System Is To Blame
For Sea Tragedy

Imposing stiff sentences on the three men convicted of criminal negligence in the disastrous Morro Castle fire will probably satisfy the American public's desire to "get even" with somebody for that tragedy, even though it won't do very much in the way of bringing the dead back to life.

Whether it will meet the demands of justice, in an abstract sense, is another question.

The men convicted of criminal negligence are Acting Captain William F. Warms; Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott, and Henry E. Cabaud, vice president of the company which operated the Morro Castle. And although the evidence in the case seems ample to justify such verdict, there is plenty of reason to believe that the real culprit got off unscathed.

This culprit, of course, was the system under which the Morro Castle was operated; the system that permits fire traps to be put to sea, that permits owners to man their ships with untrained crews, that forces a skipper to delay until the very last minute the sending of an SOS in case emergency arises.

Granted that there was a tragic failure of the human element in this disaster—that officers and men alike acted in such way as to disgrace the traditions of the American merchant marine. That fact does not tell the whole story.

These three men whom a federal court jury convicted of negligence did not design and build the Morro Castle, and equip her with all manner of flimsy and inflammable fittings that were bound to go up like tinder, once a blaze started. They didn't invent the high-pressure competition which sends ships to sea manned by crews whom there has been no time to drill and discipline properly.

Most important of all, they weren't responsible for the change in merchant marine practices which has reduced the captain of a ship to a mere figurehead, unable to do anything of importance without a duly radioed authorization from his home office.

Those are the factors which made a wholesale tragedy out of a little blaze that should have caused no more than passing inconvenience.

Many things are responsible for them—business depression, natural greed for profit, slipshod laws governing the construction and inspection of passenger ships, and so on. Finding the remedies will be a slow, difficult job.

But until we do find them the way will be open for disasters like this of the Morro Castle to occur again.
Sending three scapegoats to prison will provide no protection at all.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—If gossip-nominated presidential candidates, Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts would be as likely a Republican possibility as anyone.

There's a choice report going around in rather exalted circles that Roberts, asked recently by a friend whether he would accept the nomination if it came to him, replied that no man could duck such responsibility.

Prominent Pennsylvania Republicans are said to be especially interested. Roberts was one of them once. Bosses in other eastern states also have been thinking about it. Roberts has become the hero of anti-New Deal forces through his majority opinions against New Deal laws.

It can't be said definitely whether Roberts has been sounded out. But no convention will nominate a man unless party leaders are certain in advance of his acceptance.

In 1918 it was William Howard Taft—not then on the bench—who first approached Justice Charles Evans Hughes. After that George Perkins, the ex-Morgan partner and financial angel to Teddy Roosevelt's Bull Moose campaign, did the go-between work with Hughes and the politicians.

THE Social Security Board is about to acquire an economic adviser who will study its vast program in operation, and consumers will have still another champion to represent them in government councils.

Walton Hamilton will resign as director of the Consumers' Division to accept the Social Security appointment. He will be replaced by Clarence Ayers, chairman of the economics department at University of Texas.

Hamilton is a professor of law and economics at Yale. He was a member of the National Industrial Recovery Board and recently has directed a notable series of price studies for a special cabinet committee.

His aim is to make a constructive attack on insecurity and his job will be to locate weak spots in the present program and study the problems which it doesn't reach.

He regards the problem of reducing the volume of unemployment both as imperative and as falling within the federal security program's scope of study.

Ayers was associated with Hamilton on the Amherst College staff.

THOMAS JEFFERSON COOLIDGE resigned as undersecretary of the Treasury not, as most reports said, because of disagreement with Roosevelt's fiscal policies. He quit because he couldn't get along with Secretary Henry Morgenthau, who, it has been said, tends sometimes to become arrogant and difficult.

Assistant Secretary "Chip" Robert quit after certain suggestions. Practically all his former duties had been taken away.

Coolidge's resignation leaves Assistant Secretary Josephine Roche, who has nothing to do with fiscal affairs, as the person with the most ability in the Treasury. Roosevelt runs the Treasury from the White House and under him the secretary will always be a "shadow man."

The source of Roosevelt's advice in Treasury affairs is rather a mystery, but the most likely suspect is Reserve Board Governor Marriner S. Eccles.

When a physically disabled person reaches 35, possibilities for training reach a minimum. Those disabled and at that age do not learn readily, figures reveal.

The department also arranges hospitalization for cripples under 21 and later for their training.

The work is an outgrowth of rehabilitation of crippled and disabled soldiers. In 1920, educators suggested that funds be also allotted disabled civilians. Since that time, McGlamery stated, the work has expanded.

Over 1,200 become disabled each year in Texas due to disease and accidents. One hundred in McGlamery's district are receiving training. Seventy-five are on the waiting lists.

While many disabled receive training as cooks, beauty culturists, barbers, teachers and shoe repairers, some learn to be dietitians, architects, journalists and attorneys.

Your Income Tax

HUSBAND AND WIFE MAY FILE JOINT OR SEPARATE RETURNS

Husband and wife living together may each make a separate return of net income of each, or their income may be included in a single joint return. If a joint return is filed, such return is treated as a return of a taxable unit, and the income disclosed is subject to both the normal tax and the surtax. If a joint return is not made by an agent of the taxpayers it must be signed by both husband and wife and sworn to before a proper officer by the spouse preparing the return, or if neither or both prepare the return then by both spouses.

Where separate returns are filed by husband and wife, the joint personal exemption of $2,500 may be taken by either or divided between them in any proportion as agreed upon. In certain cases it would be to the advantage of the

CAMPBELL-EWALD COMPANY, Advertising

H. T. EWALD, President
GENERAL MOTORS BUILDING DETROIT, MICHIGAN, TRINITY 2-6200

Ranger Times, Ranger, Texas. Gentlemen:

Campbell-Ewald Company celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday on Saturday, February 1, and I want to take this opportunity personally to express my appreciation of the fine spirit of cooperation that always has marked our relations with your paper, and that has helped to no small degree in the successful development of our business.

We are, as you well know, firm believers in newspaper advertising. Other media are important, but the newspaper is the final vital link between the producer and the consumer that must be, in the very nature of things, an essential part of any well balanced advertising program.

It has been a great source of gratification to me all through by business experience to note the friendliness and courtesy that we have received invariably from publishers in the newspaper field, and it is because of this that I am impelled to write to you this expression of appreciation now that we have been doing business together for a quarter of a century or so.

You will be interested to know that our business for last year was the best we have had since 1931, and that I have every confidence of still sounder and better conditions in the coming year.

Sincerely, H. T. EWALD, President

At this moment there came the faint sound of a ship's horn from the river. Jane glanced quickly toward the window which overlooked the shipping at the piers.

Jane dreamed of far-off places . . . romantic nights under a southern moon . . . starlight, the scent of jasmine . . . and a handsome baritone murmuring nonsense—

JANE WESTON heard the cold wind and sleet beating against the panes as she dialed the Central Employment Bureau again. She said in a tired monotone, "Miss Weston calling," and glanced at the office clock.

to save carfare," she confided to herself. "Besides, most of the employment agencies are close together in the downtown business district."

But she soon found the walking difficult in the slush. The icy wind cut her face and her gait was sadder and heavier.

"I'm down town making the rounds of the agencies," Jane said, "I'm through at the office; there isn't any more job. Won't you come down and share my misery this afternoon?"

Alice said, "Have you had your lunch?" "No."

"Well, you little idiot, go to Kramer's on Canal street and order some hot food. And wait for me there."

Jane left the booth and entered the little white-table-top restaurant with its pleasant smells of vegetable soups and pastries.

She and Alice had often made the rounds together. Alice wanted a steady job, too, but had found nothing except spare typing jobs to do.

Someone had left a newspaper at the table and Alice picked it up to look at the "help wanted" section.

But a headline caught her eye. "Sardine Prince Visits America." Below was a picture of a blond, smiling, personable Scandinavian youth, aged 21, who was making his first visit to the United States.

Interest Increasing in Hodges Oak Park P. T. A. Work

Increased interest was noted at the meeting of the Hodges Oak Park Parent-Teacher association Tuesday afternoon, when the leader of the program, Mrs. Claude Gunn, introduced one of the finest lessons of the new year. Little Miss AdeH Hassen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hassen, opened the program with the giving of the readings, "The Actress," and "The New Baby."

Mrs. Paul Taylor, Ranger's art instructor, talked on "Art in the Life of a Child." Her colorful talk was one of interest and value to mothers present. President, Mrs. E. R. Green, opened the business session, which brought with other announcements the coming opera, "Wedding of the Flowers," under the direction of Mrs. W. W. Jarvis, assisted by Mrs. L. E. White, scheduled for Friday, February 21. The entertainment comes under the sole sponsorship of Hodges Oak Park P. T. A.

Judging from yesterday's number of members present the remainder of the study gives true promise to a successful series of programs and achievements.

MONTREAL. — Several seore unemployed men and their families, tired of waiting for "better times" and jobs, are planning to forsake modern civilization and live like early Canadians lived. Uniting under an organization known as the Canadian Prosperity League, the men will establish a small settlement on the outskirts of the city next spring and will attempt to re-establish themselves on a self-maintaining basis. They will build their own homes, grow their own food, raise cattle, make their own clothes and govern themselves. The league is organized along the same lines as the Llano Corporation in Louisiana and will be a combination of agricultural and commercial enterprise. It is headed by E. A. Sackl, who receives unemployment relief from the city. Sackl said he hopes to persuade city authorities to allow the league to solicit funds to buy lumber and other equipment necessary to establish the village.

Legion Planning An Important Meeting

A meeting of unusual importance is scheduled for tomorrow evening for Carl Barnes Post at the Legion clubrooms, according to the adjutant, Preston Parks. Plans are under way for quite a large group of Ranger Legionnaires and their ladies to be in attendance at the tri-district convention to be held on this week-end at Mineral Wells. Carl Barnes Post is planning to enter a candidate for the district commandership for the 17th congressional district, and according to Post Commander B. H. Peacock, it will be quite essential that a large delegation be in attendance from Ranger.

The arrangements committee for the annual George Washington's birthday banquet will make its final report at the post meeting tomorrow evening, and it is expected that the plans for this occasion will cause many of the Legionnaires and their ladies and their friends to look forward to being in attendance. This occasion will also be in the form of a homecoming for former Ranger citizens and Legionnaires. The Hon.
