REPUBLICANS PICK STEIWER AS KEYNOTER

PUBLIC HALL, CLEVELAND, June 9.—The Republican convention convened in this vast auditorium today and quickly ratified the choice of broad-shouldered Sen. Frederick Steiwer as keynoter. A recess was ordered at 12:33, just 50 minutes after convening until 8 p. m. Steiwer was proclaimed before the audience of more than 10,000 in the flag-draped gold, cream and blue assembly hall. The convention action came as managers for Gov. Alf Landon struggled with troublesome platform problems and enthusiastically issued forecasts of victory, probably on Thursday's first ballot.

Less than an hour after the call to order by Chairman Henry Fletcher at 11:43 a. m., the delegates voted approval of Steiwer. The Oregon senator will deliver his keynote address tonight. Approval of the temporary slate of officers quickly followed. Republican notables crowded the convention platform. Many sat in their places with state delegations, but dramatizing his split with party leadership, Senator William Borah remained at his hotel room. He may, however, attend tonight's keynote session. First stir of presidential enthusiasm on the assembly floor came when it was announced former Senator John Thomas of Idaho, a Borah manager, had a platform plank to present to the resolutions committee. Brief applause broke out at the announcement.

'Black Legion' Defies Respect of Nation

The news from Michigan about the "Black Legion" reads like a very bad dream; and the most dream-like thing about it is the fact that moronic hoodlums who dedicate their organization to violence and murder should insist that they are furthering "100 per cent Americanism."

Reports that the group has 135,000 members in Michigan and has been responsible for two or three dozen deaths seem too fantastic to be taken seriously. Indeed, the whole business is too fantastic to be worth talking about if it were not for this one fact—

The times are so unsettled, and the future is so cloudy, that no American who loves his country can afford to remain silent when a group which seeks to enforce its will by blackjack and revolver appears on the horizon.

These precious strongarm men from Detroit apparently had no guiding principles other than a general devotion to the policy of interfering in their neighbors' lives—a sort of glorified officiousness which is nothing but the spirit of the small town busy-body turned cancerous.

That they have been able to enlist a large number of people in their organization merely indicates that there are more fools in the land than we ordinarily suppose.

But in any group of this kind there are the seeds of great trouble. The seeds may never sprout, but they are there; and the time to make sure that they land on stony ground is now, before some unexpected current in American life provides more fertile soil for them.

There was a time, remember, when Mussolini's Fascists looked no more important or influential than this so-called "Black Legion" now appears. There was a time when Hitler and his plug-uglies cut no more of a figure in German life than these gentlemen of the black robes now cut in American life.

In Italy and in Germany, certain powerful interests discovered that they could use an unprincipled band of terrorists who would stop at nothing. They made the discovery before the rest of their fellow citizens could rally the nation's inherent decency, and what happened thereafter is a matter of bloody record.

There does not seem to be any danger that this Michigan gang will have a similar apotheosis. But the time to speak out against organized mob violence is now, when it first sticks up its head; now, when all decent people instinctively feel a revulsion against it.

We need to remember that no group which uses the whip and gun can possibly be "100 per cent American"; that no organization such as this one in Michigan can possibly play a useful role in our United States; that no patriot can tolerate in his country a gang of sluggers and torturers.

WILD LIFE was so plentiful in the United States in the early days that no one even dreamed that laws would be necessary to protect it. The year 1739 saw the first game wardens in this country. Most of the colonies had adopted some form of game laws by the time of the Revolution, and the first federal game law was passed in 1776.

RANGER MAKES CLEAN SWEEP AT SOFTBALL

Ranger made a clean sweep of the three games played at the opening of the Ranger Municipal softball field Monday night, the Ranger girls team defeating the Burrettes of Eastland in the opener by a score of 10 to 9, the Ranger All-Stars defeating the Eastland All-Stars by a score of 8 to 6 and the Killingsworth Cox team defeating Caddo by a score of 9 to 8.

Between the first and second games Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, mayor of Ranger, thanked those who had cooperated in making the field possible and dedicated it, giving it the name of the Ranger Municipal Softball Field, which was the name selected by the committee in control.

All three games played at the opening of the field were excellent exhibitions of softball, with fast, snappy plays being made by each of the six competing teams.

Weatherly, first baseman of the Eastland All-Stars, rapped out the first home run in the new park, his hit carrying well over the right field fence. No one on base when he hit for the circuit.

The box scores of the three games are as follows:

Box score for Ranger vs Burrettes: Ranger (AB, H, R, E) 19 10 4; Burrettes (AB, H, R, E) 11 10 4.

Box score for Ranger vs Eastland All-Stars: Ranger (AB, H, R, E) 12 10 8; Eastland (AB, H, R, E) 11 10 8.

Is Candidate

Carl Hardin, Stephenville, former State Senator, opened his campaign before a homecoming crowd of 5000 people Saturday. It was the largest public gathering in Erath county in several years.

STEPHENVILLE, Texas, June 9.—In response to an invitation from his friends and neighbors of 30 years standing, Senator Carl C. Hardin opened his campaign for the office of railroad commissioner in Stephenville Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. There were 5,000 people in the audience to hear him, most of them coming from all parts of Erath county, but there were others from adjoining counties. He spoke for 45 minutes and following that a citizens' committee served a barbecue lunch to one of the largest public gatherings here in years.

Senator Hardin has been in public service for the past 12 years, two years in the legislature and eight years in the senate, and since the day he graduated from John Tarleton college has been active in business and civic circles. He has the reputation in his home city of rendering more aid and assistance to the people than any other individual citizen.

During his last term in the senate Hardin introduced and successfully passed the homestead tax exemption, relieving homesteads from taxation up to and including $3,000,000.

Changes he proposes in the operation of the Texas Railroad commission in the event of his election were discussed freely in the opening address, among them being a policy of attending to the duties every day in the year. He likewise urged that the major companies be run by the same yardstick that measures the small independent operator. He also favors a vigorous and uninterrupted program of development in every county in Texas where oil possibilities exist, rather than curtailing such development. As a whole Senator Hardin emphasized the point that he would at all times aid in administering the duties of the railroad commission in a fair and constructive manner.

A citizens committee organized in Stephenville the past week contains the names of more than 50 Erath county people who propose to carry the campaign of Carl C. Hardin into every county in Texas, and in every way possible to recommend him for earnest consideration at the hands of the voters.

A Boy King Nears Regal Stature

Noticeably taller than when his father's assassination put him on the throne, and prematurely serious due to the responsibility of his position, 12-year-old King Peter of Yugoslavia is pictured as members of the Household Cavalry saw him at his first military review in Belgrade. He wears the uniform of the gymnastic association.

The GLAMOROUS ADVENTURE

by Jean Seivwright © 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GAIL EYRETT, ambitious to become a designer, comes to New York and—due to a stroke of luck—meets MRS. MADAME LIZETTE, proprietor of an exclusive shop. Madame proves impractical and difficult to work for.
DEREK HARGREAVES, young artist, is interested in Gail and offers her friendly advice. Frequently she sees DEREK SEARLES, whose sister, ROSEMARY, was her roommate at school.
Meanwhile, in Arizona, MARK CHAPMAN, long a wanderer, returns to his old home in the hands of the Travers Mining Co. Mark suspects the deal is crooked. He does not know the whereabouts of his niece, Gail, the faithful owner of the property.
RICK HALL, Madame Lizette's son, is representing the Travers company.
Mark tells his friend, old JED HOSKFEEL, what he knows about the Travers company and writes a letter to GILES HARDING, New York lawyer.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII
"HELLO, old thing!" Rosemary Seales exclaimed as she rushed toward Gail, coming out of the employees' entrance of Madame Lizette's shop at 5 o'clock. "I'm frightfully sorry I got you into such a jam!"
"Oh, don't worry about that."
"Well, that woman has no right to talk to you like that. You're no slave. I think it's horrible that you have to work for such a creature, and before that I thought you were lucky! But, come on—hop in the car. I'll take you to your clubhouse."
"You don't need to do that, Rosemary."
"I know, but I'm staying in town with the Langs for a few days—you know Betts is getting married—so I can't invite you to dinner. Some friends of Betts are giving her a dinner tonight. How about meeting me for lunch tomorrow?"
"I'd love to, though I only have an hour."
"Well, we can make it in an hour all right. And say, Gail, I wish you could let Madame Lizette know that I was going to order a dress for Betts' wedding this afternoon but now she's lost that order and a lot more because I'll never recommend her to any of my friends."
"I can't say I'm sorry."
"Have you seen any of the girls since you came to New York?"
"Only Lucille!"
"Lucille! Where did you meet her?" asked Rosemary eagerly.
"At Mrs. Morton's."
"Oh, the Mrs. Morton's who's so interested in art?"
"Yes, Derek Hargreaves introduced us."
"Oh, an old friend, I suppose. The car stopped—'Is this where you live?' queried Rosemary.
"Yes, it's not a bad place inside. You must come and see me sometime. Thanks ever so much for the lift."

"That's nothing! Be seeing you tomorrow at noon." With a good-bye wave Rosemary was on her way again.
GAIL watched her go. Why hadn't she made it clear that Derek had no connection with the carefree days when her father was alive?
"Well, well, if it isn't Gail, looking so chipper I guess Madame must still be at home!" Natalie Preston slipped her arm through Gail's.
"Hello, Natalie! We're dining together tonight, aren't we?"
"Oh, that will be nice. I feel quite let down today."
"Didn't you have a good time with your cousin?"
"Did I? I should say not! After rushing down thinking she had only a few minutes to spare I found she'd made a mistake about the time her train started and had to sit and listen to all the news about her babies, the horses, cows, dogs and chickens! You may thank your stars you haven't a soul who has any strings on you. Then I came home and found that you were gone! But I suppose your boy friend thought you should spend another day at Heart's Delight!"
"Sorry you had such rotten luck. I wasn't down on the island."
"No?" questioned Natalie incredulously, remembering that there had been no light in Gail's room as she walked down the corridor about 11.
"Of course not! A friend called and took me to a reception at Mrs. Morton's."
"Mrs. Morton of Park avenue, the patron saint of all young artists?"
"Yes," Quickly Gail told of her first meeting with the older woman. Then she ended with, "She asked Derek Hargreaves to bring me along."
"That rising young portrait painter?"
Gail nodded.
"So you know him too!" exclaimed Natalie.
"Yes, he and the Seales' are my only friends in New York. Of course the Seales' are down on Long Island for part of the summer. I'm lunching with Rosemary tomorrow. Would you like to join us?"
"You mean that, Gail?"
"Why, yes, I'm sure Rosemary would be glad to meet you."
Tthey walked toward a French restaurant which Natalie had selected, for Gail was not yet acquainted with any of the smart little places in their vicinity. She was amused at Natalie's eagerness to learn all about Mrs. Morton's reception, Derek's work, and when she was to see him again.

Their talk drifted to other topics, and in the course of the conversation Natalie mentioned some stocks she'd just bought. "One of my friends who has quite a fine position with a broker told me the other day I'd better get rid of any Travers stuff I might have, as there are rumors Mr. Travers is not finding it so easy."
"You mean the Mining company—Lucille's father?"
"Yes," answered Natalie. "Of course I don't buy mining stocks, so I've nothing to dispose of, but one thing I can tell you—every time Arlene has given me a tip like that she's been right."
"But I thought the Travers' family were so rich?" exclaimed Gail.
"Oh, right now they still have plenty, but you should see what a rumor on Wall Street can do to any fortune, especially if it's the least bit shaky."
When Gail said good night to Natalie, her thoughts were still with Lucille. What would she do if anything happened to her father's fortune?
DEREK HARGREAVES glanced at his wrist watch. It was five minutes to five. He hung his palette on the wall of his studio, stuck his brushes into a jar, and pulled off his smock.
He hadn't realized that this was Wednesday—the last day the Ferrera Gallery would be open in the evening. He was smiling when he reached the avenue. Half a block more and he'd surely meet her. Suddenly round the corner she came!
"Gail!" he cried, as, with outstretched hands, he welcomed her. "I was afraid I'd miss you. Sweet, and we must see the pictures tonight or Mrs. Morton will never forgive us. And we're going to dinner first. Yes—right away?" he added, as a questioning look came into her eyes.
"Oh, but I feel so grubby. I must go home and get cleaned up."
"Well, come on back to my studio. It's quite near. And I can show you Lucille's portrait."
"You've started it already?"
"Yes, Lucille's given me three sittings. Quite an amusing girl, isn't she?"
They entered the studio and closed the door behind them. Swiftly Derek drew her to his heart. "Darling," he whispered, "tell me you love me!"

Court Refuses to Let a Candidate Change His Name

DALLAS.—Application of D. R. Jamerson to change his name to David Roy (Townsend) Plan Jamerson was denied by Judge Sarah T. Hughes in 14th district court after a hearing in which a number of attorneys appeared as friends of the court to protest the plea of the candidate for Congress.

D. A. Frank, president of the Dallas Bar Association, C. F. Cack, Barmie Cantrell and Charles Blosick filed amicus curiae, "friends of the court," petitions in contest of Mr. Jamerson's petition. Attorneys argued to the court that the petition was a move to gain political favor in the coming election. They argued that it is not provided by statute and would be a fraud upon the public.

Jamerson protested the appearance of the attorneys in the case and asked Judge Hughes to consider his case on its merits alone. She denied the request.
