To Regain Confidence, See America First

You can hear a good deal of talk about the need for confidence, these days, if you listen for it; and after hearing about so much of it, you are apt to begin to wonder just why we need to do so much talking about it.

Confidence is essential, of course; but confidence in what? In the honesty or good sense of a particular group of politicians, financiers, business men, or labor leaders, or in the general health and robustness of the country as a whole?

In the long run, the latter is all that counts. America is so big and so husky that she has stood up under an awful lot of hammering from selfish and misguided people in the past.

Politicians have misled her and robber barons of finance and industry have taken her for a ride, but nobody has ever been able to put her in the hospital for keeps.

Perhaps the best course for a person who feels this need of confidence would be to go out across the countryside and see what there is to be seen.

He could drive across millions of acres of the finest farming land on earth, past big barns and comfortable houses and green fields, amid sun-browned and brawny people who are more self-reliant, more intelligent, and more ambitious than any other group of farmers that ever existed.

He could go through the world's greatest workshops, where the most modern machinery on earth is teamed with the earth's most skilled workers under the direction of executives who know their jobs forward and backward, inside and out.

He could travel over the world's greatest transportation network, with paved roads, railway lines, waterways, and airplane fields to co-operate in the moving of people and goods on a scale never seen before.

He could visit the world's greatest oil fields, its most productive deposits of coal and iron and aluminum, its most stupendous hydro-electric plants; he could see a series of colleges and technical schools such as no other country can boast, busy at the job of providing trained leadership; he could mingle with a people not yet discouraged by the ills of a long-drawn depression, but full of determination and brave optimism.

Confidence! It ought to be a drug on the market. This country is simply too big to lick. Not folly nor selfishness nor blindness can stop it.

The one thing that ought to seem certain, in a world of uncertainty, is that America will return to its old-time health.

You remember how in Egypt, back in the days of the Pharaohs, they stored up grain during the seven good years so as to be ready for the seven lean years to come...

Lean years may come... and fat years may go...

That's why we have close to a hundred million dollars worth of tobacco packed away in 4 1/2 miles of warehouses to grow mild and naturally sweet.

To make sure that Chesterfields will be uniform in taste and mildness, we have in storage mild, ripe tobaccos from the crops of four years—1931-'32-'33 and '34.

JUST BETWEEN US EL MERLE

That school is almost over another term, let's stop and look back over work we have done and some of us can be justly proud of our record. We realize we have learned a great deal in our short time and we feel that our grades, but perhaps are others of us who find they have some grades to be proud of and others that they do not have referred to. The grades of these poor grades may be we have let up in our work for just a short time or in some cases we have not been diligent in our studies as we might be preparing ourselves for a happy and successful future. We realize now that this would have meant so much to us if we spent it in the right way, then there may be a few of us who only managed to pass our courses by a bare margin or even failed. Perhaps these students who have employed their time to their greater advantage. Let us not mourn over what is done, but let us be glad that we have had this experience, which will serve to awaken us to a value of time well spent. If we had only this the experience, failure, victory or doubt has much to us, so let's profit by our experience has been our term.

SENIOR NEWS

The seniors went on a "fishing" last Thursday night, but was against us, for no fish were caught. Of course, we took some and everyone had a good time. We heard Lena, the sophisticated senior, remark that Howard and Johnny both "looked like dolls" Friday night. We've heard many different adjectives used to describe those two, but this is an entirely new one on us. T. J. didn't look so bad either, according to Frances E. Florene, how do you like Eastland Hill? You were very content Friday night, I heard. T. J., "you're gonna lose your gal" if you don't keep your eye on her more closely. You really should have been with us on our senior picnic last Thursday night! Betty introduces us to her boy friend the other night and he's as ning, May 19, at 8 o'clock, at the Baptist church. Mrs. Warren is directing our rehearsals and we are accompanied by Mrs. Everett, playing the piano, Mr. Minnie, with the trumpet, and Mr. Timmons with the trombone. We wish to express our sincere thanks for the help which these people are giving us. We are giving a senior program Friday morning, May 17. It will include the reading of the class will, the class prophecy, class history, class poem and the presentation to the school by the seniors of a picture. The picture we chose to present this year is an etching, by Wall. The subject of the etching is the Mission San Jose. Our senior commencement is to be held at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock on May 24.

GOSSIP

We wish we could find out who the boy from Cisco was that, in company with Mary Louise Wilson, chased a cat around the block in Eastland Wednesday night, May 8. Something funny about this—A. C. and Ollus left the banquet early the other night and as we came in hours later, we met A. C. just returning from Ollus' house. We do wish those roving party seekers would not come to our front gate and call us from our various pursuits of happiness. Saturday night it was Frances Edwards, T. J. Weeks, and Charlie Butler on their way to Valeta's, it seems.

Charlie and Frances must have had an enjoyable time for they went back out there Sunday night "we met 'em on our way to church. Ahon???"

At the time it burned it was occupied by Thomas Browning and family, who tried to extinguish the blaze but could not on account of the strong wind and lack of water as it was outside the city limits and the well near the house had been broken that day. Fortunately the Brownings saved all their belongings.

She was assisted by Miss Edna Parks, who teaches music in the school. The children all acted their parts well and it was said to have been one of the best entertainments given here in a long time.

Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at the cemetery over the remains of Mrs. Kate Woodard, who died Thursday, May 9, 1935, at DeLeon, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nell Cook. The decedent was the widow of J. E. Woodard, who died several years ago. She was 83 years old, had been born in Memphis, Tenn., being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Culp, who were well known citizens of Memphis. Mrs. Woodard came to Texas in the early days and she and her husband ed two years ago to legalize betting on horses at licensed tracks. The governor addressed one message to the legislature urging repeal. Via radio, he asked support from Texas citizens.

Proponents of pari mutuels, however, kept the repeal bill well down on the calendar, where the bill remained when legislators closed up their desks and went home.

Assorted efforts to increase the state's "take" on pari mutual receipts met a similar fate. The bills were not pushed in early days of the session and as the 124-day session closed with a rush, more vital legislation took precedence.

Race track operators, meantime took steps to "clean up" the game before the legislature put an end to their activities. Texas racing commissioners, headed by Guy Waggoner of Fort Worth, owner of the great Arlington Downs track, suspended 28 for unfair practices at tracks, stimulating horses, rough riding, etc. That was the number of suspensions up to May 1.

Bookies ran for cover when objection to them was voiced early in 1935. Police in several cities closed bookie shops. A bill to put teeth in the law against bookies, however, failed to pass the legislature, dying on the calendar just as the repeal bill did.

Several from this community attended the cemetery working at Necessity Saturday.

Are you serving a MINUS MEAL?

Many wives, unknowingly, serve "minus meals." The food is good, and well cooked, but it has little or no "bulk"—needed to promote regular habits.

"Minus meals" frequently cause common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in the diet. Headaches, loss of appetite and dull, spiritless days too often follow.

Correct the "minus meal" by serving Kellogg's All-Bran regularly. Its gentle "bulk" does not break down in the body as much as the fiber in fruits and vegetables.

Certainly it is safer to use this natural food in place of patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient.

All-Bran remains effective with continued use. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, waffles, etc.

LOUISVILLE—Chance Sun's withdrawal from the Kentucky Derby was another striking example of the uncertainty of winter book for everybody but the book-makers.

Pay or play means that you pay even if your horse doesn't get the post. In the case of Chance Sun, those who made the white-faced son of Chance shot the winter book favorite on the strength of his winning the rich Belmont Futurity in the mud, paid to the extent of something like $300,000.

The advantage of wagering on an animal in winter books presumably rests in the better price. Yet the odds seldom are fair in face of all the risk.

Chance Sun was quoted at 12-to-1 even before he was nominated, and at 8-to-1 when he was nominated. The price then should have been 2-to-1. It was dropped to 4-to-1 when Joseph E. Widener and his trainer, Pete Coyne, announced that the colt had come to hand very well.

One of the severest jolts suffered by winter book players in connection with a Kentucky Derby was dealt them a week before Bargo King was booted to Colonel Edward Riley Bradley's third victory in the big number in the Blue-gum in 1932.

About $500,000 laid on what had been a flying filly the year before had beaten the odds down to 5-to-1 when Top Flight took a bad licking and was scratched.

Equipoise's illness costs Players Another $500,000
It was the second year in succession that a C V Whitney nominee cost winter book players a half million. Equipoise, having taken sick the week of the previous Derby with the price on him to prevail over Twenty Grand and Mate down to 3-to-1.

Players lost a considerable amount but were saved much more when Sarazen and Wise Counsellor were removed from the field a month before the Derby that went to brave little Black Gold in 1934.

Approximately $200,000 of winter book players' gold went out the window when Golden Broom broke down a fortnight before the running of the Derby that was captured by Paul Jones in 1920.

Winter book players dropped another $300,000 or so when Sun Briar went lame a couple of weeks before the Derby of 1918. That didn't deter Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of Sun Briar, however. He purchased Exterminator at the suggestion of his trainer, and Old Bones came down in front.

Pressed for Time, Coyne Drives Chance Sun Too Hard
COYNE gave Chance Sun plenty of time to get his growth, but it seems that the bad break in the weather caused him to overwork the brown and beautifully marked colt.

It takes 60 days or longer for a thoroughbred to get his legs, and Coyne was faced with the problem of sharpening up Chance Sun in a month. The horse was all right in minor breezes, but it was something else again when it was time to tighten up Chance Sun simply was too tired to run.

A lot of things can happen to a horse between December, when the winter books are opened, and May when the players so frequently learn to their sorrow. But they all come back for more. The lure of catching a good thing at a fair price is mighty attractive bait.

SALEM
The Salem community met Sunday, May 12, to honor Mother's Day. There was a religious service at 10 o'clock. Religious services were conducted by Rev. Armstrong of Cloee. Several brought baskets full of dinner and dinner was spread and everyone enjoyed the noon hour together in the good, old-fashioned way. At 2:30 p. m. Rev. McGlasen delivered a good message about Mother and Heaven. After services a short program was rendered as follows: Opening song, "Mother's Prayers," prayer by Rev. Armstrong; Mother's Day exercises by Junior class; reading, "My Mother's Bible," by Edith Cameron; song, "Mother's Old Bible," by Edith Cameron and Pete Rogers; reading, "Best Friend of All," Ruby Redwine; reading, "Mother Helps," Denver Dunlap; song, "Mother and Home," senior class; reading, "Willing Hands," Aline Fonville; song, "Meet Mother in the Skies," senior class; reading, "What is Home Without Mother," Velma Belyeu; song, "Without Mother," card class; reading, "To My Mother," Curtis Redwine; reading, "Famous Women," Bartie Lou Cameron; "Mother's Literature and Bible," by Bible and senior class; song, "Will My Mother Know Me There?" by

Junior College Banquet
Methodist Church Tonight
The day's social happening will be the Junior College banquet which promises to be a delightful event at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock.

O. Shaffer will act as toastmaster for the program to be given with music by Miss Gillian Buchanan and her violin choir. Welcome address will be given by James Campbell, president, followed by the response by Charles Mack. Piano solo, Miss Vera Richardson; talk, Dr. Harry A. Seddon; quartet, "Indian Dawn Sing Awhile"; Prophecy, W. O. Shaffer, and college song, "Auld Lang Syne."

Everyone is free to use the library without charge. The library has been open three nights each week all this year and will continue to be during the summer. Books may be checked out for the period of one week and may be renewed.

It is hoped that the clubs by their support will make it possible for the library to remain open all summer. It will remain open as long as funds permit. Hodges Oak Park Parent-Teacher association, through the children, has contributed over $5, which has been turned over to the treasurer. Pledges and payment may be made to Mrs. Garvin Chastain or Mrs. Susan Hunt.

Public Library to Remain Open Through Summer
The Ranger library, which was closed to the public for the first time last summer, will continue to give the public without charge during the summer months. This service has been made possible by the co-operative effort of the school board and various clubs of the city.

The Texas state library has furnished an interesting collection of western stories, mysteries, novels, and children's books to supplement the collection of books. Many interesting books are available now and others are expected very soon.

Eastland County Federation Meeting Saturday
The Eastland County Federation will hold an all-day picnic outing with a basket lunch at Lake Cisco, Saturday. A demonstration by the club girls promises to be a most interesting feature during the recreation hour following luncheon.

The extension specialist will be the guest speaker, and will bring a very interesting message.

The tufted breadpad that has been in the making by the County Federation will be given away at this meeting, the last of the year. Every member is asked to be present.

THEY'RE IN THE MONEY

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY JOHNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—There is one indoor pastime of which this community seems never to tire.

First, you have to have a book. Then you open it up, lick your chops, and start reading passages which tend to indicate that the problems of the New Deal are really only the same old problems of a hundred or a thousand years ago and that there really isn't anything new under the political-economic sun.

Thus a bureau chief recently pulled out from a library shelf Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" and read therefrom certain comments of the central character, Sir Boss.

One assumes Mr. Roosevelt read them at one time or another and although it isn't on record that he seized the expression "New Deal" from Twain, the comments have a rather familiar ring in these days of worry over concentrated wealth and corporate power.

Here's the passage: "And now here I was, in a country where a right to say how the country should be governed was restricted to six persons in each thousand of its population."

"So to speak, I was become a stockholder in a corporation where 994 of the members furnished all the money and did all the work, and the other six elected themselves a permanent board of direction and took all the dividends."

"It seemed to me that what the 994 dupes needed was a new deal."

NO end of forerunners to the New Deal have been unearthed from history's pages, but the oldest is claimed by an NRA economist who has typewritten, and carboned for distribution among friends a translation from the Chinese statesman Kwantze (or Kuan-Tzu), premier of the state of Chi in the period 654 B. C. to 644 B. C.

Kwantze, seeking to defeat a serious depression, promulgated the following principles for recovery which seem to have anticipated PWA, CCC, FERA, RFC, FCA, HOLC, NRA, FHA, AAA, and others:

"Agriculture should be advanced by the constructive co-operation of the state with the people, and the residences of the people should be well constructed so they can enjoy a high degree of comfort."

"Dams should be built . . . and bridges. . . Immediate assistance and sympathy may be extended to people when they are in a state of extreme emergency."

Tom Adams, patient at the City-County hospital, is reported doing nicely today after undergoing an operation for ruptured appendix. Friends will be glad to learn of the improvement since his condition has been serious.

Editorial
Can you imagine two words with greater connotation than "I'm happy"? Simple, aren't they? And they are very easily said, when one means them.

Don't they give a glowing, warm feeling when you read them? Can't you see a soft little smile playing about the lips of the person saying them? Can't you see the sparkle in eyes and rosy flush of one who lives so joyously?

Now, don't you feel better yourself? Say the words over to yourself and see if they aren't expressive. Think what they mean. Be what they mean. Be happy!

New Schedule For Soft Ball Is Now Completed

Due to the soft ball "bug" having bitten two more teams, it has made it necessary to revise the playing schedule which appeared in Sunday's issue of the Ranger Times, this schedule covering the first half of the season.

It will be noted that the same teams will remain in the league, but that the playing dates have been changed, for convenience of some of the teams, who could not play on certain days of the week.

Due to rainy weather, the league will resume playing scheduled games Tuesday, May 21, the one game having already been played counting in the teams' standing.

Picks More Cotton Than 60 Men

John D. Rust
A dream inspired by back-breaking toil in the inventors' youthful days in Texas is forged into this machine, hailed as the first practical cotton picker. Built by Mack D. and John D. Rust, it was exhibited the first time at the National Cotton Show in Memphis. In tests it has picked more than 8000 pounds in a 7½-hour day, as much as an average hand picker will gather in 10 weeks. The principle is simple. Rotating moistened spindles enter the plant, the cotton adheres to them, and is stripped away by a suction fan, which delivers the cotton to a container attached to the upright pipe shown in this picture.

Cedar Trees Now Menace to Ranches

KERRVILLE.—So serious a menace has the spread of cedar trees become to the ranching industry of Texas in counties between Rock Springs and Austin, that ranchmen met recently to ask government aid in their program to prevent further spread of the trees.
At a cedar extermination meeting recently at Rock Springs on the Edwards Plateau, leaders told the stockmen they had assurance of help from a state legislator and a senator in the campaign for federal relief funds to fight the spread of cedars.

Ranchers who had cut cedars from part of their acreage declared that cut over land grazed five times as many sheep as land with the trees.
Spread of the rapidly multiplying cedars in the past 20 or more years has forced the loan values of the land down to as little as 65 cents per acre, whereas the loan value on tracts free of cedars is $2.50 per acre, according to Federal Land Bank estimates.
Feed bills were a great deal larger during the dry year just past than they would have been without the cedar pestilence.
Ranchmen who could afford to have the trees cut from their acreage, at a cost from 75 cents to $1 per acre, said the extra grass that grew out within a few years would have enough in feed bills to more than pay for the cost of clearing the land.

A. O. Hensley, state relief commission representative, said many thousand more acres of grazing land would be ruined in the next 20 years unless the spread of the trees is stopped.

Jobless Men Trap Predatory Animals

AUSTIN.—Jobless men who turned trappers under supervision of the relief commission, killed 2,000 predatory animals in Frio county within a year. The "catch" included 1,674 coyotes.
Farmers reported to relief headquarters here they now are able to raise their entire crop of turkeys. Prior to the trapping campaign, annual losses ranged from 25 to 75 per cent.
Dog packs and coyote-proof fences pushed predatory animals out of the goat and sheep hill country of Central Texas down into Southwest Texas. There they preyed on poultry coops.

Imports to Wipe Out Shortage of Sudan Grass Seed

WASHINGTON.—A shortage of Sudan grass seed for the 1935 plantings—estimated at about 7,000,000 pounds—will be practically wiped out by importations from Argentina, according to a cablegram from Buenos Aires to the United States department of agriculture.
Approximately 5,300,000 pounds is on its way to the United States, with 1,000,000 pounds sold and awaiting shipment, another 1,000,000 pounds, it is indicated, is available for export. Approximately 4,000,000 pounds of seed already has been imported from Australia, Hungary, Argentina, Morocco, and South Africa. These Argentine shipments are the first of the 1935 crop from countries south of the equator.
Because of drought, the 1934 Sudan grass seed crop in the United States was about one-half that usually produced, and there was virtually no carryover from 1933. Sudan grass is valuable as a temporary hay and pasture crop in almost any part of the United States. With a shortage of hay and pasture in the middle west, it is expected large acreages of Sudan grass will be planted, if seed is available at a reasonable price. Sudan grass can be planted late in the season after the safe date for other crops has passed.
Department of Agriculture says Sudan grass seed from Argentina will be satisfactory for planting. Seed from Argentina was tested several years ago at a number of field stations in Nebraska, Kansas and Texas and was found to be nearly identical with domestic seed in growth habits, and equal in yield and purity.

Salaries For the Commissioners Is Given a Hike

AUSTIN.—Whatever business may be neglected by a state legislature, there is one bill that always gets prompt attention in house and senate. Any bill to fix salaries of county commissioners put the legislators on their toes.
Nobody tries to obstruct such a bill. No committee is too busy to hear it promptly and no member has the temerity to object when unanimous consent is asked to suspend other business and act on a commissioner's salary bill.
The 44th legislature was no exception in this respect. County commissioners' salaries were again revised. As usual the revision was upwards.
County commissioners in a few counties may receive salary cuts and some of them may continue to receive the same amounts, but most of them will be paid more.
Nearly every session devises a new way to fix salaries.
Some sessions base the pay on population. This time assessed property valuations in the counties was used as the base for determining the amount of the commissioners' salaries. The exact amount the commissioners will receive, they will determine themselves. The legislature fixed the maximum.
In a county with less than $4,000,000 property assessed for taxation, a commissioner will be paid $3 per day while working on the job with a limit of $900 a year.
If the property values are $6,000,000 he can get a total of $1,200 a year. At $10,000,000 valuation, the commissioners go on straight salary regardless of the number of days they work.
The straight salary scale begins at $1,400 a year. It progresses to $4,200 in counties with $150,000,000 valuation.
Rep. J. C. McConnell, Palo Pinto, asked Attorney General William McCraw for a ruling to determine whether salaries of officials can be changed during the term of office for which they were elected. The ruling was good for the officers, bad for the state.

It is that an official's salary may be increased during his term, but cannot be decreased.

OAK GROVE

This week was to be peanut planting week with our farmers and we started into it with a vim but another good rain that fell Tuesday morning and again at night has spoiled the fun and changed the week to a rainy week.
Fred Milford had the misfortune to lose his cow and calf a few days ago. The cause of her death was not known.
J. E. Cannaday had a good mare accidentally killed Tuesday of this week. She left a young colt one week old.
The health of this community is good as far as we can learn, but this wet weather may bring a change in the general health if it should continue being wet. However we do not mean to sound a pessimistic note.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliot © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Katharine Strykhurst, beautiful, is discontented with the useless social activities that make her life. Her father and aristocratic stepmother, Bertine, refuse to let Katharine undertake any work.

Katharine rides daily with Michael Heather, young westerner who runs a riding club. Sally Moon, coquette, also enrolls at the riding lessons.

Her Parker, Katharine's friend, comes from Europe where she sent to forget a love affair with Gibbs Larkin, of whom her father disapproves. Zoe is still in love with Gibbs. She sends a wire to him, waits frantically for an answer which does not come. She hides in Katharine's room while they talk.

CHAPTER VIII
Katharine was in Gibbs' arms, half-dressed, half-crying, casting a final glance over her shoulder in direction of other house. "Oh, my darling," she said. "When didn't answer I waited and waited." Her father stood apart, faintly drawn.

"When I didn't answer what?" she asked. "Why, my wife—this morning." "Left White Bay yesterday." "I said yes. My boat is out." "His forefinger pierced your forehead when you didn't get it at all!" "I'll be going," Katharine interrupted.

"No, Kay, dear. Stay, please! I'm going down to see you." "We can't talk here," interrupted the man. "Why not take a run to the boat?" "Oh, I wouldn't dare," Zoe sobbed, with her eyes on the dim light of the house some hundred feet distant.

"Why not? Kay here will come as chaperon—won't you, Kay?" bold, dark eyes were exploring her face; she felt that she dismissed him intensely. Yet she couldn't somehow, fail Zoe, who pleaded with her: "Do, Kay! Oh, I'll do something for you some day!"

Katharine's lips curved in an ironic smile. Nothing like this, she thought, with a sort of royal distaste for entanglements.

But in the end she went. Gibbs' broad back, in its blue, double-breasted coat, was before her solidly as she settled her ruffles in the stern of the rowboat in which he had come to the Parkers' pier. Zoe, a mere white glimmer, sat in the bow, her fingers trailing the water, her small face lighted by some inner flame.

Gibbs' cabin cruiser was trim as a chef's kitchen, gleaming with paint and polished brasses. No one knew exactly how he managed this particular luxury. He was always complaining, audibly and with mock pathsos, of his deadly poverty.

"Kay, I wish you had someone to amuse you. Will it bore you awfully if I talk privately to Zoe for a minute?"

She felt a surge of distaste for this glib man with the smooth manners. Why had she come? It was all wrong. And she wished he wouldn't call her "Kay."

"I don't mind in the least but, Zoe, we mustn't stop longer than 15 minutes."

"Don't worry, darling. We'll make it snappy." That lilt in Zoe's voice, so wibegone half an hour before!

Katharine settled her frills in a deck chair, and Zoe and Gibbs retired to the stern from which vicinity a low murmur of voices ensued. The youthful chaperon amused herself for a few minutes with puzzling out the various lights she could see bobbing here and there. That dim green one was on the very tip end of the Strykhurst veranda, a silly lantern thing that Bertine had picked up somewhere. The twin red lights were the Yacht club.

"Zoe, honestly, we must get back. I tremble to think what your mother would say if she knew—" But her words were spoken almost absentmindedly. She was thinking of Michael Heather, the way his mouth curved when he laughed, the sweet strong curve of his lean face. Katharine shook herself angrily.

"All right, all right." Presently the little rowboat was skimming toward shore again.

"Look out, Gibbs. The buoy's right there."

"Right you are, darling." Zoe basked in this. She was a different girl. You could tell just by the warmth, the lazy assurance of her voice.

"Thanks a million, Kay." "Oh, you're welcome." For the life of her she could not keep an edge of irony out of her tone.

"Kay doesn't approve of me, sweetheart." Gibbs had Zoe's hands linked in his.

"Oh, you just imagine that," Zoe said eagerly. "You must really dash now, Gibbs, dear. I think I see Father's cigar..."

"I slipped down in the shadow of the boathouse just as a masculine figure strolled toward them. Katharine, her draperies floating around her slender figure, whirled to face the newcomer. The blue-coated figure of Gibbs, his white trousers gleaming in the misty darkness, slipped quietly out of sight; there was the faint plash of oars. Then silence.

"Well?" Katharine said, on a note of inquiry.

Dr. Kay answered quietly, "I was just taking a stroll." "Hello, John?" Her laugh was nervous. Was Zoe out of sight? Not that John would tell—he could be trusted—but it was just as well not to confide this intrigue to anyone.

He stood, leaning on the wall, smoking. His silence made her nervous volubility increase. Surely he had seen Gibbs slip away—at least he had seen it was a man—but John was a grand sport; he wouldn't say a word...

"I loved your place today, Johnny."

"I'm glad." She had quite suddenly, the conviction that he was disappointed in her. John Kaye, who held old-fashioned views of womanly conduct, thought she had been slipping out clandestinely to meet some man. It must be clandestine on else the suitor, whoever he might be, would present himself openly at her father's house.

"Oh, well, if he thought that of her!" She couldn't let Zoe down. That much was certain.

"Turning in now, John. Good night."

"I'll walk back with you," he said quietly. In silence they traversed the gravel path. Zoe could get safely back to the house now. It would be all right. And what did it matter if John Kaye thought she was the sort of girl who met mysterious strangers furtively, by night? She would survive this, as she had survived other disappointments. She had thought of John as her sturdy friend. She had felt that always John would take her on faith. Perhaps she had been wrong.

An animated game of bridge progressed in the library. The long windows shed light as they passed, on the terrace. Bertine and Katharine's father, Gracia McElvaine and Mr. Cotaine, the Englishman, sat around the table.

"Oh, very good, partner," Katharine heard Gracia say brightly. But her eyes were roving. She knew Dr. Kaye was somewhere about.

"I think I'll go up," Katharine said. She looked, in the half light shed from the inner room, like some dried in flight. The delicate outline of her lovely figure was etched through the transparencies of her filmy frock. Her fair hair caught gleams of light and her eyes were dark, wistful, shadowed, in spite of the determined coldness of her voice.

"Well, I'm moving in tomorrow. Won't see you then for some time?" Dr. Kaye said. He threw away his cigar, the reddened tip describing a brief arc, then sputtering away to nothingness in a hydrangea bush.

"It's been nice to have you here," the girl said dutifully.

"Thanks. I—this place always seems like home to me."

He had her hand in his now for farewell. There was something almost electric in his clasp. Katharine felt the ice about her heart dissolve a little.

"You're so nice, Johnny." His grip tightened. "Don't say pretty things to me. I'm not used to it."

She could smell the good scent of Russian leather, of tobacco, of crisp laundered linen, mingled with the faint but unmistakable odor of disinfectant that always clung to John Kaye's doctor's hands.

"Johnny, are you honestly for me?"

"What do you mean, child?" "I mean are you on my side, Bertine..."

He laughed softly. "Don't be sap. Bertine's bark is worse than her bite anyway. She doesn't understand many people. Why expect her to understand anyone so complex as yourself?"

"Am I complex?"

He patted her shoulder. You are, my dear. I've known you since you were in middie blouses. A stormy little thing, worth winning. A chip on her shoulders always."

Oh, John, that sounds terrible." "I told you I didn't like milk-and-water people."

She clung to him quite unself-consciously. "Johnny I need you to be my friend. Sometimes I get so lonely. Oh, I've got to stop this. Didn't mean to make it into a sob story."

His voice heartened her. "It isn't, I'm proud to know I matter." She drew a long sigh.

"Keep thinking I'm not so bad, won't you?"

Katharine, the cool Katharine, this self-reliant, lifted her face to his. Quite simply, like a child for-given, asking reassurance. And quite as simply Dr. Kaye kissed

"Good night, Johnny, dear!" The lights of the hall brought her to herself. Somehow the little scene on the terrace had in it a note of unreality. But Katharine's heart felt lighter than it had for days.

She found her bed turned down and waiting. Ellen had laid out gown and negligee and little silver mules. The curtains were looped back against the warm summer night.

One thing was certain. She would stoop mooning about as Zoe did. She would ride again, quite simply and naturally, with Michael Heather on the morrow. Michael would take his rightful place in her life, in the scheme of things. She had simply built up a story about him in her own mind; now she had to prove to herself that he didn't really matter.

On this courageous note she fell asleep.

THE map above tells only part of the story—the little-known story of the inter-relation of the Ford V-8 car and the farm.

The figures in the map are based on what will be used this year if the Ford Motor Company reaches its intended production of 1,000,000 cars and trucks.

WOOL goes into upholstery, floor coverings, lubricants and anti-rust preparations.

LEATHER goes into upholstery—and in addition, glues are made from cow hide, and from cow's milk... Other parts of cattle, through other processes, yield stearic acid, glycerine (for shock absorbers and body enamel) and soap chips (used in washing machined parts and bodies before painting).

HOOGS furnish lard oil, oleic acid and brush bristles.

GOAT'S HAIR (Mohair) goes into upholstery.

BEEWAX goes into electrical imbedding com-

COTTON goes into tires, batting, cloth, battery box, timing gears, brake linings and, not least important, into Safety Glass. (Every Ford V-8 car built this year will have Safety Glass in every window, at no extra cost to the car buyer... Cotton, in the form of cellulose acetate, is the central part between the two sheets of glass that make up every finished sheet of Safety Glass.)

CORN yields butyl alcohol (for enamel finishes and other purposes) and starch (for stiffening cotton linings).

LINSEED OIL is the basis for paint—is used in foundry cores—and is one of the ingredients of the beautiful, synthetic baked enamel finish on a Ford V-8.

SUGAR CANE yields molasses for solvents, anti-freeze and shock absorber fluids.

CASTOR OIL goes into lacquers and artificial leather suitable for rumble seats, where real leather would be damaged by exposure to the weather.

TUNG OIL is part of the top material used in Ford cars and is also used in brake linings.

TURPENTINE is used in paints, adhesives and solvents.

SOY BEANS are used in making cores for metal castings in our foundry and are also an important part of the baked enamel finish of a Ford V-8 and of the plastic knobs and buttons in the car's interior.

LUMBER is used for packing purposes. It is not used for any structural part of the Ford car, which has a welded, all-steel body, reinforced with steel, for maximum safety.

He guaranteed every picture, and today stated that there has not been one complaint.

This month in years gone by has been the off month in the entertainment world, with theatres everywhere playing the pictures on the end of their contract with the producers, thus giving the public the lesser important product. This year R. J. O'Donnell, general manager of Texas Consolidated Theatres, had the film companies to rush release dates, in order that the new and better pictures might be shown this month.

The May Festival of Certified Entertainment is now half over and may patrons of the Arcadia and Columbia theatres have expressed their appreciation of this event, stating that this year offered the most entertaining motion pictures for the month of May of any they could remember. Mr. Garner says "you ain't seen nothing yet" for the last half of May the Arcadia Theatre has such pictures as:

"Go Into Your Dance."

BUCK JONES BATTLES IN "THE CRIMSON TRAIL"

Thousands of persons yearly travel clear across the United States for the opportunity of looking with awe at the magnificent scenery of that section of California centering around the town of Kernville. Hills and dells, rolling meadows, a majestic river breathing-taking mountain peaks—all are found in this locality.

Saturday all of this magnificent scenic beauty may be seen on the screen of the Columbia Theatre in the latest Buck Jones adventure picture, "The Crimson Trail," which is showing there. Practically all of the picture was filmed in and around the town of Kernville, and the cameraman is said to have captured all of the scenic beauty in masterly fashion.

There is one scene in particular, it is said, which sends tingles up and down the spine. It is a "shot" of a narrow ledge on the very edge of a cliff—that drops more than a thousand feet down onto a mass of jagged rocks. On that ledge Buck fights for his life twice. Once with a mad man who has thrown a rope
