The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop) By Cowen

The DARK BLOND by CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY Millicent Graves, secretary to George Dringgold, finds her employer in his office dead. In panic she rushes away and registers at a hotel under an assumed name. Jarvis Happ, distinguished-looking stranger, recognizes Millicent and offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty parlor where she is transformed into a brunet. Happ takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. His son, Norman Happ, warns Millicent against his stepbrother, Robert Caise, and tells her a mysterious woman in black ermine has some power over his stepmother. Millicent falls asleep. A noise wakes her and she finds a note under her door reading, "The woman in black ermine is here." Millicent dresses, sees the woman in black drive away in a sedan. Millicent follows in Robert Caise's coupe, but runs out of gas. She walks home, sees a light in the chauffeur's quarters, enters and screams. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV After that single involuntary scream had been wrung from her lips, Millicent realized the necessity for silence. She could hear the pounding of her own heart, the steady dripping of the rain from the eaves, the rustle of the leaves of a shade tree which grew against the side of the building. She stood there, listening, waiting to hear if her scream had attracted attention. Apparently it had not. There was no sound save the noises of the night. Millicent stepped into the room and closed the door. She steered herself to approach the figure which sprawled, face downward, in the center of the room. It was the figure of a man, clad in an overcoat with the collar turned up. A felt hat had fallen from his head and lay two or three feet to one side. Millicent could not see the man's features, but she could see the dark, swelling pool which had attracted attention. She heard nothing. There was the first gray touch of dawn in the air, and Millicent, sliding wearily out of her wet clothes, bothered only to hang up her fur coat. Her other garments she let lie across the back of a chair. Then she crawled into bed. Physical fatigue wrestled with the nervousness which caused her to turn over and over in her mind the events of the past two days. Suddenly she thought of the suitcase of books on which she was to work. She decided that she would put them in the closet and lock the closet door. Millicent jumped from bed, crossed the room, turned on the lights and bent over the suitcase. Abruptly she stiffened into rigid immobility, staring down at the suitcase with incredulous eyes. She remembered the appearance of that suitcase—remembered particularly the straps which had held it shut. This suitcase had no straps! Someone had removed the suitcase and substituted another during her absence from the room. (To Be Continued)

Removal of Farm Families from the Relief Rolls Near

AUSTIN—Removal of all farm families from the general relief rolls to the rural rehabilitation program, was a step nearer this week as officials of the Texas relief commission announced that henceforth all farm families residing on farming acreage will be classified as rural rehabilitation families, and will receive aid only in the form of credit advances. As a result, these families will come under all regulations of the rural program, and notes in favor of the rural corporation will be taken from those clients for all such subsistence or any other advances from the relief administration. Relief officials have estimated that from 35 to 50 per cent of the state's caseload consists of rural farm families and that the general caseload will be reduced by approximately 100,000 cases when all of them have been included in the rural plan. "We want to include all of our rural cases in the rural rehabilitation program and get away from further outright relief grants," said E. A. Baugh, assistant director of the Texas relief commission. "Under the rural plan, we analyze the needs of the family, set up an operating budget and farming plan for a year and provide management to enable the family to maintain a sufficient income to meet the notes given for all advances made from relief funds." Since many of the families affected by the new order are tenants located on farm plots, landlords will be required to waive claims on this year's crops before any further advances will be made by the relief commission. If the landlord, or other lien holder, refuses such waivers, the client family will be removed from the relief roll and the lien holder so notified in writing, according to instructions issued by the relief commission. Mrs. Val M. Keating, director of social service, said national relief officials have severely criticized the state of Texas for the size of its caseload. "The major portion of the increase has been in rural areas," she said, "and we believe that many landlords have taken advantage of the relief organization in refusing to finance tenants."

LOVES TO EAT THIS CEREAL, IT CHECKED HER CONSTIPATION*

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helped Miss Kesterke

We quote from her letter: "Three years ago, I became constipated. I tried many laxatives. But as soon as I got used to each kind, I began to get the same trouble."
"Last summer I was on my vacation. They served Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I just loved it. I eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every morning, and ever since I have not had to take any more laxatives."—Miss Margaret Kesterke, Cresskill, N. J.
*Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.
Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in vitamin B and iron.
The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle. It resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables, so it is often more effective.
Isn't this food safer than risking patent medicines? Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. If seriously constipated, use with each meal. See your doctor, if you do not get relief.
Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Way to Combat Crime Is By Central Power

A democracy based on a system of local governments as nearly independent as possible is apt to run into a whole chain of headaches when it sets out to combat modern crime.

To fight crime in this day and age you have to have a centralized authority which can strike anywhere in the country without regard to state and city boundaries.

To retain democracy in its traditional form, you want just as little centralization as possible.

In other words, the set-up which preserves freedom the best is the very set-up which is the least efficient at fighting crooks.

We have tried to get around that of late by giving the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice more powers. To an extent, this has worked very well. But it can only be carried so far. The foundation of our police work must be the local systems—the city police force and the county sheriff's organization.

The immediate problem, then, is to find some way of federalizing our anti-crime forces without infringing upon the rights of city and state to govern themselves in the old-time manner.

A bill is now pending in the Ontario legislature which might profitably be studied in detail south of the Canadian border.

This bill would set up a director of special police services for the entire province. He would have power to direct every local constable in Ontario to perform such duties as he might require; he would be, ex-officio, a magistrate, empowered to issue summonses and warrants anywhere in the province.

Nevertheless, each city would retain full control of its own police force. It would select, pay and administer the force just as it does now. The provincial director would not interfere in strictly local affairs. He would deal only in those cases where crime spills over from one city to another.

It ought to be possible for some such system to be worked out in the United States as well. The advantages are obvious. There would be enough centralization to make the lot of the criminal infinitely harder, but not enough to reduce the independence of the local units of government.

If we drift too long, leaving all but strictly local affairs up to the Department of Justice, we are apt to wake up some day and find that cities and states have surrendered to the federal government more powers than it is good for them to surrender. It might be wise to look into this Ontario proposal pretty thoroughly.

New Youth Problem Faced By Parents

The falling birth rate is apt to do a good many things to America before it gets through. One of its unexpected by-products may be the emergence of a vast race of spoiled children.

This quaint development is suggested by Prof. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago, in an article in the current issue of the magazine Better Times.

Professor Ogburn figures it on a straight supply and demand basis. The supply of children will decrease—or, at any rate, will not increase at the old-time rate. The demand, in the sense of the love of parents for their children, will remain just as high as it ever was, and will perhaps even increase.

The result will be that the child will be appreciated more.

As Professor Ogburn remarks:

"It seems probable that the child will receive more attention. With some groups that will be good for the child, no doubt. In many cases this out-of-the-ordinary attention may make the child too self-centered."

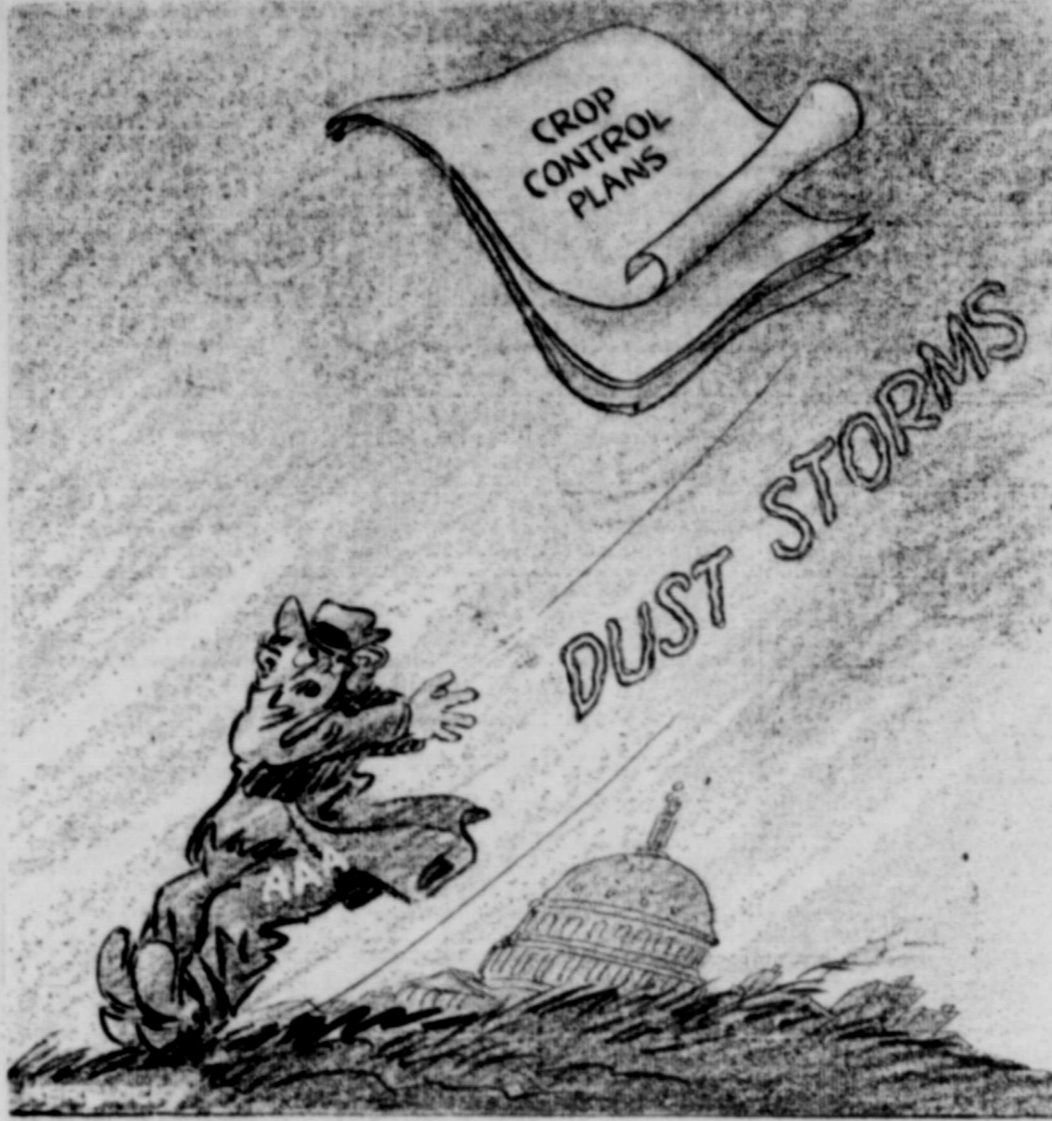

You can carry it still farther. Every parent knows that one of the most powerful tools in the molding of a child's character is the bestowal of praise and blame for the child's acts. Where children are prized more highly, comparatively, it is logical to expect that the scales will be unbalanced, the doses of blame will be diminished, and the amounts of praise increased.

Tomorrow's child, then, seems destined to approach manhood and womanhood under something of a handicap. And this rather gloomy forecast is just one more reminder that modern times seem constantly conspiring to place new responsibilities on the shoulders of parents.

This will increase his precocity, but he will not get those subtle, toughening influences which come from constant association with youngsters of his own age.

There was a time when the parent's hardest problem was to find some way to feed, clothe, and educate a constantly growing brood. Shrinkage in the family's size is apparently going to replace that problem with a new one, equally difficult.

"Sure, enjoy yourself," said Jim. "It's a ding good cigarette."

I was working way late at the office one night and ran out of cigarettes. When Jim the watchman came through I tackled him for a smoke.

"Sure," says Jim, and he handed over a pack of Chesterfields. "Go ahead, Mr. Kent, take three or four."

Jim said he'd smoked a lot of cigarettes in his time, but he'd put Chesterfield up in front of any of 'em when it came to taste.

... "and they ain't a bit strong either," is the way Jim put it.

That was the first Chesterfield I ever smoked. And I'm right there with him; too, when he says it's a ding good cigarette.

Coyotes Moving Toward the East

By United Press
BILLINGS, Mont. — Old man Coyote, slinking foe of the western stockman, is reversing the march of empire and "heading East."

That's what naturalists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and experts of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey are discovering.

There isn't much danger that coyotes soon will compete with taxicabs as one of New York's traffic menaces, but the growth of outlaw varmit bands in mid-western and eastern states is amazing, according to A. M. Day of the Biological Survey.

Day explained that coyotes now are present in New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and many other eastern states.

In addition to artificial plantings, coyotes are pushing eastward of their own accord, having been recently reported in parts of low Michigan and Indiana.

Tourists in the West often purchase coyote puppies and bring them East. They do not find the dependable pets, however, so they are little grief where an occasional one escapes.

In a few instances, eastern sportsmen have brought coyotes to the West and freed them, thinking they were fox pups.

From such small beginnings have sprung the present infestations in some of the eastern states.

EDITORIAL

What does it mean to be a scout? Is it something you enjoy or is it just a drudge, a duty? We are given a definition of work in the Bible: "Work is exertion directed toward something." The definition according to physics is: "Work is exertion of energy from one system to another; that is accomplished by a force acting through a distance." In thinking of work we bear these definitions in mind. It is only human to wish to accomplish something, so why center our interest in the work to be paid for by the gain? We can get no more than we put into it, harder we work, the more we are a great teacher. It is more than gain a certain us, for as we go along to this goal, we learn to stick to the goal, to be dependent.

It is also a great healer of ills and hurts. We can re- freshen almost any kind of grief by working long and hard. Those unkind things which most leave an ugly scar on our hearts and minds may soon be forgotten if we put them behind us.

Upon careful consideration, work to be a blessing, and not a curse.

Unique Exploitation of Advertising

One of the most unusual and dramatic ways ever conceived to exploit the use of newspaper advertising has been adopted by the Continental Oil company. A novel contest has been inaugurated whereby during the coming spring months cars and trucks will be seen on the streets and highways of some 40 states plastered in hodge-podge compelling fashion with reprints of Continental's newspaper advertisements.

In addition to the circulation of 10 million that Continental Oil company gets for its advertising by using 1,363 daily and weekly newspapers, Continental's advertisements through this unique stunt will double duty this spring.

The unique appearance of Continental cars and trucks not only serves to call attention to the Conoco campaign now running in newspapers, but also reminds Con-showing the effects of the Govern- ment's hog reduction program in the late summer of 1933. The fore- going figures include all rail ship- ments both intrastate and inter- state, and they also include truck shipments to markets within Tex- as other than Fort Worth.

"The only section of the State in which shipments of cattle and calves were less in 1934 than in the previous year was the Coastal Plains district. In the Plains country of Northwest Texas in the Trans-Pecos and in the Edwards Plateau the disappearance was more than double that of 1933. Shortage of feed during the past winter and consequent low con- dition of livestock on farms and ranches will doubtless adversely affect the new crops of calves, lambs, and pigs, both in numbers and quality.

"With reduced numbers of live stock and increased acreage plant- ed to feed crops as a result of the cotton acreage curtailment program, probabilities are that the price of livestock will be high in comparison with feed costs next year. This situation may result in retardation of livestock market- ings since there will be a tendency to keep as much live stock as possible, especially if the pros- pects for pasture and feed crops should become better, which seems likely.

Shipments of live stock during February reflected the sharp curtail- ment in numbers on Texas farms and ranches. Dr. Buechel said. With the culmination of the Government's live stock purchase program for drought relief and feed conservation, and with better range and feed prospects, ship- ments of all classes of live stock to Fort Worth stockyards and in- terstate points totaled 2,434 cars or 30 per cent below those of Feb- ruary last year. Cattle shipments of 1,327 cars declined 26 per cent; calf shipments, 366 cars, dropped 35 per cent; hog shipments, 327 cars, declined 5 per cent and sheep shipments, 104 cars, dropped 75 per cent.

Shipments of all classes of live stock except hogs to the markets of Fort Worth and Los Angeles showed a decline in comparison with last year, and there was a de- crease also in shipments of cattle and sheep to feeding areas in Kansas and Illinois, his report showed. Sharp increases occurred in shipments of cattle to Arizona and California because of the more favorable feed and grazing condi- tions in these states.

Receipts of hogs from midwest- ern states totaled more than one

STRIKE DELAYS WORK

ST. NAZAIRE, France—The French flagship S. S. Normandie is having her troubles. The con- federated union recently request- ed the Minister of Marine to post- pone her maiden voyage until after the municipal elections May 5. The Minister refused. The union sent strike pickets to the ship. The result is that more than a thousand men have been prevented from working extra hours. The ship- yard management has lodged a complaint with the district attor- ney, threatening action for that which whether the union likes it or not the Normandie will sail April 20th.

How not to LIGHT A BRIDGE TABLE

Think of trying to play bridge by the light of two candles. Yet that is the equivalent of the light in many homes — a level of illumination that is tiring to guests and makes any party dull.

For gayer, livelier parties, use more light- ing. An indirect lamp provides the ideal light — shadowless and glareless — for playing bridge, and is an equally efficient light for a quiet evening of reading. See the newest styles of indirect lamps at our store.

Just about the time Lometa Scouts were ready to move into their new "box- car" Scout home, they were notified that they would have to move same to a new location, and you know it is no little bit of trouble to move a boxcar. However we are sure that some way will be found for them to get it to a new location. One part of the Scout law states, "A Scout smiles when he can," and maybe "smiles" will

Live Stock Is In Best Position Than In Years

AUSTIN, Tex.—Depletion in numbers of Texas live stock as a result of the drought has placed the industry in the most favorable statistical position in many years, it was pointed out by Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director and statistician of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Re- search, in his monthly survey of the livestock industry.

"However, while the longer term economic outlook for the cat- tleman is vastly improved, it will require many months to obliterate fully the adverse results of nearly four years of almost continuous price decline climaxed by one of the worst droughts in the history of the State," Dr. Buechel said. Shirley Temple Comes to the Arcadia Theatre Saturday

WEE SHIRLEY TEMPLE HAS IDEAL ROLE

Co-Stars With Lionel Barrymore in Popular Romance, "The Little Colonel"

Shirley Temple indicate that in "The Little Colonel," Fox Film has given her an ideal vehicle for her acting, singing, and dancing talents. It will come to the Arcadia Theatre on Saturday.

She co-stars with Lionel Barrymore in this popular story of Southern prejudices, adapted from Annie Fellows Johnston's series of "Little Colonel" stories, which were the favorite reading of millions a generation back, and whose appeal is perennial. "The Little Colonel" is the story of a Kentucky belle who marries a Yankee, against her father's wishes, and is promptly disowned by the proud old aristocrat, who is still living in the days of the Civil War. Barrymore is the obdurate Southern aristocrat. Shirley plays the cameo colonel whose dancing feet, smiling eyes, and honey-colored curls make a withering attack on the heart of the stern rebel.

In keeping with the importance of this picture, Technicolor graces part of this De Sylva production. The real Shirley as she really looks is seen for the first time by her following of movie fans.

Critics in other cities where "The Little Colonel" is playing, hail it as Shirley's most superb vehicle. There is plenty drama and comedy, in the plantation, frontier and army scenes. Attention is being called everywhere to Shirley's dancing with Bill Robinson in his original stair dance, elaborately staged in one sequence of the picture.

The medal was presented to Ricker by the Rodeo Association of America for bulldogging a steer at Sidney, Iowa, on Aug. 15, 1933, in the time of three and three-fourths seconds.

Ricker has won first place at Belfourche, S. D.; first at Tucson, Ariz., for three years; second at Fort Worth for three years; second at Cheyenne, Wyo., two years and has been in the finals in 13 out of 15 rodeos in 1934. Old Favorite Back In Ranger On Wrestling Card

After an absence of a year Tiger Billy McKinn will return to Ranger and take part in next Monday night's wrestling card. Tiger Billy takes on the tough German Count Von Bromberg, who succeeded in putting a stop to Chief Black Hawk last Monday night.

Tiger Billy has always been a favorite with the wrestling fans of this community and no doubt they will welcome him back. He has a tough assignment in Bromberg and will have to put out all he has to win. This should prove to be the best bout of the season. They are on the main event.
