RANGER WINS AS EASTLAND FIELD OPENED

Ranger All-Stars held an Eastland aggregation to one run Wednesday night when the visiting team won 4 to 1 at the opening of the Eastland lighted soft ball field. Many attended.

As a result of the seven-inning game, Secretary H. C. Davis of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce paid off a wager to Secretary J. E. Meroney of Ranger by pushing a soft ball around the field.

A five-inning game between the H-Y and Fireman teams was stretched another chapter because of a tie. The game was called after the sixth when the score was 15 to 15.

The Buzz girls' team of Eastland defeated an Albany group by the margin of 14 to 4.

The Eastland High School Band, directed by G. W. Collum, played before the opening night.

The fire department of Eastland, sponsors of the field, extended appreciation Thursday for the operation of the visiting town representatives and to all who aided in the plans.

Texas Officers Are Training Marines For Centennial

Under the watchful eyes of three Marine Corps officers from Texas, a hand-picked detachment of sea soldiers is going through their paces here in preparation for the Texas Centennial Exposition, scheduled to open at Dallas, on June 6.

The Texans who are supervising the special drills and maneuvers which will be used during the exhibition ceremonies are, Capt. A. Butler of El Paso, First Lieutenant H. Cloud of Rogers, and Second Lieutenant B. H. Hochmuth of Houston.

In addition to the three Texas Marine officers, more than a dozen enlisted men from various sections of the state have been selected to take part in the celebration. The Marines remember that Texas contributed approximately 300,000 men to their ranks during the World War.

Visitors to the fair will have an opportunity to see the company of officers and men comprising the detachment, stage the colorful guard mounts and parades which are a part of the Marine Corps' military ritual. A special marine band will also accompany the detachment to take part in the various ceremonies.

For years the Leathernecks have been a prominent part in the most famous of these exhibitions. In 1878, a company of them attended the Universal Exposition in Paris, and then made a return visit to the French capital in 1889. Since then they have taken part in the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, the Jamestown (Va.) celebration, the Brazilian Exposition at Rio de Janeiro, the Sesqui-centennial at Philadelphia, and more recently the World's Fair at Chicago in 1933-34.

An interesting Marine Corps exhibit is being planned for the federal building, depicting the many phases of Marine history and actions in all vitas, as an added attraction to the complement of sea soldiers.

W. H. URS, who will be in attendance.

J. of Texas Planning A Student Hospital

AUSTIN.—The University of Texas becomes embarrassed when we hear that the "richest university" in the world has only a small Phillips 400 of its potential wealth from its lands is immediately available. A few years ago part of this potential wealth as drawn upon for a building program. The future income was pledged to redeem bonds sold for a dozen buildings, buildings for this department and at department were erected. A amphitheater above everything else in Austin, but the Regents forgot all about having a hospital for the more than 7,000 students, the hat is being passed to provide hospital accommodations.

Last winter's epidemics so over-ran institutions ordinarily reserved for students, that the officials are awakened to the need of a hospital. The plan now is to have students agree to a $5 hospitalation fee to liquidate a federal loan. The legislature will be asked to amend the act limiting student

Honey Growers Invited to Attend Bee Transfer Demonstration Friday

Honey growers and bee raising enthusiasts of Eastland county are invited to attend a bee transferring demonstration at the June Hargus home, quarter of mile north of the Texas Electric Power Plant and four miles east of Eastland, at 9 a. m. Friday.

R. R. Reppert, A. and M. Extension insect specialist, will give the demonstration, assisted by County Agent Cook. A colony of bees will be transferred from a home-made, inefficient hive to a modern patent hive. Reppert will prove that profit from sales of honey is greater when bees are given proper housing and care.

Henry Collins, bee enthusiast of Olden, quoted some figures to the county agent which he said emphasize the benefits to be derived from properly housing and care of bees. He sold more than 450 pounds of comb honey in 1935 from nine colonies of bees which were housed in patent hives. His returns per colony were more than $7.50, while the depreciation on equipment was less than 50 cents per colony. "Eastland county is an ideal location for a great honey producing industry," said Collins. "We have an abundance of honey producing plants," he added.

If there is sufficient interest from honey raisers of the county during the demonstration Friday, cooperative buying of an extractor, a machine to take the honey from the comb, will be discussed. Heretofore all honey produced in Eastland county has been sold as comb honey.

Everyone in Eastland county who has one or more colonies of bees is urged to attend the demonstration Friday morning.

Great difficulty was encountered by the bill's sponsors in securing the necessary 218 names to their petition in the House and a long battle in committee preceded approval of the debt relief measure, held inflationary by its foes.

CCC TO TAKE MORE YOUTHS FROM COUNTY

BY WORTHAM SEALE, Intake Secretary to Texas Relief Commission for Eastland Co.

Information has been received from C. J. Sweeney, administrator of district 13, Abilene, that due to the fact that some of the states have failed to secure their quota for CCC enrollment, and we are to be allowed to select an unlimited number of applicants. The enrollment period to be extended through May 15.

The local office of the Texas Relief Commission has not yet received movement orders but are at this time accepting applications pending final acceptance and as soon as definite rules are received for this enrollment, applications will be notified by mail if accepted.

During the past few enrollments colored applicants were not accepted but we are now asked to interview those in that class in order to make a report to Neil E. Guy, CCC enrollment supervisor as it is now possible for a few applications in this group to be accepted, which will be sent to separate camps.

The Works Progress Administration is in the process of a heavy quota reduction and any replacements may be made easily from the approximately 350 cases who will not be certified by the local office of the Texas Relief Commission. M. R. Russell, assistant supervisor division of employment of District 13, during his last visit to the Eastland office advised that they had made the reduction in Eastland county as sparingly as possible due to the fact there was not the chance of private employment in this county compared with other counties in the district and the fact that all officials of Eastland county was extending utmost cooperation in providing projects and showed much interest in the work now in progress; however there will be a reduction this month and those single and in the age group from 17 to 28 inclusive may be accepted and this does seem to be the only secure employment as enrollees at this time may remain in camp for an indefinite time provided their work is satisfactory and they desire to re-enlist.

Much progress has been made in the way of improvement in the CCC to offer educational courses and an athletic program is also conducted under competent supervision. Both fundamentals of basic education and vocational subjects are included in the scope of the educational program.

Eastland county has provided their allotment of enrollees during each enrollment period. It should be considered an honor to be selected for enrollment as this is the only program that requires that the applicant of the selected beyond reach. Approximately 30 per cent of the applications for enrollment are accepted. While this county will be allotted an unlimited quota during the May enrollment, strict regulations relative to enrollment will be strictly adhered to. The editors of the county newspapers and reporters deserve much credit that has made it possible that this county interview many applicants in order that only the most desirable youths be selected and still complete the quota allotted to the county and all instances an additional quota has been allotted which not only furnishes employment for the applicant but returns $25 per month to this county to provide the necessities of life for a needy family.

Horse Race Bookies May Be Subject of Issue In Legislature

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN.—Horse race bookmaking promises to be a live issue in the next session of the Texas legislature. The statesmen are fond of talking of "schools of thought." One school advocates stamping out the bookmakers. The other proposes to recognize and license them.

Both seem much dissatisfied with the existing condition. Either restrictions and a war that will be successful against the bookies, or a licensing system, seems likely.

San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth and Dallas all have had more or less successful drives against the bookies. There is no difficulty in placing a bet in any of them. Even Austin, in the shadow of the capitol, has had bookie shops running with little interruption.

So far the licensing movement has had little more than general discussion to go on, but it is currently reported that a survey has been made to determine what the state revenue might be from licensed race bet establishments, distinct from the race tracks.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The red flag waved briefly today over the $10,000,000 marble edifice of the United States supreme court, but no international complications are expected to result.

The soviet banner was planted so firmly atop the supreme court flagpole that firemen finally had to burn it down.

However the state department took no alarm, despite suspicion by capitol police that "real communism" might be at the bottom of the affair. The state department said "hoodlumism" best described the incident and the soviet embassy had no comment.

Folly of Past Turns Youth Against War

That half a million young American college students could be induced to assemble on one day and declare that they will never don their country's uniform or fight their country's foe is something to disturb the graybeards.

Before we let ourselves get too worked up over it, however, it might be sensible to sit down calmly and try to figure out whose fault it all is.

It don't do to blame it all on personal soft-headedness or cowardice. That answer is too pat; it explains nothing, but merely substitutes one puzzle for another. These youngsters did what they did because they had something on their minds. What was it, and how did it get there?

It is reasonable to assume first of all, that they were thinking about 1918.

As we get far enough away from the World War to obtain a good perspective on it, we can see that it was one of the great tragedies of all history; not because it took such a frightful number of lives, but because those lives seem to have been pored out for so little purpose.

A war to save democracy, which left democracy on the verge of death; a war to end militarism, which left militarism stronger than ever before; a war to crush despotism, which succeeded only in replacing the despotism of divine right with that of brute strength—what young man, collegiate or otherwise, could look back at that without feeling that somebody had sold his elders a colossal gold brick?

We have had other post-war generations but none of them looked back at any such thing as that. Our other wars, bloody and stupid and avoidable though they may have been, did at least settle things. This one left a worse mess than it found and settled next to nothing.

But that isn't all that may have been on our collegians' minds. They also had the recent munitions trade disclosures to mull over, and the mulling can't have been very pleasant.

If the profits-before-patriotism revelations of the last year have not been enough to set any young man's heart against war, nothing could ever do it.

To ask a young man to give up his life for something bigger and better than himself is one thing; to ask him to do it so that some TNT magnate or armor plate peddler can reap a 60 per cent dividend is something quite different. It's not exactly surprising if collegiate youth choked on it.

In other words, if our young men are swearing off on war, we have only ourselves to blame.

The stupidity which brings on wars that should be avoided, the greed which debases the high ideals for which men are asked to die—these are the real villains behind the students' anti-war demonstration.

Chamber of Commerce," declared Mr. Rix. Throughout the three days of the convention the Memphis Gold Medal Band, official organization of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, having been designated last year at Plainview, will be on hand. W. C. Milam, director of the Gold Medal band, and F. V. Clark, Memphis Chamber of Commerce secretary, came here recently to make arrangements for housing the 80-piece band. Reservations are being made for many more bands. Among the largest will be the T. C. U. band with the Fort Worth special and the Texas Tech band with the Lubbock delegation. The state band from North Texas State Teachers College at Denton, which has played for the last several years, also will be at the Amarillo convention. The band to receive the West Texas Chamber of Commerce official designation at the Amarillo convention will have the privilege of opening Fort Worth's Frontier celebration. Bill Beecher is chairman of the committee appointed by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce to receive the bands and to arrange for judges at the band review. The 1936 convention is 11-13.

Pampa Will Take Seven Bands to WTCC Convention

AMARILLO, Tex.—Pampa will hang up at least one band banner at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention here, May 11-13. To none of the 17 annual meetings held by the organization has any one city sent seven bands. But Pampa proposes to send seven bands to the eighteenth annual meeting. Jed Rix, convention manager, at first expressed doubt that a city the size of Pampa had seven bands. So the Pampa Chamber of Commerce has forwarded pictures of all seven bands to convention headquarters. There are nearly 200 musicians in the seven organizations. Four of the Pampa bands are from ward schools, two are from high schools and the other is a Junior Chamber of Commerce cowboy band. "With seven bands coming from one town there is every indication that there will be more musical organizations at the Amarillo convention than at any other in the history of the West Texas

FOLLY and FAREWELL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
LINDA BOURNE, 20 years old, pretty, is left almost penniless by the sudden death of her father, PETER GARDNER.

PETER GARDNER, newspaper reporter, helps her get a job with DIX CARTER, but he soon abandons her to marry his own girl, who postpones the wedding.

HOONEY HARMON, who stars, comes to Newtown, making a personal appearance tour. She buys a scenario written by Linda. Linda goes to Hollywood and she appears beside her, takes her in his arms and kisses her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

LINDA refused to accept the threat in Honey's voice. There was no reason for it; therefore it couldn't exist. Smiling and friendly, she said good night to Honey and to Basil Thorne separately, and went to her room. Sunday she pleaded work, breakfasted privately, and spent the morning reading. In the afternoon she gathered up a foursome for bridge and at 5 she left without saying more than the most casual banalities to Basil Thorne.

But, returned to her apartment in Beverly Hills, her gaze wandered toward the telephone and each time it rang, exhilaration lifted her swiftly and left her as witty as she heard a voice that was not Thorne's.

For five days Thorne didn't telephone her. That didn't surprise Linda. She expected that he would play his game that way. He knew he had made an impression; now he didn't want her to wonder a bit. He reckoned without Linda's purposefulness. Knowing the situation between Honey and Thorne, she decided she would not see him.

BUT for once Linda did not abide by her own decision. Basil Thorne telephoned her the sixth day of that week and asked her to dine at his house. To her own surprise, she accepted, and spent the next hour in a fever of dress ing. Her hair wouldn't behave. The red head looked too bold, the white one too virginal, the black one too dressed-up. She wore a frosty gray, pinned violet at the waist, and flung a pink cape over her shoulders.

Speeding over the smooth roads to Brentwood and Thorne's palace "shack," as she called the 15 rooms, she reminded herself that she was a grown woman, capable of handling any situation, and that a man only took advantage of a woman when the woman wanted him. To while many men had made love to her in Hollywood, none had presumed to treat her as a woman other than she was. And while she was telling herself these things, her excitement mounted and made her flushed and lovely when she stepped into the great hall of Thorne's house.

He was not there to greet her. Linda was accustomed to bad manners. She had met them frequently in the last year, but she was astonished that Thorne had been guilty of such bad taste. A Chinese butler took her wrap. She touched a lipstick to her mouth, patted her hair and lit a cigarette. Then she strolled into the living room.

There was an eight-foot lounge before the hearth and, reclining in unlovely slumber, dressed for dinner with a dressing gown in place of his dinner jacket, was her host! He was snoring gently. Not that the "gently" part helped. He might have trumpeted and the effect would have been no worse. Fastidious Linda shuddered, and was lost to him.

He was aware of her then and opened his eyes, shook his head, rose unsteadily to his feet, and spoke thickly. "Sorry, Little Linda. Dropped off to a nap. Be all right in a minute." His words slurred slightly and he roared, "Cock tails!"

LINDA took one from the tray and sipped it. She was stricken to silence. The evening had gone completely flat. She watched Thorne gulp two of the cocktails in quick succession, saw his hand steady and his eyes closed.

She didn't quite know what to do, but when he pulled her down on the lounge beside him she slipped from his grasp, smiling, and still smiling, left him. He didn't realize until she was well down the road in search of a telephone that she had gone.

That finished Basil Thorne with Linda, but it did not remove him from her life. And that week had awakened in her a loneliness, a need for affection to have and to bestow.

The next day he telephoned. He called her at the studio, and he called her at home. He sent her a charming note of apology and enough flowers to lend a funeral effect to her four-room apartment. But she refused to talk to him or see him.

After that she accepted no invitations until she was certain that the guest list did not include his name. She saw him at lunch at the Brown Derby. She met him at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. He sat two tables away from her at the Clover Club, and each time she nodded and smiled, but was careful to avoid having to speak to him. Linda had learned that one does not make enemies in Hollywood.

For many weeks nothing happened to disturb the smooth routure of her way. She had much work to do, and worked hard. She had discovered an elderly actress in the ranks of extras and was writing her first big role for her. She was very careful these days to pick her way surely through the precipices of judgment. She was a success, but, one slip, and she knew she would find her work undone.

HOONEY HARMON called to tell her that Pete Gardner's play, "Remembrance," was being done by the Theater Guild on Broadway. Linda thanked her, had a moment of being happy that Pete had arrived, made a note to send him a telegram, asked her secretary to remind her to send it, and forgot all about it.

That was at the time that "Take a Letter" was finally being filmed and Linda found herself acting as co-producer. She was on the set all day, in the projection room watching the rushes by night, and squeezing sleep in when she could. That picture was all hers.

Young, slim, executive, she was as attractive to the extra girls as the star herself. They called out shy greetings to her, found ways to wait on her. She was practically a producer. If she liked a girl, she might help her.

"Miss Bourne, there's an extra, a boy, who lives at my boarding house who says he used to know you," one of them said to her one morning. "His name is Dixon Carter."

Miss Bourne didn't flutter a single dark eyelash.

"Really? Dix Carter? Of course he knew me? We were friends when he was in college. I didn't know he was in Hollywood. I'd like to see him some time."

Linda waited for the next line as though it were not terribly important to her.

"I'll tell him if you don't mind. I know he'd like to see you."

Linda smiled and walked away. She wanted to tell the girl her telephone number and address, but she didn't dare. Dix would know where to reach her if he wanted to. The girl had said Dix was an extra. That perplexed her, and she tried to forget it. She tried not to want to see him. But the very next morning, when he came, she told her secretary to show him in and take a message to someone four floors away and wait for an answer.

"Hello, Dix," she said.

"Hello, Linda," he answered. "I always thought you were beautiful, but then I thought I had only imagined it . . . but, you're just the way I've been thinking of you every day since . . ."

Linda didn't say anything. She couldn't say, "I still love you, too."

New Instructor Named at Tarleton

By United Press
STEPHENVILLE, Tex.—Major James J. Bender, U. S. Infantry, was named to relieve Captain George M. Davis as professor of military science and tactics at John Tarleton College in a recent announcement by the War Department.

In special orders of the War Department, Major Bender is relieved from assignment and duty with the 23rd Infantry, Fort Sam Houston, to take effect on or about June 15, and is detailed at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas to proceed to Stephenville.

Major Bender received his LL.B. degree from the University of Tennessee in 1916. He is a graduate of Infantry School in the class of 1923.

Major Bender succeeds Captain George M. Davis, who has been professor of Military Science and Tactics at John Tarleton College for the past six years. Captain Davis' time at the college was extended past the customary four years by special consideration for the desires of college officials. During his term, here, the Aerial Cadet Corps has consistently rated "Excellent" at the annual federal inspection.

Captain Davis has not yet received his orders from the War Department, but he expects to be detailed for foreign service.

Paper Mill Planned In Houston Area

By United Press

HOUSTON—Work has been started on a $3,500,000 paper pulp mill on the Houston ship channel, which will be the outlet for millions of feet of East Texas timber.

C. E. Smith, production manager for the Champion Paper and Fibre company of Canton, N. S., said construction on the new plant probably would be completed by Jan. 1, 1937. The new plant is the largest project on the ship channel since pre-depression days.

The plan will give permanent employment to more than 300 men while the operations begin, Smith, but more than 1,000 will be given work during construction.

Roads are being built and a network of railway tracks laid. Wells are being dug and shipping docks for materials and for use after the plant begins operations, are being constructed.

Timber to be used in manufacturing pulp will be brought from East Texas forest which will be replanted for constant production, Smith said. The pulp will be loaded on barges and trains for transportation to the company's main plant at Hamilton, Ohio, for manufacture into fine paper.

The Houston plant will occupy a 162-acre tract.
