ARGUMENTS HEARD IN HENRY TRIAL SATURDAY

ASSISTANT TO HOME AGENT NAMED TO JOB

His staff increased one with employment of an assistant to Home Demonstration Agent Miss Ruth Ramey, County Agent Elmo V. Cook was assured Saturday of sufficient personnel for his work with Eastland county farmers.

Miss Cornelia Payne Stewart had arrived from Rochester and was making plans with her superior, Miss Ramey, for her work with girls' 4-H clubs of which she will have charge.

A 1934 graduate of North Texas State Teachers College at Denton where she majored in home economics, Miss Stewart has been employed in the school system at Rochester for the past two years.

Recently commissioners' court, in co-operation with chambers of commerce at Ranger, Cisco and Eastland, employed Hugh F. Barnhardt as the assistant county farm agent.

Three of Eastland U. T. Honor Students

AUSTIN, April 4.—Edward Terrell Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Coleman, Ralph Dominic Mahon Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Mahon Sr., and Clyde Erwin Chaney, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Chaney, all of Eastland, have received commendation for having made the honor roll at the University of Texas for the fall semester. All are enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The high tenth of the student body was divided into five groups dependent upon the relative grade scores of the individual students. Mahon with 5A's and a perfect grade score of 60 was in the first division. Coleman amassed 54 grade points with 3A's and 2B's to place in the third group, while Chaney totaled 48 grade points to place in the 50 group.

Eastland Students Pledged to Denton College's Society

DENTON, Texas, April 4.—Misses Carolyn Cox and Jamesa Chaney of Eastland pledged membership to the James H. Lowry Literary Society at Texas State College for Women (C. I. A.) following the annual week of rush activities held recently on the campus. Membership in the organization is limited to students who fulfill the grade requirements, and are elected by a majority of the old members.

Broadway Motorcade To Be Here Monday

Ranger will be host, for a few minutes, to the Broadway of America motorcade, which will visit here on Monday, April 6.

The motorcade, enroute to the annual convention of the Broadway of America association, will arrive in Ranger at 11:45 Monday morning and will remain in the city for about 10 minutes. From Ranger the group will go to Eastland, where a stop for lunch will be made.

TOLEDO, O.—Community-dancing parties to the music of a 14-piece WPA orchestra, have been arranged. Floor shows were organized by church and school groups.

Will Assist in Local Revival

Robert E. Kennedy of Dallas, who will assist in the music and directing peoples' work in the revival to be held at the Methodist church beginning Easter Sunday, April 12. Rev. T. E. Bowman, pastor of the Methodist church, will conduct the revival and hold two services daily, morning and evening, and extends a cordial invitation to everyone.

Houston Group to Have Luncheon Here On Tuesday

The Chamber of Commerce will be host, Tuesday, to a delegation of 100 from Houston, in addition to a 35-piece band, at a luncheon at the Recreation building. The Lions and Rotarians have voted to meet with the delegation instead of holding the regular meetings on Wednesday and Thursday.

Hal Hunter, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has announced that a delegation will meet the group when it arrives from Houston at 12:15 and they will proceed immediately to the Recreation building.

88th Court Petit Jurors Are Listed

Following is a list of petit jurors of 88th District Court for the week beginning Monday:

H. D. Maxwell, Okra; Overton Stone, Carbon; C. F. Stubblefield, Carbon; R. C. Mehaffey, Gorman; F. S. Perry, Gorman; C. S. Davis, Ira L. Swift, all of Rising Star; T. S. Richardson, John D. Harvey, J. J. Coffman, Roy Stowes, George W. Hipp, all of Eastland; W. E. Lusk, Nimrod; Jack Terry, J. F. Donley, J. B. Rayfield, Aaron Stiles, L. H. Taylor, T. D. Martin, William M. McDonald, Calvin Brown, H. E. Packwood, E. P. Walton, all of Ranger; J. B. Matlock, Olden; P. M. Ray, Edgar Alton, O. S. Carroll, Horace Conley, Simon Coplin, L. D. Wilson, R. W. Murphy, J. R. Pratt, Harry Schaefer, W. B. Statham, all of Cisco.

Man Wouldn't Sell Wife and Children So His Friend Employed An Assassin

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 4.—Robert Bowers, who was "too good a friend" of Tony Caldwell to kill him, but who allegedly arranged his death, was held on a murder charge with Marvin Parsons, who, officers said, admitted the slaying.

Parsons told officers Bowers gave him $50 for the job. Caldwell was shot Tuesday night at his home near Kansas City by a man who called him from the house. A desire to raise Caldwell's two children and to have his wife was behind the shoot-

A THIRD PARTY FINANCE FUND IS REPORTED

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Two versions of a reported offer of $2,000,000 to finance a Townsend third party movement to "beat Roosevelt" were given today to the United Press.

One informant who declined use of his name, said the money was refused because of dissension in the Townsend organization. The other said it failed because Dr. Townsend was "not interested."

Sheridan Downey, Townsend's personal attorney, said after a telephone conversation with the California doctor, there was no definite offer, but that Dr. Townsend wasn't interested in taking money from business and anti-union deal interests.

One Held, Two Sought For Alleged Murder of Ciscoan, Buford Tarver

One was held in the county jail and two were sought Saturday for the alleged murder of Buford Jack Tarver, 26, whose body was found on the highway one mile north of the Lake Cisco dam Thursday night.

Loas Woods, employed as special deputy in the investigation which led to the arrest and filing of murder charges against Jim Elliott, stated six charges—three alleging possession of stills—were filed in Justice of the Peace Joe Wilson's court at Cisco.

Woods aided Grant Daniels, Cisco constable, and Cisco Police Chief Herd of Cisco who advance the theory that difficulty arose between two groups of three men all against whom the murder and still possession charges have been filed.

Two men questioned Friday have been released.

Tarver's body was found a short distance from his automobile, the lights of which were burning and the motor running. One bullet was lodged in Tarver's back.

English Home of Lindberghs Quiet As Bruno Executed

WEALD, Eng., April 4.—A village policeman in plain clothes was the only sign tonight that here were Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh and their son Jon, or that World was in the same world in which Bruno Hauptmann died.

Last night's lights in Long Barn, the old home of the Lindberghs, have been out since midnight. The village was in darkness when Hauptmann died a little before 2 a. m. British time.

British newspapers in announcing the execution were sympathetic or denunciatory in their explanation of the long time from the conviction and Hauptmann's death.

Schools to Vie In Playground Ball

The Ward School playground ball finals will be played at Cisco on Wednesday, April 8, with Rising Star, Cisco Grammar School, Morton Valley and Hodges Oak Park of Ranger entered in the boys division. In the girls games Olden, Hodges Oak Park, Rising Star and Gorman will compete.

On April 17 a fifth grade playground ball tournament will be held at Cisco, with players limited to those below the fifth grade. A number of ward schools will have teams entered.

ON GRADUATE LIST STEPHENVILLE, Tex., April 4.—Waldene Lasly of Pioneer, student in John Tarleton College, is on the list of 144 prospective graduates, according to announcement by Charlie S. Wilkins, registrar at the college. The list is the longest in the history of the college.

MISS LASLY EXPECTS TO RECEIVE HER DIPLOMA IN MAY.

County-Wide Centennial Celebration Would Attract Attention, Editor In Colorful Oil Belt Era Is Convinced

Boyer House, Oil Belt editor for 10 years and observer of the county's colorful oil boom period, in Eastland last week as a correspondent for a Fort Worth newspaper, believes a county-wide cooperative Centennial celebration would attract many visitors.

"This county has been the scene of events that made Texas history and I believe a revival of the oil boom color at a Centennial celebration would attract national attention.

"If Cisco, Ranger, Eastland, Rising Star and Desdemona planned a cooperative celebration, former residents should come from over Texas and the nation.

"Perhaps celebrities and colorful persons—and the oil boom did bring them—would again visit Eastland county towns," said the writer of "Were You In Ranger," a book detailing events during the oil boom era.

"It's just an idea of course, but I do believe it would be a success. July as the opening of a week's celebration might make an appropriate time. Then the Dallas and Fort Worth celebrations will have opened and by the latter part of July the county would get the benefit of the influx of Texas visitors who travel through Eastland county."

The Fort Worth newspaperman advanced the opinion certain days might be assigned for each town, although features could be arranged on all days in the cities.

Frau Hauptmann Says Her Son Was 'Such a Good Man'

KAMENZ, Germany, April 4.—Old Frau Paulina Hauptmann sat red eyed from weeping on the edge of her bed in her tiny home tonight, mumbling over and over: "My son is a martyr. The Americans designed a scapegoat to blame for this terrible crime."

She fell silent for a time and then said: "My son is such a good man. They should have known him and they would have been convinced of his innocence, as I am convinced of it."

She sat staring at the floor, unaware that the United Press correspondent was leaving the room.

Missing Boy Back At Home In Ranger

Boyd Scott, 14, of Ranger, who had been missing since Wednesday morning, returned to his home on Mirror Lake Drive Friday night, his father, P. R. Scott, reported Saturday morning.

The youth had been to Fort Worth, the father explained, and returned of his own accord after being missing for two days and nights.

It was feared for a time that the boy might have met with foul play, since this was the first time he had ever left his home.

GUN CLUB SHOOT The Oil Belt Gun Club is presenting its season opening shoot today at their range near Leary.

TUESDAY WILL BE TRADES DAY IN RANGER WITH LARGE CROWD EXPECTED IN TOWN THAT DAY

Tuesday will be trades day again in Ranger, and it will bring to town large numbers of people from all over the trade territory.

The trades day on Tuesday, April 7, in addition to the regular trades day features, will have an auction sale on the lot at the corner of Austin and Walnut streets, where horses, cows, calves, mules, pigs, goats, poultry or any other farm produce can be sold at auction. The auctioneer will be furnished, and there will be plenty of water and shelter for the stock.

The auction, which was held on the first trades day, March 10, proved to be much more popular than was anticipated, and it has been incorporated as a regular feature for the first trades day in each month. On the second trades days rodeos will be conducted.

Many people from over the trade territory, many of whom find it just as easy to shop in other towns as in Ranger, are getting the "Ranger habit" through the trades days, and are making Ranger their shopping headquarters when they do any buying.

Assignment Made For Albany Court

Nude Figures On Memorial For Centennial Causing Controversy

AUSTIN, April 4.—Nude figures in a memorial design for Texas pioneer women's monument for the campus of the state college for women, tonight threatened a new storm over Centennial memorials.

Jurors to recommend the memorial are reported to have selected this figure. Board of control members object to it.

The design shows a nude man, nude woman, nude girl and nude baby. The woman is kneeling, holding the baby. The man is standing with his arms on the shoulder of the girl. The man's and woman's bodies are buxom.

Awards awaited a formal written report from the jury. Information about the awards

STRONG MAN PROTESTS ELYRIA, O.—Capt. Francois Russell, the "modern Hercules" with a traveling free show, doesn't complain when a heavy truck is driven over his body. That's part of his act. But when a truck stalled as the wheels were on his chest, the captain not only complained but yelled for help.

JUNIOR TRACK MEET IS HELD ON SATURDAY

Four divisions of the junior county track meet were conducted at Cisco Saturday, with Eastland winning in the high school division, Olden winning the class B junior high division, Eastland junior high winning the ward school section and Flatwood winning the rural school division.

The winners in each division, and the number of points made by each were as follows:

Class A High School—Eastland 27, Rising Star 18%, Gorman 8%, Cisco 7.

Class B Junior High—Olden 32; Pioneer 17; Scranton 16.

Ward—Eastland Junior High 16%; Hodges Oak Park, Ranger, 13%; Gorman 11%; Rising Star 9%.

Rural—Flatwood 29; New Hope 12; Romney 11; Okra 6.

In the Class B Junior High Division Hyatt of Olden won the 50-yard dash, the 100-yard dash and the broad jump; won second in the high jump and was anchor man in the 440-yard relay. Collins of Olden won the high jump, fourth in the broad jump, fourth in the 60-yard dash and ran one lap on the relay. Crossley of Olden was third in bar chinning and Mitchell of Olden ran one lap of the relay.

For Hodges Oak Park, Bill Reese was high, and also high for the meet, with a first in the 100-yard dash, third in the broad jump, a tie for second in the high jump, and third in the 50-yard dash.

Wheat of Hodges Oak Park won second in the bar chinning event.

This is the third consecutive time Olden has won the meet, the Olden team winning the all-around championship with 85 points.

Darrow Says Bruno Did Not Have Fair Trial at Flemington

CHICAGO, April 4.—When Bruno Hauptmann went to the electric chair he may have taken with him the last hope of solving the Lindbergh case once and for all, Clarence Darrow said today.

Darrow, brilliant criminal attorney, less than a week ago broke a silence of months to plead that Hauptmann was entitled to another trial. When he learned last night his plea had gone in vain, he was "stunned."

"There never was a trial in the true sense of American jurisprudence," Darrow said. "The whole atmosphere of the trial was against him. Principals thought more of their own place in the limelight than they did of the man whose life hung in the balance."

Darrow criticized jurors who admitted they were convinced many days before the trial ended that Hauptmann was guilty of murder of the Lindbergh child.

County Farmers To Hear of New Program Plans

A mass meeting of Eastland county farmers for explanation of the agricultural program which is replacing the invalidated AAA will be held at 7:45 p. m. Tuesday at the courthouse, County Agent Elmo V. Cook announced Saturday.

Jonathan Jones Rites Conducted

Funeral services for Jonathan Jones, 77, long time county resident who died Wednesday, were held at the family residence in Eastland with the Rev. Robert Butler, pastor of the Methodist Church at Farwell, officiating, and the Rev. E. R. Stanford, pastor of the Eastland Methodist Church, assisting.

Burial was in the Eastland cemetery under the direction of Hamner Undertaking Company.

A member of the Methodist Church, Jones lived in Eastland since 1875 when he settled in the Alameda community at Maankers Lake. He was born in Heard county, Georgia, Nov. 5, 1859.

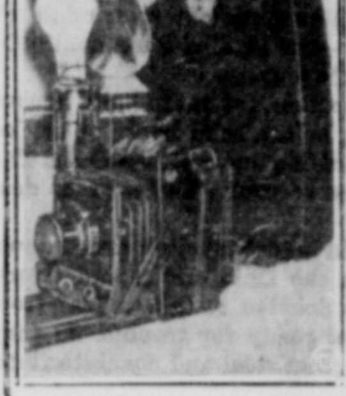

Although a resident of Eastland county many years, Jones lived in Palo Pinto county three years.

Survivors are the widow; one son, E. H. Jones, Eastland; three brothers, W. J. Jones, Alameda; A. H. Jones, Mountain Park, Okla.; Ed Jones, Millap; three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Blackwell and Mrs. M. T. Duvall of Alameda, and Mrs. Fanny Trimble of Rotan.

The 9:49 Bible Class quartet, composed of A. E. Harting, B. M. Collier, Frank Pierce and Dace Myers, sang at the services.

Funeral services were held at the home of E. H. Jones, Clyde Garrett, Frank Pierce, P. L. Harris, June Hargus, all of Eastland, and George Hatrell of Anson.

Cub Cameraman

ADDIS ABABA EVACUATED BY THE POPULACE

ADDIS ABABA, April 4.—This ancient capital of the last un conquered kingdom of Africa was evacuated today in expectation of a rain of bombs from the sky from Italian planes.

The populace was ordered out after five Italian combat planes flew low over the city, apparently mapping the ground for a later attack by Italy's powerful three-motored bombers.

The scouting planes dropped small bombs and used machine guns, wrecking two planes in the airport.

A terrified population fled, choking the roads in a mad scramble as they made for the hills, in accordance with instructions issued months ago by Emperor Haile Selassie in event of an air attack.

Many dragged their possessions with them. Foreigners took refuge in the legation with its bomb proof shelter.

After the attack and there appeared little danger of a bombing attack, many came back to the city, prepared to leave when sirens and cannon shots announce the arrival of Italian planes.

Three persons were wounded in the attack. The city's anti-aircraft opened fire but none of the planes appeared to have been hit.

Judge Patterson Instructs To Consider Witnesses As Accomplishes

Arguments in the trial of Raymond Henry, 25, who is charged with murder of H. L. McBoe at Rising Star May 1, 1933, continued Saturday night in 88th district court.

Judge B. W. Patterson put no restriction on length of the attorney's arguments.

The court instructed the jury in its charge Saturday morning to consider Pete Fenwick and M. E. "Sandy" Tyler as accomplices in the alleged crime and to disregard uncorroborated testimony of the prominent state witnesses.

County's Mineral Information Asked By Planning Board

The Texas Planning Board has requested aid of Judge Clyde L. Garrett in assembly of information on mineral resources of Eastland county, according to the copy of a letter from E. A. Wood, of Austin, director, which reads as follows:

Hon. C. L. Garrett, County Judge, Eastland County, Eastland, Texas. My Dear Judge Garrett: The Texas Planning Board is assembling information with reference to the mineral resources of the State of Texas. In this work we solicit the co-operation of our various county planning boards, or if the county has no planning board, the co-operation of the county judge.

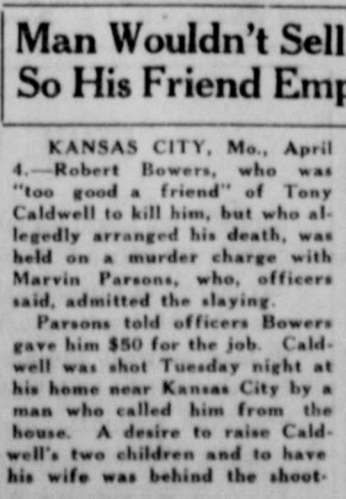

We are enclosing a whiteprint of map of Eastland county, showing pertinent information. It is our purpose to bind this map along with the report on Eastland county. For this reason we would like for you to consider the attached map and advise us if we have shown sufficient communities; if not, kindly indicate additional communities in pencil, and return the map to us for correction.

Our records show that Eastland county contains the following mineral resources: Building stone, clays (brick, porcelain, pottery, and refractory), coal, gas, mineral water, petroleum, and sandstone. If there are any other such materials, please advise us accordingly; and if you can possibly do so, kindly note locations on the map.

Thanking you for your favor, we remain,

Yours very sincerely,
E. A. WOOD, Director,
The Texas Planning Board.

City Proves Man Can Ward Off Disaster

Anybody who lives beside an American river might do well to reflect on two things—the case of Portsmouth, O., and the fable of the three little pigs.

The pigs, as you may remember, set out to build houses. One pig saw trouble coming, built a solid house of bricks, and got by nicely when the huffing and puffing again.

Now, Portsmouth is a solid industrial city nestled down on a point of land between the Ohio and Scioto rivers. Some years ago the citizens decided to take a leaf from the smart pig's book and get ready for trouble.

There are a good many other cities along the Ohio, from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, and of them all Portsmouth seems to have been the only one that went to the expense of putting up a big wall.

But Portsmouth sat tight and waited. This spring the snows melted, the rains descended, and the waters rose; and what happened?

Every other city in the vicinity was flooded. From Pittsburgh, where catfish made their nests among the lamp posts of the main stem, all the way down to the neighborhood of Cincinnati, the water went swishing through the streets, driving people from their homes, workers from their shops, and merchants from their stores.

But Portsmouth snuggled down behind its flood wall and went about its business dry-shod. Its mills, railroad shops, and public utilities carried on without a let-up. Children played unconcerned in yards 20 feet below the level of the swollen river.

City Manager Frank E. Sheehan estimates that Portsmouth would have suffered property damage of at least $1,000,000 if it had not been for the wall.

There is the neatest kind of moral in all this, both for those who live in river cities and for those who do not.

Those great "natural" catastrophes that visit us every so often—whether they be floods, industrial depressions, or wars—don't come out of a blue sky. We can see them, years in advance.

UNITED DRY FORCES OF EASTLAND COUNTY

Quite a number of staunch prohibitionists met on Friday morning in the county court room, in Eastland, for the consideration of present conditions in the county, and the prospective election.

It is understood that this election has been set for April 18. It is to determine the will of the people of the county, as to the sale of liquor of fourteen per cent alcohol content, in the various communities of the county.

The following officers were elected to carry on the campaign: Chairman, G. M. McGlasson, of Cisco.

First Vice Chairman, Earl Bender, of Eastland. Second Vice Chairman, Les Taylor, of Ranger.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—“I suppose this new program is a subterfuge,” remarked an AAA official privately. “But the nice thing about it is that it's a subterfuge which deceives nobody.”

He might have added that the soil conservation program, as a subterfuge, probably won't work. It is an excellent device for transferring funds from taxpayers to farmers and its ultimate potentialities as a conservation measure are very great.

In two or three years, insiders on the farm program now suspect, they will once more be confronted with the same old problem with which they started in 1933—huge surpluses of agricultural crops which are bound to force down prices and farm incomes.

There is the neatest kind of moral in all this, both for those who live in river cities and for those who do not.

Those great "natural" catastrophes that visit us every so often—whether they be floods, industrial depressions, or wars—don't come out of a blue sky.

program for this year will come far from the effect of crop curtailment. Winter and spring wheat, according to latest estimates, will be grown on about 61,000,000 acres this year as compared with 50,000,000 last year.

Winter and spring wheat, according to latest estimates, will be grown on about 61,000,000 acres this year as compared with 50,000,000 last year.

Corn acreage is expected to be up 6 or 7 per cent and cotton experts here are guessing on a 15 per cent increase in that crop. (It's against the law to collect figures on planting intentions for cotton since the government report for 1926 indicated a tremendous surplus and hit the market hard.)

REPUBLICANS are planning an extra-special effort to regain lost strength in the House of Representatives. They face the unpleasant and practically unprecedented possibility, in case they elect a president this year, of a Republican chief executive and a Congress heavily Democratic in both houses.

The party must win 115 Democratic seats and hold these it now has to get a bare House majority. No party has ever made such a cleanup and about the best the G. O. P. hopes for is to make a big dent in the opposition's majority this year, with the idea of finishing the job in 1938.

Dr. R. H. Hodges was reelected to a place on the Ranger school board in an election held Saturday and C. B. Pruet, running for the other place on the board, was elected to serve with him.

A total of 196 votes was cast in the election, an unusually large number considering the fact that no candidate announced for the position until Friday, which was considered an indication there was little interest in the election.

Questions About New AAA Plan Given Answers

WASHINGTON.—Questions and answers relative to operation of the new soil conservation program:

Q. What is the purpose of the program? A. To conserve the nation's soil fertility and prevent the waste of soil resources.

Q. When will it be put forward? A. It was proposed by the administration as a substitute for the invalidated AAA as the new deal's new program to aid American farmers and was approved by Congress last month.

Q. How will farmers be benefited by it? A. They will be paid for land they transfer from intensive cultivation in soil-depleting crops to soil conserving and building crops.

Q. How much will they be paid? A. The act authorizes distribution of $5,000,000,000, but $60,000,000 already has been distributed to winter wheat farmers who planted under the AAA reduction program but had not received any benefits.

Q. How much will each farmer receive? A. Payments will average approximately $10 per acre. Specific rates of payments are set up, however, for cotton, tobacco, sugar, flax, rice and peanuts. The $10 average will not vary greatly even for these crops, however.

Q. How much will cotton growers receive? A. Their payments will be computed on the basis of 5 cents per pound for the normal production of acreage taken out of cotton production and diverted to soil-conserving crops. Taking 180 pounds as the average yield for acres, cotton growers will receive $9 per acre.

Police Solve Mystery With Toothprint Aid

YAKIMA, Wash.—Detective Ray Derby of the Yakima police force solved a mystery by the use of toothprints. A spectator hurled a chocolate bar through the screen at a local theatre, causing $150 damages.

FREE SCHOOL

An Old Line Legal Reserve Life Insurance Company with home office in Texas plans to conduct a two-day school of salesmanship, as relates to life insurance, in this territory very soon.

Several persons were questioned by police, but all denied the act. Then Derby noticed the peculiar front teeth of a 15-year-old boy who was held. They fitted perfectly into the toothprints on the half-eaten candy bar found on the stage. The boy was turned over to juvenile officers.

T. A. (AL) TUNE
Most thrilling was the splendid contribution of the United States Navy toward the winning of the great World War. Commonly known and conceded as our country's first line of defense, it was for the giant battleships and destroyers of the American Navy to hold high the banner of the service during those hectic days of 1917-18. So fascinating and unspotted had the record of the fleet been kept throughout the years of our national history, that the urge to become a part and parcel of her caused literally thousands of American youth to enlist in the service for the duration of the war. And it has become a matter of common knowledge that the entire war strength personnel was recruited entirely from the ranks of volunteers.

Among others that literally sailed the Seven Seas under the banner of the Stars and Stripes was that of T. A. (Al) Tune of 809 Page street, Ranger, Texas. Eight times across the Atlantic, and once down into the waters of the southern hemisphere during the World War, spelled both excitement, comedy, tragedy, and never ending action for this erstwhile farm youth of Forney, Texas. On Feb. 23, 1894, an embryo sailor in Uncle Sam's Navy was born to Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Tune. They christened him T. A., but it soon became "Al" for short, and Al it has been even to this good day. The great expanses of his farming neighborhood and the genial atmosphere of good home training put the "spizirintums" youthful ambitions in the boy. He had long since heard and read much of the glamorous past of the United States Navy, so directly upon the declaration of War against the Central Powers, Al proceeded to make his application for enlistment. He was thereupon inducted into the service on June 30, 1917, in the city of Dallas, Texas. Forthwith, he was ordered to the Navy Training Station at Norfolk, Va., and after the short period of only three weeks, his transfer orders specified that he should report for duty on the U. S. S. Vermont, which had been converted into a troop ship. Little did Tune know, when he went aboard, that this was to be his floating home for practically his entire period of service of two years and three months during the war. And little did he realize at this time that the months and years that were ahead of him were to open up a vista of travel and experiences that would carry him well over a 100,000 miles across the deep; and that would employ numerous 6 to 14 day fleet maneuvers, as well as scouting and convoy duties in infested zones.

"It was in June, 1918," said Tune, "that we started on a trip that I shall not soon forget. The Chilean ambassador to the United States had died in Washington, and according to an age old custom among nations, it fell to the lot of one of the battleships of the U. S. Navy to act as a guard of honor in returning his body to his homeland. The Vermont was selected to perform this rare duty, and I, being a fireman on the ship, naturally, was to make the trip. The trip carried us through the Panama Canal and thence south skirting the west coast of South America until we reached Valparaiso. A motor boat appropriately draped and manned by a crew from one of the gun boats of the Chilean Navy, came out into the harbor where we were anchored, and carried the body of their deceased ambassador ashore.

"Another occasion, which was more of the comedy, than of the sublime, happened when our ship was in the process of crossing the equator. There is an old, old custom in the experiences of sea-faring folk that when the ship approaches the equator, it must take the consequences of invading the Domain of one Neptunus Rex, erstwhile Ruler of the Deep and Raging Main." And thus it was that Rex sent out his subpoena to Fireman Tune to appear before his Majesty and if found worthy, to be initiated into the Mysteries of the Deep.

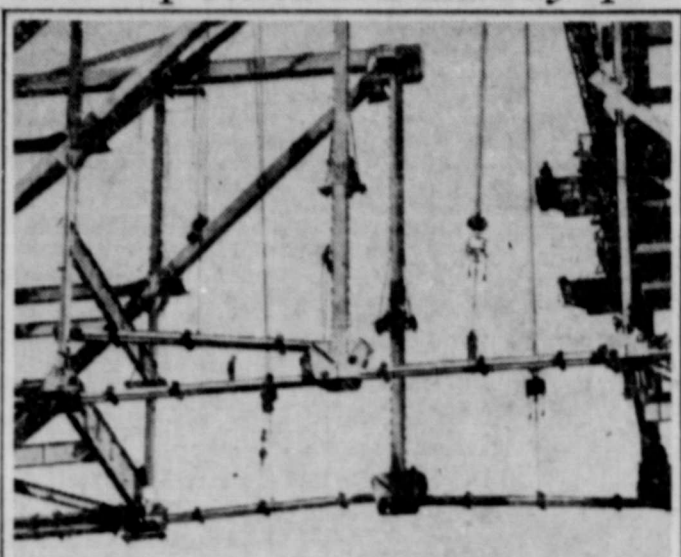

The trial and ceremonies incident to the occasion were short, but very severe, but with it all there came into Tune's possession, which he highly prizes to this day, a beautifully bound and engraved Certificate of Membership into the Order of the Deep, which reads as follows:

DOMAIN OF NEPTUNUS REX
Ruler of the Deep and Raging Main

All mariners and all mermaids, whales, sharks, dolphins, porpoises, sculpins, skates, crabs, lobsters, jellyfish, pollywogs, and all other creatures that live in the sea, wherever you may be, Greetings: Know ye, that on the 16th day of June, in the year of 1918, in Longitude 81 deg. 13 minutes west, there did appear from the northward and did cross the equator and did enter our Royal Domain the good ship "Vermont," a battleship of the United States Navy, bound southward for Valparaiso, Chile.

That the "Vermont" was duly inspected by Ourselves and Our Royal Staff and that T. A. TUNE, Fireman 2nd Class, being a member of the ship's company having been found qualified was duly initiated into the mysteries of

Last Gap Closed in Giant Bay Span

Clinging to girders and dangling from cables, workmen in the upper photo appeared like flies as they completed the difficult job of "hooking up" the last arms of the world's largest cantilever bridge, the San Francisco-Oakland Bay span. Working on their precarious perches, the bridge crews hoisted two huge eyebars simultaneously and fastened them with pins weighing several tons each. In the lower photo the bridge is shown after the last gap had been closed, the arrow pointing to the juncture. Traffic will flow east from San Francisco across the tandem-suspension bridges, through the Yerba Buena tunnel, and across this cantilever span, 155 feet above high water.

tion—of pathos, comedy, tragedy, joy, and sorrow—and what a war, for this farm lad who went to sea.

After donning his "civies" again, Tune went first to his home town of Forney (Kaufman county). Shortly thereafter, however, he entered the employ of the Hercules Petroleum company in Ranger, and later became associated with J. W. and Dick Elliott operating the Texas Company agency.

On Oct. 16, 1923, Mr. Tune was married to Miss Berlin Kohler, and to this family, one child, T. A. II, now 14 months of age, was born. Since leaving the service, Mr. Tune has spent practically his entire life in the Ranger community. He has assumed in a capable and efficient manner his duties and responsibilities as a citizen, and has on several occasions been honored by being elected to places of trust and responsibility. In September, 1929, Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion saw fit to elect him as its vice commander, and the following year as commander. Twice honored by the Texas Department of the "40 and 8," an auxiliary of the American Legion, when he was elected as Grande Conductor and also as Grande Commissaire Entendante.

The well appointed oil and gasoline agency at the intersection of Railroad and Harwell Avenues would not be the same, were it not for the pleasant word and genial smile of "Al". And probably numerous of his many friends and acquaintances who go to his station to "fill up," have little dreamed that such vicissitudes of war had come his way.

13-Year-Old Boy Hiking to Chicago

HOUSTON.—William Szustowski, 13-year-old Chicago wanderer, left Houston to hitch-hike home because the probation office budget was too small to provide $12 for railroad fare.

The youth had 50 cents, given to him by Assistant Probation Officer Harry K. Montgomery, said the boy, who had been here six weeks while the probation department tried in vain to get funds for his return home from Chicago authorities.

and is now counted as one of our trusty shellbacks.

All our subjects of the deep are therefore commanded to show him honor within our Royal Domain.

United States Ambassador to Chile.

And thus, away down south, off the coast of South America, did one more "gob" of the Fleet receive his credentials to that ancient Order.

"It was in September, 1919," reminisced Tune, "that I was ordered on a mission to the Bremerton Naval Base at Seattle, Wash. President Woodrow Wilson was to review the Pacific Fleet, and the famous old U. S. S. Oregon was to be re-commissioned and used as his flagship. The admiral had ordered that a picked crew from the entire fleet should be selected as the crew for the Oregon, and I was very happy to learn that I had been so honored as to be made a member of the Oregon's force. And not only myself, but the entire crew aboard were greatly thrilled when President Wilson and Secretary Daniels, in addition to numerous governors, and other notables, came aboard. I can remember the President to this good hour, although wrinkled and drawn from the cares incident to the great war, as he stood there at attention on the deck of our ship, and while the Pacific Fleet passed in review."

Many events, too numerous to mention, stand out in bold relief in the experiences of Sailor Tune. "On one occasion," he said, "we lost one of our men at sea. We were in the middle of quite a storm. A giant wave broke over the ship's deck, and one of our men was carried overboard. A boat crew was hastily put out, as well as the life buoys, when the poor fellow went down when almost within reach of it."

"And as to submarines," he said, "our first and only contact with them happened to be when returning to the States through the Caribbean Sea. It was the second night out of Colon, and I was on watch. The ship had been cruising along at its ordinary speed of about 14 knots, when a sudden order of full speed ahead was given. It was later reported that two submarines had been sighted and that our ship rammed one of them and had eluded the other."

The battleship Vermont, according to Tune, had a battery of 12 boilers which were fired with coal. Each tour of duty for a four-hour period required the services of three firemen, two coal hoovers, and one water tender for each of the six firerooms. The two twin crew engines which developed the ship's motive power, according to Tune's best recollection, developed approximately 18,000 horsepower each. The ship's regular cruising speed was approximately 15 knots, with a maximum of 21 (a knot being 1 1/4 miles).

But the ending of the war and the return of the troops home wrote "finis" to the naval services of Tune. He received an honorable discharge from the United States Navy at Dallas, Texas, on Oct. 19, 1919. And what a period of ac-

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE

In any city market at this time you can find at least a dozen piles of vivid greens, each one rich as rich in iron, sulphur, phosphorus and that important vitamin A that bodies need to grow on. They have other virtues, too, these emerald piles, for they provide roughage and are cheap just now.

Tender, fine-textured and delicately flavored greens like spinach and sorrel should be cooked without extra water. The drops that cling to the leaves after washing will give sufficient moisture. The coarser leafy greens, like dandelions, kale, chickory and escarole need a small amount of water which should be boiling when the greens are added.

Greens Are Good Raw

Many greens may be used raw as a salad. Or they may be moided and chilled after cooking and served with a piquant dressing. Chickory and escarole are more succulent if they are cooked when they are young and a pale green color. When fully mature, the leaves become yellowish and are better eaten raw with any good salad dressing.

A very simple way to cook beet greens is with bacon fat and a thick slice of lemon—rind and all. This gives the greens an excellent flavor without the bother of making a tart sauce. By the way, you can have many a fine mess of greens from thinning the rows of beets in your garden this spring.

Beet Greens With Lemons

Two pounds beet greens, 4 tablespoons bacon fat, 1-2 lemon, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon ginger, few grains white pepper, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Wash and chop greens. Put into...

I HAVE a friend who claims that luncheon is the hardest meal of the day to plan. She has two children who must have nourishing and substantial food at noon-time. She markets on a budget and tries to avoid using left-overs, so you see, there is a problem, indeed.

My friend plans her luncheon menus especially for the children and dinner menus especially for grown-ups. Fortunately her family enjoy simple foods so her dinner dishes are seldom taboo for the smaller ones.

For luncheon, the paste-foods are inexpensive and full of calories and if combined with milk and cheese furnish plenty of nourishment. Milk is the cheapest source of calcium available and furnishes a fairly cheap supply of fish, protein and phosphorus.

Cheese Valuable as Flavoring

Cheese, a milk product, duplicates some of the food elements of milk in a concentrated form, but its flavor adds immeasurably to the interest of a paste-food dish.

It would be hard to find a better source of carbohydrates than you get in macaroni. So when you combine it with milk and cheese you have nearly all the food elements necessary for a well balanced meal in one dish.

Fruit dessert or perhaps a fruit salad and no dessert will finish the meal perfectly with vitamin A which helps the body combat certain types of infection.

Be sure to season all macaroni and spaghetti dishes well. Bacon mixed with the cheese gives a delightfully savory taste and if you want the bacon flavor without the bacon you can use a piquant seasoning which does the trick most cleverly.

It's amazing how much pep the...

Ten Guides Are Offered As An Aid To Job Hunters

By United Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — With thousands of youths looking for jobs and many more to join them upon graduation from schools and colleges in June, Ralph R. Wulf, senior placement assistant at the Yale University bureau of appointments, cites 10 rules for getting a job.

- 1. Find out what you want to do. An employer doesn't care what you're interested in. 2. Study yourself. What have you to offer a prospective employer? Remember, getting a job, is largely a matter of "selling yourself." 3. Study your market — the places where you are likely to find jobs. 4. Prepare the story of your experience and your capabilities carefully. 5. Find out all you can about your prospective employer. Look up his business and know exactly what you can offer his organization. 6. Wear suitable clothes. 7. Be well groomed. 8. Avoid Mondays, Saturdays and days before and after holidays. 9. Look alive. 10. Have something to say. Say it. Stop talking!

"Getting a job," according to Wulf, "is mostly selling yourself. You must show your prospective employer how you are going to benefit his organization. An interview shouldn't last more than 20 minutes. If you can't make your potential value apparent during this time, it is not likely that you will ever do so. Limit yourself to 20 minutes — and this is a good point to remember whether you are interviewing for a job or conferring with an associate after you have obtained one."

In speaking of his experiences, Wulf says that some employers express preference for students who stand high scholastically; others care little how a student fared in the classroom but are interested primarily in his extra-curricular activities. Few football men ever apply for jobs through the Yale placement bureau, but letter men in every other sport are prominent in the files of job-seekers.

Gorgeous

By Laura Lou Brockman

MEAN HERE TODAY TOBY RYAN is a common-sense model, looking for advertisement. He shows an advertisement with HARRIET HOUM after a model.

HARRIET who was at the mirror coating her hair into soft waves said, "There's a letter for you, Toby. It came in the afternoon mail."

"Dear Dream Girl: I suppose you will be surprised to get this letter from someone you have never seen or heard of, but since I do not know where you are, writing this letter is the best I can do. I hope it will reach you, Dream Girl, for you are the one I have been searching for all my life. I have another picture like the one I am putting in this letter and I keep it in my watch and look at it many times a day."

"I would send you one of my pictures, but I do not have any that do me justice. Dream Girl, I have roved the world, but now I am ready to settle down in a little home and know that you are the one to share my lot. Will you please write to me and tell me your name and address? Until then I will just call you Dream Girl and count the days until I hear from you."

Ever-lovingly, "Jonas Huckleberry." Toby read it slowly, for some of the words were almost illegible. "What's the matter, honey?" "This letter, it's perfectly crazy. I wish to know, for some time now, Harriet crossed the town and took it from her when she had finished. 'It's a proposal,' Harriet exclaimed. 'Jonas Huckleberry wants you to marry him. Toby, don't allow me to share his bed--I'll be his a top once I've had some fun, shall never, well, covering there's a husband if you want him.'"

"I certainly don't." The other laughed. "You needn't take it so seriously," she said. "He'll never be able to find your name or address. Listen, honey. Glad's going to be busy tonight. What do you say we see a movie together?"

It was the afternoon of the following day Howard Blane, junior member of the firm of Ambers and Blane, stood in the office of Al McCracken, copy writer of the advertising agency. "I've just been talking to Ramsey," Blane said. "He'll have those tables of statistics over here this afternoon."

"Thanks," Blane took the bulky sheets and turned to go. His way to the door, he swung around and came back. "I thought we were ready to go ahead on that Hillier soap series," he said confidentially. "But there's another delay. Hillier wasn't satisfied with the model I took from you. That's the trouble with that place. Everthing's got to be cleared by Hillier himself. Talking to anyone else is just a waste of time."

"There was a sound in the doorway and both men turned. Bill Brandt stood there. He said, "Excuse me. I thought you were alone, Mr. McCracken." "Did you finish that Bradley copy?" McCracken asked. "Yes, I have it here."

Blane's words still rang in Bill's ears. "A girl whose pictures haven't been used too much... one with freshness and charm... she can hold a bar of soap in her hand and make you think that, because she likes it, you'll like it too... It's going to be a nice job for the girl who lands it."

viewing the history of the company manufacturing them. He was supposed to be reading that history. But Bill disregarded it, as well as the south drops. He opened a drawer of his desk and took out several clippings. They were advertisements cut from newspapers and magazines. In each there was a picture of a girl—the same girl.

Bill laid the clippings out before him, rearranged them. He sat back and studied them and presently withdrew one. Then another. At last only one remained. It was the photograph of a girl with an arched forehead. She was looking up, smiling, and the wind had blown her hair back from her face. It was easy to imagine this girl hailed by the glories of a summer morning, drinking in the beauty of trees and sky and yellow sunshine. It was Toby Ryan.

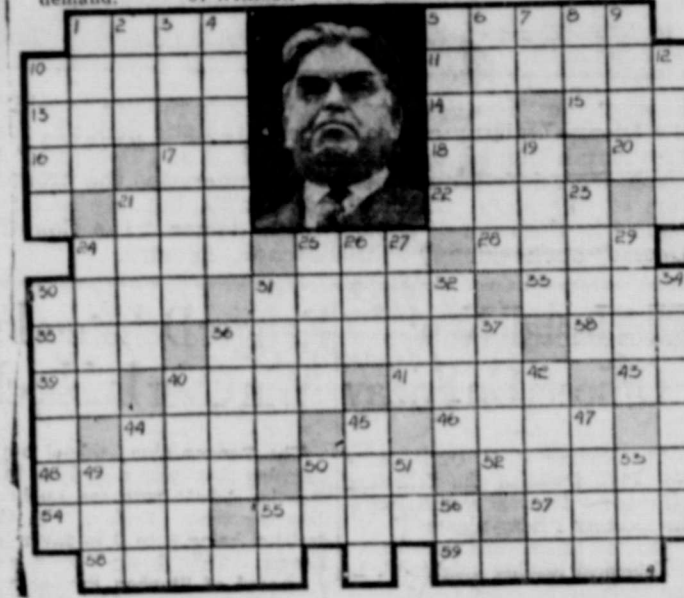

"FOR several minutes Bill studied the picture. Then he arose and went to Howard Blane's private office. The door of the room was open and Bill stood there a moment before he entered. "Mr. Blane," he said, "I couldn't help hearing what you were saying about finding a model to pose for the Hillier soap advertisements."

"That's what I wanted to tell you," Bill went on eagerly. "Toby'll be a knock-out in color." "Hm. Has she ever posed for any color photographs?" "No, I don't think so, but that's really an advantage. You said you were anxious to find a girl whose picture hasn't been used a lot. In color photographs Toby will look like a different girl. No one will ever know they've seen her before."

"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll put her picture in with some others we're considering. He went on, smiling. "It occurs to me, Brandt, that we've had you in the wrong department. Maybe you should be selling ads instead of writing them."

Interscholastic District Meet to Be Held April 17

BRECKENRIDGE.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the district held here the following plans were made for the Interscholastic League district meet: The meet is to be held here on April 17 and 18, the literary events on Friday, and the track and field meet on Saturday. The tennis tournament will start on Friday and run through Saturday. The one-act play contest will be held one day earlier—on Thursday, April 16, beginning at 9:30 a. m. The volley ball tournament will be held on Saturday, April 18, beginning at 10:30 a. m. (The time was set this late in order that teams might come from home that morning.) There will be no entrance fee in volley ball. Ribbons will be given as individual awards. The 11 rotating cups will be awarded for team events. The rotating cups and trophies listed below must be sent in to the director general not later than April 1. Those are to be packed very carefully. They are to be put on display down town before the meet. Fees charged for entry will be the same as for the past two years, 25 cents for the first entry of an individual student in literary or track events and 10 cents for each additional event entered by that student. Fees should be paid by the school rather than by the student and should be sent to the director general by April 10. Where the student is unable to come, fees will be refunded at the meet. As the payment of fees at the beginning of an event causes much confusion and loss of time, all are urged to send in fees ahead of time. In case this is not done the student will be required to go down to the superintendent's office, pay the fee, and bring a receipt back before being allowed to enter.

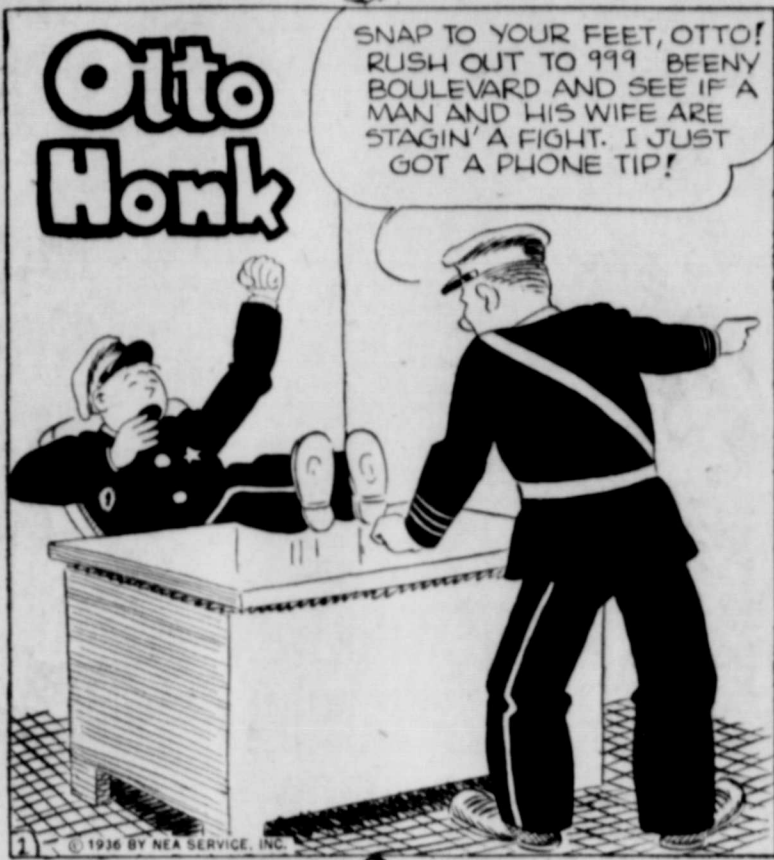

Queen Material

Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, is revealed as an exceptionally pretty child in this new picture. Just received in America. She gives promise of being Britain's most beautiful queen, should she succeed to the throne, to which she is second in line. Judges for declamation and debate will be selected by a committee appointed by the chairman. Judges for other events will be selected by the respective directors. All directors are urged to report to the director general in the superintendent's office at least 30 minutes before the opening of the contests. As Breckenridge does not have an entry in choral singing, local judges will be used for that contest. The all-round championship will be awarded according to points in the Interscholastic League Bulletin. Detailed programs will be mailed out about April 11. "Hitler tells the world he made Germany what it is today." It was noble of him to confess.

Programs On McBeth Prove Interesting at Club Study

The last two meetings of 1920 club held in the Colonial room, Gholson hotel, brought interesting lessons on McBeth, offered under the leadership of Mrs. C. D. Woods.

Business periods were put aside at the sessions and the entire study devoted to the study. Story of the play, McBeth, was given by Mrs. J. S. McDowell, and "Witches" prepared in paper form by Mrs. Lula Riddle, who was out of town was read by Mrs. Woods.

"Character Study Banquet," Mrs. John M. Gholson. Character Study was splendidly given by Mrs. Crawford of Cisco, and Lady McBeth, by Mrs. O. L. Phillips; MacDuff, Mrs. Fred Driehofner.

April 16th will bring the closing program on McBeth, preceding National Music Week, slated for May 7th.

Members of the club found the above lesson one of the most worthwhile listed in the course for this year.

Meet With Mrs. Brink

A day of quilting was held at the home of Mrs. E. S. Brink, Walnut street, last week when a group of women met and spent the time in stitching the blocks assembled and presented Mrs. Brink several weeks past.

YOUTH APPEAL IN NEW HUDSON 8 CONVERTIBLE COUPE

Due to an unusually early demand, shipments of the new Hudson and Terraplane convertible models have been started already from the Hudson factory in Detroit, according to W. R. Tracy, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

"Particularly strong," said Mr. Tracy, "is the demand for the new Hudson Eight convertible coupe. The strong 'youth appeal' of this car, with its 112 or 124 horsepower motor and flashing acceleration, and smart appearance, is making it one of the most popular cars in the entire Hudson line this Spring.

Finished in an entirely new color—antique ivory—this car has attracted wide attention wherever it has been shown. Other Spring colors announced by Hudson are: maroon, sage green and glacier blue.

The new Hudson Eight convertible coupe, with its wide seat that provides plenty of room for three with room for two more in the spacious rumble seat, is admirably adapted for all climates, giving the luxury of an open car for Spring and Summer, and the comfort of a closed car for the cooler seasons. It requires only a moment to change the car from a closed model to an open one, and only a moment to replace the top when desired.

"The early demand for convertibles," said Mr. Tracy, "indicates not only an advance in the Spring rush to buy cars, but points to a strong and continued demand for cars of all models throughout the Spring and Summer. Last year, the demand for convertible models was at its height in April. From all indications, these figures will be far exceeded during March, and will continue high."

Postage is Problem For Pension Board

AUSTIN—Direction of Old Age Assistance offered real organization problems to Orville S. Carpenter, former state auditor and efficiency expert, upon whom the job fell. The pension force is among the largest in the state although its first employe did not go to work until Feb. 14.

Instruction of this force was only one of the problems. Many little things bobbed up for solution. Postage, for instance, had Carpenter stymied for a time. The Postal Department notified him that pension applications, although
