Police Did Good Work In Catching Accused Negroes

Members of the Ranger police department recently did a good bit of work and returned some stolen property to its rightful custodian. A salesman was in the negro section of the city with his car making deliveries on the product he sells and when he leaned in the door of the coach to secure merchandise from the back of the seat a negro woman grabbed his purse and ran. He notified Chief of Police Jim Ingram of the loss, which amounted to about $50 in cash, besides some personal papers. Chief Ingram put Patrolman Johnny Boyd on the case. After making many inquiries and getting as much information as possible he returned to the "flats," located the woman and her husband, handcuffed the husband and found the negro woman under a bed, hiding. The negro, who gave her name as Dorothy Matlock, wife of Henry Matlock, transient, confessed to the robbery and showed Boyd where he could locate the money, which was hidden in several places. The pocketbook and papers were also found and returned to the owner. The two negroes, who confessed to Boyd that they had robbed over of "about $17," were turned over to county officers and taken to the county jail at Eastland.

POWER STRIKE IS AVERTED IN EL PASO TODAY

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 28.—City officials, acting as mediators in a strike of 150 union employees of the El Paso Electric company, announced today that difficulties had been settled and the men agreed to return to work.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 28.—Alarmed by the crippling of hospitals as well as the paralysis of practically every line of business in the city effected by a strike of power company employees, El Paso officials appealed to the El Paso Electric company today to negotiate with the strikers.

County Judge Joseph McGill assisting Mayor R. E. Sherman as mediator, said he would recommend to officials of the company that they accept demands of members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers for recognition of their union and the "closed shop."

"We want to keep people from dying in the hospitals and keep up the water supply to avoid fire danger. We know nothing of the merits of the controversy," Judge McGill said.

He pointed out that three persons at a hospital, living in oxygen tents, were in danger of dying if electric power to operate the oxygen equipment were not restored immediately.

M. C. Smith, electric company president, admitted he had received an 11-page proposed agreement from the strike committee at 11 p. m. last night, but declined to comment until company officials had conferred this morning.

Judge Garrett to Attend Hearing On House Bill No. 483

County Judge Clyde L. Garrett will be in Austin Friday night to attend a public hearing on House Bill No. 483. Judge Garrett, president of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners association, with the group favor the enactment of the bill as it is believed it would effect a sharp reduction in the ad valorem tax rate of Eastland and other counties in the state. The pending bill adds one cent to the state gasoline tax to guarantee sufficient revenues to make real the proposed reduction in county tax rates.

Baird; cousin, Winfield Rodman, owner of the plane; brother, Charles Baird. Another cousin from Kimball, Kenneth Linn, has arrived by train. Several trained nurses and doctors are in constant charge of the case. Children of Mr. and Mrs. Bass have been sent to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Root in Ranger until their mother's condition is improved.

Big Oil Deal Is Not Yet Completed

HOUSTON, Feb. 28.—Standard Oil and Gas Company officials today stated negotiations to purchase the Young Lee Oil Co. for a reported $100,000,000 were "far from completion" but refused to elaborate on the statement. Private reports were at least one of the Young Lee owners had not yet signed papers to close the deal which Standolind admitted was being handled through a "third party."

Ad Valorem Tax Rate Reduction Seen By County Judge Garrett If Pending Bills Are Enacted

Sharp reductions in the ad valorem tax rates of Texas counties will result from enacting bills now pending in the House of Representatives, Clyde L. Garrett, county judge and president of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners association, said Thursday. Judge Garrett believes the plan will permit reductions in county tax rates ranging from one-fourth to one-half in the majority of instances. If the state assumed retirement of $3,500,000 in road bonds of Eastland county, the ad valorem tax rate could be reduced by 60 cents on the $100 valuation, he said.

House Bill No. 325, introduced by Rep. Harold Beck of Texas, creates in the state treasury a special county and road district highway fund to assume the bond burden. It allocates 25 per cent of revenues from the gasoline tax to the available school fund; 35 per cent to the county and road district highway fund; the remainder to the state highway fund.

House Bill No. 483, offered by Rep. Lonnie Alsop of Carthage, adds 1 cent to the state gasoline tax to guarantee sufficient revenues to make real the proposed reduction in county tax rates.

Thus, motorists who use county roads and highways will pay the cost of constructing and maintaining those roads, reducing the burden of ad valorem taxation on the farms and homes and other property of the people, Judge Garrett pointed out. Alsop's bill claims to safeguard the automobile owner by providing: "The tax imposed herein shall be in lieu of any other excise or occupation tax imposed by the state or any political subdivision thereof, on motor fuel."

Mechanics for state assumption of county and district road bonds are set up in House Bill No. 325, Judge Garrett explained. State payments are to be made ratably on all such road obligations.

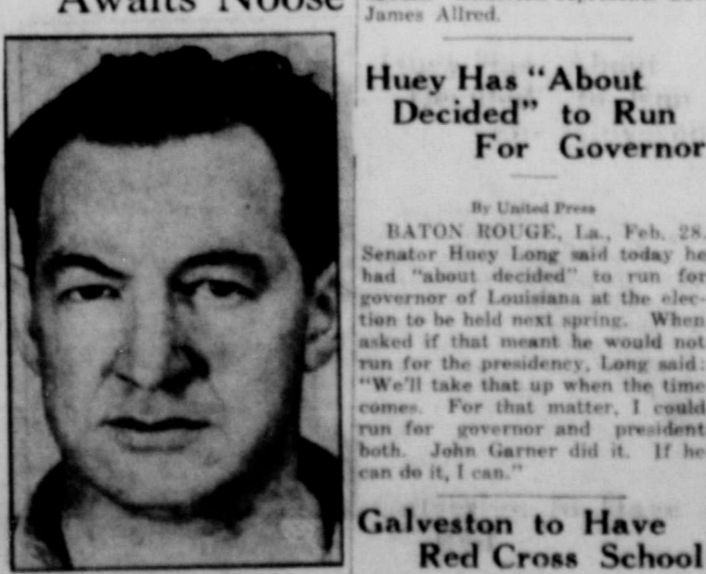

All bonds and warrants issued by counties and road district for constructing, maintaining or improving roads shall be eligible to participate as of Jan. 1, 1936, in the distribution of moneys accumulated in the county and road district highway fund in the state treasury, less the amount of sinking funds required to be accumulated in the respective counties and districts under existing laws.

Road debts of counties and districts maturing prior to Jan. 1, 1936, excluding such debts now being assumed by the state board of county and district road indebtedness, are not eligible.

Judge Garrett said if the amounts in the state fund applicable to the bond obligations of counties and road district are sufficient to meet all maturing interest, principal and sinking fund requirements, "commissioners courts may dispense with the collection of ad valorem for such calendar and or fiscal year for such interest, principal or sinking fund requirements," the bill provides.

SINCLAIR NOT TO TRANSFER ITS EMPLOYEES

Telegrams were received in Ranger Wednesday afternoon by employees of the Sinclair-Prairie company to the effect that the deal which had been pending between the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company and the Sinclair-Prairie Company, which was to involve properties in and around Ranger and Eastland, was off.

At Ranger approximately 18 families were due to leave today, having been tentatively transferred to other sections, but the telegrams ordered them to remain on their present jobs. E. L. McMillen, of the Sinclair Company, stated today that the men had been placed back on their regular jobs, "at least for the time being."

Several of the employees who owned homes in Ranger had sold their property and Wednesday were either looking for rent houses or were trying to buy back their homes, while others who had given up the houses they had rented were remaining or were locating other houses.

The change in plans, it was believed today, would keep the families that had been transferred, in the city and the regular working schedules would be observed as before receipt of the notices of transfer.

Two Fatal Mishaps Near Mineral Wells

Two fatal accidents occurred within an hour near Mineral Wells Thursday morning, according to reports here today. A. J. Smith, 36, was killed west of Palo Pinto at a gravel pit where he was working. A grader on which he was riding struck a rock, throwing him to the ground and knocking him unconscious. One wheel of the grader ran over his head killing him instantly.

About an hour later Mrs. Louise Holland, 33, was burned to death at her home four miles east of Mineral Wells when her clothing caught fire. It was thought that she had thrown kerosene on a wood fire in a stove and that her clothing was ignited from the blast that resulted.

Funeral services for either of the accident victims had not been arranged today, pending arrival of relatives.

FOUNDATIONS OF NEW DEAL THREATENED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Federal court rulings threatened the legal foundations of half a dozen aspects of President Roosevelt's new deal today.

Newest court attacks—the Weirton Steel decision in Wilmington, Del., and the Kentucky Coal case in Louisville—cut the heart of constitutional principles on which the Roosevelt administration has built its recovery program. The administration and congress had proceeded on the theory that by right of power to regulate interstate commerce the government could regulate wages, hours, labor policies and other aspects of individual business because they affected interstate commerce.

The Weirton decision, if upheld, will knock that theory into a cocked hat. Judge Charles Dawson, in Louisville, took the same view and ruled that coal mining is interstate commerce and beyond the power of congress to regulate.

Motorists Warned Of Deer On Road

KERRVILLE, Texas.—Game wardens in this section have cautioned motorists to be on the watch for deer when driving at night. Two of the animals were killed in a 10-minute period recently when they dashed across the road and were blinded by the automobile lights. Every week several deer are killed in Kerr county in this manner, a game warden said.

Aged Woman Has Had a Busy Life

ALTO, Texas.—Having to lead a commonplace life such as can be duplicated in almost every family, has not kept Miss E. Mabel Kinney, at the age of 85, from being an unusual and distinctive person.

Born in Vermont, Miss Kinney emigrated with her parents to Minnesota in 1862, earned money for a college education by teaching school for $12 a month and "boarding about," taught school for some 20 years in Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois, gave up teaching to care for her aging parents, and then after their deaths came south to be with a brother who had lost his wife.

In her new environment, Miss Kinney did not drop her interests but pursued them the same as before.

Besides keeping house, she has found time for writing, for compiling a family genealogy and for teaching a Sunday school class. Some of her poetry and stories have been published, and she has at various times written columns for newspapers. She began teaching a Sunday school class in 1873 and has continued it since.

MONOPOLY BY STATE URGED IN WET BILL

Income Tax Would Begin at $1,000 In Measure Before House.

AUSTIN, Feb. 28.—State monopoly over the sale of legalized hard liquor in Texas was proposed today by Senator Joe Hill of Henderson.

His proposed amendment to the constitution prohibits sale of hard liquor for private profit, declares the state's policy shall be to prevent the return of the open saloon and create a state liquor control board. The three members of the board would be appointed by the governor and would have power to license and regulate the importation, manufacture and sale of all liquors in excess of 3.2 per cent alcohol.

At 12:10 p. m. the senate adjourned until tomorrow without voting on the question of repeal.

AUSTIN, Feb. 28.—The Texas house of representatives today received a state income tax bill. Should it become law a single person will pay tax on all but the first $1,000, married men on all in excess of $2,000, plus $200 for each dependent. Corporations will pay on the first $1,000.

The tax begins at 1 per cent on the first $1,000, advances by stages for each additional $1,000 and becomes maximum at 7 per cent on all over $11,000.

Building Trade, Others Hear FHA Men at Meeting

Representatives of the Federal Housing administration, Fort Worth office, addressed members of the building trades and others at a meeting in the commissioners' court room at Eastland Wednesday afternoon.

Speakers were A. C. Kyles, newly appointed field man for the district from Mineral Wells, Frank V. Williams, Eastland FHA chairman, and R. E. Sikes, executive assistant to the director at Fort Worth.

Pictures were projected giving facts of the program. Weldon Rippey of Fort Worth, accompanying the group, operated the machine. The executive assistant, R. E. Sikes, whose home is in Eastland, in a private conversation, stated that the West Texas district was showing fine, but said that Eastland, Ranger and Cisco were lagging. The communities, however, he stated, in the past few weeks, have indicated they will enter into the program wholeheartedly.

Frank V. Williams, Eastland chairman, said four zones of the city's house-to-house survey had been completed and the remaining three would be in the near future. Promise of another meeting soon was given by the FHA men. The group from Fort Worth went from Eastland to Cisco.

The Cottonwood-Carbon game for the championship of District 6 will be played at Rising Star tonight at 8 o'clock. Dublin high school, winner of the district championship last Saturday night at Breckenridge, was ruled ineligible Tuesday night at Eastland. Members of the district committee ruled out Dan Martin, Dublin guard, on the grounds of the four-year participation rule.

Cottonwood, the school that lodged the protest to Dublin in the final last week, 37 to 20, and Carbon had been eliminated 22 to 16 in the semi-finals.

Speaking of Texas Crops—Meaning Oil and Cotton

Texas contains more oil than any four of the other American commonwealths. It is a natural resource. The heritage, or should be, of all the people of the commonwealth. Cotton ruled as king for years and years. Now this great erstwhile money crop of Texas is in a distressed condition; but there is hope for its return as a world's staple which will place real money in the pockets of those who toil in the field and produce what has been known as the garment of world democracy.

Gov. James V. Allred made history at the conference of governors called by Marland of Oklahoma. He never wavered and he never compromised. Now the compact of states for the prevention of waste and the conservation of resources as well as the rights of the consumer of oil and its by-products should be guarded by the representatives of the oil producing commonwealths. The house of representatives of the American congress is for quick action. It has tackled the oil problem in earnest. It has returned to the senate an amended bill which forbids the movement of hot oil across state lines. The amendment differs in many respects from the Connally bill and now it is predicted that it will go to a conference committee to compose the differences. As amended by the house the bill prohibits interstate movements of hot oil, "unless the President should find that the supply became so low as to cause a disparity of demand," provides for confiscation of illegally produced crude, gives the President authority to set up whatever agency he deems fit to carry out provisions of the act and sets up fines against violators and agrees that the law should expire June 1, 1936."

Rep. Martin Dies of the Beaumont district is responsible for an amendment to make the confiscation clause of the bill effective as soon as the legislation is finally passed. Now it is for the conferees to act without delay and make it possible for the hot oil pirates of the country to be handled without gloves. Secretary Harold L. Ickes called upon "the oil states to put their houses in order."

Well, Texans led the battle at the conference of governors and Texans won not only for the confiscation of hot oil wherever found but for the conservation of the vast resources of the Southwestern empire state and all the states participating in the conference. And this for the protection of all concerned.

The Polish Cabinet recently decided that those who cannot pay their taxes in cash could pay them in kind. Wonder if they have politicians over there and, if so, if they take their salaries in kind.

Two Years Of Roosevelt!

'BOGGING DOWN' OF NEW DEAL
REACTS SLIGHTLY AGAINST MAN IN WHITE HOUSE

Franklin D. Roosevelt is completing his second year in the White House, a year lacking in the spectacular achievements of his first 12 months in office. In this article Rodney Dutcher, NEA Washington correspondent, frankly discusses the progress and failures of the administration.

(Copyright, 1935, NEA Service)
By RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—

Franklin D. Roosevelt's second year in office has been neither as spectacular nor as brilliant as his first.

Nor does its end find him on as high a pedestal of personal popularity as he occupied 12 months ago. There has been a letdown of morale in Washington which apparently is reflected to some degree over the country, despite the encouraging effect of the supreme court gold decision. Even the president has lost a bit of his gaiety.

The New Deal just hasn't been going places. On the anniversary of his inauguration, Roosevelt could point to the most remarkable achievement record in American history. Much has happened since, but the pace has slowed.

Economic improvement since last March has been inconsequential. Except for a billion-dollar increase in farm income—largely caused by a calamitous drought—the nation has done little better than hold its own.

Washington still asks: "What are we going to do with the 10,000,000 unemployed?" Relief rolls are larger than ever, with more than 20,000,000 persons.

Unemployment remains the government's most vital problem and relief its most vital function.

Reaction Is Here
Roosevelt thinks he has the answers, but the psychological effect of his $4,000,000,000 work relief and social insurance programs was discounted by long anticipation and has been largely spent since they became ensnared in Congress.

It began to appear in the second year that the New Deal had been over-ballyhooped by many of its enthusiasts. Roosevelt himself was not guiltless and, though he still has popularity and prestige to spare, he is suffering from a reaction.

Perhaps the lesson of his second twelvemonth is that recovery and reform cannot come overnight. The New Deal now appears in the light of a long-time effort, after an initial spectacular and far-reaching reorientation of national policy.

Meanwhile, there is much confusion here about the next steps, even among high officials.

Best Bets Uncashed

Much time since last March has been spent in repairing mistakes, reorganizing, taking stock of the recovery program and waiting for pronouncements of vital importance from the supreme court. In such circumstances, Roosevelt was bound to lose something of his glamorous reputation for aggressive, fearless leadership.

But the failure of the administration to collect on its admitted chief bets for the year was much more responsible for the recent increase of dissatisfaction and doubt. Those bets were:

1. That a vast outlay of federal funds would give business a big push.

2. That private business would put most of the unemployed back to work.

It didn't happen. Federal funds and federal credit merely kept the economic structure from sagging.

Thus Roosevelt's hope for a 1935-36 balanced budget gave way to an anticipated 1935-36 gross deficit of $4,528,000,000.

One Flop, Then Another
The second Roosevelt year started with a great exhortation to industry to cut hours 10 per cent and boost wages 10 per cent. That was almost as enormous a flop as the subsequent federal housing program, which was to be the great administration effort of the fall and winter and which Administrator James Moffett promised would reemploy 5,000,000 men.

Last spring began the administration's so-called "swing to the right," which meant giving a relatively free rein to bankers, industrialists, and business men to bring about recovery with no more than co-operation from the government.

An example of this policy was appointment of Clay Williams, a cigarette manufacturer whose firm makes enormous profits, but who fought bitterly to preserve low wages, to be chairman of the National Industrial Recovery board.

Labor Gains Little
Donald Richberg and Raymond Moley became White House ambassadors to industry. But bankers and industrialists thus far have largely disappointed the administration and there is ample evidence that Roosevelt is not tying his wagon to their star.

Labor bulked large in the year's history, but gained little by its at-

"The president is on the wire" . . . twinkling lights, serpentine cords crossed and criss-crossed against black metal, nimble fingers will talk to you now . . . voices of all the world pouring through a few strands of wire, converging on one spot with overwhelming impetus, concentrating every problem and every decision of the busiest administration in history on the panel of the White House switchboard.

What a myriad of human pleas, complaints, protests, orders! The financier with millions at stake and the negro sharecropper who has lost his mule . . . the admiral of the fleet and the head of a trade association in Kokomo, Indiana . . . brain trusters and congressmen, business men and magazine editors, labor leaders and automobile magnates, radicals and conservatives . . . America telling its president what's the matter and the president telling his people what can be done about it.

And presiding over it all its quiet, capable Louise Hachmeister, "Hacky," who sees to it that the president never gets a "busy" signal. Her work at the board in National Democratic Headquarters in New York in 1932 impressed Roosevelt so deeply that he made her the first woman head operator ever to sit at the White House switchboard.

tempted demonstration of economic power. The big textile strike of September achieved a large walkout and a face-saving settlement.

The administration's lack of sympathy for the low grade. A. F. of L. leadership was demonstrated in the automobile code revision Labor Relations board enter into automobile disputes.

All the president's labor boards have had trouble, due to defiance by big industries. A. F. of L. incapacity to strengthen the labor position or F. D.'s failure to back them up.

As against evidence that the administration has "turned right," some significant developments came in the other direction.

Swings From "Right"
Among them were:
Roosevelt's order cutting hours in the cotton garment industry from 40 to 36, with proportionate wage increase—a very important precedent.

Reorganization of NRA, new emphasis on code enforcement, and Roosevelt's decision to make NRA a permanent body, with power to impose codes.

A federal report on the automobile industry, revealing hellish conditions of employment.

Federal law for railroad retirement pensions affecting 1,000,000 employees, along with bills for general old age and unemployment pensions.

Also, introduction for bills providing close federal control of banking and credit policies and for dissolution of holding companies, federal control of telegraph, telephone and radio—with an investigation of American Telephone & Telegraph, world's largest corporation.

Appointment of Marriner S. Ecles, liberal, as Federal Reserve Board governor.

Departure of Lew Douglas as budget director and continued disregard of banker-business demand for balanced budget and relief cut.

Decision to give all employables jobs—of some kind.

Current Roosevelt troubles are of varying importance.

Income Tax
In A Nutshell

Deduction for Depreciation
The revenue act provides for "a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence." For convenience, such allowance usually is referred to as depreciation.

In claiming a deduction for depreciation several fundamental principles must be observed. The deduction must be confined to property actually used in trade, business, profession, and to improvements on real property, other than property used by the taxpayer as his personal residence.

In general, it applies to the taxpayer's capital assets—buildings, machinery, etc.—the cost of which cannot be deducted as a business expense.

A lawyer, doctor, or other professional man may not charge off as a current expense the cost of a library used wholly in his profession, this being a capital expenditure and the library a capital asset, but he may deduct an allowance for depreciation based upon the useful life of the library.

If part of a professional man's residence is used by him for office purposes, a proportionate amount of depreciation sustained may be deducted, based generally on the ratio of the number of rooms used for such purposes to the total number of rooms in the building. The same principle applies if a taxpayer rents to others a portion of his residence. Under such conditions, however, the taxpayer must include in his gross income the rentals received.

Clean Out Kidney Poisons

Wash Out Ten 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
If kidneys don't pass 2 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters may become clogged with poisonous waste and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased. Bladder passages are difficult, which often smart and burn like scalding water and cause discomfort.

This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of sagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic aches and dizziness.

Most people watch their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestines but neglect the kidneys, which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make sure your kidneys empty 3 pints a day.

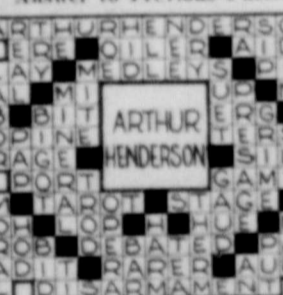

Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gale Henderson, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, Phil, support their invalid father.

She has a girl friend, Nellie, who also works in the mill, and she is engaged to marry him. She delays giving her answer.

Gale goes skating, breaks thru the ice and is rescued by Brian Westmore, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris, ready to take his place in the mill.

Vicky Thatcher, daughter of Robert Thatcher, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian. She sees him with Gale and is furious. Convinced to meet Gale, she tells her that she (Vicky) and Brian are engaged to be married. Gale, believing Brian has been amusing himself at her expense, is deeply hurt. She refuses to see him again.

Gale goes to a dance with Steve. Phil is there. He has been drinking and bursts into loud denunciation of the mill bosses. Next day Phil is fired.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXXVII
Phil went on bitterly. "They let out four of us—Gillaspie and Fritz Moon and Ed Turner and me. Oh, I know why! Some of Thatcher's spies got hold of the fact that we've been holding meetings, trying to get an organization started. That's why they fired us. That's the only reason. Everybody knows Gillaspie was the best man in the spinning room and Ed Turner worked in the mill for eight years."

Gale said, "But, Phil—"

"Don't think I'm sorry," he interrupted. "His red hair fairly bristled. 'I'm glad it happened. I'm glad I'm through slaving for Thatcher and his gang of crooks. Now that they've kicked me out I can say what I really think about them. Skunks! And they don't need to think they can stop us. This thing's going on! We've got a right to organize, haven't we? They don't dare deny it. Instead they sneak around and fire the ones they think are the leaders."

Wait and see what happens!"

"There's nothing you can do tonight," Phil told her. "Wait until tomorrow and see what happens."

"Wait and see what happens!"

"But what about the others?" Gale asked. "Joe Gillaspie and Fritz Moon and Ed Turner. They've all got families. What will they do?"

"They'll get along. And I'll get along, too. I'll get a job somewhere. Oh—I heard something else tonight. Mary Cassidy got an eviction notice."

"Oh, Phil!"

"Ordered her out unless she can pay up her rent—and of course she can't. What else would you expect of those old robbers? It seems Mary's been talking lately. Must have been pretty free in saying what she thought of the way they treated her at the mill. It got back to Thatcher and now she's got to pay or get out tomorrow."

"But how can she pay her rent when she hasn't any work?" Gale asked indignantly. "She's only been earning a few dollars a week since she left the mill and she's got those two children to take care of. Mary's doing the best she can."

Phil shrugged. "What of it?" he said. "You don't suppose that makes any difference to Thatcher, do you? Sure, he'll put her out. Mary and her children, and all the rest of us, too, can starve for all he cares."

"Poor Mary," Gale said. "There must be something we can do. Maybe I'd better go over—"

"There's nothing you can do tonight," Phil told her. "Wait until tomorrow and see what happens."

"Wait and see what happens!"

"There's nothing you can do tonight," Phil told her. "Wait until tomorrow and see what happens."

"Wait and see what happens!"

The words came to Gale again, standing before her bedroom window, staring out at the darkness! Wait and see what happens! What would happen to Mary Cassidy and her two children if they were put out of their home? How would they live? And what would happen to Gale's father and her brother and herself, with Phil out of a job? Phil wasn't worried about it; he was too excited, too hot-headed, to think about the future. He was sure he could find work, but how could he when there was no work to be had? And how could Gale's own earnings be stretched farther than they had been in the past?

Figures danced before her dizzily—$5.40 for groceries, $3.60 for coal, the rent due next week, the $5 that Phil owed her that wouldn't be paid now, $1.50 at the drug store, the gas bill that was overdue—

How could she pay those bills when they totaled more than she earned? Yet if they weren't paid—particularly the rent—would she and her father and Phil find themselves out on the street, turned out of their home as Mary Cassidy was to be turned out?

No, of course that couldn't happen. Not to her—Gale Henderson. She was letting herself get worked up over something imaginary. She'd find a way to meet the bills. And perhaps Phil would find another job in a day or two, perhaps even tomorrow.

Gale turned away but the icy feeling clung about her heart. "Wait and see what happens," she told herself once more. "Wait and see what happens—"

Phil met her as she came from the mill next afternoon and they went to Mary Cassidy's. It was a gray day. There had been a drizzling rain all morning and, though the rain had ceased, the air was still damp. It was cold now, too, and there was a sharp wind.

Phil said, "Lem Williams told me the sheriff was down there. He said they were putting Mary's stuff out on the sidewalk."

"They're really putting her out?" I should think Sheriff Whitman would be ashamed of himself!"

"Whitman takes orders from Thatcher just like everyone else in this town. Don't you know that?"

"But a woman like Mary Cassidy, with two little children—"

Gale did not finish the sentence. They turned a corner and, half-way down the block, saw Mary's cottage. A dozen people—men, women and children—were moving about and, at the edge of the walk, in a disorderly pile, was a pitiful array of furniture, bedding, dishes, clothes, a bag of coal, and a box containing food. Red posts were stacked against a table and chairs piled on top. A mattress doubled over, sprawled on the ground, a tea kettle beside it. Half a dozen potatoes had fallen from a sack and a child was picking them up.

Another youngster, a boy of 8 or 9, came running toward them. "Mis' Cassidy's been 'victed!" he shouted. It was a new game to the child and he was excited.

Gale said, "Oh, it's horrible! Look—there's Mary."

She hurried forward to where Mary Cassidy was sitting in a battered rocking chair. The woman wore a coat, but her head was bare and the wind blew her hair back from her forehead. She looked years older. She set with shoulders bent, as though trying to protect the wriggling 2-year-old in her arms. The child was fretful, whimpering.

Gale took one look at her and came to a decision. She said, "Mary, you're coming home with us."

For a moment she thought the older woman hadn't understood. Mary Cassidy said brokenly, "They threw me out of my own house. They got no right to do that! They took my job and then they threw me out. Now I got nothing—no place to live, no place to sleep. What're my kids goin' to do without even a place to sleep? How'm I goin' to get anything for 'em to eat?"

"But, Mary," Gale said, "I've just told you. You're coming home with Phil and me."

"I can't leave my stuff here," Mary objected, shaking her head. "I got to stay and watch it."

"But you can't," Gale insisted. "Think of the children."

Ruthie Cassidy, aged 4, gazed at her mother from beyond a broken chair on which stood a pile of dishes, topped by a coffee pot. Ruthie wore a knitted cap, faded and several sizes too large, and a man's coat, fastened with a safety pin. Her hands were bare. She had been listening and she came toward her mother.

"Can't we go, Ma?" she asked. "It's gettin' dark and I'm awful cold."

A woman stepped beside Gale. "I'd ask 'em to stay with us,"

Papers On Health Heard
At New Era Club Hour
To Be Published

One of the most fitting and constructive programs to have been heard by members of the New Era club was given in the Colonial room of the Gholson hotel Wednesday afternoon under the capable leadership of Miss Mary Dalmont, who for several years has been an accomplished assistant to Dr. A. K. Wier.

Since there is the present epidemic of influenza and other diseases the program subject gained the complete attention of every member in the attentive audience.

Members so impressed with the manner in which Miss Dalmont and her co-program committee, Miss Marie Kohn and Mrs. O. E. Samms brought to them the lesson all papers heard during the hour will be published in the society column Friday afternoon.

The meeting period passed rapidly and was presided over by the club president, Mrs. W. B. Crossley.

Unlimited Advantages To Be Had In Crosley Shelvador Refrigerators

Nothing appeals to every member of the household and particularly the women, as good food well cared for and well prepared. In order to preserve the food in the proper manner modern inventions have come in for their share of just mention. How? Through electric refrigeration.

Ranger Furniture Exchange this week offers to the public one of the most beautiful boxes yet to be viewed. The modern charm of this distinctly different refrigerator makes a fitting picture for any kitchen.

Gleaming snow-white and jet black with glistening chromium hardware, the new Crosley refrigerator is exactly what every housewife wants. When you buy a Crosley you have added advantages and conveniences through the shelves in the door, providing ample storage space for eggs, butter, bacon and other small articles to be found just at your finger tips.

Another feature to be considered are the flat bar shelves, instead of being rounded the bars of the shelves are flat so that dishes can be slipped in or out easily. Shelves are removable and there is generous space between the shelves to permit ample room for the arrangement and ready accessibility of all food items. The Shelvador has proven to be a time-saver of effort and in current, and all in all everything you could desire in an electric box.

See these boxes during your next visit to this popular furniture company.

Earleen Martin, who has been ill, is fast improving.
Dr. and Mrs. Green were recent visitors in Abilene.
