Motion to Continue Lowe Trial Overruled

NEARLY HALF OF STATES ASK A LONG PROBE
By United Press
WASHINGTON, March 18.—Petitions from 19 states today asked the senate to investigate the Louisiana record of Huey Long as a counter movement to his administration attack. Senators hoped the petitions would give Long something to worry about while they pushed legislation.
The petitions reflected the national feeling stirred up for and against the "Kingfish" as a result of his fight on the administration and his share-of-wealth preaching. Hundreds of names were attached to them.
Senator Walter George, democrat, Georgia, chairman of the senate committee on privileges and elections, to which the petitions were referred, said they contained no new charges, and that in their present status could not form the basis for an inquiry.

Sings for Guests at White House
To show their distinguished guests the high achievement of American artists, President and Mrs. Roosevelt selected Galli-Campi (above), young native coloratura soprano, to entertain at a White House party for the diplomatic corps and intimate friends.

TRIAL START SCHEDULED AT ONE O'CLOCK
Defense's Preparation Of Motion Caused Slight Delay.
Judge George L. Davenport this morning in 91st district court overruled motion of defense counsel of J. E. Lowe for continuance of trial.
Delay was experienced in the trial start because of several hours preparation of the motion.
Lowe, farmer-rancher-stockman of Eastland county for many years, is charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of William Seaman Garrison, 26, on the Eastland square, Nov. 17, 1934.
Trial was to start at 1 o'clock today in the tedious process of selection of jurors.
One-hundred Eastland county residents have been summoned.
Experienced court house observers this morning predicted difficulty would be experienced in jury selection as Lowe, being a long-time resident of the county, would be acquainted with many of the special venire.
Grady Owen, criminal district attorney, is assisted by Frank Jenkins.
Milton Lawrence represents Lowe.
Many prominent Eastland countians are expected to testify in behalf of Lowe, it was reported.

Robot Guides Plane on Pacific Hop
A supreme test of the new blind flying equipment which may revolutionize long distance aviation, especially over large bodies of water, was the aim of the army air corps in the projected flight of the Douglas plane, of the type shown in top photo, from Oakland to Honolulu, with a robot pilot and new directional compass. Among passengers chosen for the trip on the dual-motored, low wing cabin craft were Capt. Albert Hegeberger, who made the first successful California-Hawaii flight in 1926, and Capt. Clayton Bissell.

RANGER MAN KIDNAPED AND ROBBED TODAY
J. A. Boler, owner of the Boler Grocery and Market, North Oak street, Ranger, was kidnaped and robbed by handits early this morning, being released later in the morning near Caddo, in Stephens county, after being relieved of between $600 and $750 in cash and his automobile.
Early this morning Boler went to his grocery store to open it for business and three robbers were waiting for him, according to the report made to the Ranger police department. Two men forced Boler to drive his car while the third followed in another car, and fleeing through Strawn into Stephens county.
Near Caddo the men released Boler after taking his car keys and left him to walk. He walked to Ranger, where he telephoned to Ranger, telling of the kidnaping and robbery, and Chief of Police Jim Ingram sent Patrolman Guy Pledger to Caddo to investigate the robbery.
This was the second robbery of the Boler store within recent months, burglars having broken into the store and removing about $300 from the safe on a previous occasion.
Earlier in the morning Boler had thought that he heard someone around his home, but thought little of it. This morning he went to work as usual, to open the store early. Other members of the family, who also aid in running the business, went to work later in the morning and found the safe empty and Boler missing. They immediately notified police, stating that they feared for his safety as they had heard prowlers during the night and feared that he might have been kidnaped or killed.
Shortly after 8 o'clock Boler telephoned from Caddo and the officer was sent there in the Ranger police car to get him.

Bound for Home From Antarctic

On his way back to America after research in the Antarctic since 1932, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, above, intimated to questioners that he was not averse to taking another trip in the future at exploration in the far southern wastes. His wife made the long trip to New Zealand to accompany him home.

WAR MACHINE BEING PLANNED FOR FUTURE

Cabinets of World Powers Meet Hastily To Determine Policies.
(Copyright 1935 by United Press)
BERLIN, March 18.—The new German war machine, already built on paper and already conducting "research" on land, sea and in the air, may reach a total of 600,000 fighting men.
Germany will retain freedom to rebuild her fleet, it was said, although reconstruction of the naval fighting machine must lag behind the creation of a great land army.
The huge expense of building a navy comparable to France's or England's would eliminate early action along those lines.
A new general staff will be created with three chiefs over the respective army, navy and air forces.

Many Endorse the Safety Campaign For Car Operators
Many Ranger firms and business men today went on record as heartily endorsing the safety campaign being sponsored by the Rotary and Lions clubs of the city in the interest of safer driving on the streets and highways. The campaign is part of a state-wide movement in response to the demand for safer driving.
Under the plan every car will be tested by men appointed by the highway department as the car is driven through a safety lane in which a number of patrolmen are stationed.
One officer inspects the brakes, the next the lights, the third the steering gear and each checking one part of the car until it has completed the journey through the checking zone.
If found to be in good condition the car is given an "o. k." sticker for the windshield, and if not found in good condition a sticker tells just what is needed to make the car safe for driving in traffic or on the highways. Owners who cannot pass the test are given an order to appear in court with a three-day period in which they can have the defects remedied and the summons destroyed upon proof that the defect has been repaired.
This movement has been hailed as one of the best of its kind ever attempted inasmuch as it will afford the car owner the opportunity of having an official check made on his car in order to see that it is safe for driving on the streets and highways.
Everyone in Ranger has been urged to co-operate by having his car tested while the highway officers are in the city Friday. Similar tests are to be made in Cisco Thursday and in Eastland Saturday.

RANGERS ARE CONTINUING A CRIME WAR

Texas rangers, armed with axes in addition to their customary six-guns, roved the state today, ready to strike again at gambling halls, saloons and night clubs.
Arrests and seizures had closed elaborate night spots at Austin, Houston and Galveston. It was believed rangers were turning north and west today, though they may skirt San Antonio, where the sheriff's office already has caused night club owners to hide their liquor and lock doors.
High-tipped Adjutant General Nesbitt indicated more raids would follow. The headquarters staff declined to reveal his destination.
"I would suggest to gamblers that they fold their tents and seek more fertile fields as long as I am governor," Governor Allred said.
"What of Dallas and Fort Worth?" he was asked.
"There are only 32 rangers, but we will get around the state until all are closed," he said.

Boy Scouts Will Attend Fat Stock Show On Tuesday
Thirty-five members of Boy Scout Troop No. 9 will leave Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock from the First Methodist church for Fort Worth, to attend the Southwest Exposition and Fat Stock show. The boys will be accompanied by Morris Ballou, assistant scoutmaster, and transportation will be furnished by A. J. Ratliff. The trip will also include a trip through the Universal Mills at Fort Worth.
Tickets to the exposition for the scouts are being furnished by J. E. Lewis of the Texas Electric Service company.
Scoutmaster Raymond Steele of the troop will not be able to make the trip with the boys, but expressed his appreciation to A. J. Ratliff for arranging the transportation for the troop, to the Texas Electric Service company for the tickets, and to the Chamber of Commerce for arranging with Mr. Lewis for the tickets.

CLEANUP CAMPAIGN MEETING TO BE HELD TONIGHT TO FORM ORGANIZATION FOR CAMPAIGN
J. E. Meroney, president of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, today urged all organizations to have representatives present at the organization meeting of the Ranger cleanup, paint-up, fix-up campaign. The meeting is to be held tonight at 7:30 in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce.
A tentative setup of the organization has been outlined and the presidents of practically every civic club, ladies' club, service club and other organizations in the town have been contacted by letter, notifying them of the meeting tonight and the cleanup drive.
"If all respond to the call for the meeting tonight," Meroney said today, "we will likely have one of the most thoroughly organized cleanup campaigns of all time in Ranger. And, though the Chamber of Commerce has sponsored the movement, it is not merely a Chamber of Commerce project, but a city-wide campaign which will include everyone. We have tried to include practically every organization, church, and club of every kind in town, as well as a number of individuals. If any have been overlooked they, too, should have a representative present. Out of this group we should be able to select committees for every phase of the work from beginning to end and make Ranger the cleanest town in Texas by the time the drive is over."
It is expected that at least 50 interested men and women will be present and that from the group the director general, the executive committees and the other committees to see to special phases of the work can be selected and that the actual cleanup work can begin by the first of next week.
"In driving around over the city," Meroney said, "I have noticed a number of unsightly places that could be made much more attractive with a little cleanup work. Debris that has collected over the past few years could be removed and what is now an eye sore could be made a much better looking place. And it will not mean a lot of work for anyone. With the campaign carried out as outlined everyone would have a part and no one would be called upon to carry the largest portion of the cleanup burden. By proper co-operation from everyone we can work wonders."
It was pointed out today that since a good part of the planning had already been done, that if the plans are approved, the committee chairman could be appointed and the entire meeting completed within an hour, giving everyone an opportunity to fill other engagements after the meeting.

Efforts to Reduce Work Relief Fund Started in Senate
WASHINGTON, Mar. 18.—The efforts of conservative senators to reduce the work relief appropriation from $4,880,000,000 to $2,800,000,000 was opened in the senate today.
The proposal was opened by Senator Adams, Deb. Colo., aided by senators who believe federal credit would be impaired by the larger appropriation.
"I have come to the conclusion the bill is unsound in principle and the cost of the expenditure will impair the credit of the United States," Adams said.
The senate, without debate, adopted the Glass amendment to extend the life of the PWA two years until June 30, 1937.

RELIEF CLIENTS OF DALLAS ON STRIKE TODAY

DALLAS, March 18.—A walkout on all work projects was expected today as Dallas relief clients began the third day of a protest against cuts in relief appropriations.
Lodged in the city auditorium where they announced they would "stay two weeks if necessary," 500 relief strikers turned in their work cards yesterday and announced that all projects would be peacefully picketed during the day.
Many of the work relief clients taking part in the occupation of the auditorium say they have nothing in their homes and are just as well off in their new quarters. During the day they were entertained with musical numbers and speeches delivered from the stage of the auditorium.

Interpretor Used in Trial of Suit

Two languages were heard in 88th district court Monday morning—Spanish and English.
Case of Isabel Soto vs. Metropolitan Life Insurance company by jury trial began for the second time, it having resulted in a mistrial in February in the same court.
An interpreter, Ernesto de Santos, was used by attorneys to question witnesses. Soto's daughter was on the stand this morning by Santos via R. N. Grisham, attorney for the plaintiff.
Soto is suing for alleged injuries sustained while in the employ of the Texas & Pacific Railway company June 18, 1934. The amount sued for is over $1,000. In plaintiff's original petition he claimed he had been in employ of T. & P. for twenty years.
Refusal of insurance company to pay claim for the alleged injury is the plaintiff's basis for trial.
Leeks, Henry and Young of Dallas represent the insurance company.

State-Wide Oil Hearing Is Held

AUSTIN, Mar. 18.—Oil operators turned their state wide promotion hearing into a "love feast" today as technical testimony ended.
Harry Hines, Wichita Falls, oil operator, congratulated the commission for "obtaining complete scientific information on the industry's problems" and for looking to the requirements of operators as well as consumers.
Hines' statement was applauded by the 200 operators present.

Ranger Raid Leads Into Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Mar. 18.—Axe swinging rangers, led by Captain Tom Hickman, swooped into Fort Worth today, raided two establishments and had the "heat on" signal flashing frantically to every hot spot in town.
Their first call was at the Alamo Tavern, where they seized 250 cases of fancy whisky.
Then they jumped to a downtown pharmacy and smashed 185 cases of liquor in the alley behind the building.

Soldier Bonus to Go to the House

WASHINGTON, Mar. 18.—The house rules committee favorably reported today a rule which brings the soldier bonus issue before the house tomorrow and assures the inflation bonus bloc a vote on their "grisenback" proposal.
The rule provides 10 hours of general debate on the whole issue of how to pay the $2,000,000,000 bonus. It enables advocates of inflation, lottery and bond issue methods of payment to offer their proposals for a vote.

James Moffett Is Speaker In Texas Legislature Today

AUSTIN, Mar. 18.—James Moffett, federal housing administrator, appealed to the legislature today to "shoot the housing message from the house."
Both houses of the legislature assembled in joint session to hear him.
Moffett said he came to express "official gratification" to the legislature of the nation's largest state, for Texas' cooperation in the "nationwide drive to hasten prosperity through a revival of the construction industry."
He added that it was "a new experience for me—it represents the first time I have had the privilege of talking with a legislative body."

HERINGTON, Kan.—Dr. H. D. Mosier and Frank and Hogan Atkinson, who went to Hoxie, Kan., to hunt rabbits, reported they killed two and a half tons of the animals in one week on one section of land.

Delegates Plan Erosion Control In Five States

DALHART, Texas, March 18.—Delegates from 51 counties in five states met here today to plan emergency control of wind erosion and soil conservation on 3,000,000 acres of land in the high plains area.
Landowners, county judges, bankers, business men—anyone interested in preventing wind robbery of the fertile top soil from the Panhandle areas of Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Colorado and Texas—were among the delegates.
Fundamentally the plan is for the government to furnish gasoline for tractors and seed to farmers to plant an erosion resistant variety of grain sorghum in wide rows over land that otherwise will be bare and a prey to erosion.

Baird Man Is Charged With Two Offenses

Charles Rasmus of Baird Monday was in Eastland city jail facing charges of drunkenness and reckless driving after hitting and allegedly damaging Elmo Hill's automobile Saturday night in Eastland.
Hill reported to Eastland officers Bob Ball and Elton Reeves Saturday night an unknown driver, on the wrong side of the road, came down West Commerce onto the Eastland square and struck his automobile, and did not stop.
Hill's automobile was reported to have been knocked 35 feet.
From the description given by Eastland officers, Cisco officers early Sunday morning arrested Rasmus and placed him in jail, where night watchman Ball picked him up later.
Ball had gone to Cisco earlier in the evening, thinking the driver had gone in that direction after hitting Hill's car.
After striking the car the Baird man, about 22, went to a private dance in Eastland, starting to Baird later.

El Paso Strike Is Averted Six Months
EL PASO, Mar. 18.—For at least six months there will be peace in the electric industry here. Terms of agreement which at the last minute averted a strike provided company officials would agree to organization of a non-company union but refused to accede to the union's request for a "closed shop."
All questions over wages and working conditions in the six months period will be submitted for arbitration.

Floodwaters Still Threaten Lowland
Floodwaters still threatened lowlands around the Mississippi today. The crest of the flood has shifted and waters receded from southern Missouri but spread over 100,000 acres in northeastern Arkansas.
Danger was increased by back waters from the Mississippi. Engineers reported the Mississippi was menacing residents along the White river in Tennessee. Red Cross workers aided in moving 500 families in the area, increasing to 3,500 the number of families under refuge.

Future Farmers Visit Stock Show

Most of the members watched the fat stock judging in the morning and that afternoon went to the rodeo, which was enjoyed by all. They left Fort Worth at 5:30, arriving in Ranger at 8:30.

"Law Enforcement and the Citizen"

All law-abiding citizens are interested in the eradication of crime and the punishment of criminals. John Edgar Hoover is the director of the division of investigation of the United States department of justice. State courts and the agents of justice are reminded that the strong arm of the federal government has been placing criminals behind the bars or sending them to bloody graves. For instance, Federal Judge Atwell of Dallas has been handling those who protect Texas criminals from the agents of justice which means the agents of law and order and righteous government. Twenty of the Barrow and Hamilton tribe have been taught a lesson by a federal jury and a federal judge in a temple dedicated to law in the city of Dallas.

John Edgar Hoover is a remarkable man. He appeared before the chamber of commerce of the State of New York and delivered a pointed address on law enforcement and the duty of the citizen. He handled his subject "straight from the shoulder," so to speak. He said: "We look upon great industrial enterprises as big business. The biggest business in the United States is that of stealing, robbing, thieving, kidnaping and murdering. The figures which have been compiled showing $15,000,000,000 as the cost of the criminal industry each year are not fanciful ones. They are absurd minimums based upon the belief that every criminal costs no more than $1000 a year. When you look upon the records of such cases as the Urschel kidnaping in which 'Machine Gun' Kelly was chased 20,000 miles before he was captured; when you see the trail of Frank Nash, whose activities, with those of his associates, met a trail of destruction, murder, kidnaping, suicide and gangster killings, plus, of course, the countless banks which were robbed, you will find the cost running well into the millions, if pursuit, incarceration of prisoners, capture of hangers-on and other items are to be considered. I could go on endlessly with examples of this type. It is only necessary, I believe, for you as intelligent citizens to understand that it would be a mere repetition."

Many of the famous criminals of America had their hideouts in Texas and Oklahoma. These criminals had their sympathizers or abettors or advisers everywhere. Speaking of the cost of crime annually, Director Hoover says: "This all sums up into one conclusion. This is your expense. This is the bill you must pay. The rate of robbery, kidnaping or murder can come to any of you. Thus, there is no way of estimating the cost of either money or in sorrow. There is no means of determining or estimating loss of happiness. There is no way of learning the mental agony of those who must protect themselves against the activities of gangs, against the shadows of the kidnapers which constantly creep across the households of thousands of American citizens. All these are items of expense which must be paid out of the heart, the pocket books and the minds of the good American people."

Texas has a governor who is willing to go all the road for the eradication of crime and the punishment of the criminal. Texas has an attorney general of the same type. Texas has fearless judges and district and county attorneys. As for the citizens of Texas, they have their part to play. They should organize as one man to banish the criminals of the Lone Star commonwealth and remove that which has been the shame of the empire state and its sister states on the border line. There are 31 senators and 150 representatives. It is for these servants of organized society to do away with "the shadow" of the criminal and minimize the appalling cost of crime.

Because of that theory, the American state legislature has two houses. All reason for the division has vanished; what we have now is best described by Senator Norris, who calls the two-chamber legislature "as useless as a wogan with five wheels."

"You cannot have a two-house legislature," says the senator, "without in reality having three, for the conference committees that must be set up to iron out differences between House and Senate constitute a third body."

Moreover, it transacts its business in an un-American and undemocratic manner. Its meetings are held in secret; there is no such thing as a roll call, and there is no record of its proceedings.

"A bill once referred to a conference committee cannot become law unless it is agreed to by a majority of the conferees. Thus it is within the power of the conference committee, in secret and without a record vote, absolutely to prevent legislation and to kill or to modify at its pleasure any proposed legislation within its jurisdiction."

The lever which this gives to special interests to block legislation designed for protection of all citizens is too obvious to need comment; so, too, is the opening which it gives to all kinds of political chicanery and thimble-rigging.

Once the public awakens to the merits of the single-chamber plan, it is a safe bet that state after state will follow the lead of Nebraska.

itors were special guests Monday, which was also West Texas Chamber of Commerce day and Ad Club day.

Much interest is being manifested by the visitors in the new feature of the rodeo—wild horse racing. Introduced here for the first time, this newest of western sports proved a thriller for rodeo enthusiasts. In this event contestants must saddle for the first time wild horses. They must mount them—if they can—and ride the length of the arena. Prizes are awarded to the winner and for the most thrilling ride.

Added purses have attracted the aristocracy of horsemen of the southwest and of points as far north as Omaha. Livestock entries have also been extended this year. Included in the exhibits are many prize fowl and rabbits. The automobile show, merchants' and manufacturers' exhibit are large tracts ever before.

The exposition's night club, Rainbeau Garden, has as its floor show Kathryn Duffy's "Folies de l'Arree," which features feminine talent in an array of daring dances, including the French can can dance, originated in 1830 but seldom seen in the last half century. The exposition will continue through next Sunday with both matinee and night rodeo and horse show performances.

IF your day begins with nerves frayed, backache, or periodic pains, you need a tonic such as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Read what Mrs. C. A. Herwig of 839 N. Owasso Ave., Tulsa, Okla., said: "The first time I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was when I was all run-down, irritable, and suffered from headaches by all the time. I had scarcely strength to do my work. Less than a bottle of the Prescription was all that needed to take me to my health. Most recently I used a bottle of it as a tonic and it helped me just as much as before. New size, tablets 50 cts., liquid $1.00. Large size, tabs. or liquid, $1.50. All druggists."

MILICENT GRAVES' employ-George Drimgold, tells her he wants to dictate a confession that years he has been protecting murderer. Returning, she discovers someone has taken her purse containing one exactly like it and goes back to the tearoom, on the way meeting a distinguished-looking man of middle age.

No one in the tearoom knows anything about Millicent's purse.
He goes back to the office, finds Drimgold dead. In panic she flees from the building, registering at a hotel under an assumed name.
Next day she learns police are searching for her. Again she sees a distinguished-looking man who she met the night before. He tells her his name is Jarvis Hupp and that he wants to help her. Hupp takes Millicent into a cab, gives the driver an address and then disappears.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The cab driver looked back at Millicent.

"Beg pardon, Miss," he said,
but the gentleman said not to go back under any circumstances.

"Go back!" she screamed. "Go back at once! Do you hear me?"

The driver made a shrugging gesture with his shoulders, as though disclaiming all responsibility, ran to the corner and turned.

"Right back," she said, "to the see where you let him off."

She could find no fault with the cab driver with the cab driver at the car back on its course. It seemed that within less than a minute of the time her mysterious sort had opened the door and vanished, the cab had once more rolled up to the curb on the opposite side of the street.

"He got out right over there,"
the driver said. "I stopped this side of the street because I thought you were in a hurry."

She nodded, and, pressing her face to the glass window, surveyed the opposite side of the street.

She found no trace of the man who had given the name of Jarvis Hupp. But, with a swiftly obscured intake of breath, she recognized a police car parked at the opposite curb. It was one of the cars of a type equipped with radio, carrying two plain-clothes detectives. There was no distinguishing mark on the car, save the police emblem which appeared on the license, and the siren which was mounted on the front of the car. But Millicent Graves had noticed these cars before. Now he observed both the license plate and the siren. She knew also that these cars customarily carried two men. Now only one of the men sat behind the steering wheel in the car, and he was taking notes of something which was coming in over the radio.

Millicent tapped on the glass partition in something of a panic.

"All right," she said, "drive on."
"To Mills street?" the driver
asked.

"Yes," she said, "the Acme beauty parlor."

The driver nodded and grinned.
She thought for a moment that he eyed suggestively across the street at the police car.

"In a hurry?" he asked.

"Yes," she said, and, despite herself, her voice once more was thin with fright.

The cab shot forward, slid smoothly through the gears, and turned at the corner. Millicent traced her eyes through the back window of the car, looking to see if she was followed. She knew now she was hunted thing.

Too late she realized that the cab driver was fully aware of her anxious scrutiny. His eyes were reflected in the rear view mirror as he watched her with cynical appraisal.

Millicent whirled about and huddled herself in the seat, her eyes fixed rigidly straight ahead. She thought of the money her strange friend had given her. She was holding it clenched tightly in her hand. She looked at it in surprise as she saw that the outer bill was $100 bill.

Slowly she counted the money.
There was $575 in bills of varying denominations.

The cab driver swung the car
out of traffic, slowed cautiously and crept in close to the curb.

"The bill," he said, "is all paid,
and so's the tip."

Millicent looked up and saw a display window setting forth various transformations. Across the window, in gilt lettering, appeared the words, "Acme Beauty Parlor."

The cab driver jumped back to his position behind the wheel,
slammed the cab into low gear, drove hurriedly away. Something in the very nature of his haste made Millicent feel that he was going upon some very definite errand.

Her knees felt weak as she realized that there was the possibility he was returning to report to the officers in that police car, or it might be that he was acting under instructions to rejoin Mr. Hupp at some rendezvous which had been arranged in their whispered conversation.

Millicent suddenly realized just how she looked, clutching a roll of currency in her hand. There was a leather goods store three doors down the street. Millicent went to it, purchased a cheap purse, and then went directly to the beauty parlor.

"Miss Hanson," she told a blond woman with searching eyes who greeted her.

"You have an appointment?"
she asked.

"Yes," Millicent said.

The young woman reached languidly
for a leather-backed notebook.

"What was the name?" she asked.

"Curtains at the rear of the room parted. A small, slender brunet, with something regal in her bearing,
stepped into the room.

"Never mind, Evelyn," she said.
"I'm expecting this young woman.
Won't you step this way?"

She smiled reassuringly. Millicent followed her through the curtains into a passageway which was lined with booths. Her guide walked the length of this corridor, turned the knob of a door at the end, and stood to one side.

Millicent Graves walked through the door and into a room which was lined with white tile, the very floor being spotlessly white. An operating table occupied the center of the room; a chair of the type used by barbers was at one side.

Miss Hanson closed the door. A spring lock clicked into position.

Millicent said rapidly, "I don't want any treatment, Miss Hanson.
I came here because I want you to tell me where I can find the man who made the appointment with you for my work. I think you must know who he is. I've got to find him at once."

The large, dark eyes of the brunet woman surveyed Millicent Graves
in calm appraisal.

"Yes," she said slowly, "I can transform your appearance so that your own mother wouldn't know you."

"But that isn't what I want," Millicent said. "I want to get in touch with the man who made the appointment. I must see him at once."

The wide, dark eyes didn't change expression by so much as a flicker.

"I think," she said, "that you're not the best judge of exactly what it is you do want, Miss Graves."

Millicent started as she heard the woman so casually use her correct name.

"You know who I am then?"
she asked.

"Yes," said Miss Hanson. "Please be seated."

She indicated the chair, and Millicent dropped into it, realizing that she had indeed burnt her bridges; that these people held her completely in their power; that any story she might be able to tell the police would sound so glibly incredulous that it would not be worthy of belief.

Miss Hanson's unruffled
manner radiated complete composure.
She smoothed back Millicent's hair, studied the contour of her face, then brought out a brunet transformation which she carefully fitted to the girl's head, pulled down a "U" arrangement of mirrors which she adjusted about Millicent's head.

"How," she asked, "does that look?"

"I'm more interested in knowing," Millicent said, "exactly why it is that you..."

"Do you," Miss Hanson interrupted, "think that looks all right?"

"Yes," Millicent said.

"Your skin," Miss Hanson remarked, speaking as impersonally
as though she had been surveying an inanimate figure, "is too light to go with that hair. The newspapers have described you as a golden blond with light skin and deep blue eyes. We've got to give that skin a stain—one that will take several weeks to wear off."

"Can you do that?" Millicent
asked.

"Yes," she said, "but it may be painful. You'll have a desire to rub at your face. If you rub the skin the stain won't be uniform.
It will be necessary for me to clamp your hands to the chair. I can assure you it won't be painful.
It will be done in just this manner."

She smoothed Millicent's dress back from the wrist, placed her arms parallel along the arm of the chair.

"See," she said, "you'll have to face turned away from the chair, looking toward a door at the other side of the room. There was something expectant in her gaze.

Millicent's eyes followed those of the tall brunet. Suddenly she saw a door open. A white-robed figure entered the room.

Miss Hanson spoke calmly, almost casually. "Everything is in readiness," she said. "You may administer the anesthetic."

"Thank you," she said, "I don't think I care for the treatment. Please liberate my wrists."

Miss Hanson didn't answer immediately. She was standing with her arms, looking toward a door at the other side of the room. There was something expectant in her gaze.

Eastland County Federation Holds Delightful Saturday Afternoon Session In Colonial Room

The Eastland County Federation of Women's clubs had an interesting session Saturday afternoon in the Colonial room, Gholson hotel, with the New Era and 1920 clubs acting as co-hostesses.

Mrs. W. C. Bedford of Desdemona presided in the absence of Mrs. Louis Pitcock, opening the session with the Lord's prayer in unison.

Each town contributed a special feature to the program opened with a violin solo by Billy Ross Hodges, accompanied by his teacher, Miss Gillian Buchanan.

Mrs. Andrew Mahaffey read poems contributed by Mrs. Davis of Desdemona.

Mrs. Ruel Locke of Desdemona, offered a piano number, "The Mountain Dawn." Mrs. R. R. Harvey, also of Desdemona, followed with the clever reading, "I Don't Know." Another feature of the pleasant hour's program was the display of pictures presented by Miss Blair of Gorman.

Eastland was represented by the prize poems of the various schools that were given awards by the Civic League of Eastland, the sponsor of the contest.

The prize poem of the South Ward school of Eastland was read by the winner, Miss Dorothy Perkins.

Mrs. J. M. Perkins, president of the Sixth District T. F. W. C., presented an interesting and informative talk on federation affairs.

The business session was presided over by the president of 1920 club, Mrs. M. H. Hagaman.

At the tea hour, a table laid with lace and centered with snap dragons and with a silver service at either end was presided over by Mrs. W. B. Crossley, president of New Era club, and Mrs. J. W. Ducker, member.

All towns were well represented except Rising Star.

High Quality of Acting In "David Copperfield" Noted

For more than a year the world has been hearing about the filming of "David Copperfield." It was worth waiting for. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture opened today at the Arcadia theatre, and without an instant's doubt or hesitation it can be hailed as one of the outstanding sensations of all motion picture history. It is superb entertainment.

The great charm of this picture is the fact that it has something of interest for everybody. Those who love romance will find it here in abundance. Those who love spectacle will find it big enough to please anybody. Those who love comedy will chuckle and roar, for the humorous aspects of the original story have been emphasized.

I'LL CONFESS

..... I've never read DICKENS!

I never read "David Copperfield"—but after seeing a pre-view of the picture recently with a group of newspaper men and theatre executives, I wanted to chase right out and get the book.

I didn't know "David Copperfield" was a love story that would touch the hearts of even this hard-boiled audience (and how it did!) or that it was filled with such human characters and real, exciting, red-blooded adventure. And I never even suspected that Dickens had written comedy lines and situation that would give W. C. Fields his funniest screen role (he's grand as Micawber!).

George Cukor, who directed "Little Women" has made an even more wonderful picture. And Lionel Barrymore, Edna May Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan and all the 64 featured players fit their roles like gloves.

I sincerely believe "David Copperfield" will win all awards for the best picture of 1935—certainly it will be the best loved picture of the year.

By all means—see Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "David Copperfield"—words can't express what truly magnificent entertainment it is!
