Liquor and Drivers Measures Sent Legislature

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

With BILL MAYES

Yesterday afternoon we saw a real football game, the best, by far, we have seen this year, and surely the best that any Ranger team has played to date. It was replete with hard running plays, line smashes, end runs with beautiful interference, hard blocking, passes completed and intercepted.

C. of C. Directors Defer Election of A New President

At a called meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, held at 7:00 o'clock Tuesday night, the matter of selection of a president of the organization was deferred until the next regular meeting of the board.

A number of important committee reports on business of the organization were heard during the short session.

Harwell Resigns As Commissioner and Election Is Called

Walter Harwell, for the past two years a member of the Ranger City Commission, Tuesday night wired his resignation to the commission, which was accepted at the regular meeting Tuesday night, and a special election to fill the vacancy was ordered.

Harwell has been in Monahan for the past few months and tendered his resignation because of absence from the city.

MORE GUARDS STATIONED AT STRIKE AREA

MANNINGTON, Ky., Oct. 30.—Machine guns, which spattered bullets into a crowd of more than 1,000 union pickets, were manned by additional National Guards today at the Williams Coal Company here.

At least eight men were wounded, three critically, when the guardsmen opened fire on advancing pickets late yesterday.

The outbreak was a phase of the attempt of the United Mine Workers of America to organize the West Kentucky field. The Williams company and other independent mine operators refused to deal with the union.

SPAIN IS DANCE LAND
MADRID.—The Romans imported their dancers from Cadiz, and Spain today still is the dance land of the Mediterranean, with castanets, rhythmic hand-clapping and stamping of pretty feet, Spanish dancers still cast a spell.

SANCTIONS ON ITALY WILL BE APPLIED SOON

On the eve of application by most of the nations on earth of a strangling trade boycott against Italy, sentiment in Europe crystallized in favor of action to force Italy to halt the war in Ethiopia.

Britain and France worked together apparently determined to bring Mussolini to terms. London said they might attempt a "peace offensive" at Geneva.

The two powers were expected to dictate reasonable but strong terms to Mussolini calling for a showdown in which he either would have to accept or assume even greater responsibility for the outlawed war.

Farley Has Personal Interest In Mails

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 30.—James Farley takes his postmaster general's job seriously. He'll even mail your letters. At least that was the experience of Mrs. W. M. Hopkins, who approached him at a football game and suggested he might be kind enough to mail a letter she had forgotten. Farley bowed.

Olden School Board Takes First Step In Protection of School Children

The Olden school board took first steps in the protection of the school children, two weeks ago, when they placed an order for two "Traffic Boy Signs."

These signs have arrived and will be placed in the middle of the Bankhead highway, one just west of the Ford hotel and the other east of the Texaco Filling Station, and will serve as warning signs to local motorists as well as the touring public.

This forward move has been made at the suggestion and under the direction of the State Highway Patrol. The execution of the traffic rules in the school zone will also be under the direction of the Highway Patrol, who will instruct a group of boys, to be known as the "School Boy Patrol," in the rules and regulations of traffic school zones. These boys will direct traffic in the school zone, at stipulated times during the day.

It has been proved many times that cooperation of police department with schools and home in creating a safety program has kept many children alive and free from injury. Olden has more than 200 children who cross the highway as many as four times daily going to and from school. The responsibility for their safety is upon the school board and school teachers. This movement has been made not only to slow down the traffic on the highway in school zones, but also to cause our local people to think and be more careful in the operation of their cars. Conditions are different to what they were a few short years ago, as we see month by month the number of automobiles become larger, and year by year the speed of traffic becomes faster, and consequently the danger to school children be-

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

The Golden Feather by Robert Bruce

BEGIN BLUE TODAY... JEAN DEAN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, inspector delay her answer when BOBBY LACE, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him. At the Golden Feather club, the more SANDY HAZEL KIN, telephone business executive, is vague. Sandy introduces Bob and Jean to MR and MRS LEW and Bobby arranges to sell some bonds for Lewis. He sells the 'So Good' bonds to Lewis.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, is trying to locate WINGY LEV, bank robber. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby the bonds were stolen. Larry believes the man Lewis bought was 'sworn'. Bobby undertakes to find out. Jean goes to her home town for a vacation. Sandy comes to see her and she agrees to marry him. Bobby believes he has a lead on the location of the factory where armored cars are made and goes alone to investigate.

recoiler Bobby grinned and said 'Okay partner,' he said 'I bed up and swung around while guard stood watching him with suspicious. Then, casting a glance at the erstwhile bride, Bobby drove up the roadways. Pulaski road again. In his way back to town Bobby, the prey of a pleasurable excitement, not unmixed with a more pleasurable feeling of self-congratulation. He had found something queer, that was certain something almighty queer tucked away in that inaccessible hollow surrounded by an unclimbable fence and guarded by a surly watchman with a revolver. Was this the place Mark Hopkins and MacFarlane had visited the afternoon before?

THE little valley opened about 100 yards from Pulaski road. The driveway led downward, swinging sharply to the left and then to the right again to a barren region that seemed almost desert-like. Once out of sight of the main highway, Bobby could see nothing but the bleak, grimy hillsides.

"I've got something!" Bobby told himself jubilantly. "I'll bet a dollar to an old doughnut that the place Larry Glenn's looking for had I better tell Larry about it right off—or should I try to find out something more before I do? Gosh, I wish I could get just a little more dope before I tell him. Maybe I can wait another week without hurt anything. Anyhow, I'll go see him tonight."

LARRY went on. "But that isn't the most important part. It's this chap Harkins I wanted to tell you about, because he's been seeing more or less of Jean. I guess."

"A brick yard!" said Bobby suddenly. That, obviously, was what the place had been—once. It was perfectly clear that no bricks had been made here for many a year. But it was equally clear that the central building was still in use. A freshly-painted black chimney rose from the farther end, with a wisp of smoke threading its way up toward the evening sky, surrounding the whole thing there was a new, business-like fence of woven wire, seven feet high, with barbed-wire strands on the top and a substantial gate at the point where the driveway entered. Inside this gate three or four cars were parked.

THEY ate at a pleasant little restaurant near the federal building, and there Bobby guiltfully told Larry just enough about Mark Hopkins' mysterious trip to what the federal man's interest. He did not tell him of having found the peculiar building in the hollow off Pulaski road, but he told him enough to convince him that he was on the trail of something.

"I'm not so sure," said Bobby miserably. "The other night after you left her place, she and I—we had a kind of a quarrel about him. She said she'd been seeing quite a lot of him. I'm—" he paused, and grew red—"I'm afraid she's getting sort of infatuated with him."

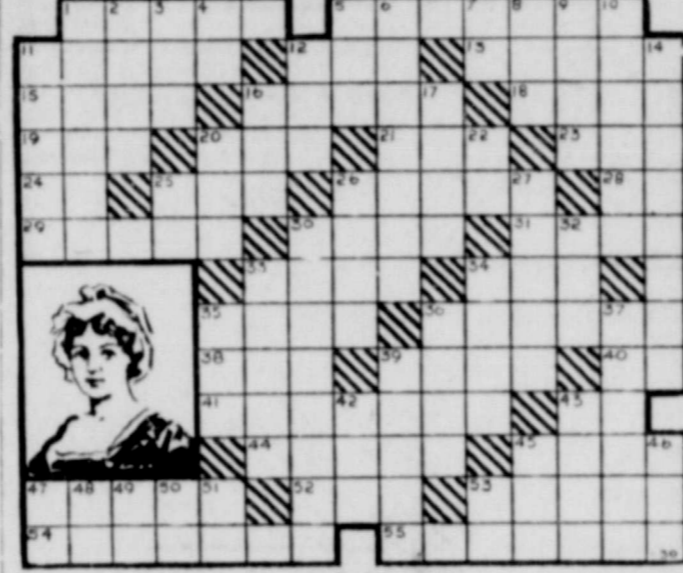

AS Bobby drove up, a man got up from a seat beside the gate. He let himself out and strolled up to Bobby's car with insolent slowness, his thumbs hooked in his belt. He wore no coat, and his vest was unbuttoned; and beneath his left arm, a black butt of a revolver, tucked away in a shoulder holster, was plainly visible.

"I ought to have warned her as soon as I found out she'd been a witness for him," he mused. Bobby looked up anxiously. "How was that?" he asked. Larry told him how Jean had gone to the police station to give Sandy an alibi for the Friday afternoon of the payroll holdup.

"I'm going to tell you something that you're not really entitled to know about," he said. "I wouldn't do it, except that it concerns Jean." Bobby looked up, startled. "We raided the apartment your friends the Lewises were occupying," said Larry. "They'd got out
