FARM PROGRAM IS OUTLINED TO CONGRESS

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The administration combination soil conservation-domestic allotment farm program providing continued benefit payments to farmers, was introduced in congress today to replace the invalidated AAA.

Carefully steering clear of constitutional pitfalls exposed by the supreme court decision, the measure was presented as amendments to the soil conservation act.

The measure carried no appropriation of funds. Senator John Bankhead, Dem., Ala., sponsor of the measure in the senate, said he was seeking to insert an appropriation of $440,000,000 to provide for the new plan in the independent offices bill, the first supply bill to reach the senate.

The bill provides payment replacing the invalidated AAA benefits may be made to farmers who co-operate in improving their soil in methods outlined by the secretary of agriculture.

Carl Koch Talks At Rotary Meet

Carl Koch had charge of the Rotary club program at noon today and presented a very interesting classification talk on Goodyear tires.

District Gov. Jim Wilson and Arthur Mayhew of Chicago will have charge of the program for next week, it was announced.

Buckaroos Will Play In Ranger

The Ranger High School Bulldogs and the Breckenridge Buckaroos will meet in the second cage contest between the two teams this season tonight at the Recreation Building. The game will be called at 7 o'clock.

This is expected to be as closely contested as the Carbon-Ranger and the Eastland-Ranger games, played recently, as the Buckaroos defeated the Bulldogs at Breckenridge in the first game by a two-point margin and the Bulldogs are anxious for an opportunity to even the count tonight by turning in a victory. In the first game between the two teams the Buckaroos nosed out the Bulldogs by a 25 to 23 score.

Ranger has had several close contests recently, Carbon winning here by a score of 24 to 17, the Bulldogs winning from Eastland 16 to 14 and Morton Valley losing a close contest by a score of 27 to 22, in addition to the 25 to 23 game at Breckenridge.

The junior college girls team, playing its first game of the season, will play the high school girls. Coach O. M. Moore has been coaching the junior college girls and a rather promising team has been worked up. This game should prove as interesting as the Buckaroo-Bulldog clash.

Love of Basketball Restored to Ranger

By BOB STEVENS, Reporter for Senior Sports, R.H.S.

The 1935 Ranger basketball team has brought back to life that grand old game of basketball that seemed so long lost to Ranger.

Since 1928 the basketball teams have dragged through the seasons unnoticed by the fans who were disinterested because of the teams' showings, but the 1935 and 1936 seasons have brought about a great change, a great team has been produced, the fans have returned, the coach has shown more interest than recent coaches of Ranger. The great change that has taken place is a change for the best, it has not only built up a great Ranger spirit, but a great ball team as well.

In their first conference game Ranger finally broke a "jinx" that Cisco has held over Ranger for many years defeating Cisco by the score of 33 to 10.

Ranger usually goes like a house afire until they meet Cisco. Cisco seems to throw more water on the fire than any other team Ranger meets.

Looking over some of the old records may prove the jinx Cisco has held over Ranger in the past. In 1928 Ranger lost only three of their 11 scheduled games, two of these to Cisco and the other to Wichita Falls. One of their victims in 1928 was the T. C. U. Freshmen. The next year (1927) Ranger's wins increased one, winning 9 of 11 scheduled games, but as usual lost two to Cisco. And then came the fall of '28 that year Ranger lost five out of 11 starts and again Cisco's winning streak over Ranger held good.

Since 1928 Ranger's basketball teams have not caused other teams much trouble... up until this season.

The new recreation building, the band's support, the fans' support, the pep squad, and last but not least a great squad of boys, all add to the reasons why Ranger will win.

Are you acquainted with "Our team" they are H. B. Ball, center; Joe Rhodes and Homer Weisen, forwards; Dean Walsh and Clarence James, guards.

City Commission In Routine Meeting

At the regular meeting of the city commission, held Tuesday night, routine business was transacted after the minutes of the last meeting were approved.

At a previous called meeting the commission had denied a permit for a filling station in the old Stafford drug store building on the corner of Main and Rusk streets because of increased insurance rates that would be applied to adjacent property.

The building is being renovated and the second story is being remodeled.

BOND BONUS PASSES HOUSE BY 346 TO 48

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Congress slammed the $2,237,000 soldier bonus bill through the formalities of formal passage today and prepared to do it all over again if necessary to override a veto.

House completed action on the measure providing for payment in baby bonds which may be cashed or held as an investment when it accepted the senate measure and sent it to the white house. The vote was 346 to 48.

This compared with a vote of 356 to 59 when the bonus passed its own house last week.

The overwhelming majority in favor of the bonus emphasized the belief of congress it will pass the measure over a veto. This was based on the 74 to 16 vote for the bill. The veto and final vote may come early next week.

The bill now goes to the white house and provides for payment in 50 baby bonds, cashable after June 15. Or they may be held drawing 3 per cent interest until 1945, the original time for payment of the adjusted service certificates.

Gorman Test To Be Acidized; Wende Well at Cisco Is Awaiting Pipe

The A. A. Wisdom and E. E. Parson well six miles south of Cisco and the States Oil Corporation's test near Gorman were nearing completion Wednesday with scheduling of running of pipe on the former and preparations for acidization on the latter.

Striking top of the lime at 2,832 and showing for a showing of gas and revealing a seven foot depth of saturation, tubing was being set on the State's No. 1 S. H. Hockabee, Section 60, Block 2, H. & T. C. survey. Acid will be used from 2,830 to 2,850 feet.

The Wisdom-Parson No. 1 Gas Wende well, Block 3, Section 62, H. & T. C. survey, awaited pipe for the drilling in.

The Wende is reported as having "all the earmarks of a good producer."

'Dope' on Boomers, Wild-Cat Wells Is Sought by Writer

Information of boomers and pioneers, cowboys and Indians, wild cats and wild-cat wells, working men and millionaires is sought by W. K. Jackson of Eastland, first assistant for this district of the WPA writers' project.

Seeking information on those and other subjects is a part of the work of the Federal Writers' project which will prepare and publish a five-volume guide, covering the nation. The work in this district is being directed by Judge R. C. Crane of Sweetwater, West Texas historian.

Jackson this week received official notification of appointment from R. H. Horan, assistant state superintendent of the writers' project under J. Frank Davis of San Antonio.

The guide will not be concerned with history alone but will present in readable form information of the geography, culture, industry and commerce, the government, folk lore, Indian lore and local color of all sections of the nation.

Pictures, documents, rare copies of periodicals and books are also needed. If the owners wish to donate any valuable possession they will be carefully preserved. Otherwise, they will be copied and returned.

Premier Laval and His Cabinet Resign

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Premier Laval, chief advocate of keeping France on the gold standard, presented his resignation and that of his entire cabinet today to President Albert Lebrun. The president accepted.

Laval acted after the four radical socialist members of the cabinet, headed by Edouard Herriot, resigned on demands of the party executive.

The real reason for Laval's fall was that the left wing felt he was getting too strong throughout the country and decided upon his removal before the coming parliamentary election.

Borah to Open Eastern Campaign

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A smashing opening of the presidential candidacy of Senator William E. Borah was planned today with major developments expected in the next two weeks.

Cold Wave Heads Into the Midwest

By United Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 22.—A severe cold wave, bringing to the middle west the coldest weather of the winter season, swept southward across the plains states from Canada today.

A blanket of snow from one-half inch to two inches last night was whipped up by the northern gale that originated from a high pressure area centering east of Medicine Hat, Canada. In some sections of Missouri and Iowa the snow resembled a blizzard.

The high pressure area spread in a wedge shape over the Dakotas, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Minnesota. The cold was not expected to reach Texas.

By United Press

GENEVA, Jan. 22.—Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, revealed today that Britain, France, Jugoslavia, Greece and Turkey had made an arrangement to give each other armed aid if Italy attacks them because of sanctions.

Eden's revelation came shortly after the steering committee of 18 decided to move toward an oil embargo against Italy by appointment of a committee of experts to study if it could be made effective.

Eden sent a note to the chairman of the committee of 18 explaining the conversation held among Mediterranean powers.

Eden's note said France had promised that in the event Italy attacks Britain, "French support of Britain is assured fully and in advance."

The Turkish, Greek and Jugoslavian replies to Britain, Eden said, "left no doubt of their readiness to apply faithfully all obligations devolving upon them under the league covenant. Britain gave similar assurances to Turkey, Greece and Jugoslavia if Italy attacks them."

CISCO, Jan. 22.—Clyde Van Sickle, assistant coach of the Cisco Lobos this year, has been officially notified of his selection as head coach of the Little Rock High School, Little Rock, Ark., third largest high school in the nation. Van Sickle's selection fills the third and most important high school coaching post in that city with a University of Arkansas man, to whom the selection was restricted.

Van Sickle, who received all-America mention in 1925 and all-Southwestern honors in 1928 and 1929, played guard on the Arkansas team in 1927, 1928 and 1929 after four years at Morris, Okla., high school. He played professional football with the Frankford Packers and was assistant coach at Okmulgee, Okla., high school, where his team won 41 straight games and claimed the Arkansas high school championship. These and many more earlier in the day had filed into the nearby church to bid farewell to George V whom they knew not so much as a king but as a kindly neighbor.

Men and women alternately cheered the new king and wept for the old one as bands played "God Save the King."

Science Has Scoffed at Bleak Depression

Ask almost anybody what kind of time the United States has had in the last five or six years and he will tell you that they were dead and hopeless years in which nothing was brought forth but misery.

The wheels all ran down and stopped, in those half dozen years, and time stood still while men gathered by the ashes of burnt-out dreams. That, anyhow, is the way most of us size them up.

But things did happen, somehow, during that dead and hopeless time, to make the business of living easier and more pleasant. We have a great many things today that we did not have six years ago; and in some way they all came into existence in those years which the locust has eaten.

Suppose you go traveling, for instance. You can ride on new, streamlined, smokeless, and dustless trains which will get you to your destination faster and more comfortably than any train in existence in 1929.

If you don't go by train at all, you have other advantages. You can fly from New York to San Francisco in a day, or take an aerial sleeper, going in far greater comfort and safety than you could have done in 1929.

Suppose you build your own home; there, too, you can get more for your money than you could have gotten six years ago. New materials have been adapted for your use, new household appliances have been devised, new designs have been evolved—all to the end that the house you buy can be a more comfortable place to live in.

In the food you eat, similar improvements have taken place. It is easier to keep fresh fruits and vegetables on your table all the year round. The vitamins your body needs can be obtained in bottles or pills, if you don't care to get them in your food.

The very packages in which your food is wrapped are more scientifically designed to keep it fresh.

Such improvements have been made all along the line. There are new textile fabrics for your clothing; the range of your telephone has been increased; your radio is a better instrument, and some of the programs that come out of it have even been improved a little; your doctor and your dentist have increased scientific knowledge at their command; new books and magazines have been produced to give you intellectual and emotional stimulus.

These things are the gift of those half dozen dead years; years that were full of misery and despair for a great many people, but years in which, nevertheless, the great work of knocking the rough edges off life was carried forward as steadily and intelligently as in any other six years in our history.

WHEN THE DEMOCRATS ASSEMBLE

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—At the time of the 1933 massacre of little pigs, which brought on so much criticism, Mrs. Roosevelt herself is supposed to have made the naive suggestion that resulted in the creation of the FSRC—the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation—which bought up more than 250 million dollars' worth of surplus crops, for consumption by people on relief.

That program was off to a promising start, but trouble soon beset it.

The first blow to the idea came when Roosevelt decided that FSRC should be abolished—on the theory that his works program and return of the "unemployables" to state care would somehow guarantee everybody enough food.

Remnants of the FSRC were moved over to the AAA. Then Congress seemed to feel that the needy unemployed offered a good dumping ground for surplus crops and so suggested when it passed the AAA amendments appropriating 30 per cent of customs receipts for diversion of such surpluses, which would amount to nearly $100,000,000.

THE next blow came when AAA decided to devote more than half the money to subsidizing southern cotton farmers and indicated that much of the rest would be spent on dumping commodities abroad. Nevertheless, a few here still hoped that the FSRC principle might be preserved.

And then, late in December, entered Comptroller General John R. McCarl. He ruled it would be impossible to use any of the customs money for relief purchases.

McCarl held proposed purchase and distribution "would not constitute a diversion of such agricultural commodities from the normal channels of trade and commerce."

Next, Roosevelt in his budget message recommended that the section providing for diversion of crops with customs receipts money be repealed altogether, on the ground that it made budgeting difficult and was contrary to principles of sound administration.

The small group which still thought surplus relief a good plan was just beginning to lobby secretly for a new amendment when six of the "nine old men" obliterated the AAA law completely.

Now the farm lobbyists summoned here by Secretary Wallace to work out a new AAA insist that the customs receipts and diversion section be resurrected and strengthened in the new act. But chances are this will simply mean a controversy over export subsidies, which Roosevelt opposes, in which the surplus relief plan will again be ditched.

ROOSEVELT and Farley were at all times determined to have the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia because they believed it would help Senator Joe Guffey carry Pennsylvania for Roosevelt in November.

Pennsylvania's 36 electoral votes would be likely to swing the election to Roosevelt—if they could be had.

Philadelphia's business men's committee apparently believed it won the convention by raising the ante $50,000 plus expensive concessions, through Democratic desire to tune in with the Liberty Bell in the shadow of Independence Hall for public consumption, and because the administration wanted to hurl defiance at the door of Wall Street.

But suspicion grows that Farley was merely holding Philly up for extra dough while pretending Chicago and San Francisco had a chance.

LOUIS LANDS—SO DOES RETZLAFF

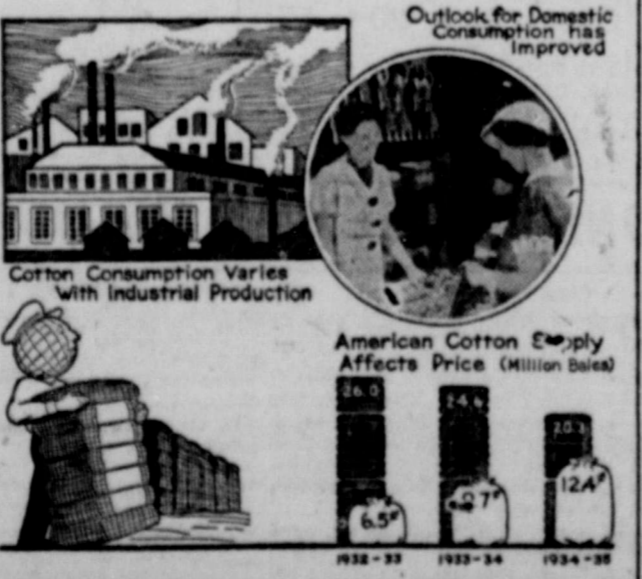

For just an instant, the inscrutable face of Joe Louis registered hate in his fight with Charley Retzlaff—and in that instant the North Dakota farmer landed on the deck, out cold from the power in the Brown Bomber's right hand. Retzlaff, undaunted by Louis' reputation, was brave enough to smack a right to Joe's face, and that was what brought on the slaughter in the quickest finish in Louis' career. Here's Retzlaff on the floor after a minute and 25 seconds of the first round of the Chicago fight.

King Cotton's Price Depends on Supply and Amount Used

COTTON consumption and industrial production move together. The rate of cotton consumption in this country is influenced more by the general business situation than by cotton prices. Cotton consumption in the United States was the highest for this November than for any November since 1933.

The chart in the lower right corner shows that excessive world supplies of American cotton depress prices and that prices recover with reduced supplies. The supply in 1923-24 was 25,961,900. With that large supply on the market, cotton prices could not recover. As contrasted with such excessive supplies, the World supply of American cotton in 1934-35 was 20,270,000 bales, and prices improved.

HOW SOIL CONSERVATION PLANS WILL BE WORKED OUT

(Editor's Note. For the purpose of better acquainting readers of this paper with the program of the Soil Conservation Service, today is presented one of a series of articles dealing with the work of the service as it will be carried on under the direction of the regional headquarters office located in Fort Worth.)

Detailed work relative to setting up of Region 4 headquarters office of the Soil Conservation Service in Fort Worth is now in progress and will be pushed as rapidly as possible, according to a statement made today by Louis P. Merrill, regional conservator. Announcement of the designation of Fort Worth as headquarters of the region, which is comprised of Texas (except the high plains area), Arkansas and Louisiana, was received this week from Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, through Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the Service at Washington. Office space has already been secured in the Neil P. Anderson building.

Most of the personnel of the regional staff will go to Fort Worth from Lindale, Texas, where temporary offices have been maintained for the past two months at the Duck Creek watershed project pending designation of the permanent regional office location. Supervisory and administrative direction of five units of field operations in the region will be handled from the Fort Worth office. These field units consist of 19 project watershed demonstrations, 60 ECW camps, 2 Soil Conservation experiment stations, 4 soil conservation nurseries and a research division.

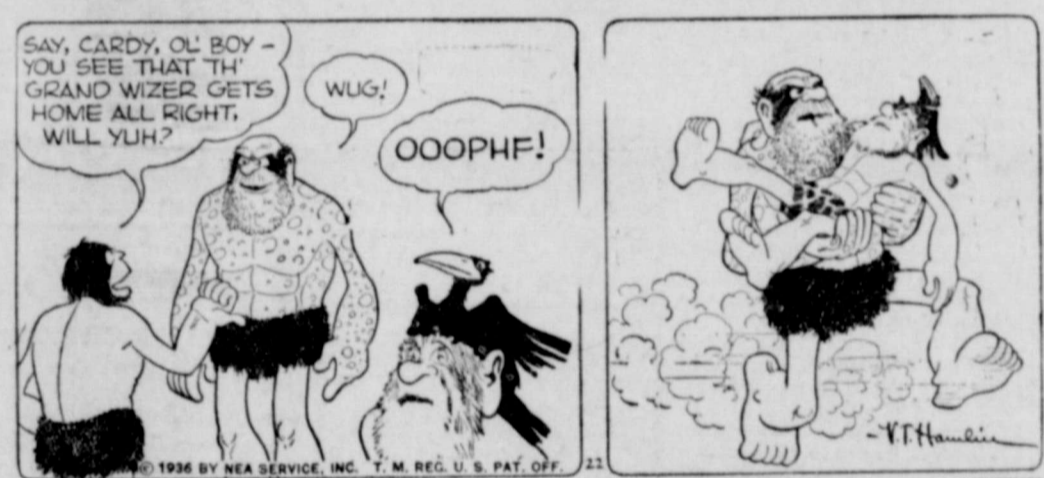

The 19 project demonstrations are operating on definitely defined watershed areas of approximately 25,000 acres each. Work on the individual farm units within these areas is determined by the suitability of the farm for an erosion control demonstration and the desire and ability of the farmer to cooperate in carrying out the program of erosion control planned for his farm. In working out a plan for controlling erosion the program best adapted to the peculiar needs of the farm is applied to each acre of the farm unit. In some cases it is possible to treat adjoining farms as one unit.

Points taken into consideration in developing an erosion control plan for each farm are based on proper utilization of each acre of land on the farm. Discussions of the special application of the different phases of the coordinated program, which includes the various phases of forestry, agronomy and engineering for successful erosion control, will be taken up separately in a subsequent article of this series. It is well to state here, however, that the primary agencies behind all erosion control and water conservation measures are the use of proper vegetative and cultural practices together, where necessary, with certain mechanical means of checking too rapid runoff of rainfall. In addition to ECW camp labor available for work in project areas, a considerable amount of labor from WPA rolls is being utilized.

Farmer Raises 3 Crops in One Year

GONZALES, Texas.—If farmer J. E. Davis had minded his cattle, he would have had good luck with his corn growing during 1935. Nevertheless, he had roasting ears on New Year's Day, gathered from his third crop of the year. Cows got into his field, however, and ate most of his last green corn. Davis, who lives at Thompsonville, reported he first planted 20 acres from which he gathered 600 bushels of corn. During the late summer he planted four more acres, using seed from the first crop. Last fall, he planted another acre which produced 20 bushels, most of which the cows ate.

posed of Louis P. Merrill, state coordinator, Soil Conservation Service, H. H. Williamson, Director Texas Extension Service, and A. C. Connor, Director Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Through this committee cooperation with other organizations and agencies is effected. The program of the soil conservation service does not overlap the plan of operation of any other agricultural organization or division, but rather is carried on in its own particular sphere of demonstrating a complete program of erosion control. The service works side by side with all other agricultural agencies in its demonstrations of the best means of maintaining the inherent fertility of farm lands and protecting them from devastating erosion.

The STRANGE CASE of JULIA CRAIG

WOODFORD laughed. "I'm not astounded Woodford must be a friend of every young woman in town!" "Well," said Julia, joining his laughter rather weakly "that's quite a reputation to uphold." "Indeed does a good job of it though." Then—let's see—there's Hugo Nash. He's an architect, and a mighty good one." Julia smiled. "Sounds like a star—sure so far except for me." "Oh no. You'll like the two in the office we have aboard Mrs. Joseph—she's a charming widow—and 'Clint Lee'." That name sounded familiar somehow. "You're weakly heard of her all right. She's a dancer, mainly. I think she's done something in Hollywood. With some ambitions, you ought to meet her." "You've forgotten Smith Garland," Julia reminded him. "No..." Woodford paused then needlessly smoothed down his tie. "I meant to tell you Garland was detained at the last moment and couldn't come along. I hope you won't be too disappointed." Julia was disappointed and bitterly so—but she hid her feelings as best she could. "Perhaps," said Woodford, "we can arrange a meeting with him at another time. Meanwhile it will do no harm to have Nesbitt here. He has a good deal of influence with the people who could give you a chance. I think probably he can do something for you." Julia smiled wryly as she recalled Nesbitt's promise the night he had called on Amy Sanders. "I'm sure he can," she said. AFTER BREAKFAST she joined Woodford in cigarettes under the canvas canopy on the after deck. Julia and her employer had finished their cigarettes when the rest of the party began to join them drifting to the after deck one by one. Clint Lee came first. She was a dark girl, unbelievably slender and somehow attractive despite her brilliant make-up. Mrs. Joseph, who joined them a moment later, seemed much less approachable. Royal Nesbitt was his debonair self, except for a minute or two of embarrassment when he confronted Julia. But whether his embarrassment was due to the fact that he hadn't kept his promise or whether it was from some obscure sense of loyalty to Amy Julia could not determine. Obviously she was with Clint Lee, and Julia guessed that it was Nash who accompanied Mrs. Joseph. There was some indefinable quality in the air which told Julia they were all assuming that she was Woodford's particular companion on the trip. Certainly Woodford's manner did nothing to dispel this assumption. Of course Julia supposed he wanted her to feel one of the little crowd. But she almost wished he would do or say something which would make it clear that she was aboard as an entertainer—and an amateur one, at that.

Norris Dam Near Completion as TVA Fate Is Decided

A mighty barrier 253 feet high and 1900 feet long, Norris dam, as pictured here, stood virtually completed as the U. S. Supreme Court decided on its ruling on validity of the giant TVA project, of which the dam is a major unit. With exception of the spillway gates, the concrete roadway across the top, and the powerhouse, work will be finished within a month, as all but 10,000 of the 1,000,000 yards of concrete has been poured. The $24,000,000 structure, on the Clinch river in East Tennessee, will back water up for 80 miles, forming a lake with an 800-mile shore line.

MANY FILM AND STAGE STARS IN 'CAPTAIN BLOOD'

More often than not the term "all-star cast" is a misnomer. But such is not the case in the Cosmopolitan production "Captain Blood," which First National will release at the Arcadia Theatre today.

At least ten of the players who support Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland, youthful and romantic leads, are bona fide stars.

Lionel Atwill, who plays Colonel Bishop, was under starring contract to David Belasco for a period of ten years.

Frank McFlynn, a man of 50 years' acting experience, starred three years in John Drinkwater's "Lincoln," an international stage hit.

David Torrence and his wife, Cleopatra Leslie, were both Shakespearean stars years before beginning film work.

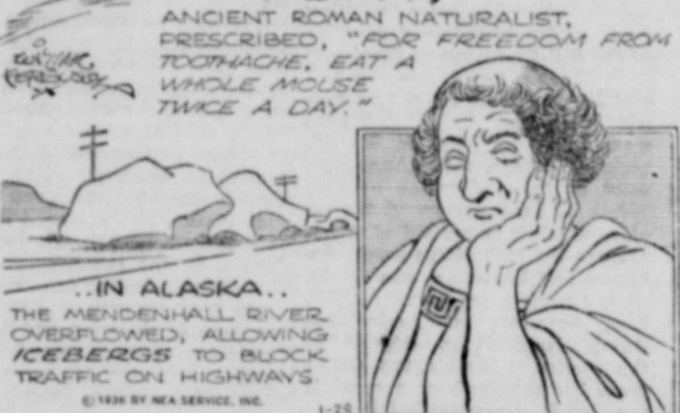

Guy Kibbee is one of the best known of stellar vaudeville players.

Then there are Basil Rathbone, London celebrity; George Hassell "spotted" in Schubert's "Passing Show" for 15 years; Mary Forbes, star of "Chu Chin Chow," at the age of 18; Colin Kenny of the Gayety Theatre; Harry Cording; Henry Stephenson; Reginald Barlow and Robert Barrat.

Equally as well known are Stuart Casey, Hobert Cavanaugh, Holmes Herbert, Forrester Harvey, Ivan Simpson and Leonard Mudie.

All play roles of early English pirates and Colonial officers in the

NEW MACHINE PICKS COTTON AT LOW COSTS

ByDYKE WILLIAMS
United Press Staff Correspondent
LITCHFIELD, Ariz. —World-wide changes in cotton culture may follow introduction of mechanical pickers, the inventors of the first successful machine picker predict here.

While a model of their machine was making a test run, John and Mack Rust, of Memphis, Tenn., forecast virtual elimination of hand harvesting, and suggested possible changes in the world's cotton trade.

"Machine picking costs can be cut to $1 an acre, or about one-fifth the price of hand work," John Rust, 43, elder of the two brother-inventors, declared.

"Picking machines are going to cause lots of changes. Maybe two million people or more who now work as hand pickers will have to find something else to do—go on the land, or be put to work in factories."

Nearby, the first successful test in history of a machine picker on irrigated cotton progressed evenly.

Cotton Picked in Stream
A steady stream of cotton was squirting from the end of a delivery pipe into a huge white sack that hung from one side of the mechanical picker. Picking was accompanied by a humming sound not unlike that of a vacuum cleaner—albeit principles of the two devices are entirely different.

The Rust machine has moistened whirling spindles, like extra-long ten-penny nails, which are pressed against the entire plant, and when withdrawn bring the cotton with them. Apparently, there is no injury to the plant or to immature bolls.

"A Brazil official told us they could produce cotton of 5 cents a pound, if they had picking machines," the elder brother continued. "An Argentine man said they could market cotton for 6 cents."

"The United States is not necessarily barred from future cotton export, however, he suggested, adding that "Some type of protection for the home market, with the price at 12 cents a pound might be worked out. We shouldn't be averse to paying our share of a tax to support a pro-rata market agreement, if the industry comes to that."

Soviet Inspects Machine
Russia has made a bid for aid in solving her cotton picking problems, it was reported. The President of the Amtorg Trading Company, New York agents of the Soviet government, reportedly inspected the machine. The model operating in the test here had been "wanted pretty bad" by the company, the elder brother said.

Eventually, the inventors, who control the company which plans large-scale production, expect to export machines to all parts of the world. To date they have made little or no effort to find buyers, they said.

Most local cotton men seemed enthusiastic over possibilities of the machine. Some estimated, however, that about 10 per cent of the cotton was knocked on the ground by the tractor which preceded the picker.

The speed of picking is multiplied twenty-fold or more. The harvested cotton is cleaner, and the rows, following two trips by the machine likewise are cleaner, than when hand picking is used.

Bill Angus Ready For His Bout at Arena With Perry

"Bring on all your flat foot polemen and any one else who thinks he can wrestle," was the edict laid down last night by Bill Angus, the boy from Abilene, who is to meet Bill Angus, Ranger policeman, tonight at the Elks arena at 8:30 o'clock.

This match is the outgrowth of an argument three or four weeks ago in which Angus gave a decision against Perry. Angus has not made any statement for publication, but it has been said he has been training for the match and will make Perry take back all the things he has said.

Ranger fans are backing "the cop" and a large number will be present tonight in case Angus needs any assistance.

Benny Wilson and Rex O'Sullivan will meet in the final. This match is a grudge match also because of a decision O'Sullivan rendered some time back in which Wilson lost the decision. Wilson has sent word that he will beat Sullivan any way he can. It looks like a big night at the Elks arena. Jack Duffy will referee.
