COURT RULES LABOR LAWS ARE NOT VALID

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The court today in a sweeping decision which will probably doom any kind of state or federal wage or hour legislation, today held unconstitutional the New York minimum wage law for women and children. The verdict was rendered in a 5-to-4 decision. The ruling, which applied only to the New York law, was expected to mean the end of similar legislation in many states, including seven which adjoined with New York in appeal to sustain the validity of the law. The conservative victory was made possible by the adherence of Justice Owen Roberts, who cast his vote with the four members of the conservative bloc, who voted against a similar law in 1923. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes wrote a vigorous dissent, which was concurred in by Louis Brandeis, Harlan Stone and Benjamin Cardozo. Hughes dissented on the ground there was a difference between the 1923 district of Columbia case and the New York law.

"Old Rip's" Kin Are Sent As Souvenirs

DALLAS.—The horned toad's first claim came half a decade ago when one was found alive in the corner of the Eastland county courthouse, alive and well after being buried 31 years in a cement block. "Old Rip" was nationally prominent for weeks. His second national notice will come at the Texas Centennial Exposition which opens here on June 6 and continues through November. Horned toads of every size, variety and description will be included in a large exhibit. Besides that, the exhibition has sent out thousands of the toads to editors, mayors and other dignitaries all over this country, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines and Cuba. For years these little "varmint" have scurried over the rocks and sands of South and West Texas. Regular inhabitants took them for granted. Visitors glanced at them curiously. And that was about all. The horned toad was the forgotten fellow. That's all over. He will be stared at and examined by millions of visitors to the Dallas exposition. And those visitors will be told that despite his broad head and body, his thick horned skin, the toad is quite harmless. He eats flies and he will clean out an ant hill in short order. Plant lice are a favorite part of his diet. He needs a little water—let it drip in a sink—and he's a harmless member of the lizard family. And he positively won't give warts to small boys.

Motor Destroyed in Fire Sunday Night

A motor on one of the cooling units at the Ranger Piggly Wiggly Store burned out Sunday night when a fuse failed to blow out, according to reports this morning. The damage was confined to the motor, which was reported burned.

CAMPUS TO BE NOISELESS

BOWLING GREEN, O.—Trucks, horses, roller skates and all such noise-making vehicles which disturb study, are to be banned from the campus of Bowling Green State University under traffic regulations which Dr. H. B. Williams, president, announced would be enforced.

Bathtub Slayer Doomed to Die

ZIONCHECK IN HOSPITAL FOR OBSERVATION

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Police today arrested a struggling, cunning Representative Marion Zioncheck, Democrat, Washington, at Naval Medical Center, on a lunacy warrant, and took him to Gallinger Municipal hospital for mental observation. The warrant, which was signed by Al Stump, the sanity officer of the police department, charged the playboy legislator with driving "his auto in a reckless manner, annoying citizens." "Annoy" was hardly the word the police said after an all-morning tussle and his arrests in numerous towns after he called at the White House with empty beer bottles as a present to the President. He also tried to have Vice President Garner arrested.

STRAWBERRIES TESTED

SEWARD, Alaska.—Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bolam are experimenting with many new varieties of raspberries and strawberries, and 135 varieties of potatoes at their farm near here. They will test the various types to determine which are adjusted best to the climatic variations of Alaska.

Capacity To Over Produce Oil Should Not Affect Readjustments in Industry

AUSTIN, Tex.—Current problems of capacity to "over produce" crude oil should not be allowed to blind us to current readjustments that are occurring in the world's oil industry, Elmer H. Johnson, regional economist for the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, recently declared. "These readjustments," he said, "in conjunction with facts of supply of crude oil reserves, and the increasing consumption of oil products, point unmistakably to certain fairly well defined conclusions: "First, that oil production outside the United States is growing at a faster rate than production in this country. "Second, that the consumption of oil products, already on a high level in the United States, is advancing rapidly in other parts of the world, particularly in Canada, France, Germany, Russia and Japan. The absolute necessity of oil products in modern industrial and commercial nations is reflected in the post-war policies in countries of Western Europe and Japan—in policies of securing a wider control of oil reserves, of intensive research in, and the application of, industrial chemistry to the development of synthetic gasolines from coal, by hydrogenation or by carbonization, as in England, Germany, and Japan, and by the stimulation, through one means or another, of refining operations in those countries.

145 KILLED IN ACCIDENTS IN THE NATION

The annual surge of America's millions to the highways and countryside for the first big holiday of the year left more than 145 mangled accident victims in morgues and undertaking parlors, a survey indicated today. Twenty-five states reported 100 violent deaths for Memorial Day week-end, with the final death toll at more than 150. Automobile accidents caused the most deaths, as usual. A pre-holiday campaign was credited with reducing the toll to slightly below the average. It had been anticipated 160 deaths would be recorded. The apparent reduction will encourage more spirited safety campaigns it was reported. Several states reported drownings as summer weather attracted millions to beaches and lakeside resorts. Airplane crashes and drunken shootings helped swell the total. A train-automobile collision at Youngstown, Ohio, killed three, Texas had three deaths, Louisiana none.

Allred Amazed at Centennial Progress

DALLAS, June 1.—Gov. James Allred here today enroute to Farmersville, was amazed at the rapid progress in work at the Centennial Exposition in preparation for its opening Saturday. The governor arrived on an early train and left an hour later. He will go to Fort Worth to deliver the commencement address at T. C. U.

William McCraw to Seek Re-election

AUSTIN, June 1.—Citing his record of the past two years to show his qualification, Attorney General McCraw announced today as a candidate for re-election. "In this Centennial year with the eyes of the world on Texas, there is an opportunity for this state to lead America in strengthening and more fully restoring confidence in the future," McCraw said in a formal statement.

STOLEN DOGS AID POLICE

TOLEDO.—Reports of barking brought police to an abandoned basement. There they found hidden several valuable dogs which recently had been stolen.

TOLEDO ANNEXES SUBURB

TOLEDO.—By annexation of Point Place, O., voted by city council, Toledo will add one and one-quarter square miles to its area, 4,700 to its population and

Composite GOP Candidate

If the Republican presidential candidate had to look like the average of all the candidates for nomination, this would be the picture emblazoned on the G. O. P. campaign posters. It is made by photographing on a single negative the pictures of seven outstanding Republican candidates and dark-horses likely to figure in the balloting at the Cleveland convention: Senators Borah, Vandenberg and Dickinson, Governor Landon, Colonel Frank Knox, Keynote Steiwer and Representative James Wadsworth.

FIRST JUNE TRADES DAY IS EXPECTED TO DRAW CROWDS

The first of the two monthly trades days will be held in Ranger all day Tuesday, with another large crowd anticipated. It is expected that since many farmers will find their fields too wet to work they will take advantage of the opportunity to come to Ranger for the trades days. The regular trades day features will be conducted throughout the day, with the auction being conducted on the lot at the corner of Rusk and Walnut streets. Free stock water will be provided on the lot, where there is plenty of shed space for the livestock that is brought in for sale. Each auction day a large number of sales are made, including horses, mules and cows, with other livestock being sold from time to time. The other trades day features will be conducted in front of the old Liberty Theatre, as usual, where the crowd will gather after the last auction. Anyone who has livestock of any kind to sell has an invitation to list it with the auctioneer and it will be sold, if possible. The owner retains the right to bid in his own stock should he feel that it is not bringing a high enough price.

Ranger Boy Crosses Equator With Fleet

A copy of the Keystone newspaper published on the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, has been received in Ranger from Jack Davis, son of Mrs. F. D. Hicks, who is serving on board the ship. The paper was printed while the ship was in the canal zone, and has an interesting story about the ship crossing the equator. A total of 1,173 pollywogs, or those who had never crossed the equator before, were initiated into the "mystic mysteries of the Domain of the Deep, wherein Neptune Rex reigns."

CHINA MODERNIZES COURT

DETROIT.—The practice of law in China differs very little from methods in the United States, Dr. Fred Wilhelm, European-born Shanghai attorney, said here. Bar requirements are the same, and court procedure is almost identical. Wilhelm uses an interpreter in court.

PASSENGER FARES CUT

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Railroad passenger fares throughout the country fell today to levels of pre-war days, when a ticket cost 2 cents a mile.

PASTOR IS ON TRIAL TODAY FOR MURDER

HOUSTON, June 1.—C. Edgar Eskridge, 41, Orange Baptist minister, was called to trial here today in the court of District Judge Langston King to face a charge of murder. Specifically he is charged with the shotgun slaying of Police Chief Ed O'Reilly of Orange, a friend. Eskridge, apparently in good health, was in the courtroom when J. J. Collins, Lufkin, chief defense attorney, announced the defense was ready for trial in the shooting which occurred May 29, 1935, on an Orange street. "I am glad we are ready," the crime crusading preacher said. Collins' announcement came after attorneys for both sides discussed changing the venue of the case for a second time. It had been transferred from Orange.

Queen Mary Fails To Set New Record

ABOARD THE S. S. QUEEN MARY, June 1.—Just short of a record for North Atlantic speed, Great Britain's proudest ship found New York harbor a bedlam of welcome today. Officials announced the Queen Mary arrived off Ambrose lightship unofficially only 44 minutes under the record from Cherbourg to New York. Passengers crowded the decks and watched airplanes swooping low, had expected a last-minute spurt for the blue ribbon of speed supremacy held by the French liner Normandie, but were disappointed when a few miles off Ambrose the ships engines were slowed to half speed.

Bank to be Closed All Day Wednesday

Announcement was made today that the Commercial State Bank would be closed all day Wednesday in celebration of Jefferson Davis' birthday. All who have business with the bank have been urged to complete it Tuesday.

C of C Directors Will Meet Tonight

Hal Hunter, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has announced a regular meeting of the board of directors would be held tonight at 8 o'clock. All members of the board have been urged to be present.

Cost of Pension Administration May Develop Into A Campaign Issue

AUSTIN.—Cost of administering old age assistance is in the spotlight—particularly since it may have a bearing in the state gubernatorial campaign. In the long run, the cost of pension administration will not exceed 5 per cent of all money spent. The law fixes that limit. If a million is distributed, only $50,000 can be used in disbursing it. That ratio, however, need not be immediate. Attorney General William McCraw ruled that the legislature did not intend to apply the 5 per cent at the outset, and have the same proportion apply after the old age assistance system has finished its initial organization, investigation, classification and other expensive duties. As legislative appropriations are made for two-year periods, the presumption is that the law be complied with if administrative expense has not exceeded 5 per cent of the total outlay during that period. To start the pension system, the legislature provided $100,000. That is less than $400 a county. It is less than $1 per application received for checking and investigation. The same legislature allowed the state comptroller's department, for tax work entailed in registering and issuing pension warrants, $25,000. It allowed the state treasurer $20,000 for the office cost of checking and cashing warrants. The two were given for clerical purposes more than half as much as was allowed for administration. The $100,000 must be included in the 5 per cent allowance for administration. The federal gov-

Dismissal Stirs Church Conflict

Dismissal of three nuns from a convent near Rouen, France, focused attention on the Roman Catholic Church conflict that centers around Monsignor Andre du Bois de Villers (above), relieved of his duties as Archbishop of the Rouen diocese. Doubt has been raised about the legality of the proceedings, although apparently emanating from Rome.

JIM DUKE RUNS AMUCK AT HIS MURDER TRIAL

FORT WORTH, June 1.—Trial of Jim Duke on a second murder charge was postponed when the boarded, iron-muscled slayer, threw the courtroom in a panic with shouted curses and threats. Dragging two bumpy deputies, Duke lunged at his attorney, Bill Auger. His two outbursts were the result of Auger's decision to use insanity in the defense of the second trial. Duke had been convicted of the murder of his wife and given 99 years. He pleaded self-defense. Duke charged into the crowded courtroom as the door from the holdover was opened. Shaking his manacled fists at his attorney, Duke shouted: "You dirty doubt-crossing—" Attorneys and court attaches joined spectators in a rush for the door as two guards tugged at Duke. Auger stood his ground. Order was restored when Duke was taken from the room, but he again broke forth with a stream of oaths. Again spectators broke for cover.

DARP CALLED MONEY SCHEME BY WITNESS

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Charles Hawks, who resigned a key post in the Townsend pension organization to testify in the house pension inquiry, charged today the $200-a-month old age drive was run "more for money than for ideals." At the same time Representative Joseph Monaghan, Dem., Mont., charged in the house that the Townsend investigation was designed to "destroy the greatest single pension movement ever organized." "It has been an imposition," the red-haired Monaghan shouted. He added house action in citing Townsend for contempt for refusal to answer questions was "a miscarriage of justice." Hawks, elderly father of Frank Hawks, record-holding speed aviator, revealed he quit his job as Massachusetts Townsend director after he was ordered to defy the house committee.

Committee Delays Persenting Tax Bill To Senate

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The senate finance committee delayed today, its final report on the new tax bill but announced the measure would be ready tomorrow, when debate is expected to start. The committee had intended to present its final report today. However, last minute delay in clearing up final details of the controversial bill forced the committee to delay the report until a few hours before the scheduled start of debate. The committee took no action on the minor details today. A subcommittee was named to include the amendment which would invalidate 1936 and 1937 AAA sugar quotas.

Chinese Troops and Students Join In Demand For War

PEIPING, China, June 1.—Chinese troops joined striking students in demanding China fight Japanese military forces which are holding almost all of north China. The Chinese defiance, coming at the height of the gravest Sino-Japanese crisis since 1923, was expected to cause a showdown that might cause war and overthrow General Kai-Shek's Nanking government.

Townsend, Smith Join Forces to Defeat Democrats

NEW YORK, June 1.—Dr. Frances Townsend, and Rev. Garold K. Smith, share the wealth chief, announced today they had joined forces to "get rid of Roosevelt." Townsend who made the announcement, added followers of the Rev. Charles Coughlin would also participate in the anti-Roosevelt drive, although he said the priest has not committed himself.

Gusher Is Out of Control at Corpus

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 1.—A wild gusher belched a 300-foot column of crude oil west of here today, spraying the country with a dangerous film of liquid. Well fighters worked to make connections to cap O. W. Kellam's Ellick No. 1, a semi-wildcat which extended the new Clara Driscoll pool a mile to the south.

U. of T. Centennial Is Opened Today

AUSTIN, June 1.—The University of Texas Centennial exposition opened today. It will remain open until Dec. 1. The opening was preceded by a luncheon.

Rejected Laws Have Left Their Marks

The founding fathers thought of a great many things when they sat down to put together the United States constitution, but it is not at all likely that they ever guessed how neatly their descendants would work out a means for riding through emergencies, on unconstitutional laws.

Judging by the experience of the last few years, this system is working so beautifully that it is hard to see why anyone has the slightest desire to amend the immortal document.

Consider, for instance, three of the principal emergencies that confronted the New Deal. All were met by unconstitutional means. In each case, the unconstitutional legislation served a highly useful purpose and helped the country through the emergency; and in each case the supreme court did its work, after the emergency had passed, and restored the status quo.

There was, first of all, the great industrial collapse and the feeling of utter despair which it had created in the public mind. Congress put through the NRA as a remedy; and although this famous set-up eventually died unwept and friendless, it did us a great service during the summer and fall of 1933. It did set some wheels going again, it did boost a few wages, and—most important of all—it ended the widespread feeling that the government was helpless in the face of a nation-wide catastrophe.

When these things had been done and the emergency had passed, the NRA quietly fell apart, and life had pretty well departed when the supreme court administered the coup de grace. But for a time—about six months—it was exceedingly useful as a means of meeting an emergency.

The case of the AAA was somewhat similar. Here, again, there was a dire emergency and a widespread feeling of despair to cope with; and here, again, a complicated law got us safely through the worst of the trouble, relieved a good deal of financial distress, and restored confidence. In due course the emergency ceased to exist, shortly thereafter the AAA also ceased to exist, and practically everyone was happy.

Lastly, we have—or had—the Guffey act. This lamented law was born with two strikes on it and died after a short, sickly infancy. But it did save the country from a nation-wide strike in the bituminous coal fields. That strike was worth missing, even if a few of the American eagle's tail feathers did get a bit ruffled.

So here we are—possessors, apparently, of a foolproof technique for meeting emergencies. It is a technique that must pain the liberal and shock the conservative, but it works—and it has taught us a thing or two. We may have got through our troubles unconstitutionally, but we did get through them.

Who said American inventiveness was dead?

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK—Max Hirsch disagrees with those who predict that Brevity and Red Rain will run away from Bold Venture in the Belmont Stakes at one mile and a half on June 8.

"I believe that Bold Venture will take that one, too," says the veteran trainer who developed the gelding that hung on to capture the Kentucky Derby and came from the rear to bag the Preakness in memorable finishes.

"The wide Belmont Park track will help Bold Venture," explains Hirsch. "There will be less chance of crowding and roughing. I have an idea that my charge will show to greater advantage than he did in either the Derby or the Preakness."

"In the stake at Pimlico, Bold Venture ran his best for only three-sixteenths of a mile. That was in the homestretch.

"Bold Venture did not have clear sailing during the early stages. Georgie Woolf was compelled to hold him in check until turning into the stretch. In addition, Bold Venture was carried extremely wide at the head of the homestretch. That cost him several lengths. With better racing luck he would have scored an easy victory, in my opinion."

"I don't want to take anything away from Granville, though. He's a real good colt, but I believe my fellow is a better one. Granville came on again in the final drive, but so did Bold Venture, and at the end Bold Venture was moving along as resolutely as Granville."

BARE HANFORD, who boosted Bold Venture home a head in front of Brevity in the Derby, asserts that the gallant son of St. Germans will repeat in the Belmont Stakes, and hardly expects the finish to be as whiskery as were the ones in Louisville and Baltimore.

Woolf, who rode Bold Venture for the first time in the Preakness, calls the chestnut the finest 3-year-old of the year, and says that bringing him up from the rear to take it all by a nostril really was no task at all.

Johnny Stout, dismounted by Granville in the Derby and who made it so close with the son of Gallant Fox in the Preakness, strings along with Woolf. He points out that it was no disgrace for the William Woodward entry to be nosed out by Bold Venture.

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, trainer of Granville, echoes Stout's judgment in that the Belair Stud candidate had nothing of which to be ashamed in being beaten an inch or two by the half brother of Twenty Grand.

FITZSIMMONS feels sure that Granville would have copped the Preakness in a few more strides, however, and that he will renege Bold Venture and all other rivals in the Belmont.

Fitzsimmons attributes Granville's defeat in the Preakness to a habit inherited from his sire, Gallant Fox, which has prone to loaf when it looked like he had a race won.

"Bold Venture got his neck in front of Granville at the eighth pole, but when Granville saw his opponent moving past him he started to run again and was gradually cutting down Bold Venture's lead," explains the grizzled conditioner.

Brevity and Red Rain will have the Withers Mile under their belts when they tackle Bold Venture and Granville in the Belmont Stakes. With plenty of room for all, excuses won't go, after that grueling grind.

Capacity— (Continued from page 1) matter of opinion. Even though no new reserves remain to be discovered, we would not deplete our estimated supplies in fifteen years as in such case, the rate of depletion of our reserves would be reduced year by year. "The problem of oil in the future in the United States still remains: How long will it be until our lessened supply will bring about a reduction in production? This problem is quite naturally a fundamental problem to Texas. Currently, Texas is producing nearly 40 per cent of the oil output of the United States. In 1935 Texas accounted for nearly 24 per cent of the world's output of oil—a figure as great as the output of Russia, Rumania, Iran, Iraq, and the Dutch East Indies all put together. "The oil industry has become one of the largest factors, and perhaps the most significant element in the economic life of Texas. Oil has been a factor of increasing significance in Texas since the discovery of large production at Spindletop in 1901; Corsicana, as is well known, has had an oil production and refining industry of more than local significance since the middle of the 1890's. "In conclusion, it may be stated that possibilities of oil supplies in deep strata in the Gulf coast in Northeast Texas, and in sections of West Texas, while apparently promising, belong to the realm of conjecture until explored by deep drilling. And, furthermore, it is important to note that however widely competent geologists may differ as to the possibilities of discovering new reserves, they are generally of the opinion that Texas will be the last stand of large oil production in the United States."

Q. Who conceived the plan of "camel trains" for Texas and what came of it? B. R. C. Atlanta. A. Jefferson Davis, then Secretary of War in President Franklin's cabinet, secured an appropriation of $30,000 for buying and experimenting with camels for Army transportation in the arid section of the Southwest. A herd was acquired by purchase and gift in Egypt and Turkey and brought to Texas in 1856 and unloaded at Power Horn Dharf near Indiana. They were taken to Camp Verde, near Comfort, where buildings had been prepared for them. They were used with some degree of success but the experiment was abandoned and the camels were sold during the Civil War.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GAIL EVERETT, winner of a contest for costume design offered in a large silk manufacturing company, comes to New York to work. She is hired—due to her lack—by MADAME WHITE, proprietor of an exclusive shop. Madame proves temperamental and difficult to work with.

BEREK HAHGRUAVES, young but interested in Gail, and her friendly advice, frequently Gail sees DICK SEARLES, whose sister was her roommate at school. She also becomes acquainted with NATALIE STON who, under a mask of friendliness, makes shrewd plans to advance her own interests. Meanwhile, in Arizona, MARK PAXMAN has an automobile accident, is picked up and cared for by JED HOSKINER. Mark, a wanderer, has returned to his old home. He learns that the house, formerly owned by his father-in-law, PETER EVERETT, is in the hands of the Everett Mining Co. and suspects a deal may be crooked. Mark does not know the whereabouts of his niece, Gail.

MR. HALL, Madame Lister's representative in the Traverses company in Arizona. Word comes that a stranger, starting with Hoskener, and Hax is sent to investigate.

Gail was tucking her red-gold curls inside a small, close-fitting, hyacinth blue straw hat.

"I hate to run away, Natalie, but I don't like to keep Dick waiting."

"Oh, that's all right! He must be a brave young man to come to a place like this when all that's to be seen is girls, girls and more girls! Well, have a good time!" Natalie opened the door and walked with Gail to the elevator.

When the door clicked behind her, Natalie returned to her own room. Maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea to keep friendly with the youngster. Apparently she had a good job, and, with friends like the Searles, undoubtedly she would have some good times.

As she stepped into her room her eyes suddenly filled with tears. What had all her success brought her after all? Even the girls in the clubhouse (most of whom she ignored, for at heart Natalie was a social climber) were to be envied for their dates and good times.

At last, with a wisp of a handkerchief, Natalie wiped away her tears. Maybe, after all it had paid her to be exclusive. Maybe through Gail, she might yet step up the social ladder.

"You get accustomed to it, sweet." His glance was tender as he turned to Gail. "How's the job going? I guess the old dame didn't swallow you, even if you were a minute late the other day. I waited to see."

"You did? You're a dear."

"That's right. Be good to me, for I deserve it."

"Oh, is that so?"

"Yes, I had a nightmare after I left you."

"Pat Murphy didn't order you away from Madame's front door, did he?"

"Pat Murphy! Never heard of the guy. Are you keeping something back from me, woman?"

"Pat's the doorman, stupid!"

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI

NATALIE PRESTON faced Gail across the threshold. "I hope I managed to get along with your scissors," she said. "I don't have a chance to return to before. Oh—were you going where?"

"It was Saturday afternoon and the week-end came, partly laid, lay open on the couch. Yes, I'm going to Long Island. I surely don't think I'd be going to the shore all by myself."

"Hardly! What train are you going to make?" asked Natalie. "I'm not going by train. Your friends are coming for me in their car?"

"Yes, Dick Searles will be here in a minute."

"Dick Searles!" Natalie repeated. "Not one of the rich ones who give so much to charity?"

Gail smiled. "Well, this is the family of that name which I know. They have a lovely home. I know Dick's parents are philanthropic."

The telephone tinkled.

"That must be Dick now!" Gail kept up the receiver while Natalie rose and looked out of the window.

Parked in front of the door was a long, slim car that looked as though it was brand new. Natalie's green eyes hardened. Some one certainly seemed to have the luck!

NATALIE turned as she heard the receiver click in its cradle.

"HERE, let me take that," said Dick Searles, as Gail, dressing case in hand, stepped from the elevator.

"Oh, it's light as a feather," she answered, handing the case to him. "How's everybody?"

"All fine, and, say, I've a surprise for you."

"What is it, Dick?" Gail questioned as he helped her into the car.

"Rosemary's coming home next week!"

"Oh, grand! I wish it were tonight."

"And in that case I couldn't have gotten a word in edgewise, with you two chattering. No, siree, I'm going to have you all to myself this week-end."

"Selfish young man!" Gail exclaimed, though gay lights flashed from her amber eyes.

Gail watched Dick drive and marveled at his skill. As she looked ahead it seemed to her that some of the cars—as thick on the bridge as ants in an ant-hill—must surely crash. But at last traffic thinned and when they reached the shore road, Dick slowed down. He glanced at Gail, and said, "Now we can breathe again!"

"But Dick, I don't see how you ever manage to drive in that mess, when every one's going at such a rate!"

"You get accustomed to it, sweet." His glance was tender as he turned to Gail. "How's the job going? I guess the old dame didn't swallow you, even if you were a minute late the other day. I waited to see."

"You did? You're a dear."

"That's right. Be good to me, for I deserve it."

"Oh, is that so?"

"Yes, I had a nightmare after I left you."

"Pat Murphy didn't order you away from Madame's front door, did he?"

"Pat Murphy! Never heard of the guy. Are you keeping something back from me, woman?"

"Pat's the doorman, stupid!"

"WELL, it's too bad he didn't do his duty. I was held up for 20 minutes by an old friend of yours. Though she gave me several hints I wouldn't rise. I didn't want to drive her to the Waldorf and treat her to a belated lunch."

"You mean Lucille Traverses? Oh, now I understand." The little spark of jealousy that had leaped into Gail's heart as she'd mentioned Dick that morning she was called into the show-room, was instantly extinguished.

"How did you guess that?"

"Oh, that was easy! I don't know many of your friends, but I'm quite insulted that you should call her a friend of mine. I know she's not that," Gail declared.

"Well," said Dick, "she's no friend of mine either."

"I designed a frock for her the other day," Gail told him, and the memory of her taunts drove the laughter from Gail's voice.

"You don't sound very pleased about it. What did she do? Tell me, quick, so I can settle with her."

Gail was silent. She knew Dick. He wouldn't hesitate to say what he thought to Lucille. Still, she wouldn't be a tattler. She was a business woman now, so, with a gay laugh, she parried his question.

Laughing and chatting they drove along, through straggling villages, past prosperous developments and then between tree-bordered estates, catching a glimpse here and there of velvety lawns and chimney tops of magnificent homes.

"Oh, this is lovely!" sighed Gail, sitting forward and resting her eyes on the young green leaves and blossoming shrubs.

"Yes, and there's the house," said Dick, as the old white house came into view around a bend in the road.

Getting Iron Ring for Gold

More than 100,000 husbands and wives renewed marriage vows at mass ceremonies performed throughout the United States in connection with the bestowal of iron wedding bands on the Italian-American wives who donated their gold rings to Premier Mussolini's war chest for the conquest of Ethiopia. Above, Silvio Martini places the band, blessed by a church official, on Mrs. Antonio Gaviarducci's hand in the mass ceremony at Springfield, Mass.

Casualties in Naval War Games

Three U. S. Navy sea fighters sustained "injuries" in the war games held in the Pacific off the Panama Canal. It was revealed with announcement that the New Mexico, from whose deck the above picture was taken during the maneuvers, and the Mississippi, which follows, were forced to quit because of turbine trouble. The third casualty, the Minneapolis, rammed a freighter in Balboa harbor.

Expert Solves Three Riddles of Easter Island

HONOLULU.—The three great "mysteries" of Easter Island are no riddle to Dr. Alfred Metraux, French ethnologist, who has joined the staff of the Bishop museum here.

Although Metraux first went to Easter Island as a representative of the Paris Museum of Ethnology, he transferred his services to the museum here because of his conviction that only long residence in the Pacific would make it possible to solve all of the problems of the origin of the Polynesians and various tribes of the Pacific.

As regards the colossal statues on the seashore at Easter Island, Dr. Metraux declares there should be no mystery whatsoever. The statues, he points out, weigh only five or six tons.

He insists they could have been carved in the inland quarries from which the stone originated and dragged to their present position by natives. Four hundred men could drag them with ropes of native weaving, he says.

The second "mystery" which he has deflated is that the inhabitants of Easter Island are the remnants of the population of a lost continent. He identifies them as being merely related to the Maori of New Zealand and calculates they came to the Island in the 12th century.

Finally, the third "mystery" of script on wooden tables found on the island is explained by Dr. Metraux who insists that it is not a true written language but rather a device to aid the memory of the natives in reciting sacred legends.

5 o'Clock Ring Ceremony Unites Ranger-Eastland Couple in Pretty Informal Wedding

Sunday afternoon just as the clock chimed 5, the Rev. T. E. Bowman, pastor of the First Methodist Church, read at his home, Elm street, the ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Volva Kimbrough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Kimbrough and Mr. Stewart M. Doss of Eastland, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Doss.

Simplicity marked the setting for the repeating of their vows, witnessed by members of the family and a group of close friends. The bride wore for her wedding a lovely blue net suit in tailored design, offset with white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was gardenias.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Juanita Kimbrough, acting as maid of honor. Her frocks was of harmonizing blue and all-white accessories were used. A shoulder corsage of white lent the finishing touch to the ensemble.

Ring Ceremony Read by Rev. P. D. O'Brien
The marriage of Miss Clara Barker to Mr. Erv Landers, both of this city, was solemnized Saturday evening by Rev. P. D. O'Brien of Colorado city, at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Coffman of Baird, the birthplace of the bride.

The house was attractively decorated with roses, honeysuckle, and tiger lilies.

The bride was attired in a flowered crepe frock, trimmed in white mousseline de soie. White accessories were used. She wore a corsage of pink carnations and sweet-peas. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Catherine Barker, who was dressed in turquoise blue, with all-white accessories. Her corsage was a cluster of carnations linked with vari-colored sweet-peas.

Mr. George Allison of Ranger acted as best man. Only members of the family were present.

Immediately following the dinner given in honor of the bridal couple they left for a short trip to cities in West Texas.

Mrs. Landers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Barker of Ranger and has been a teacher in the PERSONS HAVING VERY KEEN EYESIGHT CAN SEE THE PLANET JUPITER IN THE DAYTIME.

ALTHOUGH Jupiter is the giant of the sun's family of planets, it never is seen as brilliantly as Venus, because it is much farther from us. It has a diameter eleven times that of the earth, yet it can be seen in daylight only under extremely favorable conditions, and then only by persons with exceptional eyesight. Venus, however, can be seen clearly in daylight, at times.

Dr. R. W. Woolwine To Open Dental Offices in Ranger

Dr. R. W. Woolwine, DDS, is opening dental offices in the Joseph building, where he will engage in the practice of general dentistry.

Dr. Woolwine, who is a graduate of the Western Dental College of Kansas City, has had 25 years experience as a dentist, 19 years of this time being spent in specializing in extractions, oral surgery and plate work.

Mr. Woolwine, who is a graduate nurse, and is his office assistant, will arrive in Ranger within a few days to take up her duties in his office.

Dr. Woolwine came, originally, from Oklahoma, but has spent the past year in Texas looking for a suitable location, finally deciding upon Ranger. He came here from Austin, where he had been for a short time looking over the field there.

Following their sojourn to cities of Arizona, including a stay in Phoenix, the couple will return to Ranger for a few days before leaving for McCombs, where Mr. Moss has been transferred by the Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Company.

Some 28,000 Texas farmers refinanced their debts through the Federal land bank and Land Bank Commissioner since the Farm Credit Administration was organized and, in many instances, the loans included funds to pay back taxes owed by farmers to local tax authorities.

The total amount loaned for the purpose equals an average tax payment of about $140 per farmer refinanced.

The $3,985,400 covers tax payments in connection with $139,850,909 of land bank and Commissioner loans made in Texas from May 1, 1933 to January 1, 1936. About 2.8 per cent of this amount was used for tax payments.
