Passing of Worthy Citizen and Another Landmark

V. O. Weed has gone to his reward. He was 85 and he had led a very eventful and interesting life. He was a native of Tennessee. He came to Austin in the '70's—in the days of reconstruction, carpetbagging, military rule and all the vicissitudes of like known to those who had lost in the great conflict of the sword and which led to the emancipation of the negro slave.

This Tennessee-born adopted son of Texas was on Capitol Hill when the last of the governors furnished by military rule disappeared from the picture and Richard Coke inaugurated governor by those who insisted that it was "the dawn of the return of a white man's government." He was in business for many years. He was identified with the growth of the capital city. He was identified with the growth of Texas and he knew many of those who assisted in the making of the venerable constitution of 1876 which was passed on to the people now on earth when Texas has a population of more than 6,000,000 and is a modern commonwealth all intents and purposes.

He played his part in the building of the new Texas and the new Austin.

He was widely known and knew all the men of affairs who walked the stage of action, including Coke and all down the line to the present hour. He retired from business a few years ago. He should have written a book "On Presidents and Senators and Governors I Have Known." He was a well informed man. He was a very companionable man. He was a lover of books, a great reader of newspapers and his recollections and reminiscences were of intense value to the newspaper reporters and correspondents whom he had known throughout the years.

He was progressive, he was charitable, he was a human being at all times and ever interested in the forward march of his adopted state. He was a famous hunter and fisherman, and many of the men who have passed out of the picture who were prominent in the affairs of the day were his pals and his companions on his fishing trips or hunting adventures when wild game was plentiful in Texas, and the wild horse and buffalo and an antelope and deer covered the plains of what is known as the western frontier—now dotted with cities and hamlets of wealth makers and developers and builders of a section that was a vast wilderness in the early '70's and Fort Worth was the outstanding frontier post of this empire commonwealth of today.

He was a pal of the Great Commoner. He was the chum and friend of the many notable and distinguished men who have passed out of the picture and now he has gone to join them in the shade of the tree in that "invisible paradise beyond the river."

Social Security the Law of the Republic

President Roosevelt signed the social security bill. It imposes taxes of $2,713,000 annually by 1950 upon employers and workers "to pension the aged and aid the sick, the crippled, the idle and the blind." There was no record vote. Three broad classifications of the nation's social problems are embraced by the measure. First, old age security; second, unemployment insurance; third, financial aid to dependent children the blind, the crippled and to public health agencies.

Revolutions never turn backward. A social security measure signed by the President will place him in the list of immortals among the humane and the wise presidents of the republic. He has not overlooked the forgotten man. He has not overlooked the broken and the aged. He is for the blind and the crippled children of this republic and for a liberal support of all the public health agencies supported by the American people out of their own pockets. Regardless of what may come in 1936 or 1940, Franklin D. Roosevelt has won a name for himself among the outstanding humanitarians of world history.

The $500,000 Muse

A poet's life, like that of W. S. Gilbert's policeman, "is not a happy one."

Too often, an unappreciative world wants no part of his poems. But that, of course, is the world's fault.

Now comes Earl Cuvus, of Washington, otherwise known as the Poet Laureate, Inc., with a plan for a $500,000 project to aid unemployed poets. Part of the plan is first to make America poetry-conscious, and then to hunt up unemployed poets and hire them.

There was a certain suspicion down in Washington that Mr. Cuvus was kidding. On the other hand, there are a lot of funny plans in the air these days, which their authors insist deserve serious attention.

Let us add an amendment to Mr. Cuvus' plan. It is this: that the government pay the rest of us to read the poetry!

In the "Old Times" column of the Buenos Aires, Argentina, Daily Standard, it is stated that 70 years ago in the month of May a vessel from Trieste had arrived without calling at any port after a voyage of 220 days. Some long voyage!

If the observance of the constitution were the first duty of all lawmakers, we would have less mistakes in law-making and a more satisfied people.

D. JOSEPH ENLARGING AND IMPROVING HIS STORE SAYS HE SEES BRIGHT FUTURE HERE

There are many in Ranger who see possibilities and a bright future for the town, but few, if any, have demonstrated this fact quite as forcibly, nor have they backed their faith in the town with real and constructive improvements as have D. Joseph, owner and manager of "Ranger's Foremost Department Store."

Not only is D. Joseph owner of the foremost, locally owned department store, but he is one of the oldest business men in Ranger, or at least the one who has been in business in the same location for the longest time.

He came to Ranger on Jan. 19, 1919, and established a dry goods store on Rusk street, behind the Killingworth, Cox store. This store was known as the Winner Store.

On Dec. 11, 1926, he moved to the present location on Main street, which he had occupied for the past 15 years and which he has now purchased. Purchase of the beautiful, brick Hodges-Neal building was completed some time ago, which was one indication of the faith Joseph had in the future of Ranger.

Not being content with owning one of the best department stores between Fort Worth and Abilene, and possibly the equal of any in the latter town, and not content with purchasing and occupying the best building in the town, he has now gone in for far more extensive expansion by enlarging and improving the already large and extensive store.

The exterior of the building has been improved with all the window frames, door frames and other portions of the building painted to give it a newer, more modern appearance. Just recently he has started removing the partition between his store and the former location of the Zuella Shop, adding that much more space to his building. The new addition to the store gives it a 65 foot front by 135 foot depth, with a balcony 65 feet by 50 feet in the rear. The improvements add 20 feet to the front elevation of the store, with 20 feet being added to the balcony.

"I had out the plans in my mind," Joseph said, "but decided that some architect might have better ideas about arranging the building than I would have. I hired a good architect, and though it cost money it has already proved to be the wise thing to do, as he has made plans for a much better arrangement of the store and has utilized space that would have gone to waste the way I had it planned."

Although the work is not completed, it is anticipated that the improvements will be finished in time for a formal opening by Sept. 1, or Sept. 10.

All the merchandise for the ladies will be on one side of the store, with that for men on the other, so that there will be no overlapping of the departments. At the rear and to the left as one enters the building will be the shoe department, extending across a large part of the rear of the store.

The office is to be moved from the right side of the store where it is located at present, to the rear center, where it will be much more accessible to all departments.

The improvements, including rearrangements of departments, the addition of the 20 by 135 foot floor space and 20 by 50 foot balcony and other improvements will make it easily the largest store in Ranger with one of the complete stocks to be found within a radius of 100 miles.

The entire interior of the store is to be improved and its shopping facilities—the customers and the quantity of merchandise in stock and on display will be greatly increased by this move on the part of one of Ranger's most progressive, up-to-date and forward-looking merchants, who visions a future for the city surpassed by none and equalled by few.

A straw vote in Virginia gave President Roosevelt a large majority for re-election in 1936. Very likely, Senators Glass and Byrd failed to be included in the poll.

Driver's Licenses Urged As An End To Drunk Driving

AUSTIN, Aug. 13.—Gov. James V. Alfred will be asked to submit a drivers licensing law as emergency legislation to the special session anticipated in September. Rep. Fred Harris, of Dallas, author of the licensing bill which failed by only two votes at the regular session, said he would ask the governor this week to include the subject in his call for the extraordinary session. Harris is now lining up support for his measure and tightening its provisions. Asked what effect repeal would have on the measure, Harris said: "I believe my bill will pass regardless of whether repeal passes or not, but a national survey I have made with Rep. Jim Young, chairman of the house liquor traffic committee, convinces me that a drivers licensing law has greatly decreased drunken driving in states both wet and legally dry. Harris said replies had been received from officials of 47 of the 48 states in answer to an inquiry about drunken driving statistics after repeal and under drivers license laws. "There was no increase in any state and a decrease in many," Harris said. Among other support lined up, Harris lists Representative Young whose committee will have much to say regarding liquor traffic regulation should repeal pass. In Austin, the Cuero representative strongly favored both repeal and the license law. "We have no effective curb against drunkenness and drunken driving now," he said. Under repeal and under strict regulations which the legislature will pass, we can get rid of many of the evils of prohibition and the reign of the bootlegger. It will be easier to keep liquor out of the hands of the young people when the traffic is put the hands of law-abiding dealers who are paying a fair tax to the state." Harris said under the terms of his bill, the drunken driver would forfeit his license and be subject to fine, imprisonment and suspension of driving privilege in degrees commensurate with his offense. He said that such bills passed in 27 states had never been repealed and were reported working successfully at the present time. He said the governor favored his bill at the past session.

School Meetings Called Success By Superintendent

LUBBOCK, Tex.— Department of education officials have termed the statewide series of school officials conferences being held under the direction of State Superintendent L. A. Woods, as highly successful. The conferences are an experiment in efficiency in acquainting Texas' 35,000 school officers and 60,000 school and academy instructors with new laws, proposed changes in administrative detail, and new regulations. Utilities executives deplore this idea of sending fake telegrams of protest to Congress—if Congress can prove the telegrams are fakes. Anyway, the question isn't who burned up those utilities telegrams, as it is who would be burned up by them.

Prison Manager Favors Probation For Adult Prisoners

HOUSTON, Aug. 16.—Lee Simmons, manager of the Texas prison system, favors passage of the amendment providing for adult probation, as a great aid in handling crime problems, he informed Judge Langston B. King in a recent letter. "My experience, both as an officer and as general manager of the prison system," Simmons said, "convinces me that there are many men who should be placed on probation by the district judge who tries the case, as the judge can learn practically all the facts from the various officials, the family and acquaintances of the man being tried. "In my judgment," he said, "it would be better to parole certain prisoners, keeping them under the supervision of the court, the judge having authority to send them to the penitentiary when they fail to comply with the conditions set out by the district judge, keeping in mind, of course, always the interest of the citizenship." The proposed amendment has been endorsed by the Texas Bar association and of the judicial section of the organization, which is composed of district judges.

JUNIOR COLLEGE OFFERS A COMPLETE COURSE OF STUDY TO STUDENTS OF THIS AREA

Business Administration
This department is offering work for two types of students, those who wish a thorough secretarial training or a well-rounded terminal business training course and those who want the regular course leading toward the B. B. A. and M. B. A. degrees. A "Certificate of Proficiency" is issued to those who complete the secretarial work dictation, letter writing, and commercial courses satisfactorily and show real efficiency in their particular fields of training.

110—Elementary Typewriting—A beginners' course in typewriting with special stress on accuracy, proper development of wrist and finger movement, and mastery of touch typewriting. It covers a general knowledge of the care and operation of a typewriter, copy work dictation, letter writing, and forms.

113—Stenography, Theory and Dictation—Mastery of the principles and practice in shorthand and introduction of dictation. Elementary phrase and sentence writing with simple transcription and writing of business letters. Must be taken in conjunction with Typewriting unless student has attained efficiency in the use of the typewriter.

113—Advanced Typewriting—Advanced copy work and dictation, mimeographing, business forms, and secretarial science. Prerequisite: Typewriting 110 or its equivalent.

113—English Composition—Continuation of 113 with the same objectives. Diction, vocabulary improvement, description, narration, exposition, argumentation, and letter-writing are to be taught and practiced. Eight hundred pages of outside reading. Prescribed for freshmen.

123—Trigonometry—A treatment of the functions of acute angles, derivations of formulas, solution of the right triangle, the oblique triangle, and other trigonometric equations and functions, with special emphasis on application to practical engineering problems.

123—Composition and Grammar—A continuation of French 113. More emphasis on grammar, composition, reading, and conversation. Original compositions. Prerequisite: French A13 and A23 or equivalent.

213—Accounting, Principles—Recitation, lecture and laboratory, 6 hours per week. A thorough study of the principles of accounting; a study of the basic relationships, philosophy of debit and credit, periodic work of the ledger, adjustments and summarization, and classification of accounts are made.

213—Business Law—Fundamentals of law and equity, contracts, sales, and agency, and principles of law involved in partnership, contracts, corporate contracts, negotiable instruments, bailments, common carriers, insurance, property, and bankruptcy. The principles involved are illustrated by case problems taken from court records of Texas and other states.

223—Office practice and Management—Study and practice with

Education and Psychology
The courses in education are designed to give the future citizen a better understanding of present-day problems and practices of our public schools, and to meet the needs of prospective teachers and parents in teaching and training children. These courses meet the specifications set forth by the State Department of Education for state elementary and high school certificates of the first class. The course in psychology meets the degree requirements of three semester hours in psychology by most senior colleges, but may not be counted as education credit.

113—Principles and Psychology of Education—A brief consideration of the province, aims, and needs of education and a study of the psychology of learning. A discussion of facts, principles, and theories underlying learning and teaching. Special stress on practical application of educational psychology.

123—Methods and Management—A study of classroom organization and control and of methods and management in teaching. Special emphasis on problems of the beginning teacher. Some observation work in actual classroom situations with reports and criticisms as to methods of study, teaching, and class management.

213—Curriculum, Principles and Development—A study of basic principles underlying the organization of the curriculum. Consideration of the social aspects of the school and of the aims and scope of the curriculum in elementary and secondary education. Study of different plans of organization.

223—Curriculum, Content and Method—Selection of subject matter, grade placement and time allotments, and teaching procedure as well as evaluating the outcomes of instruction. Project work, observation lessons, and practice teaching for the practical application of principles and procedures studied, with special reference to elementary and junior high school grades.

213S—School Management and Supervision—Administration of the smaller units of elementary and secondary education. Special emphasis on teaching, management, and supervision of work in the rural and small city schools.

223H—High School Teaching—An intensive study of modern methods of teaching in high school. Special stress on needs of adolescents and content and method in practice teaching.

223P—Introductory Psychology—A survey course in the field of general psychology. Among the topics considered are: biological foundations of behavior, native equipment, sensation, perception, emotions, urges, thinking, intelligence, personality, and individuality. Experimental data will be presented, and simple experiments will be conducted to demonstrate aspects of psychology.

113—English Composition—The essentials of composition with four major objectives in teaching: the ability to speak and write the English language with a reasonable degree of correctness, clearness, and effectiveness and with some regard for beauty and dignity of expression; the ability to criticize one's own speech, oral and written; the ability to judge and criticize good and bad writing of others; and the ability to read English with understanding and appreciation. Eight hundred pages of outside reading including the novel, short story, essay, drama, and poetry. Prescribed for freshmen.

123—English Literature—A survey of English literature from the beginning of the "New Romanticism," the age of Burns. Direct study of masterpieces in prose and poetry. Nine hundred pages of parallel reading. Term theme requiring research. Prerequisite: English 113 and 123. Prescribed.

123A—American Literature—A study of the chief American poets and prose writers, with special study of masterpieces of the leading authors. An elective course open only to students who made a grade of at least B on literature courses in high school and of at least C on their first half of first-year college English. Elective.

113—Public Speaking—Planned to meet the needs of students in presenting their own thoughts or those of an author before an audience. Practical reading in all the speech arts: platform speaking, platform reading, story-telling, conversation, dramatics, debating and open forum discussion. Elective.

123—Public Speaking—Study of play production including make-up, costume designing, stage lighting, planning and choosing the play, casting, conducting rehearsals, and the technique of acting. Laboratory work will consist of pantomimes, character interpretations, and one-act plays. Prerequisite: Public Speaking 113, or its equivalent. Elective.

Department of Mathematics
113—College Algebra—A brief review of elementary topics; quadratics, functions and their graphs, theory of equations, binomial theorem, permutations, combinations, logarithms, series, partial fractions.

213—Introduction to analytical Geometry—A course for beginners, covering the properties of the graph, the straight line and the circle.

223—Analytical Geometry—A more intricate study treating of coordinate systems, circles, parabolas, hyperbolas and ellipse.

Department of Modern Languages
A13—Beginners' College French—French pronunciation and the fundamentals of grammar. Development of a working vocabulary through use in class work, as far as possible, and through compositions and reading of modern French authors.

A23—Beginners' College French—A continuation of French A13. More emphasis on grammar, composition, reading, and conversation.

YOUTH MUST BE SERVED

Ten years ago a group of far-seeing men and women saw the necessity of a Junior College for Ranger—they said, why send our children away from home to school when we can have the same facilities for teaching and training the youngsters that are offered by others. The result of that meeting and that vision is the

which will open its tenth consecutive term on Monday, September 9th—catering to the educational needs of the entire community... offering trained and efficient teachers, college equipped Christian men and women, capable of leaving that influence which means so much in the lives of the youth. Ranger Junior College is fully accredited, being a member of the Association of Texas Colleges and Universities and of the American Association of Junior Colleges.

112—Spanish—Continuation of Spanish as far as possible. Drills on pronunciation and rudiments of grammar. A notebook for written exercises is required. The course includes readings about Spain, Cuba, Mexico, and South America.

123—Beginners' Spanish—Continuation of Spanish A13. Grammar with stress on verbs; composition. Readings on the geography and history of the countries named in Spanish A13.

113—First Year College Spanish—Grammar, readings, composition. Stress on irregular and radical changing verbs, idioms, and syntax. Readings include modern novels and dramas. Pre-requisite: Spanish A13 and A23 or the equivalent.

123—First Year College Spanish—Continuation of Spanish 113. Original composition. Older Spanish classics are read, and much stress is put upon the South American authors. A study of Mexico.

213—Advanced Grammar and Literature—Advanced grammar and composition and a survey of Spanish literature before the nineteenth century. For literature study three books are read each semester. Pre-requisite: Spanish 113 and 123 or their equivalent.

223—Advanced Grammar and Literature—Continuation of Spanish 213. A survey of literature of the nineteenth century, and a continuation of grammar and composition. Themes and reports in Spanish on books read are a part of the course.

Department of Natural Sciences
112, 123—Nature Study—A course intended to introduce the student to the various fields of science. This course is recommended to those who have not selected a major in any particular field of science and is required of candidates for elementary teaching certificates. Surveys of the major fields of science will be made. Laboratories dealing with the various fields will go with these surveys. Stress is placed on Chemistry, Physics and Astronomy in 112 and on Biology, Zoology and Geology in 123. Open to first year students, two lectures and two labs. per week. Credit value, three hours per semester.

113—General Zoology. A course in general zoology covering a large number of phyla of animals. The course starts with a thorough dissection of the Amphibia. The major portion of the first semester course will be devoted to the invertebrates. Open to Freshmen—two hours lecture and four hours laboratory per week.

123—General Zoology. This course gives a continuation of the study of invertebrates. Physiology, Embryology, and Cytology are touched upon. Stress is placed on the modern genetic concepts of Biology. Insect life is examined thoroughly. A thorough study of mammalian anatomy is included in this course. Zoology 113 and 123 is recommended for pre-medical students. Pre-requisite: Zoology 113 or equivalent—two hours lecture and four hours laboratory per week.

113—General Chemistry.—A course in general chemistry to teach principles and facts employed by the chemist in his work, the manner in which he solves his problems, and the habits of accuracy, observation, and scientific reasoning so necessary in all scientific study. The fundamental phenomena and principles of chemistry are stressed, the elements and compounds are discussed in a systematic order, and industrial application of the more important chemical operations are described. One of the features of the course is a thorough presentation of metathetical reactions before the presentation of oxidation-reduction reactions. Two hour lecture and recitation and two 2 1/2 hour laboratory periods per week.

123—General Chemistry—Continuation of Chemistry 113. A general meaning of qualitative and quantitative analysis is given and simple compounds are analyzed. An introduction to organic chemistry is given.

213—Organic Chemistry.—A course in elementary organic chemistry intended to introduce the second year chemists to the chemistry of carbon compounds, the handling of structural formulas, and the most important syntheses of organic compounds. Petroleum derivatives and methods of handling will form a part of the course. Pre-requisite chemistry 113-123; two hours lecture, six hours laboratory; credit value, four hours.

224—Organic Chemistry, Petroleum Derivatives—Continuation of 213 with emphasis on Petroleum and pre-professional courses. They may be counted as 8 semester hours in satisfying college requirements for admission to Class A medical colleges.

Social Sciences
213—Introduction to Economics—An introductory course dealing with the principles of governing production, consumption, distribution, exchange, and values. A practical course designed to prepare students for business and efficient citizenship.

223—Economics—A further and more comprehensive study and survey of the economic and social order of today applying the principles studied in Economics 213. Pre-requisite: Economics 213.

213—Comparative Government—An introductory course in the study of government, stressing the fundamental elements of political science, and a comparative study of the central and local governments of the leading nations of the world.

223—American Constitutional Government—A study of the development and operation of political institutions in the United States; national, state and local. Special stress is given to the constitutions of the United States and Texas, fulfilling the Texas statutory requirement for a course on the constitution, State and Federal.

Note—The above courses in government may be counted as independent half units, but they should both be taken to satisfy the usual requirement of a course in government for the B. A. degree in senior colleges. Government 223 is required by State law of all candidates for a teacher's certificate or for graduation from college. Freshmen may enroll in this course the second semester in case they are candidates for a teacher's certificate.

113—History of Modern Europe (1500-1815)—A general course in Modern European History from the discovery of America, to the end of the Napoleonic era. Special attention is given to the Renaissance, Protestant Reformation, overseas expansion of the sixteenth and seventh centuries, the struggle for parliamentary government in England, the French Revolution, and the Napoleonic period.

123—History of Modern Europe (1815-1934)—Continuation of History 113, covering these topics: reaction after Napoleon's overthrow, the development of nationalism and democracy in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, economic developments and territorial expansions, the roots and results of the World War, and post-war European developments.

113E and 123E—History of England and the British Empire—A survey of the political, social, and industrial development of Great Britain and her empire. This course is required for pre-law students and recommended for those majoring in English. 113—From early British history to 1689. 123—From 1689 to the present.

213—American History (1492-1850)—A general survey course in American History. Topics stressed include: Planting colonies in America and the development of colonial constitutions, the struggle for independence and the establishment of the Constitution, national territorial expansion, the rise of Jacksonian Democracy, and the origin of the slavery controversy.

223—American History (1850-1934)—A continuation of History 213. This course includes the last phase of the slavery controversy, the Civil War, political and economic reconstruction of big business, and a survey of accompanying problems, American imperialism, participation in the World War, and the present-day problems.

Physical Education
This department offers both non-credit physical training courses and regular work in physical education. The former type have a "0" for the last digit and satisfy the requirements in P. T. of most colleges and give extra-curricular point-credits only; P. E. 113 and 123 is required of all beginning teachers in Texas. Physical Education 213 and 223 are second-year courses for those majoring in Physical Education.

113—Physical Education Methods—Elementary course covering the subject matter and method of physical education in the public schools, dealing with contents, progression, and instruction in calisthenics, play and games, stunts, contests, and sports for boys and girls. Lecture and recitation, 3 hours, and demonstration and practice, 3 hours per week.

123—Health Education—A course dealing with the organization and administration of school health education. Topics considered include: Hygiene and sanitation, health service, health instruction, conditioning, injuries and their treatment, and mental health and hygiene.

213—Physical Education Methods—Athletics—Theory and practice of coaching all the major sports, including football, basketball, baseball, track and field, tennis, and golf. Practice will be given in directing the rookies of the high school and of ward schools of Ranger and through participation on the athletic squads of the college.

223—School and Community Recreation—A course intended especially for teachers and directors of physical education. This course will stress worthy use of leisure, particularly physical recreation for both adults and children, including physical education methods, first and conditioning and principles of physical and mental health and hygiene. Lecture and recitation, 3 hours, and demonstration and practice, 3 hours per week.

110—Fundamental Skills—Training in fundamental skills involved in one or more of the following sports: football, basketball, volley ball, tennis, and golf.

120—Fundamental Gymnastics—Setting up and corrective exercises in separate classes for boys and girls. Methods and forms of exercises.

210—Sports—For students who have acquired considerable skill in one of the regular athletic sports: football, basket ball, volley ball, tennis and golf. Methods of coaching outdoor games and sports.

220—Gymnastics and Games—Gymnastic exercises for posture and bodily improvement and the direction of gymnastic exercises and of games of various kinds involving physical exercise.

OUTGOING DEAN SENDS A MESSAGE OF FAREWELL AND GOOD WILL TO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Austin, Tex., Aug. 20, 1935.

Dear Friends:

It is with sincere regrets for being unable to be with you on this good-will tour and because of leaving Ranger that I send you this message of good will and farewell. I am glad that I can say from the bottom of my heart that I am leaving with the kindest of feelings and best wishes toward all with whom it has been my pleasure to be associated both in the schools there and otherwise.

I have been elected as half-time instructor in educational administration at the University of Texas and will be able to earn almost as much as I did at Ranger and at the same time complete the work for the Ph.D. degree in about two years. I have been assured that I would be given the position here for at least two years with a teaching position in the summer session of the university also. I could not afford to turn down this wonderful opportunity for professional advancement, and I feel that I will be able to serve better as teacher and administrator after receiving this additional training and teaching experience.

During the eight years I have served as principal of Ranger High School and dean of Ranger Junior College, wonderful progress has been made, and I am looking forward to a continued improvement under the new administration. I shall always look back with pleasure to the eight years I spent in Ranger and have tried to serve faithfully and sincerely in the in-

Athletics Form a Part of College Life For Students

Ranger Junior College offers athletic facilities equal to any in the state.

Each season the college has a football team that ranks well in the Central Texas conference, of which it is a member, as well as having a basketball team, a tennis team, golf team and offering recreational facilities of the very best.

All football games scheduled for the junior college in Ranger are played at the Ranger high school's football field, while a recreation building for the two schools, which cost approximately $40,000, has been completed and will be ready for the basketball season of 1935-36. This is one of the best indoor courts in this part of the country with a large, maple-floored court and a balcony that will seat more than 500 people.

A pep squad has been organized each year, so the girls in the college can add zest to the athletic contests, and the pep squad has added much to the interest in the junior college football games.

Facts About Ranger Junior College

Ranger Junior college was established in 1926 to fill a greatly-felt need for an easily accessible public junior college in the heart of the Oil Belt. It secured recognition by the State Department of Education the first year as a first class junior college, and the following year it was affiliated with the Association of Texas Colleges and also the American Association of Junior Colleges. By act of the Forty-First Legislature, Ranger Junior college was validated and incorporated by law as part of the public school system of Texas.

Ranger Junior college has passed the experimental stage and is now entering its tenth year of successful operation. In 1934-35 it reached its peak enrollment, listing among its number students from practically all sections of Texas and from five other states.

Ranger Junior college has also made splendid improvements in its facilities. A girls' dormitory, the Reavis building has recently been purchased and is being remodeled for the coming session. The $40,000 Auditorium-Gymnasium has just been completed and constitutes the finest of its kind in this section.

The people of this section are realizing more and more the splendid opportunities offered in Ranger Junior college. The future is indeed promising.

DEAN RIEHM BELIEVES IN JR. COLLEGE

Ranger Junior College serves the young women and young men in this section of the country in many ways.

Among these permit me to point out the following:

1. It offers an opportunity for immature college students to attend school where the living conditions are carefully controlled and where religious living is encouraged.
2. It offers students who are not preparing for future college attendance an opportunity to prepare for some practical work at the end of their two-year course.
3. It offers students of ability an opportunity to develop a high degree of efficiency in the field of their interest, even though the student is preparing neither for college nor for livelihood.

Ranger Junior College is fully accredited and is surpassed by none in this section of the state. Ranger Junior College welcomes both young women and young men who are interested in furthering their education for any of the above purposes or for any other reasons.

LENNAL S. RIEHM, Dean.

The Junior College is housed on the top floor of the high school building in Ranger, one of the most spacious and best equipped buildings in the country. The laboratories are ample for all general courses in chemistry, zoology, nature study and organic chemi-

Junior College Serves a Purpose In This Section

Ranger Junior College proposes to serve the people. One of its chief aims is the advancement of understanding, to disseminate knowledge and culture and stimulate search for truth. Another is preparation for life, to train for citizenship and to fit each individual for some useful vocation. A third aim is the cultivation of aesthetic, ethical and spiritual values of life, to appreciate the beautiful, inculcate the highest moral standards and to propagate spiritual ideals.

Ranger Junior College opens its tenth annual session on Sept. 9. It is one of 17 municipal junior colleges in Texas. There is no other institution of its kind within a radius of 100 miles or more from Ranger. Thus Ranger Junior College is able to offer two years of standard fully accredited college work to students of Central West Texas at a lower cost than any other college of this section.

The college serves three specific objectives. First it serves as a preparatory school for senior colleges by offering the required courses for the first two years leading toward higher degrees. Closely allied to this function is that of giving introductory courses in the main fields of education and human endeavor to students who have not yet decided upon their life's work. The third aim and function of the college is to furnish a degree of cultural or vocational and specialized training, that is, a terminal education to those who, for any reason, cannot or will not extend their formal education more than two years above the high school.

try, the sciences offered in the college. The commercial, home economics and other departments are also well equipped.

The library of the senior high school and junior college contains over 6,000 volumes bearing on the subjects taught. The library is the pride of the school and constitutes one of the best equipped and most serviceable public school libraries in the state.

A recreation building has been completed for the use of the high school and the junior college, where a good gymnasium and auditorium are combined. In addition the junior college has purchased the Reavis building, across the street from the gymnasium, and it is to be converted into a dormitory for girls. It is hoped to have this dormitory completed by the time school opens this September. The dormitory, when completed, is to be operated on a co-operative basis and it is expected the cost per student will not exceed $10 to $12 a month.

Families With $1500 Yearly Income Own Most of the Homes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In every one of 61 American cities, of which sample families were studied, the 1933 incomes of owner-occupants of homes exceeded those of rental tenants, according to an article in the current issue of the Federal Home Loan Bank Review, giving figures compiled from the Financial Survey of Urban Housing under the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

By their relation to housing expenditure, statistics on incomes are vital to home-financing institutions, builders and others interested in the production and financing of homes. The data was gathered from 299,028 families in the home-owner and tenant categories in cities ranging from 10,000 to more than 1,000,000 population.

The income difference between the two groups was smallest in Boise, Idaho, where the average tenant income was 94.3 percent of the average owner-occupant income, while the greatest difference was found in Charleston, South Carolina, where the average tenant income was only 38.1 percent of the owner group average. The median is 74.3 percent.

The seven cities where this ratio is lowest are all in Southern states. Most of the cities, where the ratio of average tenant income to average owner-occupant income is 80 percent or more, are in industrial or mining cities of the Midwest and Northwest.

The highest average owner-occupant income of $2,073 was in Waterbury, Connecticut, and the lowest, $911, in Decatur, Illinois. The highest average tenant income of $1,482 was in Reno, Nevada, and the lowest, $626, in Jacksonville, Florida.

All cities naturally showed a decline in average income for both groups from 1929 to 1933. The smallest decline for tenants' incomes between 1929 and 1933 was 14.7 percent, in Richmond, Virginia, while the largest decline took place in Birmingham, Alabama, and amounted to 44.5 percent. In owner-occupants' incomes the smallest decline was 16.6 percent in Trenton, New Jersey. The largest decline, of 52.7 percent, took place in Racine, Wisconsin.

In all 61 cities except 4—Paducah, Kentucky; Jacksonville, Florida; Wheeling, West Virginia; and Binghamton, New York—the decline in owner-occupants' incomes was greater than the decline in tenants' incomes.

The largest number of families in both categories had incomes ranging from $1,000 to $1,499. Over 18 percent of all tenants' incomes and 17.6 percent of all owner-occupants' incomes were in this single group. Five percent of all families studied reported no income at all, the figures being 5.5 percent of all owner-occupants and 4.7 percent of all tenants. At the other end of the scale, only 1.1 percent of owner-occupants and 0.2 percent of the tenants reported incomes above 7,500. Families with incomes less than $1,500 represented 64.1 percent of all the owner-occupants and 74.6 percent of all the tenants included in this survey.

Col. Brasher, proprietor of the Ranger Furniture Exchange, with the able assistance of his two sons, Felton and Bill, has one of the most outstanding and up-to-date furniture stores in this part of West Texas.

There are three entrances to the large building, which is one of the business landmarks of the city of Ranger, and besides the large lower floor there is an upstairs store room, with both floors loaded with new merchandise at all seasons of the year, making it one of the most completely stocked furniture stores in all West Texas.

Brasher says he buys for cash, in large quantities, and in this way is able to effect large savings, which are passed along to the furniture buyers of this section of the state, with thousands of dollars saved annually to the purchaser by staying out of the high rent district. His slogan has always been, and still is, "A Few Steps off Main Street Saves You Money."

The Ranger Furniture Exchange not only sells furniture of the highest quality, but handles the famous Crosley Shelvador, the electric refrigerator with the extra food storage space in the door. Crosley radios are also handled by this progressive firm, as is the kerosene-burning Electrolux, which can be operated where electricity and natural gas is not available. One has been on display throughout the summer season this year and has been functioning 100 per cent all season.

All one has to do, when in need of high grade furniture, is to call around and let one of the three partners in the business show him through their store, with its large stocks, and experienced salesmen and he can find almost anything in the way of house furnishings that one could desire.

Lax Treatment Of Delinquents Is Now Deplored

AUSTIN, Tex.—Lax treatment of Texas' delinquent children is being uncovered by Miss Grace E. Benjamin, investigator for state school and relief agencies.

Although the survey will not be completed and analyzed until about Oct. 1, Miss Benjamin has found inadequate methods for handling juvenile criminals, unenforced truant laws, and no fund to care for delinquent negro girls.

"It is almost unbelievable that the laws of Texas do not provide for a juvenile court," she said.

Texas Ranges In Good Condition On First of Month

Texas cattle ranges usually decline 3 or 4 points during July but this year they showed no decline in condition. The condition on August 1, 1935, was 86 percent of normal compared with 50 percent a year ago and 84.7 percent the 10-year average on August 1.

Sheep improved 1 point during July but actually decline about 2 or 3 points. On August 1, 1935, the condition was 87 percent of normal compared with 68 percent a year ago and 84.7 percent the 10-year average on August 1.

Goat condition remained the same from July 1 to August 1. The condition on August 1, 1935, was 89 percent of normal compared with 73 percent a year ago and 87 percent the 10-year average on August 1.

Sheep ranges declined only 2 points during July this year when ordinarily there is a decline of 4 points. The condition on August 1, 1935, was 87 percent of normal compared with 55 percent a year ago and 80.4 percent the 10-year average on August 1.

Cattle improved 2 points during July when usually there is a decline of 2 or 3 points. The condition on August 1, 1935, was 86 percent of normal compared with 49 percent a year ago and 82.6 percent the 10-year average on August 1.

Tung Oil Congress To Meet In Texas

BEAUMONT—National authorities on the production of tung oil will attend a congress here in October, according to P. F. Lawson, Beaumont.

C. C. Concannon, chief of the chemical division of the U. S. Department of Commerce, has been scheduled to discuss the progress of tung oil production in this country.

State agricultural experiment stations at Amelia and Troup are experimenting with the tung tree to determine whether Texas climate is suitable for its growth.

The Beaumont Chamber of Commerce recently transplanted tung trees from Beauregard Parish, La., C. W. Howth, Beaumont, planted some of the trees several years ago.

Others who are expected to attend the congress include U. S. Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas; J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture of Mississippi; J. H. Riedemann, Citronella, Ala., and B. F. Williamson, Gainesville, Fla., and members of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The United States has become a tung oil producer to supply needs of paint and varnish manufacturers. China formerly produced most of the world's supply of tung oil.

Producing areas are the Gulf Coast and the Atlantic ridge.

Child Worries Over Fate of Watermelon

BORGER, Tex.—When a truck collided with her father's car, Laura Bell Parker, aged six, was more concerned with the fate of a watermelon in the car than possible danger to herself or other members of the family.

After the accident, in which no one was injured, the child began screaming. A bystander suggested taking her to a doctor. Laura Belle cried, "I'm not hurt, Mama. But, is our watermelon busted?"

3,000 Teachers Are Given Employment

AUSTIN, Tex.—Approximately 3,500 Texas teachers have been given jobs during the past 18 months in a statewide adult education program. University of Texas officials said today.

Two thousand of the 3,500 teachers are attending special training schools before beginning fall classes. They are receiving special instruction in adult teaching methods and psychology. Four state schools, including Prairie View State Normal for negroes, are offering the course.

"Instead, child offenders are brought and tried before a judge just as a mature criminal." On release, the former child delinquent is returned to his former environment without any attempt to train him in citizenship or improve living conditions, she pointed out.

The survey, started by the Texas Relief Commission, and finished by the University of Texas, shows case histories of more than 500,000 children. It is the most extensive program of its kind ever undertaken in the United States. More than 170,000 homes in 170 counties were checked, including all counties with populations greater than 100,000.

Included were homes of war veterans, homes receiving relief aid and those in which there are known disabled children. The latter class will benefit by a special program to be conducted this fall, allowing vocational training for them through public schools.

A combination piano, desk and liquor cabinet was shown in Chicago. The last is so that, when you want to play an old piece or write home, you can refresh your memory.

Wool Crop Will Be Slightly Below Five Year Average

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The amount of wool shorn or to be shorn in 1935 is 343,889,000 pounds, according to the preliminary estimate of the United States Department of Agriculture. This is 13,769,000 pounds or 4 percent less than the amount shorn in 1934 and is 4 percent less than the 5-year average, 1930-1934.

The decrease in wool production this year resulted from a decline of 5 per cent in number of sheep shorn. The weight per fleece was 1 percent larger than in 1934. The average weight per fleece was 8.00 pounds this year compared with 7.91 pounds in 1934 and 8.15 pounds in 1933. Slightly heavier fleeces were reported in all areas except the North Atlantic and Western States where the fleece weight was reported the same as last year.

The 1935 preliminary estimate of the production of wool includes a forecast of fall shearing of sheep and lambs in Texas and California and of total yearly sheep shearing at commercial feeding stations. In a number of Western States it is probable that the rather heavy fleece weight this year was a result of more than usual amount of dirt in the wool and that the decrease in clean content of wool shorn may be relatively more than the decrease in gross wool. The increased weight of wool per sheep shorn for Texas and California in 1935 over 1934 was caused largely by the larger proportion of 12 months wool in the 1935 spring clip and a larger number to be fall shorn this year than last.

Old Dunce Cap Bows to Derby

By United Press
MADISON, Wis.—Dr. William S. Middleton, newly appointed dean of the University of Wisconsin medical school, has a collection of brown derbies which he has worn in the classroom.

As professor of medicine here, he was almost as well known to his classes for his brown derbies as he was for his important research into diseases of the blood and its circulation.

For the last several years each incoming junior class of the medical school has purchased a brown derby and presented it to "Dr. Billy" with appropriate ceremonies. He has worn it in class until some other student earned it by a poor recitation. Each inscribed his name upon the hat before he passed it on. At the end of the year it returned to the professor with a practically complete roster of the class upon it.

The 45-year-old dean was born in Norristown, Pa., received his medical degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1911, and came to the University of Wisconsin as a member of the staff of the department of student health in 1912 after service in Philadelphia hospitals.

University regents selected Dr. Middleton to succeed the late Dr. Charles R. Bardeen, dean of the medical school since its foundation, after the latter's death last June.

Cotton Picking To Furnish Work For Unemployed

AUSTIN.—As the cotton picking season gradually spreads over Texas, Relief Commission officials are re-emphasizing their demands that every available cotton picker be taken of the relief rolls and "old to get a cotton sack."

District administrators have been told to see that no able-bodied relief client be allowed to stay on the relief rolls so long as there is a job for him in the cotton fields. Despite pest infestation, the cotton crop in Texas apparently will be appreciably larger than last year, and relief officials insist that there be a commensurate drop in the relief load in cotton picking areas.

What effect getting off Federal Emergency Relief Administration rolls to pick cotton will have on a client's chances of being certified to the Works Progress Administration rolls late in the fall when the cotton picking season is over, has been explained thus:

It will not jeopardize his chances at all. An unemployed able-bodied person who was on the FERA rolls in May this year and is registered with the National Reemployment Service is automatically eligible for a job with the WPA. The minute a cotton picker or anyone else who was a relief client in May has worked himself out of a job in private employment, he becomes eligible to work on WPA projects.

In view of this and the sharp reduction in relief funds, Relief Commission officials are insisting that relief rolls in heavy cotton producing areas should be reduced by as much as 50 per cent if not more during the cotton picking season.

Representative Hamilton Fish of New York has announced his willingness to run for president. His platform will undoubtedly include getting the U. S. out of the red, and vice versa.

Hendrick Willem Van Loon, the writer, says he has read everything that he has ever wanted to read. Now he can turn to the funnies.

Relief Commission Sees More Work to Replace the Dole

AUSTIN.—Despite misgivings over sharp reductions in funds and consequent cuts in relief allotments, Texas Relief Commission officials here the past week were able to look at the relief situation in Texas with some confidence, hinging their hopes on seasonal employment in the cotton fields and the increasing speed of Works Progress Administration activities.

There are about 85,000 employable men on the relief rolls in the cotton picking areas of Texas, and it is hoped at least half of these will be employed a month or two months in the cotton fields. The employment, of course, it was pointed out, will not be all at one time but will move progressively from south Texas northward through the state, relieving the case load at one time or another in the next three months by at least 40,000 persons.

In the meantime, the WPA is expected to be in full operation, aiming at taking off the relief rolls the entire bulk of 146,000 employables in the state. As the cotton picking season ends, pickers formerly on the relief rolls are expected to be taken into the WPA certain to be well under way by then, it was emphasized.

Also, the Civilian Conservation Corps is now in the midst of its enrollment program, calculated to enroll by September 1, 15,000 Texas youths between 18 and 28 whose families are on the relief rolls. This will bring the total enrollment for the state to 30,000. The monthly checks of $25 apiece from these boys to their families will go a long way toward easing the relief situation, officials stressed.

That the Texas case load this spring and summer had decreased consistently, due not only to seasonal declines but to genuine declines as indicated by the progressively lower record of 1935 over 1934, is another sign of improvement cheering relief officials.

From a high of approximately 276,000 in January this year, the case load in the state has steadily decreased, dropping to 270,000 in February, 250,000 in March, 230,000 in April, 199,000 in May, and 170,000 in June, the latter month comparing with 190,000 for the corresponding month in 1934. Figures for July have been delayed pending complete returns from all counties, but are sure to show a continued drop, it is estimated.

Obviously, relief officials point out, if relief funds can be stretched to keep relief clients going until the WPA is in full operation, the relief situation in Texas will be tremendously improved, save for that considerable residue of unemployables who will be left on the rolls and will have to look to some source for aid. What source that will be has not been indicated, but, State Relief Director Adam R. Johnson emphasized, as President Roosevelt has stated positively that there will be no more direct relief funds, and the balance of the funds are not sufficient to take care of the unemployables, it is self-evident that they will have to find some method of their own for care.

Sisters Meet, Both Unaware They're Kin

GALESBURG, Ill.—Mrs. Arthur Swanson of Galesburg and her sister, Mrs. Theodore Ousbeck of Arlington, Mass., met here for the first time in thirty years recently. Until last October, neither woman knew she had a sister.

Thirty years ago Mrs. Swanson and her parents left Sweden, where she was born. Prior to that time, her father and mother had permitted a second daughter, Mrs. Ousbeck, to be adopted by a neighboring family. The girls were too small to know of the existence of each other when the separation occurred.

It was not until last October, when their mother died in Sweden and left property to both, that either woman knew she had a living relative. When the will was filed and the estate settled, the facts of the separation became known.

Senator Sees Joke On Liquor Drinkers For Election Day

AUSTIN, Tex.—The fellow who likes his little nip of hard liquor will have the laugh on his friend who confines his drinking to 3.2, when August 24th rolls around. Legitimate places selling beer will close so far as the sale of beer is concerned on that day, for although that drink is a legal drink, its sale is prohibited during polling hours on election day. Thus the beer drinker must wait.

On the other hand the fellow who is looking for a drink of hard liquor won't notice the difference. Places selling hard liquor drinks operate without sanction of the law at all times, and election day really shows an increase in business for them, because the beer places which respect the laws are closed.

This is just another little "prohibition" joke, for on that particular election day "repeal of statewide prohibition" is one of the issues to be voted on in the series of seven proposed changes to the state constitution.

"It is said that operators in many of these open saloons are calling attention to this fact in order that they will be open on Election Day," W. K. Hopkins, state senator from Gonzales said here today. "These saloons are well patronized and liquor to the extent of almost $100,000,000 each year is sold. They operate unhindered by regulations as to closing hours, to whom they might sell drinks, and pay no tax whatsoever to the State of Texas."

Negro Whips 34 In Melee To Enter Ring

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—A negro's fight against 34 in the Knoxville jail may start him on the road to fame in the prize ring.

Roosevelt Sharp, 200-pound former broncho buster and rope thrower with a wild-west show, went to jail on a charge of trespassing. He wore a tenguillon hat, wide leather belt, and the trappings that help make a westerner look wild.

He was put in a cell with 34 other negroes. They spotted the hat, talked it over, and decided to have some fun.

One man started towards him and was knocked out with one punch. Then every prisoner in the cell, armed with mops or what they could clutch in the rush, engaged Sharp.

Deputies arrived soon, but not soon enough. There were 34 negroes scattered over the cell, and one, Sharp, was leaning against the bars grinning.

"Take him out of here," yelled the rest.

Frank Winick, Knoxville, heard about the fight. He signed the big boy.

Oarsman at 86 is Looking for Races

By United Press
KITCH HARBOR, N. S.—Mark Lynch, veteran Nova Scotia oarsman, who passed his prime 40 years ago, is still looking for competition at the age of 86.

Lynch has issued a challenge to several veteran Canadian and United States oarsmen to meet him in a race this summer.

His challenge is aimed particularly at James A. Ten Eyck, 82-year-old coach of Syracuse university crews. Lynch and Ten Eyck staged a three-mile race here back in 1899. Lynch won but Ten Eyck was not convinced that the Nova Scotian was the better man.

Another oarsman Lynch would like to meet in active competition is Fred Plaisted, 85-year-old Philadelphian, who coached John O'Neill, of Herring Cove, N. S., when O'Neill was international champion.

her gives the semester college credit value unless otherwise stated. Thus, courses having a "0" for the final figure may not be counted as satisfying college credit requirements toward a diploma or degree but may be counted in satisfying point requirements toward honor graduation. Unless otherwise stated, all classes meet for three-hour periods per week for lectures, recitation or laboratory during the semester.

Department of Fine Arts

This department has been added to satisfy an increasing demand and need for training in the fine arts. Private and class instruction may be obtained in sketching, painting, and expression, as well as in violin, piano, harmony, and voice at moderate prices under the regular college credit work given below. Opportunities are available in orchestra, band, and glee club.

113—Principles of Music—A thorough study of notes, scales and key formation, transposition, and the composition of simple melodies.

111-121—Voice—Principles of tone production, correct breathing and diaphragmatic control. Major scales and arpeggi and simple interval exercises. Simple songs. Advanced standing will be given those who deserve it.

123—Elementary Harmony and Ear Training—The course includes the study of triads, seventh chords, and ninth chords, with inversion. Fundamental principles of melody and rhythm are studied, and short melodies, given and original, are harmonized.

113, 123—Public School Music—A course covering every phase pertaining to the teaching of music in the elementary and intermediate grades of the public schools, including: the study of the child, methods and materials used, music appreciation, public performances, tests and measurements, etc.

213, 223—Public School Music

—This course discusses the principles involved in presenting music in the junior and senior, high schools, with materials used to solve problems at different grade levels. Sight singing, ear-training, rhythmic activities, reading music, creative work, and instrumental music are taught.

Vocational Agriculture and Home Economics

The courses in this department are given for the practical side of farming and house-keeping as well as for the benefit of those who may wish to specialize in this type of work for teaching or for other purposes. No college credit is given for the courses in agriculture the coming session, but it is planned to offer regular college courses in agriculture and to add second-year home economics in 1936-37. Practical projects are a part of the course requirements in each case.

110-120A—Faint and Animal Husbandry—Breeding and improvement of plants, livestock and poultry feeding and caring for livestock and poultry, soil conservation and fertilization controlling insects and diseases harmful to plants and animals, shop-work, and study of cost production.

210, 220A—Farm Business—Managing the farm business, caring for farm equipment and resources, farm shop work, producing a living at home, harvesting and storing farm produce, and marketing plant and animal products.

113—Clothing—A course in elementary dressmaking and textile study, with special emphasis on the study of the different fibres and their buying, hygiene and laundering and the construction of simple garments and household linens. Recitation, 2 hours; laboratory, 4 hours.

129—Foods and Health—A general course in foods including the fundamentals of nutrition, the selection and preparation of foods

Silver Box Owned By 'T. R.' Aide Found

ELKINS PARK, Pa. — On the site where once stood an old grist mill, but now a public park, a workman recently turned up a silver alloy box bearing the initials "J. R." and the date "1878".

The souvenir box was believed the property of one Joseph Bosler, who rose from miller and country banker, to Assistant United States Treasurer under President Theodore Roosevelt.

The workman was grading the grounds around a house long known as the Ivy, but now the Richard Wall House. The plot marked the site of the old Bosler grist mill, which stood from 1745 until about 30 years ago. The ground was acquired by Charles Bosler in 1846 and for three generations was operated by members of his family.

Old Wedding Ring Found In Garden

LOCKHART, Tex.—A Gonzales County farmer recently plowed up a plain gold-band wedding ring while working in his garden.

Older residents of the neighborhood identified it as the ring lost by the young bride of Sam H. Brown, more than 70 years ago. Brown was engaged in the clothing business in Lockhart for many years, but upon retiring he removed to California where he and Mrs. Brown died.

Men are not permitted to ride the elevators of some New York skyscrapers in their shirtsleeves. That's to prepare them for the day when they have to climb up.

Former Secretary of War Patrick Hurley says he has no influence with a single congressman. Not that he would mind having the good old days back again!

Until that missing public utilities executive turns up, every man with a bald head and a smile will be held under suspicion.

A Michigan doctor has found a way to lower blood pressure by surgical operation. A slip of the scalpel and the pressure can be lowered to zero.

While the League of Nations is mulling over the idea of a protectorate for Ethiopia, might it not also consider a protectorate for Mussolini?

Outgoing Dean—

(Continued from page 1) public institutions of higher education in Texas in 1929. In 1931-32, Ranger Junior College had 62 students; an increase of about 22 per cent over the previous year. The next year Ranger Junior College enjoyed the distinction of having the largest percentage increase in enrollment of any college in Texas. The enrollment of Ranger Junior College has more than doubled its enrollment of 1931-32 within the last three years. During the past session students were enrolled from many distant parts of Texas and from five states besides Texas, namely New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. Indications at this time point to an enrollment of 150 students or more for 1935-36, and it is very probable that the enrollment will again double itself within the next three years. As the college grows the population of Ranger will increase and the high school will prosper. The next year, for instance, showed an increase in approximately 50 students in the enrollment of Ranger High School over the preceding year.

Ranger Junior College is one of 18 public municipal junior colleges operating in Texas, all of which have been established since 1922 and have enjoyed a remarkable popularity and growth. This list includes such colleges as Hillsboro Junior College, Wichita Falls Junior College, Amarillo College, Texarkana College, San Angelo Junior College, San Antonio Junior College, Brownsville Junior College, Edinburg Junior College, Houston Junior College (now Houston University), and many of the other best colleges in the state. These institutions are supported partly from local taxation and partly from tuition. Ranger Junior College is the only institution of its kind in this section within a radius of 100 miles or more. Ranger Junior College holds the highest rating possible for colleges to attain in Texas. It is ranked as a college of the first class by the state department of education, by the Association of Texas Colleges and Universities, and by the American Association of Junior Colleges. Thus, credits earned in this institution are transferable at full value to any other college or university.

The advantages of patronizing Ranger Junior College for people of this section are almost too numerous to mention. Among these may be named the following: (1) Students will get the best of instruction under a highly trained faculty with qualifications above the average of colleges for the first two years; (2) in a small college the opportunities for recognition and display of special talents and abilities and for the development of these and of responsibility, and leadership are greater; (3) the students form closer and more lasting friendships and have better social and religious contacts and environment than are usually found in the larger colleges and larger cities; (4) students get more personal attention and supervision and individual help when needed than is possible for them to get in larger classes and in larger institutions; (5) the cost of getting two years' first class college work at Ranger Junior College is as low or lower than that at any other college in Texas, I believe. If the people of this section fully realized the opportunities afforded by Ranger Junior College, it would not be long until additional buildings were needed to accommodate the increased enrollment. Ranger Junior College is a great asset not only to Ranger but to the entire Oil Belt and its future is indeed promising.

In closing, I want to express again our deepest appreciation to the people of Ranger and surrounding section for the creation and the spirit of cooperation and friendship they have shown during these years. To the students of Ranger High School and Ranger Junior College, I express also my abiding interest in them and their welfare, and for them the greatest success. Remember me always to my friend and well wisher, H. S. VON ROEDER.
