Can't, Can, May, Answer Critics of Lewis! "It Can't Happen Here"

NEW YORK.—Four diverse public figures interviewed on the possibility of a Fascist dictatorship in America, as suggested by Sinclair Lewis' book "It Can't Happen Here," couldn't agree, but the leaning was toward the affirmative. They were Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Republican leader; Sen. William E. Borah, liberal independent Republican; Gov. Eugene Talmadge, insurgent Democrat; and Milo Reno, mid-western farm leader. Roosevelt and Reno said a dictatorship could happen. Talmadge said it couldn't. Borah said it "may never happen." Said Roosevelt: "The book is a grim exposition of what can happen in this country. Lewis has clearly shown how the most different people with the most different motives and views can lead to the same end—dictatorship. Every man, and especially every woman, can see in this book just what the dangerous tendencies developed in the United States by

Balanced Budget Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—President Roosevelt today submitted to congress a balanced budget for regular expenditures in the 1937 fiscal year, but forecast a work relief deficit of $1,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000. Begin Eight-Inch Casing Setting On Cisco Wende Well Setting of eight-inch casing on Ed Parson and A. A. Wisdom's well on the Gus Wende tract of 149 acres, near the Humble School well, six miles south of Cisco at 2109 feet was scheduled Monday. The well had a total depth of 2180 feet. Location is 440 feet from the east and south lines of the north-west quarter of section 62, block 3, of the N. & T. C. Ry. survey. The well will be drilled to 3,500 feet unless production is found in paying quantities at lesser depth. The Schor well, near which the Wende is being drilled, has been a gas producer for 15 years, the source of fuel supply for Humbletown in Cisco for that time. It is said the Wende well is logging accordingly to that worked out by the Schor well, with variations which are expected because of difference in elevation.

AUSTIN, Jan. 6.—Four thousand four hundred and 75 youths will be placed within the next 10 days on state highway projects in parks, located in the Texas highway system, Lyndon B. Johnson, director, national youth administration, announced at Austin today. Just prior to the announcement, Johnson approved projects calling for an expenditure of $176,549, which is an average of over $1,650 for each park in the system. The state highway department of Texas is sponsoring these projects, which, when completed, will give park systems in the country. One such park is located in Eastland county. Youths to be employed on these projects are to receive from $1.00 to $4.32 per hour each day worked. Youths are paid at approximately the same rate per hour as adult security wage earners, but cannot work more than 46 hours in any one month. Only youths from relief families who are registered with the National Reemployment Service will be eligible. Additional projects calling for approximately $350,000 are now being examined, and approval releases are expected to be issued within the next few weeks. PROCESS TAX AND BANKHEAD ACTS INCLUDED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The supreme court of the United States in a decision of vast consequence, today held the new deal's AAA farm policy wholly and completely unconstitutional. The court opinion, presented by youthful Justice Roberts, was a condemnation of the new deal's keystone, so sweeping that it carried with it: The whole scheme of AAA crop control and reductions; the Bankhead cotton act; the Kerr-Smith tobacco act; the newly enacted potato control law. Only by constitutional amendment did it appear possible for the new deal to repair the damage to the recovery structure. Justice Roberts, speaking with only a glance or two at his opinion, condemned the AAA as "a statutory plan to regulate and control agricultural production," a matter beyond the powers delegated to the federal government. The court's decision placed a crushing burden on the administration on the very day President Roosevelt, with optimism, submitted a 1937 budget that was within balance except for relief expenditures. It means the government is obligated according to latest AAA estimates to pay $602,000,000 which it has contracted to give to farmers under the AAA crop scheme to meet the payment it must find some new form of taxes, as the whole system of processing levies under AAA was swept away. In addition it meant loss of some $200,000,000 impounded in federal court pending the supreme court ruling. President Roosevelt met the situation with a smile. L. E. A. Don't Blame Morgan For Our War Share

With all midgets securely under lock and key, Mr. J. P. Morgan will ascend the witness stand before the Senate Munitions committee within a few days, the idea being that he will unbosom himself about the way in which the United States got into the World War.

All this will produce many headlines, and will probably bring forth some valuable facts about the interlocking of economic and diplomatic forces. But the American public will only be kidding itself if it expects to get confirmation of its suspicion that the House of Morgan led us to war.

To be sure, the House of Morgan had the allies on the cuff for some hundreds of millions of dollars, in those dark days of early 1917, and if the allies failed to win the war the noble house stood to lose everything down to and including its cuff links.

And this same house is able to wield an enormous amount of power in the United States when it really wants to.

But the picture isn't as simple as that, and we would only be laying ourselves open for more trouble in the future by supposing that it is.

It is nothing less than childish to suppose that J. P. Morgan, fearing for his loans, privately went to Washington and demanded that we declare war. Members of the firm have denied that they ever brought any kind of pressure on anyone to get us into it, and they may well have been telling the exact and literal truth.

For the thing goes deeper than that. Those loans that were extended to the warring governments, comparatively early in the war, struck a mortal blow to our neutrality without anyone intending that they should. Observe what happened:

We became banker, workshop, and granary for the allied governments, specifically for the French and English. This was not only an excellent thing, a veritable life-saver, for those two nations; it was also an excellent thing for us, viewed from a short-range, dollars and cents position.

It brought us a tremendous boom. The farmer prospered, the manufacturer waxed fat, the railroad man and the exporter and the banker found business humming at an unheard-of rate, the laboring man found work plentiful and wages high—everyone in America, in short, benefited in one way or another through these war orders.

By 1917 the thing had gone on too long. We were geared to the pace of the boom. We were the allies' silent partners, and we were making money at it.

We had arranged everything on the expectation of allied victory. We had come to believe that they would and should win—for a man does not quarrel with his best customer—and when the crisis came it was inevitable that we should decide as we did.

On the details of this Mr. Morgan may throw some valuable light. But let's not delude ourselves by making him the archvillain of 1917.

No one man or group got us into the war. We simply followed our own blindness.

Office Rooms Are Hunted By U. S.

WASHINGTON. — "Progress" has been reported by director of federal space allotment, Harold L. Ickes, in his efforts to find enough room in Washington to house the multiple activities of government. Ickes, secretary of the interior, public works administrator, also is director of the petroleum administrative board and chairman of the national resources committee.

quarters in the Carry Building and provide space for expanding personnel.

During the Christmas holidays the housing division of the public works administration was moved into the remodeled Potomac Park apartments. The space vacated in the Interior Department building will be used to provide suitable working conditions for other personnel of PWA now operating in cramped quarters and public corridors.

The latest extension to the two-year-old Internal Revenue Bureau building will be occupied by expansion of departments of the Internal Revenue Bureau and transfer of the alcohol tax unit from its present quarters. The space vacated by the tax unit will be occupied by the farm credit administration.

Premier, have been vacated by tenants, including U. S. Supreme Court Justice James C. McReynolds, who was served with an order to move from the Rochambeau, his residence for a number of years.

These structures will be occupied by the Federal Trade Commission, whose present quarters, a temporary building constructed during the World War, will be demolished so that construction of the new home of the Federal Reserve Board can begin.

The problem of housing government agencies has become so acute in Washington that Ickes has talked of moving some activities to Baltimore, 40 miles from the capital.

It was disappointing to learn that the new automatic choke was not designed to quell the back-seat driver.

UNTIL 1921, NO WHITE MAN EVER APPROACHED WITHIN FIFTY MILES OF THE BASE OF MOUNT EVEREST.

AS the race of great auks dwindled down to a few hundred birds, natural history museums over the world realized that it was only a matter of time until the bird became a relic of the past, and they offered enormous prices for specimens. This only speeded up the work of extinction, and on June 4, 1844, the last living auk met its death.

Motor Fleet Uses Mobil Products On a Long Run

DALLAS, Tex.—Three to four days may be cut off the time for transportation of transcontinental freight between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, it was estimated after a caravan of five huge trucks carrying 80,000 pounds of payload reached Los Angeles after a four-day run from Chicago.

day, trail-blazing run to the coast lays the groundwork for establishment of regular motor freight service leaving Chicago daily for Los Angeles, to be inaugurated early in 1936 by the Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines, Inc.

The long, motor caravan of trucks rolled through the Southwest on a 24 hour a day schedule, stopping only to refuel with Mobilgas and Mobiloil, used by the fleet throughout the entire trip. The 13 drivers alternated at the steering wheels of the motor transports, spending their off hours sleeping or relaxing in the specially designed "bunk" car included in the convoy.

With All My Love

Against the wishes of her grandmother, aristocratic Mrs. WILLIAM M. MICHON, DANA WENT THROUGH MARRIAGE DR. SCOTT WANTED TO MARRY THE STRONG young physician.

DANA was so absorbed she did not hear the gentle tap at her door until it was repeated again. Then she called, "Come in, Aunt Ellen."

"Come in, Scott," Dana said. His deep voice answered, not entering but quiet and controlled. "How are you, Dana?"

YVIL LANCASTER said to Dana, "Now I know why America and England went to war once and good-looking chap was positively savage. Acted as though he had a personal grudge against me for some reason. Queer, wasn't it?"

"I never thought of grandmother as being frail," Dana thought, shocked. "But she is. Terribly frail. She looks as though a wind might blow her away."

Scott lifted his hand from her pulse. "Pulse definitely shows misbehavior on your part. Now then, we'll see about that heart."

That glimpse of Scott had been devastating. Dana's carefully built up self that you could build up with the materials at hand melted. She faced the knowledge that she was miserable and that marriage to Ronnie would not help her less so.

"He's coming tonight," Dana said, trying to speak brightly. "I'm glad," Mrs. Cameron said. "Dana—"

DANA could bear no more. Scott, who had been her husband, sitting there like a stranger. Speaking to her in a calm, alien tone. Talking to an old woman who had been his bitter enemy in a friendly, tolerant fashion.

There were other things to consider besides personal happiness. There was the fatality of loving a man who loved someone else and she was definitely out of your life here was the happiness Dana knew she could bring to two old people and Nancy, who had always had the hand end.

"I guess it is," Dana said in a low voice. "You mean you're going to marry him?"

She sat staring into the fire which burned cheerfully under the white mantel. It had evidently been burning like that all day, replenished by Sarah's conscientious hands. The room was too warm now. Suffocatingly warm.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Swoveland are visitors in Fort Worth Saturday.

Among Rangerites who attended the Texas-Oklahoma high school football game played at T. C. U. stadium Saturday afternoon, J. B. Houghton and Jimmie Rex.

H. S. Packwood left yesterday immediately after receiving a telegram from his sister that her husband died yesterday at Rochester, Minn. Mr. Packwood will not return home until after the services which are to be held early this week.

Earl Stie has returned to his home in Healdton, Okla., after several days spent in Ranger. He paid a visit to his father, Joe Stie, whom he had not seen for sixteen years.

Il Ducce seems fairly safe for the present, there being no way the league can cut off Italy's supply of balloons.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

DID you ever make noodles? You can—and the family will love them. Besides they will use up left-over egg yolks.

Since it takes but little more time to make enough noodles for several meals, add one or two whole eggs to the yolks to increase the quantity and quality. You need one tablespoon water for each egg yolk.

Noodle soup is a good winter luncheon dish and noodles cut in tiny straw-like lengths add much to the cup of dinner consommé or bouillon. When served in the clear dinner soup, noodles should be boiled in salted water and drained before adding to the prepared meat stock.

For parties, try a noodle ring filled with creamed meat or fish or a platter of fried noodles garnished with halves of hard cooked eggs and served with a smooth cream sauce.

Noodles

Three egg yolks, 1 whole egg, 3 tablespoons water, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2-3 cups flour.

Beat yolks of eggs, water and whole egg until thoroughly blended. Add salt and enough sifted flour to make a very stiff dough. Knead well on a lightly floured molding board. Divide into six parts and roll each part as thin as possible. Cover with a clean towel and let stand for thirty minutes. Roll each sheet separately like a jelly roll and cut in very thin slices. Shake out slices and toss lightly on board to dry. When thoroughly dry store in covered jars or boxes for future use.

When wanted cook 20 minutes in boiling meat broth or salted water.

In calculating quantities it is worth keeping in mind that one egg or its equivalent of one egg yolk and one tablespoon water will make enough noodles to serve four persons with a generous amount of noodle soup.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Halves of grape fruit, cereal, cream, crisp bacon, cornmeal muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Buckwheat cakes, sausage, apple sauce, molasses cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER: Consommé, bit-ocks, boiled noodles, spinach with lemon butter, roasted carrots, cabbage and fainin salad, date pie, milk, coffee.

Instead of cutting the dough into strips it can be cut in two-inch squares and used to make noodle balls. This is a good way to use up left-over meat or the meat from the soup bone. Carefully trim off fat and gristle and chop meat very fine. Season well with salt and pepper and parsley or onion finely minced. Add one unbeaten egg and mix well. Add milk if necessary to make moist enough to stick together. Fill squares of noodle dough with prepared meat mixture and draw together. Dampen edges with a little cold water and press firmly together. Drop into boiling salted water or meat broth and boil 20 minutes. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with parsley.

To prepare noodles for chow mein, sprinkle two tablespoons salad oil over one pound noodles and steam fifteen minutes. Liftina noodles carefully with a fork in order to separate well. Spread on molding board and let cool. Then fry until crisp and a golden brown in deep hot fat or oil. Drain thoroughly and use.

Meat with a well seasoned sauce or gravy is best with noodles. Patties of chopped veal, known as "bit-ocks" served with paprika sauce are delicious. Pan broil the patties and make a sauce in the pan, seasoning it well with sweet Spanish paprika and use tomato juice in place of water in the sauce.

One-Year Holiday
On Religion Favored

BOSTON.—Nations and individuals need something drastic to bring them to a realization of the futility of trying to live without God. Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts told a congregation. Bishop Sherrill said he wondered if it wouldn't be a good idea to blot all religion from life for one entire year.

Thus, he felt, the lesson of the absolute necessity of religion for right living and progress might be brought home.

Arena Wednesday

A rough and tumble fighter will be pitted against a speedy and crafty matman Wednesday night at the Elks arena when Nick Bozimis, the tough Greek, will be pitted against Al Szasz, the Hungarian flash, in the main event.

This bout, which is for the best two out of three falls with a two-hour time limit, will show the fans whether a rough fighter or one with speed and science will come out on top when the two weigh about the same.

This should prove an interesting bout, as it will have everything a wrestling fan could want.

In the semi-finals two who can dish it out and take it, as the occasion demands, or who can cope with science or speed, will be matched.

Benny Wilson, who has wrestled some of the best at his weight and has given a good account of himself at all times in the ring, will meet Pat Dowdy of Oklahoma, who is known as the Oklahoma roughneck. Those who have seen Wilson and there are few fight fans in Ranger who have not, know that when he is on the card they will see plenty of action. And those who have seen Dowdy know that he is just the man to make Wilson put out to hold his own. The semi-final should be as good as the final.

No advance in prices has been made for this card, it has been announced, and the arena will be comfortable, no matter what the weather may be.

IN the dark and middle ages, metals were classed as noble or base, and gold was the most noble of all. Silver ranked next, while platinum, now considered a noble metal, was not known. Today these metals are ranked as precious metals, because of their rarity.

No One Slighted,
Al Tune Says of
His Invitation

Al Tune, owner and operator of the new Texaco filling station at the turn of the new Strawn highway, north of the Main street crossing, is much perturbed, because some of his friends and customers think they were slighted, when they were not.

Tune opened his station on New Years Eve and issued a cordial invitation, through the columns of the Times, to all his friends and customers to visit him at the station.

In a news story it was stated that Tune had issued the invitation, and many were under the impression that written invitations had been sent out and they had not been included.

Tune requests that the Times inform those who saw the story that the invitation referred to was issued through the columns of the paper only and no one was intentionally slighted.

Tune is operating one of the most attractive filling stations in this part of the country and one that attracts the attention of everyone passing through Ranger, since it can be seen from a long distance in all directions and its neatness and design causes much favorable comment.

Members are urged to remember the date and be on time at 7:30," Rev. Stephens said.

EVER HEARD ABOUT
KING JAMES' OLD SHOES?
He had worn them for a long time. He knew the quality of their soft leather and their durability. In a word, they were easiest on his feet. That's why he always called for them.
We all have our "old shoes"—things to which we are accustomed and which make life easier by their excellent service. A brand of coffee, special sunfast draperies, a favorite complexion cream, wholesome health foods, a fine make of felt hat—these we ask for again and again. They have a dependable quality that is as important to us as the comfort King James found in his old shoes.
Read the advertisements in this newspaper, and learn more about the things which are part of your daily life. Naturally, you take their quality for granted (advertised products are reliable). But with closer attention to the news in the advertisements, you will be able to effect surprising savings, and find new uses for old favorites.
