Officials of nudist organizations disclaimed interest in the production, contending it violates nudist principles through overexposure of the players. Broadway was more interested in the police than the dramatic critics' opinion of it. The above scene was pictured in rehearsal.

STEAMROLLER TACTICS ARE BEING USED

Unemployment Insurance Provisions Favored By The Leaders.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The $1,000,000,000 economic security bill was whipped through the House today by a one-sided vote and sent to the Senate.

The far-reaching measure, designed to guarantee future unemployment and old age guarantees for 20,000,000 people.

The bill calls for payroll taxes amounting to an average of $1,000,000,000 each year.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The house drove toward final passage of the Roosevelt security bill today, approving without a direct vote the vital unemployment insurance sections, calling for state systems financed by payroll taxes.

A fight to amend the section which requires states to establish minimum benefits was abandoned after a ruling holding out of order the Lord amendment for a minimum of $7 a week to all jobs.

The house then turned to the maternal and child health provisions of the bill.

Liberals' aggressive felt in the fact of administration "steamroller" tactics that they fight was lost. They were beaten down on 26 amendments yesterday. The Townsend old age pension bill went down by an overwhelming vote late yesterday.

BAPTIST LAYMAN'S DAY Laymen's Day services in the Baptist churches of Texas proved to be a blessing to hundreds Sunday. Messages delivered by the laymen of the First Baptist church were greatly enjoyed by both the congregation and pastor, and will doubtless mark the beginning of a new day in the spiritual life of this historic church. One is not ordinarily inclined to deviate from the general rule which prompted Jesus to say, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country." Churches are apt to be of the opinion that they must import preachers of renown if they are to experience a genuine revival of religion. In the work of our churches apart from the special revival effort we are also in danger of under-valuing the consecrated talents of the laymen within our own church family. Without doubt, any church which discovers its own hidden resources and will consecrate itself to the task of developing them to the glory of God, will face a new day. One would have to go far to hear a more soul-stirring message than is suggested by such themes as "What a Man Owe God," and "If I were an Ideal Layman." There and three other equally vital themes were discussed by five men at the morning and evening services Sunday. The pastor is already hoping to rally the church into a week's revival meeting next Autumn to be conducted by the laymen of the church.

Are You Feeling Sluggish?

Take Theford's Black-Draught for constipation. What relief! That fresh feeling, that sparkle to the eyes, keen zest for work or a lively good time! There's nothing better than a clean system for health.

Mrs. J. M. Cooper, of Benton, La., writes that when he gets up in the morning "feeling dull, tired, drowsy and all-out of fix, with a bad taste in my mouth, I know I need something to clear me up. Black-Draught certainly does clear my system and make me feel fine." It is purely vegetable, not costly.

Isolation Is Advanced To Logical Limit

George Washington's advice to his countrymen included the warning, "In time of peace, prepare for war." The current idea at the capital seems to be to revise this to read, "In time of peace, prepare to stay out of war."

One of the most interesting things now under consideration by the administration is a new kind of foreign policy designed to keep this country clear of any scraps in which foreign nations may indulge.

State Department, Senate Munitions Committee, and the White House have been considering the outlines of this policy with the notion that a nation which plays its cards carefully can't be forced into any conflict in which its own vital interests are not involved.

It is proposed, for instance, to empower the president, in case of war among foreign nations, to halt the issuance of passports to Americans desirous of traveling through the war zone, unless their business is so urgent that they are willing to go at their own risk.

Another proposal is that the president be empowered to withdraw United States protection from all American ships which enter war zones. American exporters might trade with warring nations if they wished, but the risk would be strictly their own if they did so.

These two proposals are long steps in the direction of that national isolation which seems to be growing so popular these days. But the isolation they propose is isolation of an intelligent kind; an isolation which quite properly would place the national desire for peace above the desire of individuals to profit by a foreign conflict.

It is pretty clear that if we should repeat our 1914 kind of neutrality in a new European war, our chances of staying out of the war would be little better than they were the last time.

We insisted that American ships and American travelers had an inalienable right to go through the war zones and to do business in any market they could find; our insistence on that right finally compelled us to uphold it by force of arms—and a war which seemed very remote, when it started, at last came to our own doorstep.

Wouldn't it be a good deal smarter of us to waive that right? We might miss some very profitable business, to be sure. War orders meant big dividends to American investors in 1915 and 1916.

But in the end that trade landed us in the war—and, thereby, proved about the most expensive kind of business we ever had.

Plans now being matured at Washington point in the right direction. If we are going to follow a policy of isolation in foreign affairs, we might as well carry it to its logical conclusion.

Senator Morris Sheppard and the Bonus Bill

Now the bonus bill is agitating the minds of the American people, the President of the United States as well as the senators and representatives of the American congress. A citizen of Waco, prominent member of the army of disabled American veterans, wired Senator Morris Sheppard urging him to support the measure. Senator Sheppard did not dodge the issue. This is his answer to the wire of the Waco veteran: "If a measure providing for immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates acceptable to the President can be developed, I will be glad to support it. I feel it is my duty to cooperate with him in the matter of expenditures from the treasury of current issues in view of the fact that he is in better position than anyone else to know the effect of such measures on his plans for our economic recovery."

In other words, he will vote for a bonus bill if one satisfactory to the President is submitted. A measure not satisfactory to the President (who is the leader of the democratic party and the independent allies of the democratic party) will not receive the support of the senior senator of the Lone Star commonwealth.

A Veteran Who Came to Texas in the Ox Cart Period

Former State Senator W. P. Sebastian is paying his annual visit to the Capital City. He came to Texas 60 years ago from Missouri. He had a license to practice law. Sixty years ago, "where the west begins" was east of Fort Worth. There were oxcarts everywhere in Texas in those merry days. Sebastian traveled in a stagecoach from Fort Worth to Albany. He hoofed it from Albany to the small hamlet of Breckenridge. There he pitched his tent. He followed the banners of Hogg and Culberson and their successors in office—including James E. Ferguson. He held many local offices. He served in the house of representatives. For years he was a state senator. The Missouri Texan believes the skies are clearing. He predicts that the Centennial celebration will call millions of tourists to Texas. Really, this veteran of many poitica wars and campaigns should write a book of reminiscences before he makes the journey across the great divide.

THE WHAT-IS-IT

House Changes Centennial Demand

AUSTIN, April 9.—The house of representatives today receded from its former demands that part of the gross receipts of the Texas centennial be retained to repay a $3,000,000 state appropriation. Proposals for liens for 8 per cent and for 5 per cent of gross receipts were tabled. A third proposal to require 7 per cent of gross receipts from any place receiving centennial funds to repay the amount given to it was adopted 65 to 65. Reconsideration was ordered. Unless some instructions are issued later house conferees on the centennial aid bill will begin new negotiations unobstructed.

Approve Sale of Assets of Bank

Two sales of assets of the Texas State Bank of Eastland, in liquidation, were approved this week in 88th district court. The court confirmed and approved sale of eight head of cattle by liquidators to A. D. Stephenson. The stock was acquired by the bank because of a chattel mortgage held on the cattle securing a note formerly made by the buying party. Sale of a 1929 Buick sedan to a motor company in Nolan county for $75 was approved and confirmed. The car was acquired by the bank by foreclosing a chattel mortgage made against Tom Harrell, formerly of Eastland.

White Man Hanged Before Huge Crowd

SMITHFIELD, Ky., April 19.—In the presence of a holiday crowd of 1,500, William DeBoe, a white man, was hanged today for rape. He went to his death shouting at his accusers. In the crowd that saw him drop through the trap was Mrs. Marjorie Johnson, whom he was accused of assaulting. Led to the scaffold, DeBoe talked rapidly, almost incoherently, for 59 minutes. A great crowd watched while the executioner pared the drop. 1. Do not take bar soap and rub the wool with it.
2. Do not rub or pound the wool with it in the scouring solution.
3. Do not use washing machine.
4. Do not scrub wool in water before starting to scour.
5. Do not let wool stay in the scouring bath over eight minutes.
6. Do not put too much wool in the yarn for other purposes.

No Pay, No Verdict Is Jury's Ruling

By United Press
BIG SANDY, TEXAS.—A jury in Justice of the Peace John Woods' court here filed in after it had reached a verdict.
"What about our pay?" the foreman of the jury asked Judge Woods.
"That's a matter for the Commissioner's court to decide," the judge replied.
"Well, we've reached a verdict but won't return it until we're sure of being paid," the foreman said.
And it wasn't until the Upshur county attorney personally guaranteed their pay that the jury announced its finding, that W. T.
Minor, Dallas truck driver, was not guilty on a charge of driving without a license.

wool and mohair for using in comforts, rugs, and other household articles. Mrs. Eastland gives the following information and direcwool and can use it for filling comforts or quilts.

Equipment: Four galvanized wash tubs; small wooden paddle to agitate wool while in scouring solution; laundry wringer.
Preparation of scouring solution:
Heat 10 gallons of water, then add one half pound of soda and stir well. To this add three pounds of soap. In the preparation of a soap solution care should be taken to use good mild soap (such as Lux or Ivory) for best results.
(Other soaps can be used satisfac-

The temperature of the first tub should be one hundred and twenty degrees F. and best to use a thermometer, but can be tested by hand.
The water is hot enough to be uncomfortable to the hand, soap solution added to show rather heavy suds when the water is agitated.
Water in second tub should be one hundred and fifteen degrees, slightly cooler than first and with one half the amount of soap solution. Temperature of the third tub is one hundred and ten degrees F., and a very small amount of soap.
The fourth tub should be heated to one hundred degrees F., and should be clear water for the rinse.

temperature of the four tubs con-

The DARK BLOND

By CARLETON KENDRAKE © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Millicent Graves, secretary to George Dringold, finds here employer in his office dead. Jarvis Happ, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a brunette, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets Jarvis' son, Norman; his stepson, Robert Caise; Mrs. Happ; and Vera Duchene; Mrs. Happ's maid.

That night a note under her door informs Millicent, "The woman in black ermine is here." Millicent sees the woman, tries to follow, but loses her. Millicent goes to the chauffeur's quarters. The chauffeur is dead from a bullet wound.

Next morning Sergeant Mahoney takes charge of the case. Over the telephone Mrs. Happ learns that her husband has been kidnaped. She is warned not to inform the police.

Millicent tells Norman all she knows of what has happened. They locate the store where the whisky found in the chauffeur's room was sold, learn the purchaser was a woman in a black fur coat, Norman traces the license number of the car Millicent saw the woman in ermine driving.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXII

Millicent, despite her excitement, remembered to check Norman Happ's impulsiveness with a warning. "Don't call the name out loud," she said.

Norman Happ, covered the distance which separated him from the car, laughed reassuringly.

"Don't worry," he said. "I'm not entirely a fool."

"Oh, I didn't mean that."

"No offense," he told her, laughing good-naturedly. "I know you didn't. I just wanted you to see what precautions I took."

He unfolded a piece of paper on which he had scribbled; "Phyllis Faulconer, 3829 Baronne avenue."

Millicent's face showed her disappointment, as she read the memorandum. "Oh," she said, "I thought it would be..."

"Thought it would be Vera Duchene?" he asked, as her voice faded into disappointed silence.

"I don't know anything about detective business," he said, "but I understand detectives have to be careful not to jump at conclusions and then try to make the facts fit the conclusions. A good detective is one who goes ahead and gets the facts regardless of what they may be, and then draws conclusions from the facts."

"That may be the way a good detective does it, but it stands to reason it must have been Vera Duchene who was mixed up in this thing from the beginning."

"Not necessarily."

"Certainly," she told him, "it couldn't be this Phyllis Faulconer. Why, none of us even know her."

"And none of us," he pointed out, "know the woman in the black ermine."

He hesitated for a moment, starting at her speculatively.

"Is something the matter?" Millicent asked anxiously, becoming uneasy under his steady appraisal.

"They want you at the house."

"Want me?"

"Yes."

"I telephoned."

"Oh, that's what took you so long."

"Yes."

"Sergeant Mahoney."

"Oh," she exclaimed, feeling suddenly cold with dread. "What does he want?"

"I don't know. He wouldn't tell me over the telephone. He said you had given him your word of honor you wouldn't skip out while he was carrying on his investigations."

"I didn't give him my word of honor," she blazed indignantly, "and what's more, I'm not skipping out."

"That's what I told him."

"You told him I was with you?"

"Yes."

"Thank heavens for that! I wouldn't have him think I was running away for anything. What does he want of me?"

"He didn't say."

"Well, if he wants me for some more questioning he can just wait until I get ready to show up. I'm sick and tired of being cooped up in that house and having people run in with all sorts of questions every time there's a new development in the case."

He nodded agreement and said, suddenly, "I know how you feel, Millicent."

Mollified by his quick sympathy, and having relieved her feelings by her burst of indignation, she said, "How about your father, Norman? Have they found out anything?"

"I don't know. That's what worries me. Sergeant Mahoney would not discuss it over the telephone, but he did say the reason he wanted to see you was in connection with my father's disappearance."

She stared at him with wide, incredulous eyes. "Good heavens, they're not going to try to blame THAT on me, too?"

"No. I don't think so. Sergeant Mahoney wouldn't say just what he wanted. His manner was very peculiar, but he said he wanted to see you as soon as you could get there; that it related to my father's disappearance."

"Then," she told him, "we will go back at once. If there's anything I can do to help clear that up, I want to do it."

"It's all rather strange and complicated. What could you possibly know that would help Sergeant Mahoney in connection with that case?"

"Nothing. He'll find it out after he's asked me a few questions."

"Then we'll go and see Phyllis Faulconer first," Norman said. "I told Sergeant Mahoney we'd return but I didn't say just how soon."

Before she could stop him he had jabbed the button opposite the card.

"Oh!" she cried in dismay, "you shouldn't have done that, Norman."

"Why not?"

"Because. We don't want her to know we're investigating her. We should make inquiries and find out what she looks like."

"We'll know what she looks like," Norman Happ said grimly, "when we've had a look at her."

He jabbed the button a second time, impatiently, as he spoke.

"But suppose it should turn out to be the woman in the black ermine coat and suppose she should be a stranger to us?"

"We'll grab her anyway," he said. "We have enough on that woman to justify calling in the police."

He rang the bell for the third time.

There was no answer.

"Not at home," Norman said, disappointment showing in his voice. He tried the door of the apartment house, then turned away from it.

"Locked," he told Millicent. "You can't get in unless the occupant of one of the apartments presses an electric buzzer and releases the door."

"Then, if this Faulconer woman isn't in, we can't even get into the building. We can't..."

Once more he laughed and said, "I'll show you a trick. Start pressing buttons opposite the names of people who have apartments on the fifth floor."

"Why?"

"Because," he said, peering at the directory, "someone will be expecting a friend, or will just buzz the door open on general principles. Someone on the first or second floor might come to the elevator to look us over. We can't use the third floor because we're the best one to work on."

He found a name and pressed a button. She noticed the figure 506 opposite another name and flanked by a button. She pressed this button.

After a moment a buzz came from the door, and Norman Happ, triumphantly pushed it open.

"Come on, young lady," he told her. "We're going to do some detective work."

that would be, if I thought I could help Father I'd do anything, but Sergeant Mahoney is following a false lead and I've a hunch we're helping Father more by running down this woman in the black ermine coat than we would be by running around at Sergeant Mahoney's beck and call.

"That isn't all. I have an idea Sergeant Mahoney suspects the truth about you—about the Dringold murder I mean. Once you get back I doubt that he will let you out of his sight again. And unless we clear up the mystery of Harry Felding's murder I don't think it's going to be cleared up."

"You mean they'll keep on suspecting me?" she asked.

He changed the subject abruptly, saying, "Let's quit wondering about these side issues and concentrate on the matter in hand. It isn't very far to Baronne avenue. We can make it in less than 10 minutes."

He drove with a set, tight-lipped concentration which convinced Millicent more than any words would have done that they were working against time—that Norman Happ knew this and that there had been more to the message he had received from Sergeant Mahoney than he was willing to disclose.

The address on Baronne avenue turned out to be an apartment house. Millicent felt a strange thrill as the car sped across the intersection and swung in toward the right-hand curb.

"This is the place," Norman said. "It won't be long now until we know something about this woman in the black ermine coat."

He jerked back the door catch, flung the door open. "Come on," he said. "Slide across. We haven't time to stand on formality."

With a low, nervous laugh she slid her feet along the seat, wormed under the steering wheel, and felt his hands under her elbows as he lifted her from the car.

She slammed the door shut and, together, they ascended the three steps which led to the foyer where the names of the tenants were displayed in a long row opposite call buttons.

"Here we are," he said triumphantly. "Phyllis Faulconer, 309."

Before she could stop him he had jabbed the button opposite the card.

"Oh!" she cried in dismay, "you shouldn't have done that, Norman."

"Why not?"

"Because. We don't want her to know we're investigating her. We should make inquiries and find out what she looks like."

"We'll know what she looks like," Norman Happ said grimly, "when we've had a look at her."

He jabbed the button a second time, impatiently, as he spoke.

"We'll grab her anyway," he said. "We have enough on that woman to justify calling in the police."

After a moment a buzz came from the door, and Norman Happ, triumphantly pushed it open.

"Come on, young lady," he told her. "We're going to do some detective work."

They ascended in the elevator to the third floor. Norman led the way to apartment 309. He pounded on the panels of the door. There was no response.

He took some keys from his pocket. "Some of these are pass-keys. Let's hope one of them will work."

"You're not going in?"

He nodded.

Suddenly she heard the door of the elevator slide back on its rollers. Someone was getting off at the third floor. She raised her eyes, stared down the corridor and then, with a sudden glance of dismay, grasped Norman's hand and jerked the key out of the lock.

Prices of Goods Affected Little By Processing Tax

COLLEGE STATION — Measured in terms of its effect upon the finished product, the cotton processing tax amounts to only 3 cents on a work shirt and 8 cents on a pair of overalls, says Cully A. Cobb, director, Division of Cotton, AAA, in pointing out that "There is nothing to indicate that the processing tax, within itself, has served to restrict materially the consumption of cotton."

"On the cotton used in manufacturing a yard of calico, the processing tax adds only 1 cent; on the cotton used in the manufacture of a yard of muslin it amounts to 1.3 cents; on a work shirt it amounts to approximately 3 cents; and on a pair of overalls it amounts to about 8 cents," he reports.

In 1932, according to figures gathered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the farm price of cotton averaged 5.8 cents per pound and there was no processing tax. But in that year textile wages were abnormally low; cotton goods prices were low both actually and relatively, the cotton goods wholesale price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics being only 48 per cent of the 1920-29 average as compared with 67 per cent for all commodities other than farm products and foods.

The low prices received by farmers for cotton did not then result in prosperity for the textile industry.

In 1933 the farm price of cotton averaged 9.7 cents per pound, a cotton processing tax of approximately 4 cents per pound gross weight was in effect after August 1, wages were increased, cotton goods prices increased, cotton textile mills made substantial profits, and cotton mill consumption increased 24 per cent, to approximately 6.2 million bales.

In the current marketing year mill consumption has exceeded that for last year in each month since September when operations were disrupted by the textile strike. The index of cotton mill consumption has averaged 94 percent of the 1923-25 average since September. For the 1934-35 season through January the index averaged 87 percent in comparison with an average of 57 percent for non-agricultural industrial production.

It is true that the price of cotton has been doubled and the processing tax has been added since 1932. But in this connection it should also be noted that cotton mill consumption in the calendar year 1934 was 400,000 bales greater than it was in 1932.

With reference to the decline in exports of cotton textiles and recent increases in imports, it should be observed that a compensatory tax equivalent to the domestic cotton processing tax must be paid when manufactured cotton articles are imported into this country, and the cotton processing tax is refunded when manufactured articles are exported from this country.

In considering the increase in imports were still comparatively small.

Imports, therefore, amounted to slightly less than six-tenths of one percent of our domestic production of cotton cloth.

If agitation for removal of the processing tax is unsettling by causing buyers to hold off, it should be recognized that the Adjustment Administration does not anticipate the removal of the cotton processing tax in the near future.

Elimination of the cotton processing tax ultimately would force the abandonment of the cotton adjustment program. Income from cotton and cottonseed fell from $1,735,000,000 in 1925-26 to $464,000,000 in 1932-33. There are approximately 2,000,000 farm families producing cotton; therefore, the gross income per farm family in 1932-33 averaged about $232. From this income it was necessary to meet the cash expenses of production, and from the remainder cotton farmers were supposed to pay their taxes and debts and meet living expenses.

That South African cotton which requires a man to stand a distance when addressing another-in-law was probably tated by caution.

Cash income from cotton cottonseed, together with and benefit payments for 1934 are expected to total $37,000 or approximately $420 per family. This represents a decrease over the income in 1932-33, but it is still low, particularly among some of the cropper and renter groups.

17-YEAR-OLD DEBT PAID BY UNITED PRESS

MOUNTAIN HOME, Tenn. — 17-year-old debt owed by the United Press to L. R. Cobb, of Mountain Home, for services he rendered in 1917, was paid by the United Press on Friday, April 19, 1935.

The bill, which had been forgotten by both Cobb and county, amounted to $2.

That South African cotton which requires a man to stand a distance when addressing another-in-law was probably tated by caution.

KEEP ON TOP O' THE WORLD

When you're feeling well, you're usually happy. Life is at its best. But when you're sick and blue, days lose their zest. You lack enthusiasm. Common constipation, due to insufficient "bulk" in meals, is an enemy of happy living. It frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's All-Brán is a natural food for normal persons. It furnishes generous "bulk" to aid elimination. All-Brán also provides vitamin B and iron.
Isn't this gentle food safer than risking potent medicines? Unlike cathartics, it remains effective with continued use. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.
Serve All-Brán as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

H. M. SHEVNAN, widely known expert at Chicago, will personally be at the Connellee Hotel, Eastland, Thursday and Friday only, April 25 and 26, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.
Mr. Shevnan says: The Zotic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthen the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.
Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired.

"Mississippi" Is a Tuneful Film of Old Dixie

Scenes of Civil War Days And Negro Singers

Bing Crosby, as Dixie's fiercest fighter and sweetest singer, heads the comedy, singing and romantic cast of Paramount's "Mississippi," which comes Saturday to the Arcadia Theatre.

"Mississippi," a story of the old South, stars Crosby with W. C. Fields and Joan Bennett, while Queenie Smith, John Miljan, Gail Patrick and the Cabin Kids are prominently featured in the supporting cast.

The plot of "Mississippi" revolves about a Yankee youth, unfamiliar with the ways of the Old South, who declines to duel for his sweetheart's hand.

Branded as a coward, he finds refuge with old Commodore Jackson's troupe of actors as a singing attraction. Under the Commodore's tutelage, he becomes the most feared gunfighter on the river, and, just as he is about to return to the girl, he finds that he is in love with another lady who detests duelling.

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart composed the four new tunings by Crosby in "Mississippi." They include "Soon," "Down by the River" and "It's Easy to Remember."

"Mississippi," adapted from the play by Booth Tarrington, was directed by Edward Sutherland.

DESDEMONA

On Tuesday afternoon of last week the clubhouse of the "21" Study club was beautifully decorated with potted ferns and vases filled with locust and wild plum blossoms, carrying out the club colors of white and green, the decorations being in honor of the coming of the Gorman Excelsior club to present their annual exchange program. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. A. B. Henslee, president of the "21" Study club, who spoke a few words of welcome and then gave the meeting over to the Excelsior club. Roll call responses were ruled in parliamentary law. Mrs. Ed Sutton gave a splendid talk on State and National Government, and Mrs. Ellen Oldham followed with a very interesting discussion of County Government. All present felt that much information had been gained from hearing these talks. One feature of the afternoon's session that was much enjoyed was an exhibit of original paintings owned by members of the "21" Study club.

Mrs. W. E. Barron had three oil paintings which she had painted, though she had never taken an art lesson. Mrs. David Parks exhibited three pictures painted by her daughter, Miss Dorothy Parks, a junior in our high school, and also a landscape of a place near Big Spring, painted by Mrs. Parks' sister, Mrs. Gifford Areen. Mrs. Gifford Areen had on exhibit a painting of swans and water lilies made by Miss Avis Brown who died a few years ago, and also three silhouettes made by her brother, Mr. Pritchett of Ranger. Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass had on display two oil paintings by Miss Geneva Mitchell who formerly lived here. Mrs. A. C. Robert had some paintings made on glass, one by Mrs. C. W. Maltby and one by a sister of Mrs. Robert. Mrs. J. H. Rushing had two large pictures, one in oil and the other pastel, painted by Earl Trice, who lived here several years ago, and Mrs. W. C. Bedford had a pastel of "Evangeline," painted by Miss Sallie Bacon, formerly of Cisco, but now of Fort Worth. After the program, the hostesses, Misses Roy Ashburn, A. B. Henslee and W. C. Bedford served an attractive refreshment plate of meat and nut sandwiches, golden glow salad on lettuce, saltines, pickle, angel food squares iced in green, and coffee, with Easter rabbits as favors. Those present from Gorman were Misses Ellen Oldham, Ed Sutton, Blair, Tetens, Wright, Foster, Spraltery, Isar, and the following Desdemona ladies: Misses S. E. Snodgrass, J. E. Heeter, Mattie Henry, John Mendonhall, C. W. Maltby, A. C. Robert, David Parks, Bailey Stark, D. E. Lewis, A. B. Henslee, Roy Ashburn and W. C. Bedford.

W. A. Tate of Carbon visited friends here Thursday.

A. C. Robert, Jr., returned to Kilgore Thursday after a few days visit here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Robert, Sr.

O. F. Newberry, president of the First National Bank of Gorman, came over on business Monday afternoon.

O. A. Kuntze drove up to Eastland on business Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Everett of Ranger were guests of their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Stark, Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Areen drove up to Ranger Sunday and visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Pritchett.

S. T. Stover, George Hicks and W. E. Barron were among the large number of friends who visited High school coach, E. E. Mullins Sunday, at the Blackwell Sanitarium. They report that he is still in quite a serious condition caused by an attack of rheumatism.

John O'Rear and his two sisters, Mrs. Mollie O'Rear and Mrs. Annie Daniel, enjoyed a visit Sunday afternoon from Mrs. Cora Morris and her daughters, Misses Fannie, Corp Elta and Helen, and Messrs Milton Tipton and Joe Offord, all of Seymour. Mrs. Morris formerly lived here and this was her first visit here in 45 years. Her friends of former years were delighted to see her again.

Mrs. W. E. Barron and Mrs. Charles Lee returned Thursday afternoon from Breckenridge, where they had attended the annual Missionary conference of the Central Texas Methodist conference. Mrs. Barron, who has served as secretary of the Cisco district (the highest office in the district) for the past four years, was elected unanimously to serve a fifth year. They reported the meeting to have been well attended and of great interest. Mrs. Barron was on the program several times.

N. D. Gallagher of Cisco, came down Monday to look after his property and while here visited with a number of old friends who are always glad to see him and who still think of him as one of our citizens.

The many friends of Dr. P. M. Kuykendall of Ranger were glad to learn that the final report for the county board shows that he was elected by a safe majority. The vote in Desdemona was 40 for Dr. Kuykendall and 6 for his opponent, showing that his friends and former neighbors remember how well he served as trustee for our local schools for a number of years and know that he will serve equally well on the county board.

C. C. Gibbons, who has been here nearly a year, working for the Rudco Oil and Gas Co., left Tuesday morning for Ada, Okla., while here he made many friends who regret to see him leave.

A pre-Easter revival meeting is in progress at the Methodist church, with the pastor, Rev. H. H. Nance, doing the preaching. Quite a good interest is being taken in the services and much good is being done.

Misses Roy Ashburn, Clarence Ragland, J. H. Jackson, Mattie Henry and J. N. Williams drove up to Cisco Monday and attended the Easter Star school of instruction for this district.

Mrs. Clarence Ragland was hostess Thursday afternoon at the club house at a delightful party given in honor of her friend, Mrs. Olive Elrod, who was presented with a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Miss Catherine Stanton of Olden was the guest of Mrs. Bailey Stark, Saturday.

Turn Onto the Road to Church

Church helps a man from his moral ruts and starts him on the highway of right thinking and right living. The longer we travel in ruts the deeper they become and the more difficult it is to get out of them.

The churches of this community are here to help you out of both social and moral ruts. They provide Christian fellowship and offer the only solution for sin: the gospel of Jesus Christ. No man ever regretted the time he spent in church attendance. Let us help you out of your ruts—perhaps you will help us out of ours. Come to church Sunday.
