Muscular Dystrophy Campaign Launched by Dimmitt Firemen

The 1967 March Against Muscular Dystrophy is now on in Dimmitt.

THE CITY'S volunteer firemen, who sponsor the annual march here, distributed canisters in most Dimmitt stores Saturday and urged residents to fill them with coins and bills to help fight MD.

Dimmitt last year contributed more funds to the March Against Muscular Dystrophy than any other city of its size in the Panhandle, according to Fire Marshal Guy Waldrop. The city's donations last year totaled $667.92.

HEADING the fall campaign nationally is comedian Jerry Lewis, with Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson as honorary national chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

Last year, MDA's income nationally was $6,575,247, highest in the association's history. Of this amount, 86.1 percent went into research, patient and community services, public health education and professional education and training. The other 13.9 percent went for management, general costs and fund raising. Included in the professional education allotment was almost $726,000 in grants and fel-

Parents, Teens Caught In 'Understanding Gap'

The teenager slouches over a chair staring into space. The parent looks bewildering at his offspring, wondering if they speak the same language.

THIS IS A picture painted by today's television, movies and magazines — and all too often, it may be true.

In a recent interview at Texas A&M University, Dr. Ed Pope, federal Extension specialist in human development and human relations, named the "understanding gap" among generations as a top concern in American family life today.

The problem stems from today's fast, confused America where youth always doesn't have the opportunity to be heard, Dr. Pope said. In many other countries youth is listened to in an organized way; China, Japan and several South American countries are only a few which have organized youth movements.

"THERE IS nothing comparable in our society," he said. Many conferences concentrate on the young person, yet the young people are not really involved. Nothing speaks for youth and their concerns," he said.

"We talk about young people but don't work with them," the specialist said, citing an example of a recent youth conference which involved several hundred adults and 50 youth.

Children need to know more about their family, to share in family and community decisions, means to help close the communication gap.

Dr. Pope suggests as one means to help close the communication gap: Pressures open the gap. "We need to help parents of adolescent children to recognize pressures which are on their children," he said.

PARENTS NEED to realize they are putting many of these pressures on their children. They want their child to achieve, go to the best schools "and all this non-sensitive to his parents' situation, sense," Dr. Pope said.

But, explained the specialist, the adolescent should become more sensitive to his parents' situation, too.

Members of the class modeled their coats at their style show Friday afternoon.

Socially Yours

Dr. Pope suggested that an educational system orientated more toward real-life concerns of children, rather than teaching things which "will be good for you when you're growing up," would help eliminate the communication gap.

"They need to be able to think through and decide about life problems which they are now facing," he said. This is closely tied to a child's own ambition.

"The revamping would not throw out the three R's but would put less stress upon the purely academic and more on practical life concerns and cares," the Extension specialist said.

EXTENSION Education leader from the University of Illinois, Ernest Anderson, summarized his idea as he spoke on "Communication in a Confused World" recently at the 22nd annual Town and Country and Church Conference at Texas A&M.

"Too often, when we talk to one another and try to get ideas across, we are simply not using the same code or we are not on the same wave length, so to speak. It's not the world that is confused; the confusion exists in the human mind," he said.

Photos, Plastics Now Give Kitchen 'Real Wood' Look

Space-age technology and an old-time craft have been combined for a warm, real-wood look for kitchens. The tough wood-pretenders in today's kitchens are made possible through the application of photography, chemistry and wood craftsmanship.

THESE WOOD tones ranging from dark to light are setting new trends for the look in kitchens, says Jane Berry, Housing and Home Furnishing specialist at Texas A&M. Sometimes the look is hand-crafted or laboratory created, but the surfaces are always pleasant to look at.

In laminated counter tops, the tough wood-like surface actually is a paper photograph of real wood, sandwiched between sheets of plastic and laid down as a single sheet for a wood appearance.

Wood grains on refrigerators, freezers, washing machines, air conditioners and even ranges cross between the man-made or real thing, depending on the application. When applied by the manufacturer, they usually are vinyls; but, Mrs. Berry says, when they come from the cabinet maker, they may well be real woods.

COLORED or metal appliances now are being designed to complement or match the woods used in kitchens. Copper, bronze and avocado colors are frequently used to blend or contrast with the important woods used around them.

The creation of wood grains from synthetics and success in coating real wood with tough plastics has fostered this wood invasion in the kitchen. No longer susceptible to the heat or stain of kitchen tasks, wood can survive long and unmarred in work areas, an advantage wood did not have in former years.

HOME-MADE COATS can be just as attractive as those bought in a fashion shop, as demonstrated by these ladies who took the county extension office's home tailoring short course. Posing after Friday's fashion show, with the winter coats they made themselves, are (from left) Mrs. R.

B. Baker in a navy flecked coat, Mrs. Harley Dodd in an olive green wool with half-ball buttons, County HD Agent Irene Keating in a chocolate brown wool buttonless, Mrs. Ruth Timmins in a beige wool with mouton collar, and Mrs. Norita Hoelting in an avocado wool collarless.

Pollards Given Farewell Party

An engraved silver tray and a footed silver bowl were the farewell gifts from the First Baptist Church congregation to Rev. and Mrs. Frank Pollard Sunday night.

THE GIFTS from the congregation were presented at an informal farewell party in the fellowship hall after Sunday evening services.

The Pollards will move this week to Tulia, where he will become pastor of the First Baptist Church. Rev. Pollard has served the local church two years, and Mrs. Pollard has been an elementary teacher in Dimmitt Public Schools.

A highlight of Sunday night's farewell party was a skit by the High School Dept. 1 youths, under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Hopson.

McCormicks Host District Pastors

Mrs. Mary McCormick was hostess recently at a luncheon for Methodist pastors' wives from throughout the Plainview District, while their husbands attended a district meeting here.

SUNDAY, Rev. and Mrs. McCormick were hosts to District Supt. and Mrs. W. A. Appling of Plainview.

Feeders to Meet in Amarillo; Will Study Plains Cattle Boom

With the rapid growth of the cattle feeding industry in the Southwest, the future direction of the industry is of key importance and interest.

JACK CARROTHERS, president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, said this week that the program for the first annual meeting of the association next week will be directed toward answering some of the questions concerning the industry's future in this area.

Carrothers said leading authorities in the feeding and allied industries will give their views on the subject of feeding development. Cattle feeders, packers, bankers, ranchers, nutritionists, researchers, order buyers and representatives of the agricultural press will take part on the annual meeting.

The two-day meeting will begin Monday at 2:30 p.m. in Amarillo, with the Holiday Inn West as the meeting headquarters.

A highlight of the program Monday will be a panel on "The Packing Industry Looks at the Plains." Representatives of packers now operating in the region, as well as representatives of packers building or planning new facilities, will participate.

ON TUESDAY, the program will include an address by Dr. Ralph Durham of Texas Tech and Dr. J. D. Aughey of Palm Desert, Calif.

Tuesday's program will also feature a panel which will discuss "Your Feeder Replacements — From Where — Under What Arrangements." The panel will be moderated by Charlie Ball, editor of the Farm Journal. Taking part on the panel will be Jack Idol of Benjamin, manager of a ranch and growing operation; Kendall Quinn of Jackson, Miss., partner in a large southeastern order buying firm; Bill Roach, partner in one of Texas' largest order buying firms; Doug Shelton, rancher from Clarendon, and Jim Barron, rancher and feeder from Spur.

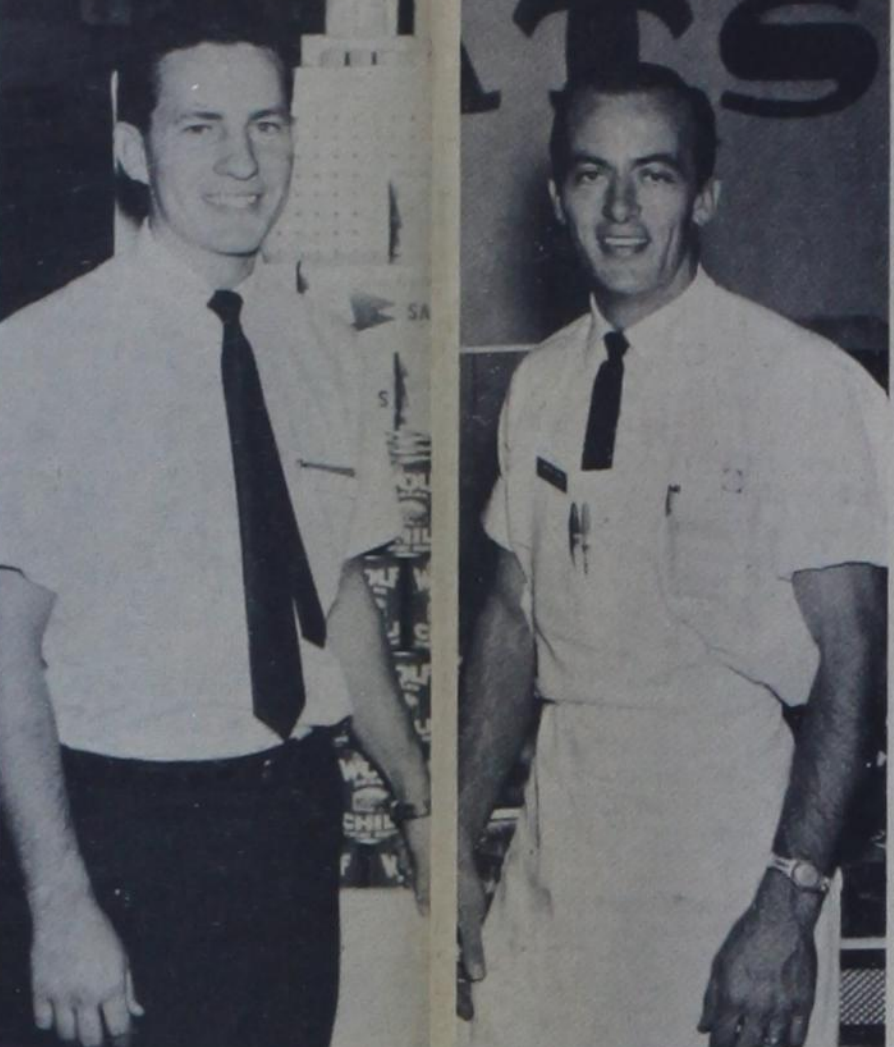

The Tuesday afternoon program will include an address by Charles Quarre, manager of the Kern County Land Co. in Bakersfield, Calif. Paul Engler, rancher and feeder from Wyo'a, Mont., and Hereford, is chairman of the Southwest section of the American National Cattlemen's Association Market Development Committee. Engler will outline the plans of the committee to improve the marketing system and work toward increased livestock profits.

The afternoon program will also include a panel on the important subject, "How Far Will Feeding Development Go on the Plains?" Panel members will include Joe Easley, operator of a 35,000-head feeding facility at Hereford; H. C. Hitch Jr. of Guyton, president of the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association; Pat Malone, agricultural representative and vice-president of the First National Bank in Amarillo; Bob Morford, feeder and packer-buyer of Abilene, and Dr. Willard Williams, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Texas Tech.

FOR THE ladies, there will be a luncheon and style show Tuesday at 12:15 p.m. The meeting will conclude with a dinner-dance Tuesday evening.

Tom Herrick, Amarillo feeder and chairman of the planning committee, said, "All functions of the annual meeting program are open and we invite all feeders and those interested in the feeding industry to attend and take part in the discussions."

Advance reservations indicate that attendance at the first annual meeting of the association will exceed 400.

CURTISS CHRISTOPHER ... Store Manager
FREDDIE COOK ... Market Manager

24-Year-Old Post Man Named New Manager of Piggly-Wiggly

Another Post man, Freddie Cook, 27, has become market manager.

Christopher and Cook joined the Dimmitt store at the same time it affiliated with South Plains Associated Grocers, wholesale association for independent food stores.

Dimmitt's Piggly-Wiggly once part of the chain owned by the Shop-Rite corporation, has been an independent supermarket since last year when Horace Humphries, bought controlling interest in it.

DESPITE his young age, Piggly-Wiggly's new manager has been in the grocery business six years. Before coming to Dimmitt, Christopher was manager for four years of the Piggly-Wiggly Supermarket in Post. He's a native of Wilson, and graduated from high school there in 1961.

Christopher was active in the Rotary and Jaycee clubs in Post, and has joined their affiliate clubs in Dimmitt. He and his wife, Eorlene, and their two children, Randy, 5, and Sandy, 2, live at 800 SW Fifth St.

I like Dimmitt very well so far," he said. "The people are very friendly."

COOK, 27, also was with Piggly-Wiggly in Post before coming to Dimmitt. He has been in the grocery business since 1957, having started with Piggly-Wiggly while a high school junior in his home town of Muleshoe.

Cook worked for a Piggly-Wiggly store in Lubbock before going to Post. He and Christopher have worked together a year and a half.

Cook and his wife, Jan, and their two children, Cindy, 5, and Quint, 2, live at 405 N. Broadway.

Dimmitt's Piggly-Wiggly joined South Plains Associated Grocers when the new management took over two weeks ago. As a member of the SPAG, Christopher said, his store now features Shurfine and Shurfresh brand products, canned and packaged especially for independent stores to provide top-quality foods at chain-store prices.

Cotton Leaders Urge Promotion At Local Level

Texas cotton industry leaders have approved a statewide program of local promotions to tell consumers that cotton still offers more benefits in appearance, maintenance, comfort, and durability.

"WE ARE going to make sure everybody fully understands this," said Roy Forkner of Lubbock, chairman of the Texas state unit of the National Cotton Council.

"We are working to get more cotton into more hometown stores; it's time to be doing more right here at home," he added. "Also this will support on a local level the national cotton promotion made possible by the $8 million budget of Cotton Producers Institute."

Howard A'ford, also of Lubbock and vice-president of Cotton Producers Institute, explained, "We are beginning to see results from what we've spent on research and promotion, and I think the program outlined here will go a long way in making consumers more aware of cotton's superior qualities."

IN ADDITION to members of the Texas unit of the Cotton Council and Trustees of CPI, the meeting in Dallas was attended by the state's representatives on the Cotton Board and officials of other cotton groups.

At the organizational meeting, industry leaders also planned additional meetings in key areas throughout the state, Forkner explained, in an effort to get more cotton products stocked by retailers and sold to consumers.

It will be a team effort, he stressed, involving all concerned with cotton's future.

The three-point plan outlined in Dallas calls for promoting cotton across retail counters, through women's groups, and through industry organizations.

LBJ Proclaims Farm-City Week

"In less than a generation, the American farmer has created a greater agricultural abundance than his predecessors through all the generations of our history achieved," said President Lyndon B. Johnson in proclaiming Nov. 17-23 as National Farm-City Week.

THIS REVOLUTION wrought by the American farmers," he continued, "is one of the triumphs of our age. Even though he himself has not always received his fair share of the nation's prosperity — a circumstance which his country in good conscience cannot permit to continue — he has helped to improve the conditions of life for every American.

"The average consumer today enjoys a more abundant supply of food than any people has ever known — and he pays a lesser share of his income for it than ever before.

"One of the most vital contributions to the achievements of American agriculture has been understanding and cooperation between farm and city — an interdependence that has supported our national development.

Moreover, American agriculture now represents hope for cities and villages far beyond our shores, where the spectre of poverty threatens the stability — and even the peace — of the world."

IN CALLING upon all Americans to join in the observance of Farm-City Week, which is coordinated nationally by Kiwanis International President Johnson emphasized the necessity of facing the challenge of the future in agriculture simultaneously with meeting the needs of today; the need to help hungry nations help themselves to become more productive — the ultimate solution to food shortage problems.

The President also noted the moral and practical imperative of creating a better total environment for all citizens in both rural and urban areas, by removing causes of poverty, discrimination, and ignorance, by controlling pollution, and by wisely and productively using our soil, water, forests, and other renewable resources; and the importance of continuing to build an economically sound family-farm agriculture and a visually beautiful countryside.

Jack Barton of Houston's Federal Intermediate Credit Bank is chairman of the Texas Farm-City Week Committee and John McHaney, Extension economist at Texas A&M University, is serving as information coordinator.

CASTRO COUNTY'S FAIRGROUND in East Dimmitt hardly seems a credit to such a rich agricultural county. The fairground is overgrown with weeds and littered with debris, and its stucco buildings are nearing a final stage of dilapidation. Since the county's voters rejected a bond issue to modernize the fairground two years ago, the problem seems now to be in the laps of the county commissioners' court. A new bond election could be called, or the commissioners could modernize the fairground with tax reserve funds, or the buildings could be torn down and the county fair discontinued. The problem won't solve itself. Something needs to be done.

Parallel Terraces Being Used On Four Castro County Farms

By DAVID SPRINGER
Terracing farm land is not new, but a new method of doing an old job is being tried.
A TERRACE is an earth embankment constructed across the slope to reduce erosion damage. The new method of building terraces is to keep them the same distance apart so that point rows will be reduced to a minimum. This may necessitate the construction of grassed waterways, since most terraces here need to be graded.
The first parallel terrace job in Castro County was built on the Vincent Braddock farm northwest of Nazareth. This job consists of four terraces all parallel to each other.
RAYBERN OTT is competing a job on his farm southwest of Dimmitt. This terrace job on the Ott farm contains about three miles of terraces.
Nearly four miles of parallel terraces were built recently on land farmed by Warner Reid, northeast of Nazareth. Alphons Kleman will build some parallel terraces on his farm near Nazareth in the next week or two.

All of these terrace jobs have been constructed from the lower side. This method of construction helps take out some of the cross slope between terraces.
Terracing is not recommended on flood irrigated land. Most point rows are eliminated by keeping terraces parallel.
Soil Conservation Service personnel assisting the Running Water Soil and Water Conservation District in Castro County are available to assist in any terracing problems.
IF NO additional land acreage is added to the present state parks system, the supply of land suitable for development will reach its maximum visitor capacity in 1971.

Dairy Course Planned at A&M

Nutrition, herd replacements, herd health and the challenge to the dairy industry from imitation milk are among major subjects to be discussed at the 1967 Dairy-men's Short Course to be held Nov. 16-17 at Texas A&M University.

ARIZONA Dairyman James Hussey of Phoenix will discuss the challenges that imitation milk has posed for the dairymen of his state, and the competition dairymen can expect, as he sees it, from this product in the future.

State Grainpile Smaller Than '66

Oct. 1 stocks of all grains — wheat, grain sorghum, corn, oats, barley and rye — in Texas are below a year ago, reports the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Holdings of corn and grain sorghum exclude the 1967 crop, while wheat, oats, barley, and rye include the current crop.

Motorists Main Litter Culprits

Sportsmen are just what their names imply when it comes to littering, a survey conducted by Keep America Beautiful, Inc., has revealed.

OUTDOOR sportsmen were blamed for only 5 percent of the litter defacing rural areas.

Picnickers were blamed for 25 percent of the litter and motorists for 70 percent.

Adults were the most frequent litterbugs, with teenagers running second at 42 percent and children at 8 percent.

IF 7,500,000 people left Texas, the state's park system would be equal to the national average of 30.7 acres of state park land per thousand people.

'68 Cotton Payments Outlined In Dollar-and-Cent Examples

By CHARLEY HILL
ASCS Office Manager

Regarding the 1968 Cotton Program, the examples listed below are for information purposes and may be of some help in making your decision prior to sign-up for the 1968 program.

THE EXAMPLES listed show the same yields for 1968 as for 1967. This is due to the fact that we do not have the 1968 yields. The 1966 crop year will have a large bearing in the 1968 county yield; therefore, I think we can expect a drop in the county average yield.

EXAMPLES

FARM A: 100.0 acre allotment, 550 lb. yield. Loan rate 20.25, middling 1-inch:

1967

Diverted: 12½% Mandatory	22½% Voluntary
12.5 ac x (10.78 x 550)	$59.29 =	$ 741.12
22.5 ac x (10.78 x 550)	$59.29 =	$ 1334.02
Price Support Payment:
65.0 ac x (11.53 x 550)	$63.41 =	$ 4121.65
		TOTAL PAYMENT $ 6196.79

1968

Diverted: 5% Mandatory	30% Voluntary
5.0 ac x (10.76 x 550)	$59.18 =	$ 295.90
30.0 ac x (6¢ x 550)	$33.00 =	$ 990.00
Price Support Payment:
65.0 ac x (12.24 x 550)	$67.32 =	$ 4375.80
		TOTAL PAYMENT $ 5661.70

FARM B: 100.0 acre allotment, 550 lb. yield. Loan rate 20.25 middling 1-inch:

It has not yet been announced as to how or where soybeans may be planted for 1968.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough

1965 Rules Restored On Skip-Row Planting

By Sen. Ralph Yarborough
(D-Texas)

Dear Fellow Texan:
A few days ago the US Department of Agriculture changed its policies governing skip-row cotton planting. It didn't make big headlines in the big-city newspapers, but this is a tremendous victory for thousands of farmers in our state.

IT IS EASY to forget, if you live in the shadow of the Astrodome at Houston or next door to the HemisFair grounds in San Antonio, that Texas is such an important agricultural state. We are the leading cotton-producing state in the United States. About 10 percent of the cotton supply for the whole world comes from Texas, and according to the Texas Cotton Association and other trade groups, more than a million Texans earn their living directly or indirectly from cotton. Cotton accounts for nearly one-third of all our farm income in Texas.

So when we talk about cotton in Texas, we're talking about an industry that involves some $700 million to $800 million a year. That's why the federal government's upland cotton program is so important — it means income to four out of every five counties of Texas.

Two years ago the Department of Agriculture changed its rules and cut production benefits by reducing the projected yields and also by ruling out skip-row planting.

PROJECTED YIELDS and skip-row planting are entirely different things, not connected. Skip-row planting is a sound and popular conservation practice in which the farmer plants two rows of cotton and skips two, or plants four rows of cotton and skips four. He does it to protect the soil and to allow farmers in counties with a scarcity of water to grow cotton by letting the cotton plant tap the water supply from under the rows that are lying idle, or skipped. This also gives the cotton roots more room to grow and results in a healthier, more valuable cotton bloom, and a longer staple cotton, because the sun can shine on the bolls.

The 1966 rules announced two years ago by the Agriculture Department penalized skip-row planters by requiring them to count unplanted rows as cotton planted, in figuring their acreage allotments. I protested that ruling then and last year, when it was renewed, I protested it again.

ON SEPT. 19 of this year I wrote Secretary of Agriculture Freeman and urged him to give our farmers the same fair deal in 1968 that they were receiving in 1965. My staff worked closely with the Secretary's staff, and Secretary Freeman consulted with members of the Texas farming community, who communicated with me. Three weeks after receiving my letter, on Oct. 12, the Secretary announced that the old rules would be restored. Skip-row farmers will not be penalized during 1968 for their sound conservation practices, in planting some rows and skipping some rows.

TEXAS farmers will not lose any income in any counties because of the change in skip-row rules. If any income is lost, it will be because of the way the projected yields are distributed. The projected yield system should be made more flexible to protect all our cotton farmers. Projections are estimates based on the last five years of production, and some Texas farmers have been unjustly hurt by this system of estimates.

There is still room for improvement in other areas of the program. We still need to obtain greater projected yields.
