HANDFUL OF WHITES TURN BACK ATTACK BY PILLAGING NATIVES AS BRITISH SEND ASSISTANCE

Appeal Wireless To Washington, Telephoned To London and Then Radioed To British, Only Four Miles Away.

Pillaging natives, inflamed by impending Italian occupation of Addis Ababa, attacked the American and other foreign legations today. Many whites were killed or wounded.

A stalwart band of Americans in the United States legation fought off one attack but were so hard pressed an appeal had to be made to the British for a machine gun and soldiers.

Two native women in the American quarters were wounded. Previously Mrs. A. E. Stadin, wife of an American missionary doctor, had been killed by a stray bullet.

All regular communication had failed long ago, as Emperor Haile Selassie fled and the natives pillaged and burned much of the city. The story of bloodshed, rioting and chaos was pieced together from the dispatches sent over diplomatic wireless stations from the French, British and United States legations.

Restoration of order waited arrival of the Italians. Native Italian troops were in camp on the outskirts of the city, awaiting the main column headed by Marshal Badoglio. Latest announcements from Rome said this force was 201 miles away.

Flight of the handful of Americans, barricaded in the legation, was told in messages to Washington from Minister Cornelius Van H. Engert.

Ethiopian bandits attacked at 9 a. m. All white women except Mrs. Engert had been taken to the fortified British compound previously. She was in the garden when the natives opened fire, some of the men had gone to aid a hospital.

With revolvers, rifles, shotguns, swords and spears, the few remaining Americans beat off the attack, killing or wounding at least one bandit. Then the infuriated natives returned.

Engert twice tried to send an appeal for help to the British, four miles across the city. The messengers could not get through. Finally, to get his appeal through those four miles, he had to send it thousands of miles by radio.

By radio he asked the state department in Washington have the British send a "Lewis gun" and a few soldiers. His request telephoned the request to London with the request it be relayed by wireless to the British legation in Addis Ababa.

LONDON, May 4.—The foreign office was advised late today by Sir Sidney Barton, British minister at Addis Ababa, a truck load of armed Sikh troops had been sent the beleaguered United States legation from the British compound.

At the request of Robert Bingham, United States ambassador, the foreign office instructed Sir Sidney to furnish all possible aid to the Americans.

Abilene roquet team composed of Lee and Havens, defeated Francis Jones of Weatherford, formerly of Eastland, and E. D. DeLafosse, Breckenridge, for the championship of a tournament held Sunday at the city park in Eastland.

Towns represented were Merkel, Baird, Breckenridge, Weatherford, Abilene, Pumpkin Center, Stephenville, Ranger, Cisco, Mineral Wells, Sibleburne and Eastland.

States Limit Industry By Excluding Jobless

The State of Colorado has taken a leaf from California's book, and is throwing troops along its borders to keep out unwanted visitors.

Like California, Colorado is fond of tourists. But it is interested only in tourists who bring plenty of money with them. The roving job-hunter who hopes to find a pay check fluttering loose is most decidedly not wanted.

So the Colorado authorities, like those in California, have taken to posting soldiers along the borders to search autos, buses and trains, and to turn back people who do not come well-heeled.

"Jobs in this state are for our citizens," says Gov. Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado. "I purpose to see that they are not filled by outsiders, if I have to invoke the full military strength of the state to do so."

Nothing could be more natural than for a governor to take this attitude. After all, a governor's first responsibility is to the people of his own state. And yet one wonders if people who adopt this stand have ever heard of the services rendered to America's productive system by the migratory worker.

This country is dotted with industries which of necessity, operate spasmodically. For a few weeks or months such industries need a large number of workers; thereafter—for the rest of the year, in many cases—they need very few.

They have been able to operate only because of the existence of a great many workers who roam halfway across the continent in the course of a year, drifting from one brief job to another, collecting pay checks in half a dozen states in the course of six months.

One of these workers will start out, for instance, by putting in a few weeks as a cherry-picker in the Michigan orchards. The cherry season over, he will spend a month or so as deckhand on a Great Lakes steamer. Then he will drift to the northwest for the wheat harvest in the Dakotas.

A little later he will move on again—to wind up, perhaps, in the farms of the Imperial Valley in the California canneries, or in the cotton fields of the southwest.

As he moves from one job to another, he is, technically, a jobless man. He is looking for work, but he has no specific job in mind; he is, by the magnificent illogicality of our modern way of putting things a bum. As such, he is due to be caught in the nets which such states as Colorado are putting up on their borders.

Carry this idea to its obvious conclusion and we would have no more migratory workers. That would mean more general confusion and trouble for more different industries than you could easily shake a stick at.

The trouble with a crooner is that, after he has pitched his voice at a certain key, he always retrieves it.

The radio comedian was horrified to learn that the lad who won his $5000 essay contest had lifted the article. Jokes, apparently, are fair game.

OFFSET OF BIG PRODUCER NEARING COMPLETION. MORAN—The Lone Star R. W. Brooks No. 4 was reported to be 3121 feet Wednesday with prospects of drilling in next week. The well is being drilled to the Caddo line found there at 3400 feet. This well is an offset to the Brooks No. 3, which came in 6 feet ago estimated at 4,000 barrels daily.

This frequently increases the production of oil gases. It is probable other wells may be drilled in the vicinity of the Carter well the Free Press has heard.

The No. 4 is about 600 feet northwest of the No. 3 and it is expected that the oil will be found in large quantities.

WASHINGTON—The majority and minority opinions of the U. S. Supreme Court in the case of the Securities and Exchange Commission and J. Edward Jones were really very spectacular in their implications. CONNOLLY and FAREWELL

By Marie Blizard

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Linda Bourne, 20 years old, is left almost penniless by the death of her father, Peter Connolly, newspaper editor, when she is 12.

Linda is in New York City, and she is about to start a new life in Hollywood. She is a beautiful girl, and she is very intelligent. She is very kind and very generous. She is very brave and very strong. She is very loyal and very true. She is very honest and very fair. She is very brave and very strong. She is very loyal and very true. She is very honest and very fair.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Linda had his answer from Linda when he looked into her eyes, and before his steady gaze, she saw that he had seen her. She loved him, but not with all that she could give. Linda had given him her heart, but not with all that she could give. Linda had given him her heart, but not with all that she could give.

CHAPTER XI

She bought a book and took it to her room. Her first night in California was not to be an auspicious one. It might have been a melancholy one had there not been a telegram from Pete. Linda fell on it with a whoop of joy and read and re-read its seemingly silly words.

"DON'T BE LONELY STOP THINKING OF YOUR BESIEGED BY ANXIOUS DIRECTORS STOP CONNOLLY FIRED TODAY WON SWEETSTAKES MONDAY WIFE BOUGHT COW AND SEQUIN DRESS WHATEVER THAT IS STOP HARPERS HAVE FIRST SPRING VIOLETS STOP ASK PRODUCERS WHY COOPER VENELL PLAYING GANGSTER PARTS IS POET STOP READING MYRON'S LIFE OF KEATS MAKE SWELL MOVIE STOP CAN'T HELP LOVING YOU NO STOP PETE."

Harper's, Newtown's only first, had the first spring violet! Last year Pete had brought them wet, dark, fragrant — to Linda, and told her they were like her eyes. And Connolly, the Blizard's irresponsible night-watchman, had been fired. But he had won a Sweepstakes fund. How sweet of Pete to tell her that. A long letter couldn't have been more like him. She smiled at the telegram as though it had been Pete himself, and she didn't know how tender her smile was. Or how binding a bond that is born of tenderness. Tenderness is a tender that twists around the heart and grows there as part of it, clinging, shaped to the contour of it forever, even when its core of passion has flamed and burned its center out.

Dressing in her simple knitted dress the next morning, she slipped the telegram into her handbag. "Moral support, as usual," she said, snapping its clasp.

There was only one way to get out to Commonwealth City, the hills over which the Commonwealth Century studios and sets were splashed. Linda rode in a taxi, with quaking knees and a diminished speech of introduction rehearsing itself automatically on her dry lips.

But she didn't get a chance to try her speech that day. She didn't get into the studio and she didn't get past the gatekeeper. She had no pass, no words that would substitute. There was only one way to get in, even if she were a Garbo, and that was with a pass. Frantically, that whole day, Linda tried to find some way to get into the Commonwealth lot that had engaged her at a tremendous (to her) salary.

SHE led to reach Honey Harman by telephone. "Miss Harman's number is private. We cannot give out that information." After four days of wasted effort, Linda wired Pete for advice.

"SEE MOVIE EDITOR OF LOCAL PAPER," he wired.

Linda did that, and found herself in a small office on the Commonwealth lot with a telephone, a Persian carpet, a desk she could have slept on but didn't, even though she had little else to do. Apparently Commonwealth forgot why they had brought her to Hollywood. No one could tell her what to do. No one had anything for her to do. "Bleak Spring," which was to be called "Take a Letter," wouldn't be in production for two or three months. Linda read newspapers, wrote long letters home to Pete, Wilda, and her other friends, and read all the old scripts she could lay her hands on.

Then came the day of a writers' conference. All the writers on the lot were called. Linda welcomed the change from her lonely, useless routine. She loved the shouting, the excitement, the arguments. Not that she had any idea what it was all about until Prtak, the Russian director, tore his hair and shouted in her face shaking a fist at them all:

"Not one thing does he do! Dis Venell he dresses! De box office is not good! And you blame Pytkal! Gif me..."

Linda didn't know why she said it, but she found herself on her feet.

"But Cooper Venell isn't a gangster type. He's a poet! There's a new life of Keats that was just written for him. It's by James Myron. Venell, in spite of his size, has the face of a dreamer of poetry. Can't you see it?"

Linda was aghast at her own temerity. The others were also aghast, but not for the same reason. It suddenly occurred to them that Venell was a mascot.

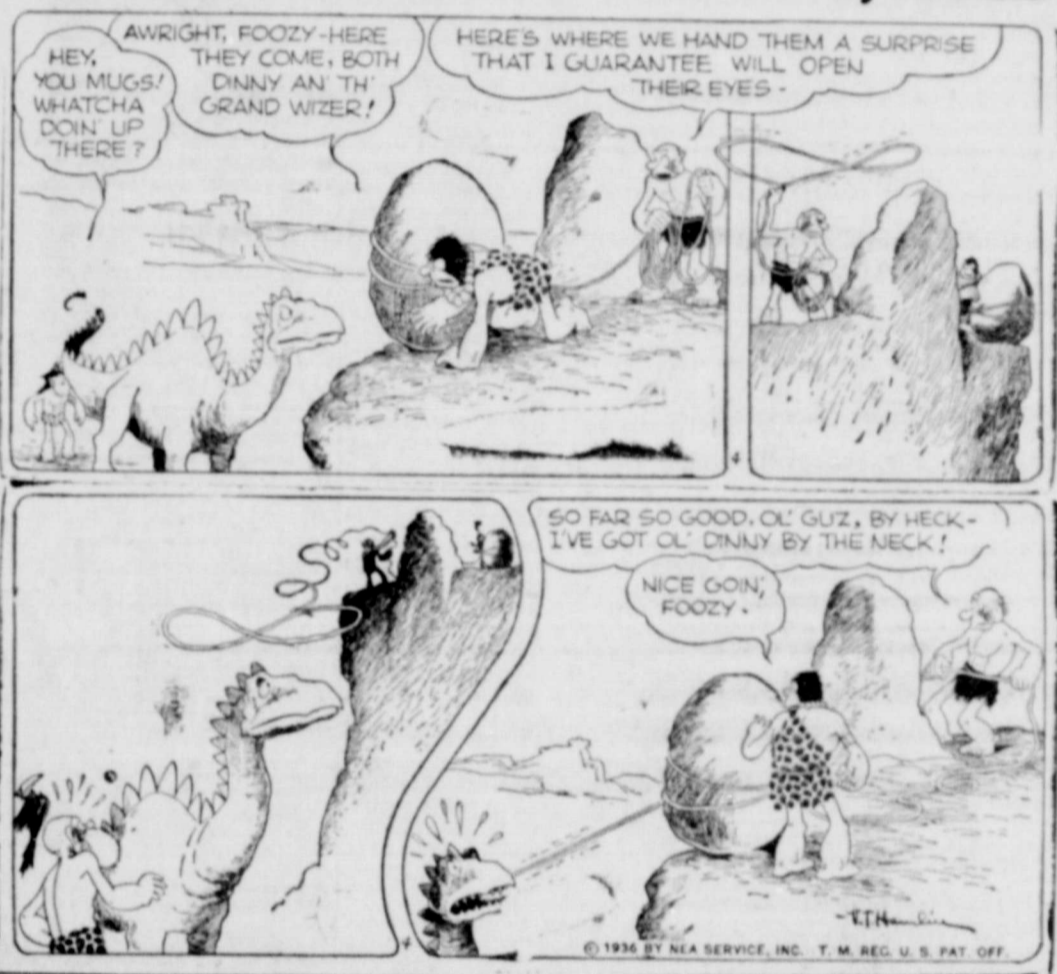

If Hollywood was incredible to Linda, Linda was incredible to Hollywood. From that moment, she became an Important Person!

Snake Bite Season Suggests Caution

AUSTIN—Spring fever, that seasonal malady which accompanies the first warm days and early blossoms, has become more or less of an epidemic. Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer, reminds the citizens of Texas with some suggested precautions.

The most outstanding symptom of spring fever is the urge felt by both old and young to get out into the open as often as possible. While people are getting all the benefits possible from contact with Mother Nature, Dr. Brown urges the use of common sense precautions.

"Some of the glamour has been taken from the swimming hole by the modern pool," Dr. Brown said, "but it is more than offset by the sanitation and safety devices which promote health and save lives. Swimming now can be learned by everyone, without the needless sacrifice of lives and without the constant threat of typhoid fever which is a hazard of every out-letting place.

"With the first excursions into the woods and fields in quest of wild flowers, everybody should remember that about 75 per cent of snake bites occur on the lower extremities. Snake bites could be prevented to a large extent by wearing boots or heavy leggings and being cautious.

"If one should be bitten by a rattlesnake, prompt action is necessary and a physician should be obtained as soon as possible. No time should be lost in removing the poison by suction. Apply a tourniquet above the wound and make cross-cut incisions over the fang marks. Suction should be applied for at least half an hour. The most dangerous fluid is farthest from the wound; its absorption must be prevented as it is the source of the systemic poisoning. Release tourniquet every 10 or 15 minutes for about a minute at a time.

Long Preparation Urged For Sleep

URBANA, Ill.—Start preparing for a good night's sleep shortly after you get up in the morning, advises Dr. Millicent Hathaway, University of Illinois economist.

One of her four fundamental rules to follow in good sleep is: "Consciously relax at definite periods throughout the day for relief of bodily tensions. Thus you slow down the nervous mechanism and condition the muscles to period rest.

Three other "fundamentals" are: Establish a regular retiring hour, avoid evening excitement, and avoid a heavy meal near bedtime.
