LOVE MOTIVE FOR SLAYING WIFE DECLARES

BEAUMONT, May 1.—Love led the slaying of Marie Childs, 35, automobile salesman of Center, Texas, Mrs. Reba Childs, 25, was cited today as telling officers in sitting complicity in the crime. Childs insisted she was unaware that Terrence Bramlett, 21, former CCC worker of Jefferson, killed to shoot her husband the night of April 23. The accused man also held her. He allegedly has confessed firing the fatal shot. "However, I love Terrence and at the same time he gets," Mrs. Childs said in a jail cell here. "We are both in on it and I'm going down the line with him," she declared. "Love and not my husband's money prompted the deed." Both are charged with murder.

Grand Jury Urges Okra 'Firebug' Causing 'Considerable Fear' Be Confined In One of State Asylums

Recommendation that officials take steps to recommit an Okra patient of unsound mind with a conviction for fires and who is causing considerable fear to an institution was expressed in a resolution passed by retiring 88th district grand jurors Thursday afternoon. The resolution was as follows: Whereas it has come to the attention of the grand jury that there is in the Okra community a person who has been heretofore adjudged before a jury and court to be of unsound mind, and causing considerable fear, and whereas it is known that fires have a considerable fascination for said party, and said party has

SELASSIE IS NOT TO QUIT IN HIS FIGHT

ADDIS ABABA, May 1.—Emperor Haile Selassie, with the Italian forces at the gates of his capital, proclaimed late today that he would resist the Italian invaders to the last, although forced to abandon Addis Ababa. The emperor said direct peace negotiations with the Italians are out of the question, and that he would negotiate only through the League of Nations. Just before the departure of 5,000 men of the imperial guard for the hills, Haile Selassie said his abandonment of Addis Ababa under pressure is not significant and that a new seat of government would be established farther south. "I will never negotiate peace directly with the Italians," he said. "This country will negotiate only through the league. I will never leave my country of my own free will. "Will he outside world abandon us to our fate? "Ethiopia is not suing for peace," he said. The emperor had lost his dominant look of a few months ago and seemed worn and haggard. His beard was streaked with gray. His hands were bandaged, allegedly because of burns from Italian gas.

A reduction of 28 per cent in the four major appropriation bills, totaling $13,144,905.00, was made. We had inherited a deficit in the treasury of approximately 10 millions, and through the adoption of the Homestead exemption amendment—one which I favored—the revenue of the state was reduced about four millions a year." L. W. Williams of Sulphur Springs, her father, testified in her trial on murder charges that his daughter appeared "heart broken" at the funeral of Dorothy Leon McCasland, 12, the last of her daughters to die, allegedly, of poisoning. His wife likewise described her as being "very affectionate" toward her children. The grandmother said she took Dorothy Leon to Sunday school and church several times herself and said the child was given a Sunday school diploma. Each of three defense witnesses called, told of seeing rats or mice in the Patterson home, supporting the defense contention that Mrs. Patterson had a legitimate reason for purchasing arsenic.

Selfishness To Blame For League Failure

If you listen carefully these days you can hear our friends beyond the Atlantic chanting the first bars of that old familiar song about how the League of Nations is being crippled because the selfish, thoughtless Americans aren't pitching in and doing their part to make it work.

Europe has sung that song, off and on, ever since the 1920 presidential election. Right now the chorus is being raised with hewed vigor, and many honest Americans thereby are being made to feel sorrowful.

Admittedly the league is in a bad way. Admittedly, also, the United States has never climbed on the league bandwagon. Is the second of these two facts responsible for the first?

It was our own Secretary of State Stimson who called on the league for action some four or five years ago, when Japan was marching into Manchukuo in defiance of a whole armful of treaties.

Here was an ideal case for league action; here, too, the United States was not only willing, but anxious, to co-operate. So what happened?

The French and the English, those high-souled believers in the sanctity of treaties and the beauties of collective action against aggressor states, simply couldn't be bothered. They looked the other way so pointedly that our Mr. Stimson was left 'way out on a limb, to his vast embarrassment.

The Japanese went ahead with their program as unhampered by collective action as if the league had never been invented.

A few years passed and Mussolini sent his troops into Ethiopia. This time England suddenly awoke to the need for collective action—Ethiopia being in the back yard of a private English preserve—and demanded action.

The French couldn't see it. They might need Mussolini later on; so they approached the council table with all the reluctance of a country bridegroom at a shotgun wedding, and the upshot was that Mussolini had his way.

More recently, German troops marched into the Rhineland. This time it was France which suddenly discovered the sanctity of treaties and the need for international action, and the British who displayed a coy shyness in the matter.

While the argument went on, the Germans kept on marching. As before, the result was a complete lack of action.

It is against this background that European statesmen and publicists are beginning once more to accuse the United States of wrecking the league by refusing to play its proper part. It would be tragic if any American were fooled by this kind of talk.

The league has failed in its great opportunities because the English and the French have sought to use it, not as an instrument for keeping the peace, but as a means of advancing their own national policies. If the league is not what it might have been, they can blame their own selfishness.

HEN MOTHERS KITTENS

CARLISLE, Pa.—A hen owned by Norman Bretz, local barber, has taken over the task of caring for four motherless kittens. The hen's doing a first-class job. As for the kittens—they're apparently satisfied.

Senator Collie

(Continued from page 1) year. Because of this, the legislature sought to balance the budget through reduced expenses rather than by the levy of additional taxes, and it refused to levy them, thus carrying out our pledges to the people.

"After these reductions were made, it became our duty, in response to a mandate of the people at the polls to provide for the Centennial appropriation of $3,000,000.00 and the relief bonds of $20,000,000. These issues were favored by the people by tremendous majorities, and as unemployment and need prevailed everywhere, the legislature created the set up providing for work relief in various governmental activities rather than the dole, which the people themselves did not want.

"Furthermore," he continued, "the people were requiring increased appropriations for other essential functions and obligations of the government. In order to keep the schools open, provisions had to be made to permit the increase in the per capita apportionment to its highest peak, $17.50, and rural aid appropriation was increased from five to 10 millions of dollars. The salaries of teachers remains shamefully low, and they have to discount their warrants, as do all state employees, while the legislature did not raise taxes. On the other hand they were lowered.

"Our Eleemosynary institutions required new buildings and equipment to house and take care of the thousands of unfortunate insane, blind, deaf and dumb, epileptics, Confederate and orphan homes, crippled, dependent and neglected children, girls in training schools and boys in training school, tubercular patients and others. In spite of this, we have been unable to take care of, and provide buildings for hundreds of persons applying for admission to the state's tubercular hospitals; the hundreds of insane now confined in the jails of Texas; the scores in the jails of Texas; the scores of epileptic patients that ought to be in the colony at Abilene and the long list waiting for the state to do its duty and make room for them in other institutions. Many of the inmates of these institutions are now sleeping on the floors. While many demands for money were being made, I thought it better to dispend with and disallow them by my vote until we could make every possible provision for these wards of our state. It is a moral wrong to neglect them.

"I did not favor restoring salaries and creating any board or department except those made necessary by a vote of the people. I believe it to be my duty to do my level best to carry out, put into operation, and discharge the obligations voted by the people. I favored the old age assistance amendment as a wholesome governmental policy, both in the submission and at the polls, and by its adoption we were, and are, bound to make provisions to discharge. The tremendous amount of money needed to meet this obligation is generally recognized, although there are varied viewpoints regarding the nature of the program, and the corresponding sum of money which that program will require.

"It is certain that the liquor taxes, under any proposed program, will not be sufficient for old age assistance, not to mention the demands for the care of our diseased sick and other society must provide for. After giving these matters serious thought and study, I supported increases in the taxes on corporations—the franchise tax—sulfur, utilities, gas, oil, liquor and others.

Revenue and Taxation "The state gets its revenue, mainly in the following particulars: About 22 million a year from ad valorem; about 8 1/2 millions in gross production taxes on oil; about five millions annually from the sale of cigarettes; 12 hundred thousand last year from beer sales; and about four millions will be realized from licenses and taxes upon intoxicating liquor; half a million from gas and power companies; another half million from telephone companies; a million from sulphur; half a million from pipe line companies; in all these gross receipt taxes amount to $11,659,506.99. The occupation taxes on insurance companies brings in two millions annually; the franchise tax a million and a half; the gasoline, or motor fuel, tax brought in net last year $33,550,273.84 and the car license fees more than five millions.

"The state's revenue is spent, mainly as follows: Out of each dollar received, 41 1/2 cents goes for highways; 36 1/2 cents for education; 5 cents for eleemosynary institutions; 6 cents for relief; 1 1/2 cent for executive and administrative expense; 7-10 cent for legislative expense; 1 cent for regulation of business and industry; and approximately 2 cents for the courts.

"The taxes upon business, industry and natural resources will, of course, have to be increased to share these new costs of government. "We can not look to ad valorem on property for additional revenue. Valuations and rates are carried at almost the maximum all over the state. These taxes must be reduced or it will reach the point of confiscation. "The above figures show principally the present contributions of industries to the support of the state. Some of them, like our farms, ranches, and business properties, have suffered from the effects of the depression and economic disorder. Oil, in this West Central Texas district, for instance, carries an extremely heavy burden. There are about 6,000 wells in the district and the average daily production per well is less than four barrels. Such wells, as $1.00 per barrel, means an average of less than $4.00 per day. The land owner gets one-eighth, they have the expense of pumping, and pipeline rates cost 25 cents per barrel to get the oil to deep water. In addition they now pay a 2 cent per barrel gross production tax, and a very heavy ad valorem tax to the state, county, schools and other local subdivisions. Suppose the tax was raised to 15 cents in this district. What would that mean? It goes without saying hundreds of people would be thrown out of employment, most of the wells plugged, leases cancelled, new development stopped, and our chief means of business and livelihood would be seriously impaired, if not destroyed. This district is a field of depleted wells in the main, and the disparity between it and the large flush pools is apparent. The wells are owned by local independent operators, who are ever ready to contribute in substance and time to the support of government and better conditions for all, and in this district these fellows cannot stand increased taxes that might be born by the industry in flush fields.

"Let me say, however, that the proposed tax on oil was graduated on a sliding scale according to the number of barrels produced and my district would not have suffered the increases levied on oil from more productive fields. I agreed to take a 25 cent increase in my district simply because I didn't want our patriotism challenged, and he accused of being punitive in voting taxes on the people and industries of other districts—and to the credit of our own people, who are deriving very little out of the oil business, they wired and called me saying: "That's all right—we will stand the burden and do more than our part."

Courtesy Reform "I expect to continue the fight for court procedure reforms. There are other matters of the utmost importance, and these will be discussed candidly with the people, with confidence they will cooperate in their passage. In fact, they would eliminate technicalities, delays and absurdities to save expense and subject a better administration of justice. Honor Bestowed on District "Although I am serving my term, my colleagues were generous enough to elect me president pro-tem of the senate. This place is usually given to a much older man, but my seniority being recognized, I am often the subject of an interesting, though friendly, conversation. In this instance, it was by unanimous vote by secret ballot that I was elected president pro-tem. I was elected because I have not always agreed with a majority of the senate, and when important measures were brought before us and I have not hesitated to stand for what I considered to be the best course for my district and the state even though I might stand almost alone at times. However, when it became my duty (as it is now) to differ from other senators on principles, unclouded by personal or personal feeling. "The president pro-tem of the Senate is the ranking officer in the lieutenant governor. In the absence of both the governor and the lieutenant governor, the president pro-tem of the senate becomes the acting governor. It was my privilege to serve in this capacity for two days—the first time that a citizen of the 24th district has served. I do not regard it as a personal distinction, but as a tribute and an honor to my native district. And I want to say that it was one of the most memorable experiences of my life and I will ever be grateful to the voters of this district who made it possible for me, even so brief a time, to place my hand on the helm of this mighty state.

"As your state senator, I have kept in close touch with the people; I have sought to learn your views and to express those views by voice and vote in Austin. I doubt, I have made mistakes at re-elected, I may make some others, but I want to assure you that I shall always endeavor support those measures which mean the greatest good to the greatest number."

"I was born in this district, have lived here all my life; I know its industries and its needs; I know its people; they have been good to me, and my only ambition is to serve them."

Britain Willed the Lexington Cemetery

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Part of historic Lexington battleground, where in 1775 American colonists clashed with British troops, finally has been "surrendered" to Great Britain.

A plot of ground on which were buried British soldiers killed in the battle has been willed "to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland" by Bedros H. Bashian.

However, the bequest was made in vain. Register of Probate Lorin P. Jordan said Great Britain will be unable to claim the ground because no individual may leave part of one nation to another nation.

Catholic Order Asks Sainthood For An American Missionary

DETROIT.—An Italian financier's son, who more than 100 years ago in Rome headed the plea for missionaries in Wisconsin and Michigan, may be the first American to become a saint in the Roman Catholic Church.

Initial steps have been taken by the Dominican Sisters at the St. Clara Academy in Sinsinawa, Wis., to obtain sainthood for Father Samuel Charles Mazzuchelli, who died in 1864.

Father Mazzuchelli, best known and most active missionary in the Northwest territory during the first part of the nineteenth century, is the founder of the institution which now seeks to honor him with sainthood.

His fame as an architect spread throughout the Northwest and many of the courthouses of Iowa and Wisconsin were built from his plans. He designed the cathedral at Dubuque, Ia., and the state legislature asked him to draw the plans for the first capitol.

During his 36 years of residence in this country, Father Mazzuchelli built 34 schools, colleges, cathedrals and churches.

Death and Damage Greater Because Road Rules Vary

Death on the highways could be slowed down if road and traffic officials put into effect generally those regulations of proved value that have already been widely adopted. The mere lack of uniformity in traffic regulations, says Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, is the cause of many accidents.

The national conference on street and highway safety has prepared model motor vehicle codes and traffic ordinances. This work, says MacDonald, was done by leaders in the various fields. Although 39 states have adopted the proposals in part, only a third of the states are in reasonably close agreement with the code.

Licensing of drivers only after thorough examination is recognized by all traffic authorities as essential for accident prevention. Only 19 states have the standard licensing system provided by the uniform vehicle code. This code provides a strong central state organization to control the issuance of drivers licenses and also the machinery for following up repeated violations of law and for revoking licenses. According to Mr. MacDonald, revoking the licenses of dangerous drivers has been found highly effective where this policy has been put into effect vigorously.

Standards for highway signs, signals, and road markings have been prepared through the cooperation of national organizations and have been widely adopted. The occasional departure from standard practice in locating traffic lights and warning signs is all the more dangerous because drivers have become accustomed to standard practice.

Vigorous enforcement of laws is admitted to be necessary, yet the bureau of public roads has found by watching and checking several hundred thousand drivers that half of the drivers do not fully observe stop signs, 7 per cent drive to the left of the center line, nearly a per cent pass other vehicles on hills and 1.5 per cent pass other vehicles on curves. Not more than 20 states have a highway patrol of even reasonably adequate character.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LINDA BOURNE, 20 years old, pretty and socially prominent in the little town of Newtown, is almost senseless after the sudden death of her father.

She becomes friendly with PETER GARDNER, political reporter, and shows him a secret she has written. Peter gets Linda a job as society reporter.

DIX ARTER with whom Linda is in love, goes abroad for a year. His letters are few between and Linda tries to forget him. She becomes engaged to Peter, but postpones the date of the wedding.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

LINDA inspected herself carefully in the mirror, and spoke with sharp sarcasm. "Well, Miss Bourne, you certainly are a fascinating woman. What is it that you have, my girl, that ties men to you with such utter devotion?"

She gave an angry glance at the old-fashioned clock on the mantel then, and went back to her book. It was the newest best-seller, but for all the attention she was able to give it, it might have been a statistical report of taxes in 1845.

The clock struck 11 and Linda closed her book with a bang. Definitely she was not waiting up for any man. And what right did Peter P. Gardner have to treat her so rudely? He had distinctly said that he would arrive at 5 o'clock. He hadn't, and he hadn't telephoned. Very well, he'd never do that again. She could get along very well without him. If she never saw him again it would be all right!

Nevertheless, she went to the front door, opened it and peered down the street before she went upstairs.

"I'm acquiring the bad habit of talking to myself," she said coldly to herself as she mounted the stairs. And then did it again—"Movie star!"

The "movie star," Miss Honey Harmon, appeared clearly in Linda's mind. Miss Honey Harmon gazing adoringly into Peter Gardner's eyes as she snuggled up to him in her car. Linda wished she hadn't seen them that afternoon.

Of course she'd have to see him again, she thought, brushing her hair savagely. She'd have to see him every day at the office. At that moment the blade, her career, the limitations of her life, presented a drab prospect, and she tried to look ahead at what the years might hold for her. True, she hadn't been loved like Linda, but she had been loved like Linda. She had felt she was going to make him happy.

SHE sighed then, but not very lightly. Makes mon happy? What was the matter with women? Linda was only 20, and the only two men she had given any affection to had let her down.

He was probably holding Honey's hand at the moment and eating up her words, feeling like an irresistible male. Linda wished she lived in a world of women.

Pete Gardner wasn't eating up Honey Harmon's words, but he was hanging on to them. What Honey had to say to him this night was the most important thing in his life at the moment.

For nearly 10 days since Honey Harmon had come to Newtown, Pete had been dancing attendance on her, and since 5 that afternoon, since he had told her that he had a play he wanted her to read, he had been waiting for this moment.

He tried to talk about it in the afternoon and he tried again during dinner and when finally Honey demanded to see the manuscript immediately, he brought it forth and forgot to telephone Linda. When he realized that Linda was waiting, he was sure that he could explain to her.

AN exceedingly pretty frown appeared on her alabaster brow as Honey pored over the pages of Pete's play. She curled up in a mound of pillows and assumed pose 41 as she perused page after page and Pete smoked cigaret after cigaret, not daring to interrupt the train of thought. If there were any there was.

"But Pete!"—how he hated to be called Pete—"It isn't me!"

Pete didn't answer that. He still hoped.

"It's too marvelous, but it's not for me. It's sophisticated."

"It is sophisticated," Pete agreed, and smiled at her. "But it's a new kind of sophistication. She's deep. She is you."

"Oh, darling!" Honey, the deep one, rose from her pillows and touched him lightly on the cheek. "You really do know me, don't you?"

She ran her hand through her curls, played a cigaret in an ivory holder and glided across the room. "You see I can't be what I really am. My public wants me to be something entirely different. Her eyes pleaded with Pete to understand.

He didn't. He knew Honey's pictures and managed to point this out gently.

"No, you don't understand. I'm just a little pawn to my producers. You never can tell what they're going to do before I left Hollywood, we had conferences—oh, so many of them—and you know big lugaboo Box Office directs us all. My producers simply won't let me make another sophisticated picture."

"All right, Honey," Pete smiled charmingly and picked up his script. "We'll skip it. I wanted you to see it."

"I think it's grand, Pete, and I'm sure you'll sell it. You ought to be in Hollywood."

Pete didn't tell her what he thought of Hollywood. He said nothing, and whenever Pete said nothing Honey always found something to say, particularly if the subject had been herself.

"The real reason I'm on my way east is to find a play. I do wish you had another. What my producers want is to cast me in something about a little working girl." She sighed. "It seems that the public is more interested in working girls than glamorous ladies these days. Of all things, they want me to find a play about a stenographer. Something where there is a big bad boss and, and..."

HONEY had more than that to say, but when she arrived at the boss part, Pete was on his feet, new light in his eye and his hat in his hand.

"Honey," he said, "I have got another play! And it's about a stenographer and two big bad bosses only one isn't bad..."

"Two?" Honey asked.

"One a Menjou and one a Gable," he promised.

"But I must see it!" Honey exclaimed.

Pete was already on his way to the door. "It's down at the office. I'll be back with it in 10 minutes."

One hour and 10 minutes later Linda sat up in bed and pulled the cord on her bed-lamp. Below the bell was pealing insistently. She drew a robe over her nightgown, thrust her feet into slippers and went to the window.

"Who's there?" she called.

"Linda, come down and let me in. I've wonderful news for you," Pete called back to her.

"I'll not come down, and you have nothing to say that would interest me. Good night Mr. Gardner." Linda shut the window with an unmistakable bang.

The bell pealed again.

"He'll wake the neighbors if he keeps that up," Linda said as she trotted down the stairs and opened the door.

"In addition to being the rudest," "Listen, Linda, I can explain. I've been with Honey Harmon all evening."

"I guessed that," she said coldly.

"...and she's bought the scenario."

"What scenario?" asked Linda, started into forgetting her anger for the moment.

"Yours!"

Senate Nominee Backs Townsend

A Townsend Plan advocate, ex-Representative Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, above, is Democratic nominee for the Nebraska seat in the U. S. Senate now held by George W. Norris. Carpenter won by a small margin in a four-cornered race. He is expected to face opposition in his own party in favor of Norris if the veteran liberal will reconsider his decision to retire and run as an independent.

Judge's Statement

taining alcohol not in excess of 14 per cent by volume in Eastland county; that appropriate orders were made by the commissioners court declaring the result of said election.

It is contended by plaintiffs that the election held on April 18, 1936, involved the same issue as was involved in the election held on Jan. 3, 1936, invoking Section 32 of Article I of the Texas Liquor Control Act which provides as follows: "After the first local option election held as provided in this act, in any county, etc., no subsequent election upon the same issue in the same political subdivision shall be held within one (1) year from the date of the preceding local option election in said county."

It is the contention of the defendant that there was contemplated by the legislature three issues might be submitted to the voters of any county or political subdivision to determine whether or not the sale of liquors containing certain alcoholic content might be submitted to the voters for determination, that such issues are separate and distinct, one from the other, and that the issue submitted in the election held in Eastland county on Jan. 3, 1936, was a different issue to that submitted to the voters on April 18, 1936, and for that reason the election of April, 1936, was in all respects legal.

In passing upon the issues involved in this suit it is necessary for the court to construe the articles of the statute relied upon by the parties to this controversy for the purpose of clarifying the issues involved. Section 46 of Article I of the Texas Liquor Control Act provides in part as follows:

"The commissioners court upon its own motion may, or upon petition as herein provided shall, as provided in Section 37, order local contain alcohol in excess of fifteen per cent (14 per cent) volume," and "Against legalizing the sale of vinous and malt liquors that do not contain alcohol in excess of fourteen per cent (14 per cent) by volume."

(c) "For legalizing the sale of all liquors," and "Against legalizing the sale of all liquors."

After a careful study of the statutory provisions above cited and the opinion that it was the intention of the legislature to authorize elections to be held in various counties and political divisions thereof in Texas to determine whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquors of certain alcoholic contents should be legalized and that for the convenience of the voters the legislature designated by alcoholic contents the issues that might be voted on by the citizens of any county or political subdivision thereof, these issues are quoted above and referred to as Subdivisions a, b, and c. Subdivision a provides for an election to determine whether or not malt liquors containing alcoholic content not to exceed 4 per cent by weight may be legalized; division b provides for an election to determine whether or not malt liquors containing alcoholic content not to exceed 15 per cent by volume may be legalized, and subdivision c provides for an election to determine whether or not all liquors shall be legalized.

In view of the statutory provisions as above quoted, I can agree with the contention of plaintiffs that the same issues were involved in the election on April 18, 1936, as was involved in the election on Jan. 3, 1936. I am convinced that it was the intention of the legislature to create and provide these separate and distinct issues to be voted on at one time by the citizens of various counties of the state.

The temporary writ of injunction heretofore issued in this case against the defendant is therefore dissolved and judgment rendered in favor of the defendant that the plaintiff take nothing from this suit and that the relief prayed for in their petition be denied that the defendant recover costs.

'Who'll Help a Poor Congressman?'

Holding out his hat for "collections for a defense fund," Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, the "Peck's bad boy" of Congress, was in high spirits despite the fact that he was peering between jail bars when this picture was snapped in Washington. The Seattle congressman, fined $25 for speeding, was jailed when he tried to walk from the courtroom before sentence.

about 500 farmers. Each of these "communities" has elected three committeemen who altogether will constitute a County Soil Conservation Board.

Officials point out, in reviewing some of the highpoints of the program, that all crops will be classified into two classes—soil depleting and soil conserving; and that a neutral classification has been set up to include idle land, fallow land, woodland, pastures, vineyards, tree fruits, small fruits and so forth.

Payments will be made to farmers upon proof of having cooperated in the program. This money, which will be paid in one check, will include payments for replanting certain percentages of soil depleting crops with soil conserving crops and for using soil building crops and for raising soil building practices.

Bases established on the old reduction contracts will be taken as a guide for establishing the base for 1936 on the soil conservation program, with due allowance for crops not included in former contracts.

About 20 per cent of the base acreage in soil depleting crops in 1936, must be replaced by soil conserving crops in order to qual-

Parents Might Well Set the Example

Parents often tell their children to be sure to play on the sidewalk, and if they must cross the street, to be sure that a car isn't in sight and then to use the crosswalk. That's good advice in any family and in any man's town. But how often do parents do the things which they tell their children mustn't be done? Parents frequently are seen dragging their children across streets against red lights or right across in the middle of the block. It is wondered what children sometimes think of their parents. Five minutes after some parent has "laid down the law" he can become a BIG HYPOCRITE. Last year there were more than 1,500 children under the age of four who were killed and 24,000 who were injured in automobile accidents. More than 3,200 between the ages of 5 and 14 were killed and nearly 140,000 were injured. It is important to teach young children to have safe habits and equally important for grownups to practice what they preach.

Cripples Rank As School's Star Pupils

By United Press
SYDNEY, N. S. W.—Children who triumph over great disabilities to obtain an education are the star pupils of one of the strangest schools in the world. This is the Blackfriars Correspondence School in Sydney, which has 5,388 primary and 241 secondary pupils scattered throughout the state, mostly in the wilds where no school is available. So they receive their lessons by post and they make the most of their opportunities. For instance, there is Beryl Morrin, who lost both hands in a shark attack. By holding a pencil in her teeth or between the stumps of her arms, she has done her school work amazingly well, and her report reads, "Art work sent in so far is excellent." She hopes to be fitted with artificial hands some day. Then there is "Billy" Maguire, who also has no hands. Using his toes he writes letters in ink or pencil on ordinary paper "which would do credit to one of equal years and full physical abilities."

Meteorite Blamed For 1908 Quake To Be Sought By Planes

By United Press
MOSCOW.—Airplanes will be used this spring in a renewal of the search for the largest meteorite known to have fallen during recorded history. The meteorite, which fell in 1908 in the valley of the river Podkamennaya Tunguska, Siberia, remains unlocated despite numerous searches by the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R. The huge meteorite caused an earthquake in Siberia and felled and burned 36 miles of forest. This year airplane photographs will be taken of the area when the snow melts; and the trees are still bare in the hope that both the direction from which the trees were knocked down and the cutters formed by the impact will be shown. In this manner it is hoped that maps may be drawn which will enable an expedition to reach the meteorite.

An effort was made to permit use of the fund in erecting a state records building with relief labor. Some members of the legislature thought Austin already had a lion's share of relief expenditures and blocked the plan. The relief records would have gone into this proposed building. Now officials will soon have to worry about what to do with the records. More important records from State Relief Headquarters will be placed in a building in the rear of the State Pasteur Hospital. Federal authorities are expected to order their records in the various counties is a puzzle.

Relief is being tapered off but still functioning from state headquarters. Assistance and commodities will continue to go out in May. There may be some aid in June. ## Newsman Thinks Mrs. Roosevelt Is Lucky To Have Maid To Dust After Seeing President's Nautical Collection

WASHINGTON, Tex.—We have had a look at the President's collection of nautical art and all we can say is Mrs. Roosevelt is mighty fortunate to have a hired girl to do the dusting.

The president lent his 192 pictures of boats and his 12 models of same to the Corcoran Gallery of Art, which sent a truck around for them—leaving a lot of blank spots on the white house walls.

The exhibition fills four large galleries and indicated that Mr. Roosevelt is broadminded, concerning art. If a picture has a boat in it, and some water, he likes it. If the boat's spouting flame from its cannon, so much the better.

Some of the pictures are excellent, some are fair and one was drawn by Franco Vela, captain of the Spanish Brigantine Fortuna.

It seems that the captain divided his time between taking pot shots at the American Corvette of war constellations and drawing a picture thereof. Either the captain spent more time with his gun than with his pencil, or else wasn't much of an artist, or maybe both.

Most of Mr. Roosevelt's pictures show American warships in action. There are ships scudding in heavy seas with masts snapping, ships belching fire at the enemy, and ships at anchor in Smyrna, Trieste, Tripoli, Philadelphia, Hong Kong, Naples, Rio de Janeiro, Callao, and other ports of call.

Our favorite is a Japanese print of a Mississippi river steambot, showing ladies in bustles and sailors hauling in the ropes. All these folks have yellow skin and slanting eyes.

Pretty neat, too, is a carrier lithograph of "Aerial explosion of the gun, peace-maker, on board the U. S. Steam Frigate Princeton, 1844." The gun is spewing molten iron right and left, and knocking the high silk toppers off the heads of the bystanders.

The president also has a picture of the American Clipper Ship, Young America, done in ink, and a hooked rug showing the clipper Nightingale, sailing across a sea of greenish wool. This wool is of excellent quality and would make a fine, sea-going bathmat.

One section of Mr. Roosevelt's art display consists of the framed, front covers of nautical songs. These include The Sailors Grave, The Ocean Wave, Quick Step, The Leap for Life, The Atlantic Telegraph Polka, and Nicholson's Quick Step.

The words and music of these ballads—unfortunately—are invisible.

The ship models are what must make the dusting job at the White House tough. These include the Continental Frigate Raleigh, the Brig of War Niagara, the Merchantman West Wind, the Bark Mary and The Clipper Rainbow, and we never did see so much dust catching canvas and rope made of thread.

Of all the models, though, the one we liked best was the early one—vessel steamer under sail. What makes this one unique is the smoke pouring from her funnel. This smoke is made of cotton, in artistic, life-like swirls—and it'll never need dusting.

The more dust the more the smoke will look like smoke.

Centennial Coins Increase In Value

AUSTIN—Coin dealers throughout the nation, as well as many banks in other states, have increased the prices on Texas Centennial half-dollars, according to information recently gathered at the University of Texas where whose direction the coins are being sold to augment funds with which to build the Texas Memorial Museum.

These increases range from 40 to 300 per cent, it was announced by Beauford H. Jester, general chairman of the Texas Memorial Museum Coin campaign.

A recent issue of a numismatic magazine quoted prices from most of the leading coin dealers in America and in each instance these dealers had increased the price on the Texas Centennial half-dollars.

The increased price on the coins is quite indicative of an increased demand throughout the nation for the Texas commemorative half-dollar, Mr. Jester said.

Campaigns for the sale of the coins, which will be carried out every section of the entire state during Centennial year are being conducted during San Jacinto week in Houston and San Antonio.

CONSTIPATED 25 YEARS, ALL-BRAN BROUGHT RELIEF

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Condition

There is Mr. Johnson's letter: "I got a package (of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN), and before the package was gone, I was very much better."

"So I have been eating it for two or three weeks, and my constipation has gone, and I was constipated for 25 years or more. Hoping this may help some one to better health. I am a new friend to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN."—Mr. J. B. Johnson, Lake Charles, La.

Mr. Johnson's letter is one of many. Millions find Kellogg's ALL-BRAN corrects constipation satisfactorily. It supplies the "bulk" missing in the average American meal.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild and effective. It absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the intestines. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Isn't it more sensible to use this natural food instead of taking patent medicines? Just eat two table-spoonfuls daily. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, etc. It is sold by all grocers. Mail 5c to Kellogg in Battle Creek.

May 9th Last Day To Sign Up Under Conservation Plan

County Agent Cook announces that many of the farmers are under the opinion that they have until May 15 to complete signing for the soil conservation program. Cook wants it clearly understood that Saturday, May 9 is the last day and not May 15.

Many farmers will wait until the last day and this makes it hard for the committeemen. But if all will cooperate and get into Ranger before the 9th of May it will be easy and the papers will be filled out without mistakes.

Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Gray returned from Abilene Thursday afternoon from Abilene where they attended a very interesting meeting of the Christian Educational association in session at the Presbyterian church.

6-Year-Old Turns Out To Be Bad Man

HOUSTON, Tex.—A 6-year-old pistol toting boy, who brandished a loaded pistol at passersby at a downtown street corner, was in Bayland Home for boys as another of his series of childish misdeeds came to a close.

When confronted by officers, he was palpitating numerous hearts with his pistol act and "bandit" tricks.

Probation officer Roebuck and his assistants greeted the youngster familiarly as police officers brought him in. Previously, the boy had "removed" a saddle from a neighbor's property and had hidden it at his home. Before that, even, he had been caught taking money from a business building downtown.

Legless Newsie To Run For An Office

EL PASO, Tex.—It is spring and like all young men, Ben Carroll, legless newsstand owner, confessed that his fancy has turned to thoughts of love—and politics.

"There's a young lady I intend to propose to," Carroll said, "but I ought to have a better job if I marry, and that's why I'm going to run for City treasurer next year."

The newsie twice has been defeated for City treasurer, but he says he will run every two years until he is elected.

Remedies Fail In Long Hiccup Seige

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Robert F. Milton, farmer living east here, has hiccupped most of the time the past five years.

The hiccupping began April 5. Since then he has been a patient of 42 physicians, including medical men, osteopaths, chiropractors, masseurs and surgeons. He has been in the clinics of several local hospitals, but the hiccups continue.

"I've done everything," he said. "Once a banker suggested I drink 12 glasses of cold soda water. I drank it down and was in bed a week—with the hiccups."

His wife once tried the old trick of frightening Milton, and while it gave him a scare, the remedy was ineffective.

Milton has swallowed essence of cornsilk, vinegar-soaked sugar from the end of a silver knife and gallons of mineral water. He has drunk water through a cloth-covered glass, stood on his head and tried hundreds of other "sure cure" home remedies.

King Edward VIII will hold no royal courts this year, so debutants who wanted to be presented at court will have to push down on the accelerator.

Battle Of Sabine Pass To Be Site Of Centennial Marker

SABINE PASS, Tex.—The Battle of Sabine Pass in which a handful of dock workers turned back a Union fleet of warboats and transports in 1863, will be commemorated by a Texas Centennial marker.

H. M. Richter, Houston, president of the Southwestern Settlement and Development Corporation, has offered to give to Jefferson County of the state of Texas, an acre for the marker at the battlefield.

Hearing that the "federals" were coming, Lieut. Dick Dowling and 47 dock workers of Galveston hauled several brass cannons to Sabine Pass and defended the pass successfully.
