare the abrogation of the gold clause and kindred legislation unconstitutional, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

"Prevailing opinion appears to be that in the event an adverse decision is to be forthcoming, the administration will be given priority in order that Congress may enact such necessary countervailing legislation as to forestall any serious shock to business morale," Dr. Buechel said.

"From the longer-term point of view developments appear to be ripening which could readily overshadow a period of sustained business and social improvement. For example, the new cooperative attitude displayed by government officials and business spokesmen during recent months has developed to the point where contact between business leaders and government officials is to be continuous and no longer haphazard as in the past."

The agency to be used in the new liaison is the Business and Advisory Planning Council of the Department of Commerce. This council is made up of 52 of the Nation's leading industrialists, bankers, and business men. It meets regularly and has a permanent office in Washington. Under the new plan any business man or organization desiring to be heard on any piece of pending legislation may get a hearing through the council.

Information and suggestion communicated to the council will be passed along to different members of the Cabinet. President Roosevelt has approved the plan which was worked out in a conference between the President, Secretary Roper and H. P. Kendall of Boston, chairman of the business council.

"The council may be expected to use its influence in discovering and fostering the normal forces which are making for business recovery. Among the most powerful of these forces is the very duration and severity of the depression and the shortage of goods which have developed as a result of it. Production per capita in industry after having risen with only brief interruptions for more than thirty years is now down to where it was in 1904 even after allowing for the improvement which has taken place in the last twenty months. The upward course of industrial production per capita from 1920 to 1930 was a continuation of that from 1899 to 1919 and was not an over-expansion of output, peculiar to the 1920's, as some have stated in attempting to explain the cause of the depression. Even if production per capita were not to resume its upward trend but were to rise merely to the level of that in the 1920's, a vast increase in industrial activity would result.

"Illustrative of the huge potential demand for durable goods which now exists are some estimates which appear in the Analyst of January 11. The figures classified into five groups are as follows: Consumer's residential construction, including repairs and new homes, $14,000,000,000; producer's construction, including repairs other than residential, $12,000,000,000; consumer's durable goods, $5,000,000,000; producer's durable goods, $7,000,000,000; consumer's semi-durable goods, $8,000,000,000; total, $46,000,000,000.

"The author of the foregoing data points out significantly that the greatest immediate potential demand for goods lies with the individual as against the corporation; and that revival of the durable-goods industry will come about when these now employed feel sufficiently sure about their present employment to assume further commitments for the purchase of new homes, new cars, new furniture, and the like, and when they are able to make their first down payments on such purchases.

"Coinciding with this great backlog of demand for durable consumer's goods is to be basis for potential credit expansion which is without precedent in the history of the country. This situation is...

WHEN you are run down it is sometimes developed into something serious. Your health is too important to be neglected. Improve the stomach and the blood with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Read this Mrs. O. W. Somers of 1101 Green Little Rock, Ark., said: 'My husband (picture above) was in a run-down condition and seemed to feel so badly, he lost weight, never cared to eat and complained of indigestion and constipation. He used one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and regained his normal weight, his appetite improved and he did what he had been unable to do for some time. Now size, tablets 50 cents, liquid $1.00. Large size, tabs, or liquid, $1.35. All druggists.'

Grow Your Own Vitamin C

Of all the mysterious food elements called vitamins, about whose influence on health we are constantly learning more through medical research, perhaps the most important for growing children is vitamin C, which is required for normal tooth development and healthy gums.

It is the most elusive of vitamins—what the experts call chemically unstable—and while it is found in most abundance in cabbage, lettuce, tomatoes, peppers, spinach and citrus fruits, it quickly deteriorates when the vegetable or fruit is harvested. To be sure it is present, you must be sure the food is fresh.

All vitamins, to some degree, are most abundant in fresh foods, a fact which enhances the value of the home garden for the family with children especially. The products of the home garden may be served a few minutes after they are picked, and thus consumed with their maximum vitamin content. Tenderness and flavor are also at their best in fresh vegetables.

Quantity of food is no longer the index to a properly balanced diet, and children especially may lack certain essential elements without that fact being realized. Health and vigor are promoted by vitamin A. The pigments called carotene, found in many vegetables, are the sources of this important food. An adequate supply helps to build up resistance to disease, especially for children. Asparagus, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, celery, chard, yellow corn, kale, lettuce, green peppers, spinach, string beans, tomatoes, yellow turnips, and several other vegetables are rich in this vitamin.

Vitamin B and G were at first thought to be one. Later they were segregated, but found always in combinations in the same foods. Stimulation of appetite and digestion, as well as growth-promotion, is their special province. A lack of them will cause nervous diseases and tendencies, as well as pellagra. They are found in peas, beans, and many of the root crops, and are especially accommodating because they withstand the extreme heat of cooking.

Vitamin D regulates the absorption of the mineral salts, calcium and phosphorus, which are found in vegetables. It is most essential for children whose bones are forming and growing. It is found chiefly in liver oils, sunlight, eggs and milk, and should be accompanied by an adequate supply of mineral salts.

Chicago has been rated the noisiest city in the United States, with echoes of the World's Fair still resounding in our ears.

Is This Too Good For Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven helps in one. It is made for quick relief, for safety. Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist is authorized to guarantee it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.—(Adv.)

Post Mortem On Girl Dead For 2500 Years Revealed Secrets

COLUMBUS, O.—Dr. Frank A. Ziebel and Dr. Norris Lenhan, young Columbus surgeons, have performed a post mortem on Naskhoun-Pa-Krodu, Theban mummy, a prized possession of Ohio Archeological and Historical Museum.

The young lady, also known as Nitip, had been dead for 2,500 years. The operation showed that her death was of natural causes, but sudden; that she was childless; that aside from two childhood illnesses, she enjoyed comparatively good health.

H. C. Shetron, curator of the museum, said the examination sets at rest a notion that Nitip was a glamorous woman of an exotic kingdom. She was a spinster, mistress of her father's household, who spent most of her time keeping house.

Elias Tamburitzza Serenaders Here Next Thursday

"Who is this 'Elias Tamburitzza' who is going to serenade here?" asked a student the other day. He was quickly told that "Elias" is the family name of the four Jugo-Slavian artists who compose the company, and "Tamburitzza" is the family name of the Jugo-Slavian native instruments they feature on the program!

Charles Elias and his three children, Charles, Jr., Martha, and Ann, were born in Jugo-Slavia. MA Elias started his musical career at the age of 3. Later he studied three years in Leipzig, Germany. After coming to America he taught music in Chicago. Twelve years ago they began concert work and have proved one of the most unique and popular attractions ever to appear behind the footlights.

Two Good Bouts And Added Attraction On Elk Program Tonight

Two good wrestling matches and an added attraction are to be seen on the Elk wrestling card tonight, at no advance in the regular prices.

The main event will bring together two fast and scientific wrestlers, Charlie Heard of San Antonio, reputed to be one of the fastest men in the game, and Claude Swindell of Omaha, Neb. This will be the best two out of three falls with a two-hour time limit.

In the semi-final a 45-minute bout between Mervin Barackman, the Canadian champion, will be pitted against Eddie O'Shea, the fighting Irishman. Barackman says he will get rough if necessary, and no doubt Eddie will give him reasons to get rough.
The added attraction is "Andy," the 400-pound wrestling bear. He will tackle each of the wrestlers on the card, going one round with each in the opener. Andy has never been thrown, as yet. Andy will open the show promptly at 8:30.

The arena will be warm and comfortable, regardless of the weather, the promoters said today.

Mrs. Dionne, who now weighs more than 200 pounds, is on a rigid diet and finds little enjoyment in the rounds of dinners, night club entertainment, and receptions. But her husband is in his glory in the hurly-burly in which he suddenly has been thrust.

New Fashions Intrigue Women At Style Show

MIAMI, Fla.—Feminine America will wear satin on the sands, beach pajamas modeled after dinner gowns, much fringe on its evening frocks, and printed alpaca for spectators, ports this summer, according to the dictates of the annual Sunshine Fashion Show.

More than 2,500 feminine fans gathered in the Roney Plaza Cabana Sun Club palm gardens to see the last word in 1935 summer styles.

High notes of the beach styles were satin and lace latex swim suits, the Tahitian ensemble, the Seminole Indian suit, dressmaker bathing suits, three-quarter length pajamas and bath towel coats with "monks" hoods for sun protection.

Cabana Dress
The cabana dress, of the new Shantung line, was seen for the first time here. Styled like a summer evening frock, the dress definitely introduced the picturesque note into beach wear.

Periwinkle blue, wearing the modernized name of Iris, led the color parade in popularity.
One frock for active sports wear was composed entirely of imported scarves, fringed around the neck and at the bottom. Several more luxuriously typed spectator sports ensembles were trimmed with fur

Love and Hate In Conflict In New Sylvia Sidney Film

The dramatic story of revenge that turns into genuine love is the underlying theme of B. P. Schulberg's new Paramount picture, "Behold My Wife," starring Sylvia Sidney with Gene Raymond and coming today to the Arcadia Theatre.

"Behold My Wife," which presents Miss Sidney as a beautiful full-blooded Indian girl, has backgrounds in colorful primitive New Mexico, and urbane and sophisticated New York.

The story is concerned with Gene Raymond's attempt to revenge himself on his ultra-aristocratic family. Driven to New Mexico, when his family's meddling forces his sweetheart to suicide, he is wounded and nursed back to health by Sylvia Sidney.

She falls in love with her patient and he prevails upon her to marry him, and accompany him back home, visualizing his family's horror when they meet her.
His plans go awry, however, when she appears at a reception given in her honor, more beautiful and fascinating than any of the well-bred women who surround her. It is then that he betrays his real purpose to her and tells her that he does not love her. Broken hearted and desperate she runs away with another man.

With her disappearance Raymond realizes that he really loves her. Urged by his family, who

An excise tax of $1,000 also is applicable because Arkansas is a dry state but liquor dealers are fighting the levy in federal court.
