Mock Air Raids Can't Approach Real Thing

The Germans are a clever and thorough people, and when they set out to stage mimic air raids over Berlin they went ahead and did a pretty life-like job. News photographs show us supposedly shell-torn streets, stretcher parties, and ambulances, firemen in gas masks, and all those other little details which go to make modern warfare such a romantic and high-spirited undertaking.

As a dress rehearsal for the real thing, it must all have been very realistic and gripping—just the sort of thing to make any people glad that they are at last able to support air fleets of their own.

But let no one make the mistake of supposing that it was really a faithful reproduction of the genuine article. To get that you need a fertile imagination . . . and a strong stomach.

Let's suppose we could have a look at the real thing, for a minute. What would we see?

First of all we might come to a peaceful suburban garden. On the torn sod lies a 5-year-old boy. He was a sunny, happy chap up to five minutes ago. Then a bomb fragment knocked his lower jaw off. He is lying there now, moaning rather quietly. In a few minutes he will be dead.

Down the street a way is a schoolhouse—was a schoolhouse, to be more exact. Now there is a mass of bricks and broken beams. It wouldn't be advisable to go too near; we might see something that would spoil our sleep forever. You see, a 500-pound bomb landed there before the children had time to get out.

Farther along we come to a department store. That, too, is a good thing to stay out of. An incendiary bomb landed in the midst of a throng of shoppers. The results are the sort of thing the devil in hell might dream about on an especially bad night.

Next we reach what is left of a hospital. Some of the exhibits are rather disturbing . . . the children's ward, for instance, where one bomb went off . . . or the maternity ward . . . no, we shan't go in there at all.

Down here is a smashed street car, with a few broken bodies still showing faint signs of life. Just beyond is a theater, where a bomb landed just as everyone was hurrying for the exits. You understand, of course, that as we go to see these things we have to pick out way along pavements that are more or less cluttered with legless bodies, scattered arms and heads, and the like?

All this is a little too harrowing to go on with any longer. But it is only a pale, shadow-like imitation of what will actually happen when the next war breaks out.

And if you don't like the looks of it, you might meditate that that's what the nations of the earth are blithely and irresponsibly preparing for themselves these days.

What you think and what you do make you what you are. Think wisely!

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—The stupider line of the month seems to be one produced by the AAA in a defense of food costs, referring to the fact that about 20 million people are on relief. As to them, the AAA says officially:

"The price level, the cost of living, whether high or low is to them a matter of little consequence, because they have no purchasing power except that provided by relief."

AAA economists and publicity agents produced that one without consultation with any family which buys food and other necessities on $5 or $10 weekly relief. It is also doubtful whether the $500,000 who are to average $12.50 a week on work-relief will consider the cost of living a matter of little consequence.

Since AAA purged itself of a large part of its conscience—through removal of Jerome Frank, Fred Howe, and others who had fought the battles of the consumer within its ranks—it has been noticeably on the defensive on all fronts.

Beliequered by angry housewives, greedy processors, and farm leaders and self-seeking politicians, it has sought to apply rosy-hued coloring to itself in the hope of pleasing the public.

It still isn't as dishonest in misrepresenting facts as are some other government agencies.

TRENDENCY has been to stress the fact that food prices in general are still below the pre-depression level and to take credit with farmers for the drought and its effect on prices, while denouncing the drought as an act of God when discussing meat prices with consumers, and promising them lower prices eventually.

Secretly, AAA officials wish they hadn't carried the hog program quite so far, but they don't like to admit it.
AAA's position would be easier if it felt it could stress the fact that the administration's effort to spread purchasing power among the unemployed had not been anywhere near as successful as the effort to boost farm purchasing power.
A SENATOR has been found who refuses to take a pleasant junket to the balmy Caribbean and its palm-decked coral strands, etc., until Congress gets through with its regular work.
This astounding performance is that of Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, a member of the committee to investigate conditions in the Virgin Islands, which Senator Tydings of Maryland, its chairman, wants to take down to the islands in May.
Clark says he can't afford to walk out on his constituents, no matter how seductive the breezes blow there, and will resign rather than make the trip.
His position puts other members of the committee—King of Utah, White of Maine, and Metcalf of Rhode Island—on the spot. They're undecided and Tydings eventually may have to go alone—or postpone the journey.
Tydings returned from a junket to the Philippines early in February, a month after the session began.
But it's easy to explain his constant yen to leave Capitol Hill and get off to an island somewhere. Washington is surrounded on three sides by the state of Maryland and his office is a mere walk for his job-seeking constituents.

Pretty Catch for Any Angler

Bass just can't help stringing along with Marie Rigalle and it's easy to tell why they can't resist when you take a look at Marie, resting on her perch with her catch of strippers. She will be one of the main attractions at the annual striped bass carnival in San Rafael, Calif., in May in both angling and bathing revue events.

We get a Lift with a Camel!

COSTLIER TOBACCOES IN CAMELS!

"Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOES—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

COLLEGE STUDENT. "I smoke a lot, because I find that Camels keep me on the alert... banish that 'done in' feeling," says Alford Archer. "And what a swell taste they have!"

GIRL EXPLORER. "When I'm tired," says Mrs. William LaVarre, "I stop and smoke a Camel. It wakes up my energy in no time. Smoking Camels steadily does not affect the nerves."

ENGINEER. "Camels refresh me in a very few minutes," says Erwin R. Jones, staff engineer, Boulder Dam. "And man, what a swell taste Camels have!"

SOCIETY MATRON. Mrs. Ludlow Whitaker Stevens, of New York, says: "It's remarkable the way a Camel renews your energy."

RANCHER. Charley Belden, of Pitchfork, Wyoming, adds his comment: "When I get to feeling tired, I smoke a Camel, and my energy perks up right away."

EXPLORER. Captain R. Stuart Murray, F. R. G. S., says: "Camels always give me a pick-up in energy when I need it, and I prefer Camel's flavor."

REPORTER. "When I'm feeling 'let down,'" says Marry Nichols. "I get a 'lift' in my energy with a Camel."

BRIDGE ENGINEER. R. G. Cone says: "It's a strenuous life—bridging the Golden Gate. When I'm worn out, a Camel quickly relieves me of tiredness."

CAMERAMAN. E. C. Fowland speaking: "Do I get worn out and exhausted? You bet! The way I turn on my energy again is to smoke a Camel."

RADIO EXPERT. "Camels are my choice on taste," says Harry Miller, radio engineer, of Station WOR. "And smoking a Camel helps to relieve fatigue."

ALASKAN EXPLORER. Harold McCracken has this to say: "Camels are mild... yet have a full, rich flavor. They refresh my energy."

HORSEWOMAN. "I don't know of anything else that brings the pleasant 'lift' that I get from a Camel," says Miss Helene Trudshaw. "Camels never give me jumpy nerves."

FIREMAN. Stanley Adams says: "When I feel all in, Camels give me new 'pep.' 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel.'"

FARMER. I. A. Bailey: "Like many farmers, I have found a way to lick tiredness. I smoke a Camel and find my energy renewed. Camels suit me right down to the ground."

The DARK BLOND

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Agent Graves, secretary to Dringgold, finds her emerald in his office desk. Jarvis, a stranger, offers to help her find it. She goes to a beauty shop and she is transformed into a blonde. She then takes her home, introduces her as his secretary. She is Robert Caise's Mrs. Hap's daughter, Mrs. Hap's.

She reads her note under the millimeter door. The woman in the black ermine coat is the woman who transformed her. She goes to the chaffeur's quarters. The chaffeur is dead from a bullet wound.

Next morning Sergeant Mahoney is in charge of the case. He calls the telephone Mrs. Hap's and she tells her husband has been shot. She is warned not to go to the police.

Milliecent and Norman learn that the woman in the ermine driving is Mrs. Faulconer. They go to her home, are about to go inside. Bob Caise appears. They see her and then leave. Milliecent and Norman go into the street. Milliecent opens a closet and calls, "Norman—"

Go On With The Story
CHAPTER XXXIV

Norman Hap stepped forward and took from one of the hangers a black ermine coat. He brought it to the living room of the apartment, where he regarded it curiously. "Do you think that's the one?" he asked.

"I'm practically certain of it," she said. "It's exactly the cut and style of the one I saw." Then this Phyllis Faulconer in woman in the black ermine coat, she said slowly, "but it's Phyllis Faulconer?"

"Some astrological nut who has been in the air these days. Scarcely an interest can be attached to it. It is a feature of modern life. 'A condition, a theory.'"

Norman and Phyllis went to the farmers and ranchmen in the county. They have their own associations. They have cotton cooperatives. And home makers have their demonstration councils.

Phyllis was a very wise person. She was considering all this business of organization and makes the following observations:

"Organization is not the beginning of a movement. It is the expression of liberated energy. If no organization is effective, making effective group action possible, the energy is often wasted."

The growth of a successful organization is like that of a tree. It grows from the bottom up—from inside out.

The roots of the organization are the individuals who compose it. Their coming together makes strength which may be likened to the trunk of the tree. The results of their work correspond to the flowers and fruit.

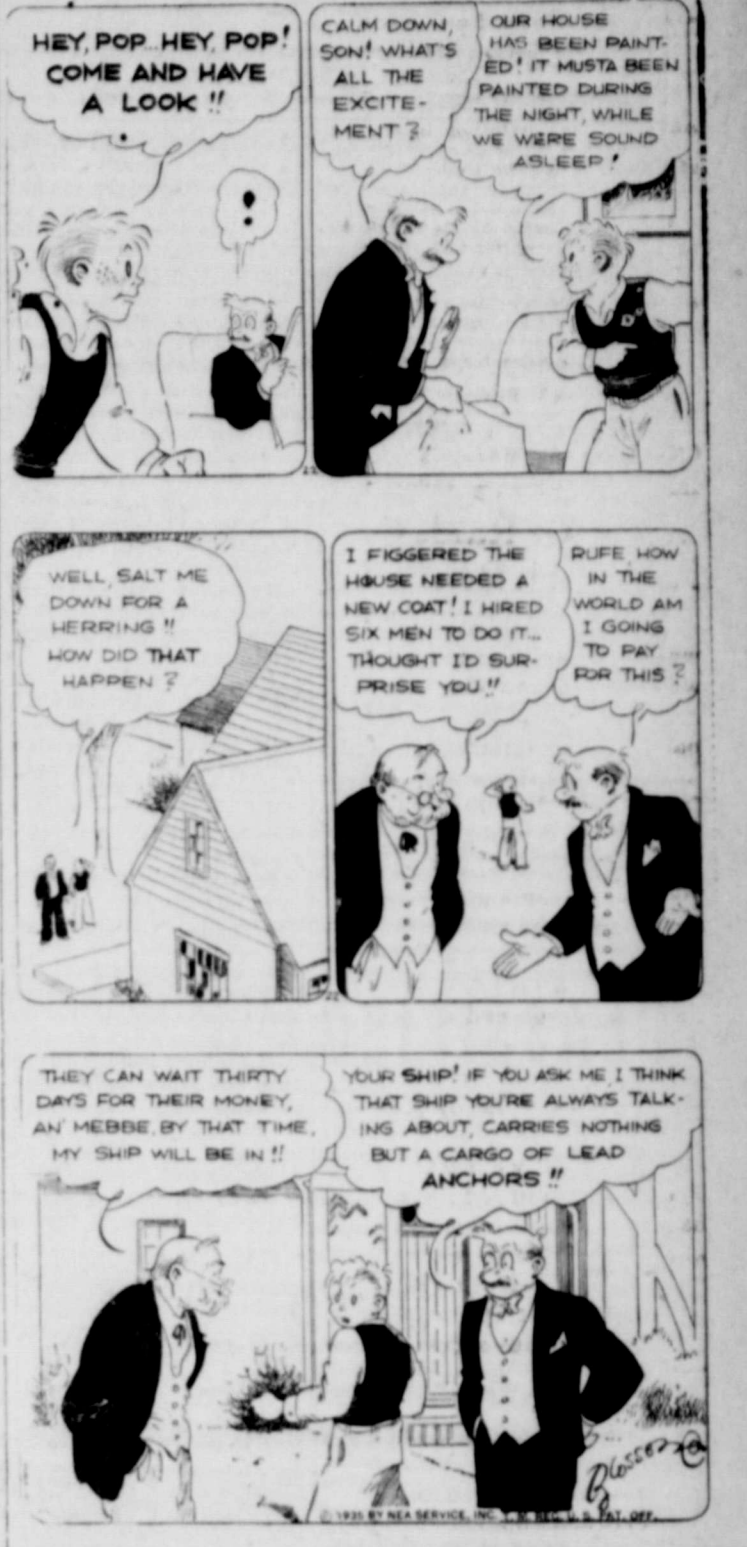

For best results the organic growth of the group should be simple and flexible. Adjustments and changes should be made so as not to disturb the harmonious growth of the whole.

Danger lies in wait when an organization grows in wealth and power beyond the development of leadership to direct it."

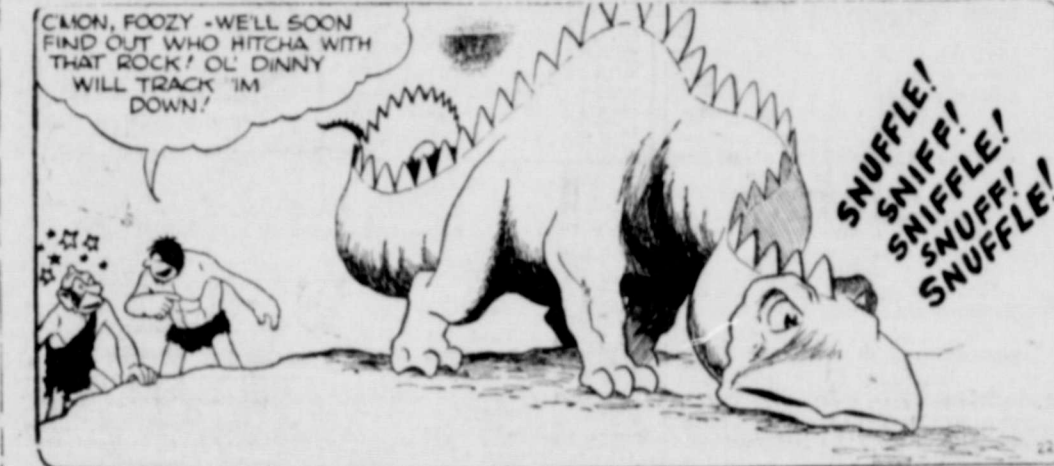

ANDERSON—A new picket line has been completed, rock piles have been built across the street, and the yard had been filled with new soil by Christine. The yard improvement demonstration of the Oak Flat 4-H club is in progress, according to Miss Thomas, county home demonstration agent. A plan was first made up covering three years of work, and these are the first improvements necessary in carrying out the plan. In addition, Christine has cleaned under the house and is now underpinning it with split pine pilings such as the fence is made of. Foundation plantings have been begun. Trees will be planted where needed for shade and for screening the outbuildings.

GILMER—With a total cash expenditure of $1, Mrs. Ivy Rayburn of Uphor county has trained a bare unspurred colt without a harness or saddle into a newly painted and papered one. She shoves for folded clothing in a rod for hangers, she reports

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

ON TEXAS FARMS

Miss M. D. Worth, home demonstration agent, Mrs. Reynolds built shelves down one side with boxes which her husband had brought home from town. Old coldframes covers were used for the canvas and the paper used in papering the closet was some that had been on hand for 10 years. The rod for the hangers was an old broom handle. Her only expense was $1 for white paint with which to paint the shelves.

PANHANDLE—In choosing a balanced menu from the 639 cuttainers in her pantry, Mrs. L. L. Stalls of Carson county can supply everything except bread, according to Miss Dalton Burelson, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Stalls has a total of 60 varieties of meats, vegetables, fruits, pickles and relishes from which to choose, and even has 12 cans of fruit cake. She produces milk, eggs and butter at home and also has enough home made soap stored in the cellar to last for a long period of time.

HE GOT A LIFT

GENE SARAZEN, golfer's newest miracle man, must have got a lift from somewhere to hole that 220 yard spoon shot for a 2 on a par 3 hole in the Augusta National Golf Club invitation play. It was the turning point of the tournament which ended with Gene looking well pleased with both his sensational victory and his favorite cigarette.

SITUATIONS WANTED

Some mighty fine talent is on the loose these days ready to fill just the job you want filled. Wide-awake job hunters are the ones who do best and if they're wide-awake they use the WANT ADS

TRANS-PACIFIC FLYER—"Cassidy are my vapor-charger." They give me new energy and go," says Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith.

FALFURRIAS—A 30-ton trench silo filled with hegarri bundles is being used by John Negri, Brooks county dairyman, to carry his dairy herd until Sudan pasture is available, according to Louis Franke, county agricultural agent. The work of constructing the silo, harvesting the feed, and filling the silo cost Mr. Negri $18, and this figure includes his own labor at current prices. More than 50 persons have visited the Negri farm to observe the silo while construction, filling, and feeding operations were under way. The trench silo is new to Brooks county, but Negri's demonstration plus the current shortage of roughage has converted many local dairymen to this economical method of storing feed, according to the county agent.

EMORY—A net profit of $28.95 was made from a flock of 194 hens during February by Homer Foster of Rains county, according to his report to Roy King, county agricultural agent. Foster's hens produced 2,958 eggs during the month, and he believes that by keeping a good laying mash before his birds at all times he can continue to expect good production. Foster sells infertile eggs which he guarantees to be good, and therefore he receives a small premium on all sales.

ELDORADO—Seven Schleicher county 4-H club boys received a total of $2100 for their club work during 1934, according to C. Shell, county agricultural agent. The boys fed out 112 head of lambs and won $409 in prize money at two shows. The sale prices for the lambs varied from seven and one-half to $3.50 per pound. Mecll Moore sold his prize winning lamb at $3.50 per pound, and Edgar Sauer sold his lamb for $1 per pound. A car load of lambs brought $9.75 per hundred.

can, but don't be too particular about doing it because, if the woman becomes suspicious and thinks the handwriting isn't Bob's, she'll give Bob a ring and ask him about it and he'll tell her that he wrote the note and left it there. Norman's eyes sparkled. "Smart girl," he said, and reached for the piece of note paper. He wrote rapidly, making a credible job of forging Bob's handwriting. When he had finished, he put the note back on the table and arranged the throw so that it concealed the paper. Miliecent gave a last glance about the apartment, nodded to Norman and said, "I think it's all in order. Let's go." She folded the original note and slipped it into the purse she was carrying. As they moved toward the door of the apartment, Norman said thoughtfully, "Did you notice what Bob said in that note—that he was going to 'take care of you'?" "Yes," she said. "What do you suppose he meant by it?" His voice was throaty with emotion as he said, "He meant he was going to kill you. That's the only explanation. He's desperate and he's probably armed. He's the type who would stop at nothing—even..." He stopped speaking abruptly, reached out and pressed a detaining hand on Milliecent's arm. There was the noise of someone moving about in the corridor. Slowly the knob of the door turned. Norman pushed Milliecent back of him, stood with his fists doubled. The knob was released. It sprung back into position. Knuckles started to pound on the panels of the door—two sharp raps, a pause, two more raps, a pause and a single rap. Miliecent felt her heart in her throat. She wanted to cling to Norman for support, but she knew Norman needed to be unhampered. Unarmed, he was facing an unknown danger. Hardly daring to breathe, she waited, wondering what would happen next. She had not long to wait. There was the sound of a key being fitted into the lock. (To Be Continued)

Officers Honored at Eastland County Federation Affair

The Community clubhouse of Eastland presented a colorful picture aglow with mellow hued lights and a profusion of spring flowers in evidence Saturday afternoon for the club reception of the Eastland County Federation, honoring officers, Mrs. Louis Pitcock, outgoing president, and incoming president, Mrs. Andrew Mahaffey of Gorman.

The receiving line was composed of Mrs. Jim Horton, Mrs. Bert McGlamery and the president of the Eastland federation with Miss Ruth Ramsey, receiving at the door.

A very delightful tribute was paid Mrs. Pitcock, by Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, president of the 1929 club. A tribute to Mrs. Mahaffey was given by Mrs. W. A. Sutton, president of the Excelsior club at Gorman.

A brief business session was presided over by Mrs. Pitcock, with "Texas-Our Texas" sung as a tribute.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
SEA Service Star Writer

PERHAPS the greatest handicap in the fight against flesh is the bridge luncheon. The dieting guest fears that she may offend her hostess if she fails to eat the tempting, rich food usually served, but also she knows that if she yields she undergoes the work of weeks of stern reducing.

So it occurred to me why not consider your own and everybody else's figure next time you plan a party?

Take stock of the calories. It's the fats, starches and sugars that increase the calory count so alarmingly. This includes in the food list all breadstuffs—particularly hot buttered rolls so popular on luncheon menus—cream sauces, mayonnaise, whipped cream, very sweet desserts, made with yolks of eggs, and rich cake and pudding mixtures.

Instead of hot rolls serve toasted crackers.

Inventory of Calories

For the rest, fruit cocktail (unsweetened), jellied meats, broiled meats and fish, one hot vegetable simply dressed with salt and pepper and a very little butter, a plain green salad or fruit salad with French dressing, and if hot dessert, a fruit whip or ice or a snow pudding. Bouillon and consommé have almost no caloric value and make excellent first courses served either hot or jellied.

It may help you to remember that olives, and ripe ones particularly, increase the calory count extravagantly, one olive adding fifteen calories. But radishes and celery are low in calories.

The following menu averages about 650 calories:

Reducing Luncheon Menu

Bouillon
Radishes
Celery
Chicken Timbales with Browned Pineapple Slices
Asparagus Salad
Strawberry Fluff in Meringue Shells
Black Coffee

One tablespoon of cream and 1 lump of sugar in your coffee will add about 85 calories to the total.

One cup of bouillon is about fifteen calories. I stalk of asparagus is five calories, and the radishes an celery not over ten. One dessert spoon of French dressing over the salad adds 100 calories so the salad will use up from 125 to 150 calories, depending on the number of asparagus stalks. This leaves around 500 calories for the timbales and dessert.

BUSINESS ASSETS

Keep it in your garage at home, drive it over streets and highways to an airport—then fly. Those are possibilities opened by the autogyro-auto, which the craft pictured here essentially resembles. Spread out the rotor blades and it can fly; shift gears from propeller to wheels and it handles like a car. The U. S. Bureau of Air Commerce has ordered the first one in America, and Ann Pearce of Elkins Park, Pa., shows how simple it will be to drive to the door of one's destination.

The "San Francisco-Hawaii-Alaska triangle," scene of the large-scale naval maneuvers of the U. S. fleet this summer. Over this vast 5,000,000-square-mile seaway, new vessels and tactics will be tested in the greatest naval concentration since the World War. The main body will sail from San Francisco to Hawaii, and operate from the Pearl Harbor base in fleet problems between there and Alaska, returning after more than a month to southern California.

Some teachers, doctors, writers, lawyers, housewives, each with his own vocation to make, his duty to fulfill. I wonder how many fully realized the responsibility that became ours that day, how well we have filled that niche in life that is allotted to each of us.

Shortly after the exercises I remarked to my true friend and inseparable companion, I. L. Vaughn, "I wonder where we will all be and what we will be doing 10 years from today."

"Who knows," he said. And then it was that we made the plan and mentioned it to our classmates.

I've been turning back the years today. As one quite often will, And visiting once more my old classroom In the old high school on the hill.

I will remember that senior year, Our banquet and senior play, Our class picnic I well recall, Then came commencement day.

Little did we realize that day, With its crowded, precious hours, How far apart we all would drift In this wide world of ours.

Some of us have reached our goal And wear success' crown, Some of us still are striving Despite Life's bitter frown.

Some of us sought happiness By following Adventure's star, But how often we find before our doors That which we sought afar.

To those of you who may read This I have this suggestion to make, Some time during the day of the tenth anniversary of our graduation you will spend a few moments in memory of our senior year and of teachers and classmates, and drink this toast, be it anything from water to champagne.

Here's to the Class of '25, And to the school from which it came. Let us along life's path strive To be worthy of the name.

Here's to you, classmates and teachers, Where ever you may be. A drink to your happiness and success, And a lifetime of harmony. If any of you will write to me, and I hope you will, my home address is 1127 Felicity street, New Orleans.

Recent Nazi proclamation to followers reads: "Do your duty and be on the spot." They will be, anyway, if they don't.

That news item revealing that the last beard has disappeared and that everyone in the Norwegian national assembly now is clean-shaven failed to include the name of the new woman member.

That Michigan man who paid an income tax of $2,304 on an income of $2,304 might not have been absent-minded. Maybe his idea was, "Eventually, why not now?"

Do You Hate To Meet People?

Some of us are so bashful that whenever a new face appears before us we mentally duck away! Maybe it isn't shyness so much as simply not realizing how very interesting new acquaintances can be.

Some people are shy about new foods too. One family we know has had pork and beans every Saturday night for ten years, and they see no reason for changing!

How much more interesting life—and dinner!—would be for that family with a new kind of meat, a vegetable prepared some other way, a new style in dessert. New foods—new faces—brighten our days and help make living an exciting game.

Look through the advertisements in this newspaper for new ideas in foods. They're here, in abundance... recipes, tried and tested... favorite platters of favorite people... exotic dishes from exotic lands.

The advertisements bring you up-to-the-minute news of many things. Read them regularly. Form the habit of getting the most out of life—and the most for your money.
