Texas Utility Head Again Before Senate Probe

PEEPING THRU The KNOTHOLE

With BILL MAYES

Filton Brasher, chairman of the high school athletic committee, inquired today that the committee was beginning the preliminary work on securing a new stadium at Lillard field.

The plans, which are entirely tentative and have not yet been worked out to the point where they are being put on paper, but which are expected to reach that point very soon, are about what the average fan would want and would expect, so there can be very little, if any, suggested changes or criticisms.

Briefly they are about like this: The new stadium are to be drawn up to include moving the field to the west so that modern stands can be built. These stands will start at each 20 yard line on the west, or Ranger, side, will be 25 feet high and will have a seating capacity of 3,500. On the east, or visitors side, the stands will be between the two 20-yard lines, but will not be quite so high, and will seat 2,500 people, making a total seating capacity of 6,000.

Fred Wilson and the athletic committee are to meet early this morning to make a survey of the field to see just what can be done to work out estimates. The tentative plans, as talked over by the committee, call for concrete foundations for the stands, with steel used for structural work and wood for the walls, which will be made of the lumber now set for the stands and seats.

Plans for a WPA project have been received and will be filled in as soon as all the details have been worked out. The project will be one of the first, if not the first, in Ranger, so there is every likelihood that it will receive special attention in time and the work can be started when the Works Progress Administration begins functioning in a big way.

Along with the plans for the new stadium are included plans for a well sodded field that will be the best Ranger has ever had.

If anyone doubts that a lot can be done with very little money let them make a trip to Eastland and see the field there, as they are about as pretty a layout for a Mavericks right now as can be had in these parts, possibly the best in the Oil Belt with the exception of Abilene's field.

The drug stores of Ranger are the only business establishments that have been having improvements made recently. Killworth, Cox has just completed painting the ceiling in the hardware department and redecorating the windows with a background of Floyd Killingsworth informed that it was not yellow, but was orange. Other improvements will be given due comment when they are made or when we find them.

L. H. Fiewellen took a Times representative to task today because of the weeds on many of the sidewalks of Ranger. He said that every time he went to the post office he got a new crop of weeds, which covered him from head to foot.

NAZI DRIVE ON CATHOLICS AND JEWS CONTINUES

By United Press
BERLIN, July 25.—The Nazi drive against Jews, Catholics and war veterans went forward today with instances piling up in all sections of Germany.

Political police disbanded three steel helmet organizations in this district, confiscating their funds and forbidding them to wear uniforms. Police announced a Jewish merchant, his friends and a communist had been taken into custody.

After several windows had been smashed in Koenigsburg, the Jew was alleged to have remarked, "This is German culture."

Alameda to Have Old Time Picnic Saturday, July 27

L. B. Cozart of Alameda was in Ranger Wednesday afternoon and invited the citizens of the town to attend an old-fashioned picnic and barbecue to be held at Alameda all day Saturday, July 27.

The picnic will be held on the Lee Reed farm on the Leon river and barbecue and a basket picnic served at noon.

The picnic was described as a community get-together, with several quartets, including one colored quartet, on the program.

J. E. Meroney, president of the chamber of commerce, is planning on getting up a quartet to represent Ranger at the picnic and he is to try to get Cecil Searcy, winner in a local amateur contest, to give his imitations of barnyard sounds, which proved popular in Ranger and Abilene.

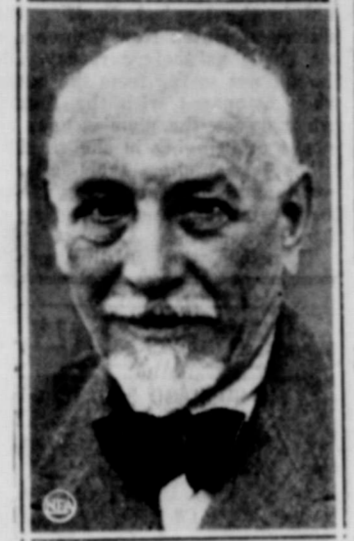

The chamber of commerce is trying to get a large delegation of Ranger people to attend the picnic lunch, leaving Ranger shortly before noon and returning early in the afternoon.

Varied Assortment of Spiders Brought To the Times Office

The Times' collection of spiders, which fluctuates like the stock market, reached a new high Thursday when B. F. Dempsey brought in quite an assortment.

In a glass fruit jar he has collected one average sized black widow spider and an assortment of what he calls cotton spiders. The black widow is the conventional type, of which approximately 100 have been brought to the Times office in the past few months, while the cotton spiders are entirely different.

Likening Italy's designs on Abyssinia to the white man's conquest of the North American Indians, Luigi Pirandello, No. 1 playwright of Italy and Nobel Prize Winner, defended his country's actions on his arrival at New York on a business and pleasure tour. His shy, aristocratic mein is reflected in this excellent shipboard portrait.

The order prevents Ickes from carrying out agreements with Decatur, Florence, Sheffield and Tusculumbia and also restrained the treasury from paying of government money.

Unusual Subject To Be Heard at Christian Revival

One of the most unusual subjects to be offered so far in the evangelistic campaign now in progress at the First Christian church, will be the sermon for tonight, when Evangelist Paul Campbell presents to the audience two questions, "What happened to the carpenters who helped Noah build the ark?" and "Can a man be saved outside of the church?"

The illustrated crayon picture will be "Life is Like a Mountain Railway."

A capacity audience that overflowed into the exits and outside grounds was present last night to hear Evangelist Campbell's reasons "Why I Am a Member of the Christian Church." True to his promise, he presented this subject in a spirit of love, respecting the views and positions of members of other denominations who were present, with the result that there was cemented a closed bond of fellowship and goodwill.

There will be special music tonight by J. F. Connell and his quartet.

Everybody invited.

Farmers Direct Bulk Of Mutual Fire Insurance

By United Press
WASHINGTON, July 25.—Mutual fire insurance associations owned and controlled by farmers protect about 55 per cent of all farm property in the United States. Victor N. Valgren, head of insurance investigations of the Cooperative Division, Farm Credit Administration, reported.

During the last 20 years, it was pointed out, business of those companies has more than doubled—from five and a quarter billion dollars in 1915 to more than $11,000,000,000 in 1935.

At present, there are about 1,900 farmer-owned mutual fire insurance companies. Dr. Valgren said half of them have operated continuously for more than 50 years.

"Considered as a group," Dr. Valgren said, "these farmers' mutual fire insurance companies hold an increasingly important place in the field of agricultural insurance in this country. They are most strongly developed in the Middle Atlantic and North Central states."

CARPENTER IS NOT SURE OF BOX CONTENTS

By United Press
WASHINGTON, July 25.—John W. Carpenter, a sun-tanned Texan power official, leaned forward in his chair at the senate lobby committee hearing today and suggested that a mysterious package, which has excited investigators, may have been only a bundle of books on livestock raising.

The package allegedly was passed to a congressman the day before the house voted on the utilities "death sentences." It was revealed as the committee continued its inquiry into lobbying.

Carpenter, who couldn't remember about it yesterday, confided today that a bundle of books was carried from his hotel one day by Rep. Patton, Dem., Texas.

They were wrapped in a newspaper, he said.

Speaking quietly and frequently consulting an assistant, Carpenter also said his son, John, Jr., gave Patton a box of cigars "two or three days" before the vote.

Committee investigators, however, said the package was not a cigar box, but a cardboard bundle.

While the senate committee pursued the package mystery the house lobby investigators went into details of the $60,000 campaign against the bill by the American Federation of Utility Investors.

Ranger Man Wants Registered Cattle Group In County

G. C. (Lum) Love of Ranger is interested in formation of a county-wide registered cattle association would be of benefit because a which is believed would be of much benefit to the owners of fine cows throughout the county.

According to Love the organization would be of benefit because a county president and secretary could be elected and registered cows or bulls that were for sale could be listed with the secretary and by this means contacts could be made with other counties having associations and sales could often be made.

The county organization could be affiliated, Love said, with state and national organizations and would, no doubt, prove of much benefit to the entire county.

If such an organization is formed and the standard of the dairy cattle of the entire county raised, it was said, it is possible that some of the large butter, cheese or milk companies might be induced to establish a milk route through the county or even establish a factory which would provide an outlet for excess milk and butterfat.

D'Hanis Clearing Away Wreckage of Damaging Flood

By United Press
D'HANIS, Texas, July 25.—Citizens were busy today clearing away the wreckage of a flood that struck here yesterday after 12 hours of rain.

No deaths were reported, but at its worst stage water reached the depth of four feet on the streets of the town.

From Tuesday night, when the rains began, until Wednesday at noon, 9.63 inches of rain fell. The sky was clear today, however, and the water had receded into the river.

And speaking of weeds reminds me of the weeds that were told Mellinger Janney in cutting the weeds from the small field and reports that the weeds underneath is looking fine. He is mowing the grass now.

Religious Riots Cloak Grave Deceptions

It is like turning the pages of history back for a quarter of a century to read of the recent anti-Jewish riots in Berlin.

To be sure, outbreaks of anti-Semitism in Germany are no new thing, these days. Perhaps we ought to be case-hardened to them by now. And yet there is something appallingly reminiscent of Czarist Russia at its worst in these accounts of uniformed bands of Nazis roaming the streets, beating men and women, spreading terror and chanting bloodthirsty slogans.

The worst thing about an outbreak of this kind is not its brutality. That is something which this imperfectly civilized human race of ours never entirely succeeds in quelling. We are born to trouble as the sparks fly upward, and getting poked on the nose now and then by our brother man is just one of those things that go with human existence.

What makes a performance of this kind especially dismaying is the fact that it represents a case of self-deception. In order to rouse yourself to the point where you want to go about the streets beating people whose religion or race is not like your own, you have to persuade yourself to believe something which obviously is not so—to wit, that the mere presence of these people in the same community with yourself is somehow a threat to your well-being.

Nor is that all. While you are giving way to this delusion, you may depend on it that off in the background, unseen, someone is getting away with something that he wouldn't get away with if you were keeping your eyes open.

The programs of the old Czarist government remain the classic example of this sort of thing.

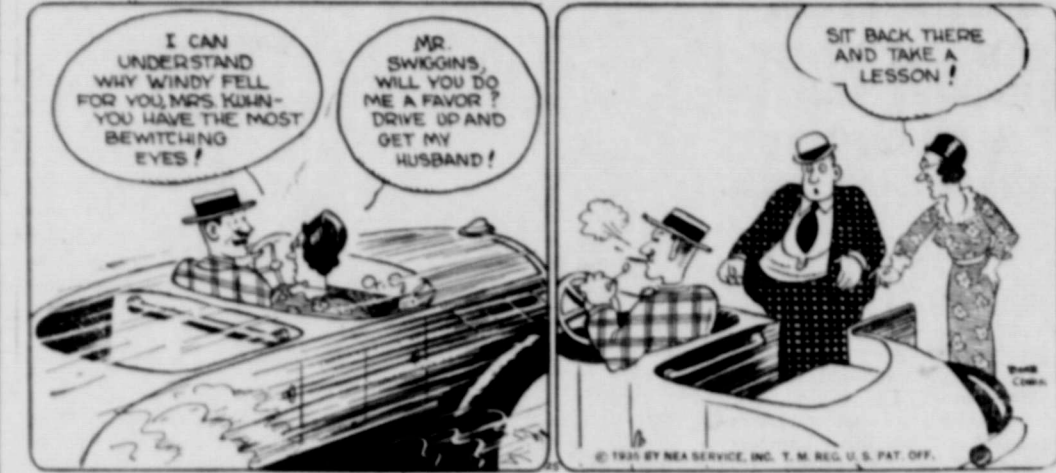

Under the Czars, the people of Russia suffered so many glaring injustices that the danger of revolution was always present. But whenever public sentiment got too dangerous, the government would trot out the old Jewish bogeyman. Riots would be fomented, horrible waves of violence would sweep through ghettos, and in the blood-lust of the pogrom the people would forget how the ruling class was victimizing the entire country.

That is the sort of thing these anti-Semitic riots in Germany call to mind. By giving way to them, the people of Germany are blinding their eyes to more important issues. They are enabling their government to flim-flam them on matters of vital concern.

There is one more point. In the long course of human history one rule seems to hold good; a government which rules by terror perishes, sooner or later, in the same way. A government which foments pogroms and mass brutality is running up a deadfall bill which someone, some day, will have to pay.

velopment. "It is a formalized and polio vaccine," Dr. Brodie said, explaining its difference from other attempts to immunize against the dreaded infantile paralysis. The organisms—polio virus—are "killed" and preserved in formalin, making the vaccine.

Scientists have tried for 25 years to find some way to fight the disease. They have attempted to use active virus in a serum instead of "killing" them.

Several Pioneers in Field Dr. Sam Flexner, director of Rockefeller Institute, was one of the pioneers. Others were the late Dr. H. L. Abramson, Dr. H. Gerber and Dr. Sidney Kramer, all of New York City, and Dr. John Albert Kolmer of Philadelphia.

When Dr. Brodie's new method became known he was brought here to develop it. He and Dr. Park worked day and night to perfect the vaccine. With the call for help from North Carolina production was speeded. The normal demand of 25 or 30 of the Rhesus monkeys a week was advanced to 100 and 150. They are inoculated with the disease germs, and as they go into the last stages they are chloroformed and killed. Their spinal cords are ground up in the formalin for vaccine.

Monkeys Become Paralyzed

There is no scampering and playful gibbering in the cages of the tiny monkey house. Occasionally there is a whimpering and excited scolding as a monkey discovers his legs have become useless. Keepers know then that the injection has taken effect—generally five to seven days. After that it is any day until the monkey becomes completely paralyzed.

The monkey drags around with his arms until they too become afflicted. He writhes and whimpers piteously until he is able only to move his eyelids. Attendants then take the animal, pile it with similarly paralyzed brothers and rush them to the operating room. Chloroform, a merciful knife into the heart and the monkey is dead. Quick hands of surgeons cut through the body and if the monkey had no contributory disease the spinal cord is removed.

Pigmies Put End To Inflation By Destroying Money

WASHINGTON.—It doesn't make much difference what you use for money if there isn't very much of it, Matthew Stirling, Smithsonian Institution anthropologist, found on a trip to Dutch New Guinea.

He told of taking a supply of little marine shells into the interior of that isolated island which he invaded to study the primitive pigmies so he could use the shells for money—and then having to prevent inflation.

Because of their almost isolated location in the interior of the island in the tropical Pacific, the natives of Dutch New Guinea use sea shells as their currency. Although not so far from the ocean when compared with the American midwest, the pigmies have no means of bringing in shells. The tribes surrounding them all are hostile and also are away from the coastal region so no shells get there by accident.

Therefore when Stirling, previously informed on the desirability of shells to use in exchanges, arrived from the coast with a supply of shells, he was a capitalist of importance. At first the natives were puzzled. When they learned he was leaving shortly, they solved the problem of potential inflation by asking him to take his shells along when he left. He did and the threat of inflation was dumped in a river bottom some miles away.

Stirling said that these primitive peoples were prohibitionists, drinking only water. That is an interesting sidelight to throw into the arguments on how dry (or wet) we should be.

Among these Negroid pigmies, who the anthropologist said ranked first among the peoples in the world "uncontaminated" by contact with other civilizations and therefore are really in a "sterile culture" stage, Stirling found less individualism than among more civilized folk.

For example, he found that a murderer was no more responsible for his crime than the other members of his family. The responsibility rests with the group and they may suffer unless some acceptable compensation is made, the groups engaging in a fight which resembles the old time Kentucky feuds.

In an exceptional case, Stirling reported the repeatedly offending native might be killed by his relatives in an attempt to promote the general peace. This, of course, was rare and was done only as the last resort after repeated crimes.

An unusual custom among the pigmies was to cut off one of another finger. And so on until a five-husband wife didn't have anything but a stump on her hand. Naturally remarriage seldom went that far.

Vaccine To Conquer Infantile Paralysis Faces Final Proof

NEW YORK.—The scourge of infantile paralysis at last may be under control of science. In the New York City laboratories Rhesus monkeys are being killed at the rate of 500 a month in the manufacture of a vaccine which was tested in the Los Angeles epidemic of last summer and is being used in the current North Carolina epidemic. If the North Carolina tests are extensive enough it may be conclusive proof for the vaccine.

None of the 2,000 children vaccinated in California contracted the disease, nor have any of the 500 similarly treated in New York and New Jersey. More than 500 doses were sent to North Carolina within 10 days after the outbreak there.

It requires thousands of tests in infected areas to be certain the vaccine immunizes, Dr. Maurice Brodie, discoverer of the new preventive, explained. He has been working with Dr. William H. Park in the laboratories here for two years developing the discovery he made while a professor at McGill University in Montreal, Canada.

R.F.C. Approves Irrigation Loans

By United Press MISSION, Tex.—Loans and grants totaling $1,346,000, were approved recently for Hidalgo County Water Control and Improvement District No. 7, the Alton district north of Mission, by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Federal Public Works Administration. A check for $790,000 was received by a local bank, district depository, climaxing two years of negotiations with a view to improving the district's financial status. The money will be used to refinance outstanding bonded indebtedness of $1,350,000. A loan of $560,000 has been approved by the PWA for the construction of concrete lined canals in the district and other improvements to properties. Thirty percent of the loan is to be a direct grant, 70 per cent with interest to be repaid. The Mission district is the third in the Lower Rio Grande Valley to receive financial assistance from the two chief governmental financing agencies. Actual construction of concrete lined canals will start within the next few days for the Donna district, while the Engleman Gardens district has received approval of funds for extension of its canals to serve an additional 1,600 acres.

Sue Coogan for Brother's Death

Seeking damages for the death of her brother, Junior, in the auto crash that cost three other lives, Grace Durkin, left, is fighting to collect bail in one of the three suits asking a total of $600,000 of Jackie Coogan, once child screen star, whose father, also a victim, was driving the death car. With Grace is shown her sister, Gertrude. Both are in the films. Jackie evaded process servers as he boarded a New York-bound ship. He is charged with "negligence and willful misconduct."

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO MARSH, teaching her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo hunts a job in nearby wealth. Her work is a marine supply store. There she meets wealthy, handsome DOUGLAS MARSH, who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Great Lake. Jo accepts. This causes a quarrel with BETT FRAGONET, whom she is engaged and Jo breaks the engagement.
She goes to Great Lake. Her duties are pleasant but Marsh's eccentric mother takes a dislike to the girl. BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance who comes to the inn. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, and his wife are also guests.
Fragonet sees Jo on the swimmer's boat and calls her a "goldfish in a sun-bath." He tells her he is in love with her. Jo avoids him for several days. Then he asks her to go sailing. Babs Montgomery, plotting a speck-hunt, crashes into the motorboat and Jo is hurled into the water.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI

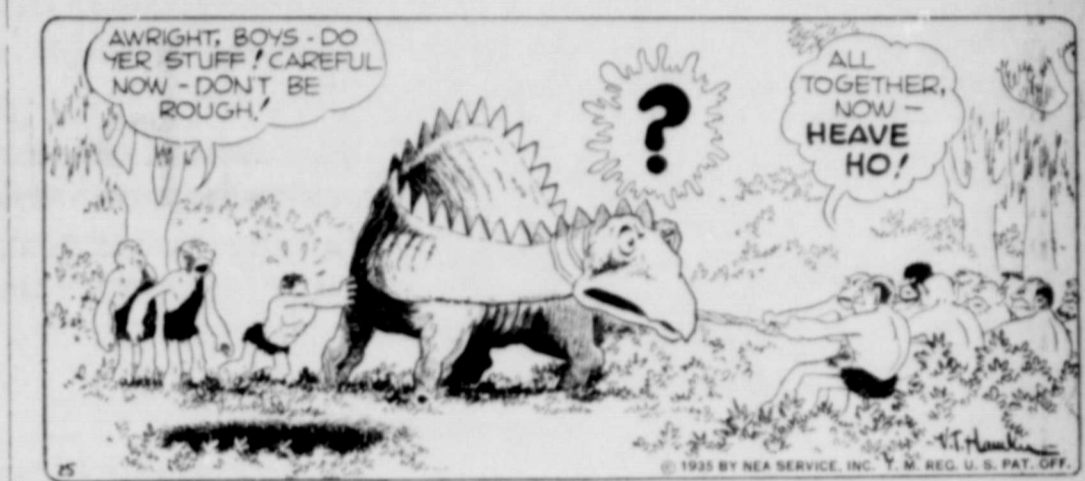

WHEN Jo opened her eyes she was gazing at the ceiling of her bedroom at the inn. For a moment she believed that the accident on the lake must have been only a tremendously realistic dream, but when she raised her head from the pillow a streak of pain shot quickly through her neck and shoulders.
She was conscious then of a figure in white moving about in the other room, and at Jo's faint gasp Miss Conley, the nurse, burst in. "You mustn't try to move yet awhile," she said, smiling down at Jo. "You had quite a jar. It was fortunate you weren't drowned after that blow on the head."

"Was anyone else hurt?" Jo asked. "Did Babs, or Mr. Fragonet?"
Nurse Conley nodded reassuringly. "Miss Montgomery was a bit frightened from the shock, but she's all right this morning."
"Then it—I've been unconscious all this time?"
"Since it happened yesterday afternoon," explained the nurse. Jo brushed a hand across her forehead vaguely. She was still bewildered, and the pain in her neck and shoulders persisted. "And Mr. Fragonet—did you say—?"
"His nose the worse for a thorough ducking in the lake. You were the only one of the three who came off badly—and you're a lucky girl to have had someone there who could bring you ashore."

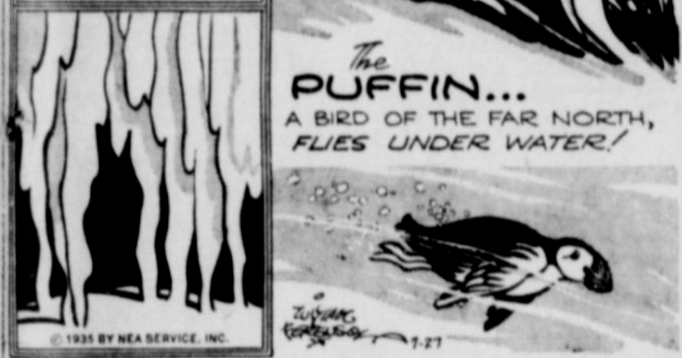

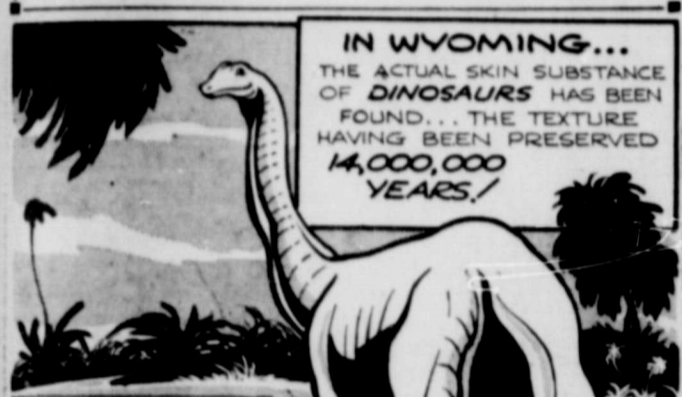

Jo closed her eyes, trying to think, to piece things together. She must think Fragonet. She must...
The nurse put a finger on Jo's slowly moving lips. "I want you to sleep now, Miss Darien. If you rest today you'll be much improved tomorrow and I'll let you have visitors." She smiled. "I've been turning them away all yesterday afternoon and already this morning. Mr. Marsh, and Mr. Fragonet, and Mr. Barston, and—" She stopped. "I mustn't weary you. Please go to sleep now, won't you?"
Jo nodded, her eyes closed. She was indeed very sleepy, very tired, and she thought that if she could only sleep a little while perhaps the dull pain would leave.

TRUE to Miss Conley's promise, Jo awakened next day feeling as fit as always—but the nurse warned her not to be deceived. "I think you'll have to be in bed a few days longer," she said. "But Doctor Seavers will be in to see you this morning again."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

IN Wyoming there are great dinosaur cemeteries, where bones of these ancient reptiles are found by the hundreds. Most of the dinosaurs were swamp-loving creatures. Therefore, when the land began to dry up, they gathered at the last waterholes, and died together.

By HARRY GRAYSON

RIDING high on a wave of popularity it has not enjoyed in a score of years, Cleveland's North Randall race track, home of the Grand Circuit, introduced a startling innovation in equine entertainment in the meeting which just closed there.
Going back to the gay days of the turn of the century, when circus acts kept the customers from being bored between races, officials of the North Randall Trotting Club hit upon a happy motto of "all for the horse." They decided to conduct a horse show in connection with the trotting and pacing program.
The horse show idea was, of course, a gamble, but the officials had before them the record of the Olympic Army horse show trials which played to a capacity crowd in Cleveland in April. They also took into consideration the fact that Cleveland rapidly is becoming a center for polo, indoor and outdoor. The layman gets the idea nowadays that horse racing exists strictly for the betting public, and it does 90 per cent of the time at a majority of the tracks. But even when the Grand Circuit was organized in Cleveland 62 years ago, the city on Lake Erie enjoyed a solid week of racing which was the envy of America and even Europe.

show. And died-in-the-wool racegoers, who had no idea of what a horse show was like, and no more expectation of attending one than of dressing for a ritzy banquet, simply gobbled it up.
Farmers, many of them as young as 70, dug the sock out of the bottom of the oat barrel, as they have been doing for years, and came to see the Roarin' Grand. And when they saw the saddlers prancing about like almost got the best of them. Teetotalers for 40 years got a bottle of beer and prepared to relive their youth.
I spent an afternoon with a former driver. He was 82 years old and had driven, and captured, his last race at North Randall 20 years ago. This fine old gentleman became so excited over the saddle classes that he forgot to watch the races. He was wild to wager anybody interested that he could pick the winner in each class, and admitted that he hadn't seen a five-gaited saddle horse in 40 years.

Bringing Back the Trotters
MOST of the oldsters and the youngsters, too, got an odd thrill out of seeing beautiful harness horses in trim gigs, decorated with ribbons. For everybody it was like a sweet-scented breath of a past almost forgotten.
It would be wise for the remaining Grand Circuit meetings—at Toronto, Rockingham Park, Goshen, Springfield, Ill., Syracuse, Indianapolis, and Lexington, Ky.—to adopt the Cleveland horse show plan.
It's not only a fine thing for the show horse world, but is one of the surest ways to bring back the wholesome sport of sulky racing, which unquestionably is enjoying a pronounced comeback.

Michigan Law Accords Skunk Dignified Role

By United Press
LANSING, Mich.—The skunk no longer is a public enemy in Michigan, legally. Furthermore, he enjoys a respectable social rating—one of the "400" in the animal kingdom, so to speak.
At 11th came to pass when Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald signed the general game bill, which takes the mephitic mephitic (skunk) out of the "vermin" class and treats it as any other species of fur-bearing animal. Skunk now may be taken by sportsmen only from Nov. 1 to Jan. 31, whereas in former years there was an open season all year.
To further vindicate the much-maligned mephitic studies by University of Michigan professors indicate the skunk is not dominantly predacious; that it does not kill chickens and pheasants, and that it does more good than harm.

Girl Will Go To Fijis Unarmed To Study For A Year

By United Press
PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Miss Dorothy Spencer, girl anthropologist, will explore the Fiji Islands, alone and without weapons, in the interests of science, next year.
For this feat, which few white men have accomplished, the Philadelphia girl will wear no bizarre costume and will carry not even a pistol to protect her from the tropical hazards and cannibals with which romancers have populated the islands.
It will be just another trip in the interests of anthropology, a subject which she has been studying at the Universities of Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. Last summer, she lived among the Indians of East Manitoba, Canada. She was accompanied on this research of a somewhat combative one, I trip by Dr. A. Irving Hallowell, think there would be very little trouble.
"We cannot expect any people to change their traditions, and general way of living at our suggestion without a little friction."

Hotels May Get Centennial Literature

By United Press
DALLAS, — Texas Centennial literature of letter mailing size will be furnished hotels, Post Offices, and to any person wishing to send it to friends, the promotion department announced today.
The exposition also has ordered several hundred thousand automobile stickers for letters, which will be given to firms and individuals on request.
"We want Texans to send Centennial to their friends all over the country and want firms to use the Centennial emblem on letterheads and envelopes," Frank Watson, promotion director said.
Cuts of the Centennial design will be furnished printers, so it will be easy for firms to have it placed on letter heads.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—Along with the big increase in number of federal employees, official spy services have grown in number and personnel.
It would be easy to overdraw the picture and point to Washington as a city of ogres and cheques. But there are various spots where official, speaking confidentially, do so only in low voices and never over the telephone.
Nearly all the old line departments and most of the new agencies have their own investigative or intelligence staffs, with gumshoe men working more or less under cover. There's informal co-ordination among them.
Many in the heterogeneous New Deal army have found it's better to speak with care, even when away from the office. Higher-ups like to be kept advised of the gossip of the town—especially if it concerns themselves.
OFFICIALS sometimes find themselves followed or their files searched. If they're honest, they're likely to be philosophical about it. Net results of the spy work are a diminished number of leaks, which New Dealers are usually jittery about, considerable resentment, and revelation of occasional cases of dishonesty.
At one time or another, whole agencies have developed phobias as to wire tapping. Individual telephone extensions have been tapped at AAA and PWA, for instance, at times when subordinates were suspected of disagreeing with the administration or worse.
HYSTERIA over the practice usually exceeds the extent to which it is used. Frequently one

Rangerites Can Do Well To Beware Of Centennial Grafters, Many Of Whom Are Looking For Sucker Lists

Texas is in the midst of plans for one of the most extensive celebrations ever attempted by any state in the Union, an exposition that will be not only national but international in character, scope and magnitude—the Texas Centennial, which will bring Texas, as a whole, net results that will make the future profit sheet, from a standpoint of progressiveness, look like a World War profiteering sheet.

But thousands of Texans are going to have the experience of parting with their dollars to wise and cunning policies of all kinds of flim-flam ideas, promoted by those who care nothing for the Centennial nor Texas, but who are out to prey on the gullible. They will come into town and have neat brief cases filled with big ideas that will "put your town on the map." It may be a booklet, an advertising idea or some idea which they say will make all the people in the United States talk about the town and will make the 20,000,000 people who are going to the Centennial stop over and buy nearly everything the town has to offer. All the townsfolk will have to do is pay so much money to help defray the expenses of getting the thing out. That's number one.

Number two is that all kinds of schemes are going to be put in motion by crooks to go about raising funds for this and that to have a representation at the Centennial City. We don't know what it will be, but look out, its going to be something. When a thing is hot, that's the time to strike—the crooks know that and they get in their work early. Every town and hamlet is going to be visited by schemers with some kind of frills to it using the background of the Centennial as sales argument.

Here's what we are trying to put over. No matter who, what and when—don't pay a bit of attention to outsiders or to anything that will cost money regarding the coming Centennial unless it has the credentials directly from the Centennial committee. The minute one is first approached the thing to do is to wire the centennial headquarters at once to let them know what is going on. The only way to safeguard against outside influences is to have a representative at the Centennial City. We don't know what it will be, but look out, its going to be something. When a thing is hot, that's the time to strike—the crooks know that and they get in their work early. Every town and hamlet is going to be visited by schemers with some kind of frills to it using the background of the Centennial as sales argument.

Word has been received from Mrs. J. C. Smith, who left Ranger Sunday morning accompanied by Mrs. F. E. Jacobs and children, of Strawn, that the trip was proving one of delight. At the time of the writing their destination, Los Angeles, had not been reached. The post card report to her family carried the postmark of Denning, N. M., and another from Phoenix, Ariz. Mrs. Smith plans on visiting in California a month during which time fall merchandise will be purchased from various markets.

Frank Russell of Abilene visited with Ranger friends last night before continuing his journey homeward after several weeks in East Texas cities.

Jack Urban spent today in Breckenridge transacting business.

The Weaver brothers, employees of Ranger Dry Cleaning Plant, are in receipt of a letter from Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Boon, who are in Panhandle at the bedside of Mrs. Carroll, mother of Mrs. Boon, who is slightly improved from a stroke of paralysis suffered last Saturday morning. Mr. Boon plans on returning to Ranger this week, while Mrs. Boon and sons are to remain there until Mrs. Carroll's condition proves more satisfactory.

Cards were received today from Dr. and Mrs. Harry A. Logsdon, who are in Ruisoda, N. M., on a vacation, stating that he is having the most comfortable vacation in years.

Word comes to Ranger that the mother of Miss Mary Dalmont, who is ill at her home at Plainview, is improving. Miss Dalmont, with her two sisters, both of Fort Worth, is at her bedside.

Mrs. Ola Parks returned to her home at Breckenridge this afternoon after a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jim Ingram, and family, First street.

side invasion where money will be thrown away for each community to get together with their chamber of commerce if they have one, and their local newspaper and do their own propagating and work out their own publicity stunts. The Centennial committee will be glad to advise any community as to the proper procedure to capitalize the community by virtue of the millions who will visit Texas in 1936.

Every community should get in to the thing now with the spirit of the occasion and see that they are not overlooked in the scramble to see Texas' first statewide effort to bring before the world its resources and the historical rehabilitation of its pioneer days and founding.

Ranger, which is on a direct line of the Broadway of America going East and West from coast to coast, has much to bring before chambers of commerce of nation. Some kind of publicity calling attention to facts worth while should be placed in the chambers of commerce of all key cities in the United States. It is a well known fact that whenever folks start out on a traveling tour they go to the chamber of commerce and ask for some kind of literature about the particular places they intend to visit, and the best route. From every direction on the highways Ranger is on a direct line of national highways to Dallas the Centennial City. The fact that we are so close to Dallas makes it more worthy of consideration.

Cisco has already started their campaign for well constructed publicity along this line. A special edition in tabloid form will be issued from the press in the near future. The front page has a map of the United States bringing Texas as out in relief with Cisco dominating the cities of the state as shown. The Broadway of America shows clearly. The new highway 283 from the Canadian border North and South into Mexico is prominent. The map shows the three railroads serving the city. Above the map surrounded by a border and with an arrow pointing directly into Cisco are shown the resources of Cisco, its agricultural, industrial and recreational features. Cisco has the largest artificial swimming pool in the world. It has the largest hollow type dam in the southwest. All this is shown on the front page of the edition. It is the greatest and most concrete piece of publicity for a community that has ever been devised as indicated from comments of those who have seen the engraving. The front page tells the story in pictures. Cisco is to be congratulated on its foresight and they no doubt will cash in during Centennial year as a result. This thought was all devised by the local Cisco interest and no outsider will get to pocket a big commission out of the pro-

Big Navy Program Emulated By Youth

NEW YORK—The administration's big navy program apparently has been taken seriously by the nation's youths. While the U. S. fleet has been showing its strength in the Pacific, bathtub navies have been mushrooming throughout the country. Lilliputian fleets have been best sellers, stores report. Every type of craft is taking the water in vacation ponds, backyard wading pools and bathtub regattas. Children seemingly take pride in learning the correct "salty" phraseology to describe their craft.

Jobs More Scarce For Indian Graduates

SALEM, Ore.—Finding jobs for thousands of Americans is hard enough, but placing graduates of the Chemawa Indian school is even more difficult, said Supd. James R. Ryan.

"Public attitude toward Indians has changed little with the years," said Ryan. The present policy of the Indian Service is to fill vacancies with youthful tribesmen.

Clean Out Kidney Poisons
Wash Out Your 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
If kidneys don't pass 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters may become clogged with poisonous waste and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased. Bladder passages are difficult, which often smart and burn like scalding water and cause discomfort. This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of aching backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness. Most people weigh their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestine but neglect the kidneys which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make sure your kidneys empty 2 pints a day. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.
