LANDON SAYS FIGHT WILL BE A CLEAN ONE

By United Press
TOPEKA, Kan., June 13.—Gov. Alf Landon promised today to wage a hard but fair fight for the presidency.

He praised John Hamilton, Republican chairman, in a statement interpreted as a reply to an assertion by James Farley, the Democratic chairman, that "this is going to be a dirty campaign."

"He is a hard fighter, but he always fights fairly," Landon said of Hamilton.

"That is the kind of a fight we are going to make in this campaign."

The governor made his promise almost on the eve of a war council here at which he, Frank Knox, Hamilton and a subcommittee will plan "an immediate move on the enemy." Landon said the meeting would start Tuesday and last several days.

Mrs. Dionne Will Become a Mother Again Before Long

By United Press
CALENDAR, Ont., June 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Olivia Dionne, parents of the world's only living quintuplets, are expecting another child in two weeks, the United Press learned today.

Mrs. Dionne, mother of 10 children, including the quintuplets who were born May 28, 1934, could not be reached. The husband adopted an attitude of silence concerning the approaching birth.

Willows Will Open On Monday Night

The Willows will be opened by the Willows Park Association, which has recently been organized and which will operate the pool this year.

Opening date has been set for Monday night, and unless unforeseen events occur to change the plans of the association, a big night is promised for those who have been looking forward to the opening of the pool.

Plans this year call for repeated draining of the pool, as has been the custom in the past, in order that the water may be kept pure at all times.

It was pointed out by some of the members of the association that the Willows should be a big drawing card, because the water would be changed regularly, which is not done in many pools.

Workmen have been getting the pool in readiness for the opening of the season Monday night and a good attendance throughout the season is anticipated.

She Made Good Broadway Boast

Eva Langford (above) was just a receptionist for Producer Albert Bein in New York when she made the boast that she would play opposite Burgess Meredith, Broadway's newest matinee idol. Even Bein refused to take seriously her avowal that she was a good actress. Yet when the hit play "Winchester" returned to Broadway after a brief absence, it was Eva Langford who was in the leading lady role.

GOV. ALLRED TO BEGIN RACE BY LAST OF WEEK

AUSTIN, June 13.—Gov. James Allred will open his campaign for re-election next week, inviting his opponents to "open up" on him and his record. The first address will be at Waxahachie Friday or Saturday.

"You boys need not be afraid of libel suits from me," the governor said, as he announced his plan to take the stump. His statement recalled an opponent, Tom Hunter, obtained a lower court judgment against a leading Texas daily for editorial comment two years ago.

The whole state campaign will be in full swing next week. Allred deferred his campaign until after the Texas Centennial Exposition opening and Hunter interrupted his campaign for the same reason.

Flag Program Will Be Presented On Monday Night

An impressive Flag Day service is to be conducted at the Ranger Municipal Softball field Monday night, sponsored by the B. P. O. Elks and to which the public is cordially invited.

The purpose of this service is to honor our country's flag, to celebrate the anniversary of its birth and to revere the achievements wrought beneath its folds.

The B. P. O. Elks is distinctly American, so it is quite appropriate that this order observe this day with a program befitting the occasion.

This being the 100th birthday of our great state of Texas, the committee saw fit to combine the national flag day and the Texas Centennial with appropriate display of all the flags with able speakers describing them and giving the time and place since the first flag which John Cabot planted on American soil in 1497.

Judge L. H. Fleweller, an able speaker and one of the best versed men on Texas history, will give the history of this territory since the days of the Spanish flag.

This service is open to the public and everyone is cordially invited to attend. Ample seating and parking room will be available for all. A loud speaker will be installed so that everyone may hear.

Bonus Checks Will Be Cashed by Bank Without Charge

Announcement was made Saturday that the Commercial State Bank would co-operate in every way possible in helping the veterans to secure cash for their bonus checks.

It was pointed out that the bank was not allowed, under the law, to cash the bonds, but that arrangements had been made to cash all bonus checks, which will supplement the bond payments. As the bonds are made out in $50 denominations most of the veterans will receive checks to complete the bonus payment.

These bonus checks are to be cashed at the Commercial State Bank, it was announced, without any exchange charge being made. The charge is made on all checks cashed on other banks, but will not be charged on the bonus checks.

Bank Sells Eight Houses In a Week

In an interview with H. C. Wilkinson of the Commercial State Bank, it was found Saturday that he had had a busy week, selling houses for the bank.

One week ago today the Commercial State Bank advertised all its 15 houses would be placed on the market and sold and Wilkinson was appointed as the one to complete the sales.

"We have already sold eight of the 15 houses," Wilkinson said Saturday, "and have only seven left, which I expect we will sell by the end of this week. There has been much interest in home-buying the past week and I have been busy showing the houses to prospective buyers."

It was stated that one man came over from Eastland and said he wanted to buy one of the houses for an investment, if they were being sold as cheaply as the advertising claimed. He was assured they were and bought the first house he was shown.

JURY RECEIVES ESKRIDGE CASE LATE SATURDAY

HOUSTON, June 13.—A district court jury retired here today to consider the murder case of Rev. C. Edgar Eskridge, Baptist preacher, with the state demanding the death penalty and the defense pleading for acquittal on the grounds of insanity.

The case was given the jury after arguments were completed in a session which ran past the noon hour.

Eskridge killed Police Chief Ed O'Reilly, his one-time friend, at Orange on May 29, 1935, as a climax to a vigorous one-man campaign against crime and vice.

Assistant District Attorney Tom Harris of Houston closed the arguments before the jury.

"Write a verdict and say: 'We, the jury find the defendant guilty of murder with malice aforethought and assess his punishment at death,'" Harris concluded.

Previously he told the jurors to "knock the blocks from under sensational preachers, purify the men of God and make people respect the house of Jesus Christ."

Gray House Cat Cause of a Death

DALLAS, June 13.—A gray housecat was the indirect cause of a head-on collision 15 miles from Dallas which took the life of a woman and injured three others today.

Mrs. Duke Carroll, 50, of Cedar Hill, was killed. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harrington and their 18-year-old daughter, Catherine, were hurt seriously.

Harrington attempted to throw the cat out of the car. The cat scratched him and the machine veering to the left, crashed into a car driven by Raymond Coffman, 25, of Cleburne. He escaped injury.

JUDGE CLYDE L. GARRETT BOOMED AT ERATH COUNTY RALLY, THREE COUNTY TRIP

The candidacy of Judge Clyde L. Garrett for congressman from the seventeenth district was carried by approximately 150 Eastland county citizens composing a 35-car motorcade into three counties to Stephenville for a testimonial rally Friday night.

The speaking at Stephenville—the second in two weeks for Judge Garrett—was held after a scheduled taking the motorcade to Carbon, Gorman in Eastland county, and to Comanche and DeLeon in Comanche county. Dublin in Erath county was another stop.

Within ear-shot of Townsendite opponent F. O. Jace, Judge Garrett told a DeLeon audience that recently he told him "to count on his support."

At Comanche, the county judge, speaking from the courthouse lawn, referred to another opponent, Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene, by citing that he was elected to congress 20 years ago after the Abilene told voters 14 years "is long enough for any congressman to serve."

Dublin citizens heard Judge Garrett charge Blanton with "misrepresentation."

White-haired Stephenville Mayor Clark, wearing a white linen suit and cowboy boots, introduced Garrett in an address of welcome at the city park.

C. E. Sims, Sweetwater attorney, presided as chairman.

Rev. Charles W. Estes, Eastland Presbyterian pastor, told the audience Judge Garrett has the qualifications of an able representative.

R. L. Rust, Eastland attorney, refuted what he said was many farmers' belief that Blanton saved them from payment of taxes on their land.

Assailing Blanton, whom he termed a "shrewd politician," L. R. Pearson, Ranger attorney, warned voters of "Blanton's new tricks."

He attacked the present representative's "campaign tactics."

Pearson recalled what he said were programs favored by Blanton in past campaigns. Among these were advocacy of economy and cancellation of war debts, he said. These were ignored after elections.

Referring to Blanton's citation of seniority as an aid to a congressman, Pearson declared Blanton is the eleventh ranking member.

MURDER FOR INSURANCE IS RING RACKET

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 13.—Authorities today believed 50 deaths during the last 15 years, may have been murders perpetrated by a ring which made large insurance profits from its plots.

Inquiries into three deaths in Ludlow, Chicago and Indian Orchard revealed that ostensible victims of accidents or heart diseases were poisoned. Further investigation indicated a ring that took out "specialty insurance," on intended victims and then saw to it that they died.

Center of the probable racket was an "insurance conscious" industrial area of about 60,000 population.

All three men, whose deaths were investigated, were said to be heavily insured by an unnamed company, which reportedly had written 300 life policies in Ludlow alone.

VETERANS ON WPA JOBS NOT TO BE FIRED

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The 250,000 jobless World War veterans employed on federal work relief projects will not be discharged when they receive bonus bonds, the WPA decided today.

The relief status of another 30,000 needy ex-soldiers remained in doubt, however, as the post office department completed preparations for delivering U. S. treasury certificates totaling $1,900,000,000 to 3,918,000 men. WPA officials said while they will not dismiss veterans from their employment program, state, county and city relief directors would make their own decisions to ex-soldiers receiving local charity.

The development came as the treasury completed putting groups of $50 bonds each veteran will receive. Personnel in 45,000 post offices stood ready to begin delivery at 12:01 a. m., June 15.

The company appealed with the contention dilution was necessary to give a gas of uniform burning quality.

Special Representative With Colonial Dames Products to Pay Week's Visit to Ranger

Swaney's Pharmacy takes pleasure in announcing that from June 15 to June 20, they will have as their guest, Miss Beth Reed, skin analyst and make-up artist direct from Colonial Dames Hollywood studio.

The services of Miss Reed are entirely complimentary and invitations are extended all Ranger women to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity, made possible through the courtesy of Swaney and his associates.

If you've ever had sun-lamp treatments, you know how the ultra violet ray seems to "wake up" the skin, clear it, and give it a healthy, youthful bloom.

But alas, not many can have regular ultra violet treatments. They're somewhat expensive and inaccessible. So for a long time the problem was how to get the beauty effects of the ultra violet lamp in an inexpensive form. That is the reason the Colonial Dames Laboratories of Hollywood spent many months of research and experiment, and the result is a new Vitamin D Cream. To manufacture a cream like this isn't as easy as it may sound. Many have tried the same thing and failed. But this particular cream seems the most scientific yet. It is richer in Vitamin D, and the process is protected by an exclusive patent.

Now about what it does for you. First, it is a luxurious cream of the all purpose type, very delightful to use because of its rich, velvety texture and delicate scent. But most important—it has convincingly demonstrated its remarkable value in overcoming such problems as enlarged pores, premature lines, dryness, blackheads and blemishes. It comes in two strengths—one for the average skin, and a higher concentrate for the skin with more than average deficiencies.

If you'd like to test this cream yourself, and other fine beauty products by its makers, here's your opportunity. Miss Beth Reed, special representative from the Colonial Dames Hollywood Beauty Studio is to be the guest of Swaney Pharmacy this week. Those interested may have a complete facial treatment and make-up at her expert hands, with no obligation. Appointments are limited, however, so better telephone in advance. Telephone 422.

Old Peace Stones Go to Museum

AUSTIN.—On Dec. 10, 1850, a peace pact was made between the United States government and a number of Indian tribes at the head of Wallace creek, near the site of the present Texas town of San Saba. Two treaty stones, acknowledging the pact, were set up at the head of the stream.

Today, these two stones important in Texas history are in the hands of skilled technicians preparing them for exhibition in the University Centennial Exposition on the campus of the University of Texas in Austin from June 1 to Dec. 1.

Each of the stones is much the worse for wear. Carving on them is fairly visible, except in spots. Each limestone slab is about three and one-half feet in height, two feet wide, and six to 10 inches thick.

On one of the stones is engraved the name of J. H. Rollings, Indian agent. On it also are the names of the Indian tribes with whom he made the treaty. They are the Comanches, Lepans, Caddoes, I-on-Is, Ana-Da-Gas, Tah-Wah-Canos, and Waccos. On the reverse side of the Stone is a crude sketch of Indian peace pipes crossed, and around this is carved the date and a star. Below this symbol of peace is the legend, "Friendly Indians present—Delawares, Shawnees, Cherokees and Quapaws."

On the second treaty stone carving was done on one side only. It gives the names, Major H. W. Merrill, 2nd B. Dragoons, and J. Delaney, Engr. No historical record has been found relating to the name Delaney, and it is believed that the abbreviation "Engd." indicates he was a civil engineer attached to the 2nd Dragoons.

Merrill's name has been found in army records. At Fort Riley, Kans., the records show that the Second Cavalry left Fort Martin

Rev. C. Y. Dossey Will Speak Twice At Services Today

Evangelist C. Y. Dossey will speak twice daily at the revival being held at Central Baptist church. His subject for the morning hour will be "Prepared to Meet Thy God" and at the evening hour he will use as his subject "The Unpardonable Sin." Rev. Dossey is one of our most successful State Evangelists and his great gospel messages are being well received by the large numbers attending these services.

The goal for Sunday School attendance today has been set at 275. Each class has been given its quota and every member of every class is urged to be present. It is greatly desired that every member of the Sunday School will remain for the preaching hour. All teachers and officers will meet at 9:15 for a special prayer and praise service.

Much enthusiasm has prevailed throughout the week in the prayer bands which have been meeting at 7:30. These bands are composed of members of the Sunday School and each is in charge of a trained worker. The attendance has grown in these bands each day and it is confidently expected that they will take on greater momentum during the coming week.

The music of the revival is being directed by Roy Moore with Mrs. Weldon Webb at the piano. Each night the choir assisted by a large Junior choir have been singing the old time gospel hymns with power.

Central is headed for a great spiritual victory. Next week is to be filled with activity in the battle. Let every member of Central put on the whole armor of God and stay in the battle until the last service next Sunday night. This is no time for idleness. This is no time for laying out of the services, this is no time to let other attractions take the place of your church's services. All members are urged to be on the job. Strangers are never lonesome at Central. Members of the other churches are cordially invited to all these services.

Prayer service for teachers and officers, 9:15; Sunday School 9:45 preaching, 11:00; prayer bands, 7:30; preaching, 8:00.

Scott near Fredericksburg, Texas, in November, 1850. The detachment returned in December of the same year. During its absence the expedition are supposed to have been in the San Saba region in the interest of the treaty. Mayor H. W. Merrill, 2nd B. Dragoons, was with the detachment. Delaney's name is not mentioned.

The representative of the Indians at the peace conference was an Indian agent, Capt. J. H. Rollings, whose name has also been spelled Rollins. He had come either from New Orleans or from Fort Concho near San Angelo.

Indians in the San Saba sector had been stealing horses as well as white boys and girls. The treaty was an effort toward stopping such raids.

The spot at which the stones were set was an old Indian campsite. Deep mortar holes work into the limestone in that vicinity indicate that the campsite had been used long and frequently. The stones, set up there in 1850, remained standing until recently. About 10 years ago one of the stones came into possession of J. E. Pearce, professor of anthropology at the university. He placed it in a vault along with other historical relics.

The other stone, which was more valuable because it had the names of the Indian tribes engraved on it, was exhibited at the San Saba county fair. When the fair was abandoned a few years ago, buildings were sold and some were torn down. The treaty stone was thrown out into a nearby corral, and remained embedded in masonry for some time.

E. E. Rislon, nationally-known San Saba pecan grower, recovered it. He has loaned it to the University Centennial Exposition for exhibition this summer.

The University Exposition, planned in response to a legislative mandate, will be devoted chiefly to the civic and natural history of Texas. Gregory gymnasium has been converted into a science display hall. The large Texas room at the University library will house exhibits in civic history. Laboratories, workshops, museums and libraries of the University campus will be open to visitors throughout the Exposition period. All the time school work will continue as schedule, and without interference from the Exposition.

At the conclusion of the showing the materials collected will be ready for installation in the Texas Memorial museum, for which the ground will be broken on June 1.

Big Plans Being Made for June 19 By Colored People

Elaborate plans for celebration of June 19 by the colored population, and a large crowd of colored residents of surrounding towns is expected to be present.

The entire program for the day has not been released as yet, but reports indicate that a big day will be arranged, including baseball games, barbecue and other Juneteenth activities.

It is planned to postpone the regular Friday night softball games at Municipal Field in order that a negro girls game and a negro mens game might be played. If the plans are carried out one grandstand and one side of the field will be reserved for colored spectators that night and the other grandstand and parking space for whites.

But, whether or not the night games will be scheduled a big time is planned and a huge crowd is expected to be present, for the Ranger colored citizens have earned a reputation for putting on a big celebration on June 19th and celebrators from all over the country will be present.

Just before the guillotine dropped, a French criminal was presented with his tax bill. He greeted it with a detached sneer.

Legionnaires and the Story of Their World War Experiences

Private John A. Ussery, Company C, 142nd Field Artillery, Thirty-ninth Division, American Expeditionary Forces, as he appeared at Coaquidon, France, in the fall of 1918.

Editor's Note: This is the fifteenth of a series of World War biographies being written by B. H. Peacock, Commander of the American Legion Post of Ranger, covering the experiences of members of the local Post. The biography of another veteran will appear in next Sunday's issue.

JOHN ALLEN USSERY

The desire to bring back to America a prized or useful relic or souvenir in remembrance of the days and months spent in France became universal with the thousands of doughboys who went across. That was in the days of 1917-18, and for these boys, it was only once, possibly, in their lifetime. And so it was only natural that each and every one should make some kind of an effort to bring back to mother, father, wife, or sweetheart that little something that in the years to come was to be counted priceless.

And Private John A. Ussery of Company C, 142nd Field Artillery, Thirty-ninth Division, was no exception to the rule. While on leave in the little village of Rhums, France, on the fourth of December, 1918, his musical inclinations prompted him to visit one of the little music shops for which the village was known. Violins of every description adorned the walls and show cases. And one of the instruments, found by Ussery to be quite unusual in its tone and quality, was noted to have been a model of the old 1721 Antonius Stradivarius instrument. The sum of $180 was paid for this instrument, and it has remained with him to this day as a prized souvenir of the Great War.

At the age of 22 years, John A. Ussery enlisted, together with some of his boyhood friends, in Company I, Second Infantry, Arkansas National Guard, for service in France. This was on July 5, 1918, in the little city of Ola, Ark. Fortwith, the outfit was ordered to Fort Logan H. Root at Little Rock, Ark., where it was federalized, and Company I became known as Company C of the 142nd Field Artillery of the Thirty-ninth Division. In only a few days the division was transferred to Camp Beauregard, Louisiana.

It was at Camp Beauregard that Ussery was detailed to attend the cook's school of the army, and in the short space of thirty days he had more thoroughly mastered the art of grading meats, preparing and budgeting rations, and such other knowledge of foods and sanitation that marked an efficient army cook. The rating of chief cook was thereupon assigned Ussery, and the service record of this soldier which showed "capable and efficient" was no mean recommendation for one upon whose shoulders the responsibility of the health and well being of hundreds of soldiers in a large measure rested.

On September 13, 1917, the Thirty-ninth arrived in Camp Mills, New York, and sailed two weeks later (September 31) on a convoy headed for France. "There were three great ships in our convoy," stated Ussery. "The Great Northern, the Great Southern, and the Leviathan. And fortunate for my company and myself, for it fell to our lot to cross the Atlantic on the greatest liner afloat, the giant Leviathan. According to my best recollection, she was 980 feet in length, contained 17 decks, and carried a crew of 2,200 sailors. Her speed was such that she made the trip across in something like two days less time than did the ordinary troop ship. And as was the case with quite a number of convoys during the war, we witnessed our first submarine battle on the third day out. Fortunately, however, no damage was done to our ships."

On September 6, or seven days after setting sail, the Leviathan and her sister ships landed at Brest. For Company C and balance of the outfit, however, it meant a sixty-day tour of duty in stevedore service, or the unloading of war materials to be used by the Allies.

On about December 6, 1917, Ussery, together with his buddies of the 142nd Field Artillery, was transferred to Messac, and in about three weeks later again to Saumur. At Saumur an intensive training program was engaged in by the entire organization for the front line service that was shortly anticipated. And among other things, this training included those rudiments and essentials that would be pertinent to the handling of the mess that would best serve the artillerymen who were to be placed on or near the lines.

The outfit, including Ussery, again moved on March 27 to the Argonne Forest, where they were held in reserve, and where intensive training was likewise carried on. Next came the transfer to Coaquidon, where they remained until after the armistice.

The exemplary services of Private Ussery were recognized while he was still in training at Coaquidon. It was here that he was selected to be chief cook for the officers' mess. Since the rations on or near the front were limited for both officers and enlisted men, it fell to Ussery's lot to employ his own wits and ingenuity in trading with the natives for some of the delicacies that were so rare with the American soldiers in France. With only a limited French vocabulary, he nevertheless became very efficient in trading good American money (and French money, too) for such items as eggs, butter, chickens and geese. And although it was not specifically stated on the bulletin board, Cook Ussery treated his men on several occasions to that rarest of rare meats—known as sirloin of horse meat.

An A. W. O. L. with the major's permission was authority enough for Private Ussery to visit and enjoy the great city of Paris. "We saw the Eiffel Tower—and what a tower," stated Ussery, as he recalled the occasion some eighteen years past. "And there were plenty of toll gates, old castles, and many other things unusual and unknown in the States," he recounted. "And could you imagine it, it was only natural that a native Arkansawyer like me should get turned around in this great city, and have the rare experience of paying the same toll gate three times."

The unusual war-time experience of Soldier Ussery was saddened on two occasions by the loss of two of his buddies. And not in the front lines, and from the fire of the enemy, for not once did Company C thus serve during its nearly two years in France. Shortly before the armistice, during an inspection of arms, Private Charlie Howard, one of the best loved boys of the Company, was accidentally shot through the head. And shortly after the armistice, another of Ussery's buddies, Private Hogan, died from the result of head injuries sustained in a flying tackle on the football field. Both of these soldiers were honored in death by their buddies with a military funeral.

From Coaquidon, Ussery and his outfit were transferred on December 2 to St. Nazaire, where they were employed in stevedore and convey duty into different parts of France and Germany. And in this connection, Ussery, together with several of his buddies, enjoyed the privilege of a trip to the cities of Coblenz and Metz. "It was the city of Metz," stated Ussery, "that the Allied armies were to concentrate in a mighty drive just as the armistice was announced. It was a quaint and interesting city, and I shall always recall with interest my visit there."

Company C, together with others of the 142nd, embarked in an old German cattleboat on May 26 from the renowned port of St. Nazaire for the States. Fourteen days (or June 8) found the outfit disembarking on home soil at Norfolk, Va. They came shortly thereafter to Camp Pike, Arkansas, and on June 28, 1919, or exactly after two years, one month and 23 days in the service, the boys of Company C, 142nd Field Artillery, together with Chief Cook John A. Ussery, were given honorable discharges in recognition of faithful and efficient services in the army of their country.

Mr. Ussery, after visiting for a short while at his old home at Perryville, Ark., went from there to Lone Oak, Texas, and shortly thereafter to Burkburnett, Texas, where he was employed by the Prairie Pipe Line Company as cook for their company forces. On September 4, 1920, Ussery went to Ranger, which was then a booming oil town, where he entered the employ of Chestnut & Smith Corporation, refiners of natural gasoline, with which company he remained until January 1, 1931, when he entered the employ of the Lone Star Gas Company, successors of Chestnut & Smith. Mr. Ussery now enjoys the responsible position as foreman of the machine shop department of the company.

He was married on December 14, 1919, to Miss Martha Brazil, and to their union four children were born. In the order of their ages, they are Francis, 14; Allen, 12; Lonnie, 11; and Leola, 5. Ussery to his many friends and acquaintances in and around Ranger, is known as "Chick," for it is said that his uncanny ability at fowl and bird imitations has caused many an unsuspecting person to look delightedly into his or her egg basket and see for sure whether or not one of the eggs might have actually hatched.

His hobby and main interest outside of his chosen trade is that of his lodge and church work. The Odd Fellows and the Masonic organizations count him a faithful and worthy member. And his interest in keeping alive the memories of the great conflict in France, and in assisting his disabled buddies has caused him to keep intact an active membership in his local American Legion Post. To such a type of honest, hard-working, consecrated soldier and citizen as that of John A. Ussery, the citizenry of any community can well afford to be proud.

Breckenridge and Ranger Winners In Inter-City Games

The Lone Star Gasoline Company softball team from Breckenridge defeated the Lone Star Gasoline Company team of Ranger Friday night at Municipal Field by a score of 5 to 2 in a game that was closely contested through the first few innings.

In the nightcap the Ranger girls defeated the Eastland Merchants Girls team by a score of 6 to 3 in a five-inning contest.

In the game between the two Lone Star teams neither side scored until the fifth inning, when Breckenridge took a one-run lead and Ranger quickly knotted the count at one-all in their half of the inning. Up to that time only two men reached second base and no serious threat was made by either team.

In the seventh the Ranger team made a whole flock of errors in a row, which combined with one hit and two walks, accounted for four runs for Breckenridge. Ranger scored again in their half of the seventh.

The Eastland girls made one run in the first of the first inning but Ranger ran in three runs to take a lead which was never overcome. In the fourth, Courtney, Ranger catcher, hit a three-bagger that scored three runs and tied the game.

Both Parties Abandon Old 'Laissez Faire'

About the time that the tumult and the shouting die in Cleveland, we are apt to discover a woebegone and forlorn human being perching disconsolately on the steps of the convention hall.

For one thing seems clear, as the preliminary stages of the presidential campaign are gotten out of the way:

The old conception of an America in which government kept its hands completely off the machinery, and left men to work out their own salvation, does not seem to commend itself to the men who have to go out and get the votes these days.

It really has been a good many years since we gave anything more than lip service to this conception. We have had the Interstate Commerce Act for quite a while, for instance; the protective tariff for even longer.

But this year's campaign throws the fact into high relief.

This is not to say that there are not violent differences between the parties, and among different leaders within the parties, as to the extent to which the government should interfere and protect. There are. The campaign probably will be fought on those differences.

But the point is that practically no one in either party is speaking for a return to that old conception of a government which had neither the right nor the power to interfere in the economic lives of its citizens.

Consider, for a case in point, the perennial farm problem.

One party has one solution for it, the other party has another. Both of these solutions may be just a little hard to understand, in view of the average politician's weakness for trying to do indirectly what the courts won't let him do directly; but let that pass.

The point is that both parties agree that this problem is a responsibility of government which government must meet.

They offer us, not a choice between action and no action, but a choice between two kinds of action.

This might be a minor point, except for the fact that we tend to pitch our arguments in the old key. We talk of "rugged individualism," for instance, as if it were possible for us to get back to the early days of the republic, when the government dozed peacefully beside the Potomac.

The campaign would be much more sensible if we realized clearly that we just can't do that, and wouldn't want to do it.

The great problem of the day is the problem of the extent to which we can preserve our individualism in the face of an unavoidable growth of governmental activity.

Until we recognize the problem for exactly what it is, we won't have much chance of solving it intelligently.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

A MOON that lies on its back is known popularly as a dry moon, often, being bowl shaped, it is said to hold water. The tilted moon, from which water would spill, is a "wet moon." As the horns of the crescent always point away from the sun, the angle at which the moon is tilted depends entirely upon the zone of the earth from which it is observed.

State Agricultural Council Organized

COLLEGE STATION.—A state Agricultural Council was recently organized here of representatives of the twelve Extension districts. Each member of this Council came from a county farm demonstration council.

V. C. Marshall, Heidenheimer, Bell county, was elected chairman; L. P. Cooke, Corpus Christi, Nueces county, vice chairman; and J. H. Watson, New Castle, Young county, secretary.

The function of this council is to cooperate with the Texas Extension Service in all of its Extension activities, including the administering of the new Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act.

During the first organized meeting recently at College Station, the members of the State Agricultural Council unanimously passed a resolution favoring all farmers filling out work sheets in the Soil Conservation program on the grounds that such cooperation does not obligate the farmer in any way, that it is needed to make the program most effective this year, and that it will help in the 1937 program.

Members of the council who met with the Extension staff and with the Soil Conservation Committee are: V. C. Marshall, chairman; L. P. Cooke, vice chairman; L. H. Watson, secretary; L. R. Conner, Perryton, Ochiltree county; C. H. Day, Plainview, Hale county; L. F. Johnston, Arlington, Tarrant county; H. A. Terry, Clarksville, Midland county; J. Walker, Hammond, Tye, Taylor county; T. M. Drew, Odalaska, Polk county; S. A. Burchard, Gonzales, Gonzales county; and George Slaughter, Wharton, Wharton county.

HOG PRODUCTION SLUMPS

LOGAN, Utah—Hog production in the mountain states is the lowest of any section of the nation except industrial New England, recent statistics show. Only 40.5 per cent of the farms in this region produce hogs, a total of 734,648, or 6.7 swine per farm.

Elizabethan English in Texas It is said that the purest Elizabethan English spoken in America is in the isolated regions of Kentucky, Tennessee, and West Virginia. Blanton's name has never appeared on constructive legislation," Pearson stated. "His name has only been on a few minor resolutions."

Deception was charged in the announcement of Blanton that he will become, if elected, a member of the war appropriations committee. Pearson stated that the committee named is a subcommittee which reports to the appropriations committee.

"Out of the Texas delegation there is no man that has been in congress as long as Blanton that isn't chairman of an important committee," Pearson said in a statement designed to correct what he said was a misquotation sent Blanton by a "postmaster, anonymous reporter or henchman."

petition in favor of the county judge. Cockrill, who introduced Garrett at stops on the motorcycle route, warned against "Blanton's character assassinations." He charged the representative "has lied about every opponent."

Garrett, for whom the rally was given, humorously commented that he does not know "what Blanton will call me."

He said one opponent was called a Sunday bird-nest robber and another an illegitimate child.

Garrett promised to tell voters at a late date "how Blanton tried to get his hands on the WPA in the district and the resettlement program," about past office appointments and the alleged disfranchisement of rural voters.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Sunday School, 9:45 a. m. Morning service 11 a. m. Wednesday testimonial meeting, 8 p. m. Public cordially invited.

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, June 14.

The Golden Text is "Fear thou not for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness" (Isaiah 41:10).

"Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "They sinned yet more against him by provoking the most High in the wilderness. . . . Yea, they spake against God; they said, Can God furnish a table in the wilderness" (Psalms 78:17, 19)?

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. . . . To those leaning on the sustaining infinite, today is big with blessings" (pages 494 and Pref. VIII).

Tick Quarantine Arouses Indignation

By United Press RUSK, Texas.—Violations of the law against moving cattle from tick-infested regions into unquarantined territory have aroused indignation from citizens of Cherokee county.

Movement of diseased animals into the county will cause a quarantine to be placed farms in the area, authorities said. Such an order would cause another nine months dipping program.

Efforts to stamp out violations began officially when Judge Frank Devereux's county court fined three defendants $100 and costs.

Since the inauguration of the Cherokee county tick eradication campaign in 1925, local, state, and national agencies have spent $113,200 to rid the county of such pests.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON—If any of the kids start asking, "Hey, mama, what is politics?" during the conventions, you might give them a little lesson by telling them what has been happening in Louisiana, domain of the late Huey Long.

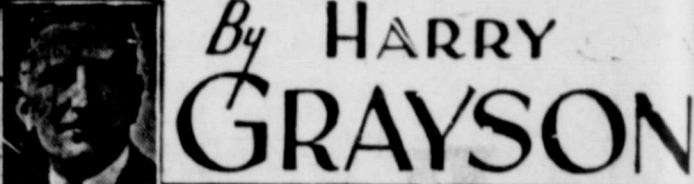

Almost unnoticed, the government moved the other day to dismiss criminal income tax evasion charges against Seymour Weiss, chief henchman of Long, and four other Long politicians in New Orleans.

Considering all the grim and earnest effort the administration applied in its attempt to break up Huey's machine by those income tax prosecutions—including the hiring of such men as former Prohibition Administrator Amos W. Woodcock and ex-Gov. Dan Moody of Texas as special prosecutors—it is interesting now to hear the explanation of the abandonment given by some of the late Huey's henchmen.

The administration, they say simply, has been very anxious for "harmony." In any event, the end of the criminal income tax cases comes on top of a remarkable succession of decapitations of federal officials who represented the pro-administration group of Democrats and were appointed against the late Huey's bitter opposition.

One by one, Jim Farley is knocking off the men who a year ago were carrying the Roosevelt banner in Louisiana and is replacing them with politicians designated by the Long machine.

NEW YORK—Wild Bill Mehlnor calls golf a game of contradictions. More bunk is spilled by golf theorists on the subject of so-called correct technique than is written about all other games combined. Five million duffers are living proof of this fact.

"You can throw theory out the window," says Mehlnor, whose scoring average over a 15-year stretch in the United States Open is exceeded only by Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, and Walter Hagen.

"There are only two fundamental factors—control of the hands at the moment of impact, and muscular co-ordination. The latter is inborn. No teacher can coordinate your reflexes. In golf it means that there must not be a tense muscle in your body when you swing. It's a matter of temperament, I suppose."

Mehlnor contends that there is no definite right or wrong way of doing anything in the swing, provided the hands function properly at impact. This accounts for the wide difference in styles of the stars as regards uptake, arc of swing, position at finish, etc.

"But the point is that despite all these superficial variations, every great golfer uses his hands correctly through the hitting area and each one hits the ball in the same way," explains the veteran Tulsa professional.

SELDOM have there been two runners whose stride was similar, two pitchers whose motion was identical, or two dancers who moved in precisely the same way. For that matter, what two persons walk exactly alike?

Mehlnor's point is that the runners, pitchers, dancers, and walkers achieve equally effective results through widely different styles, provided their method is sound basically and granted that they have athletic co-ordination.

"You can place my hands in any position you choose on the club and I'll play any type of shot you call for—high, low, hook, slice, draw, fade, or straight ball," asserts Mehlnor. "It may feel awkward, if my hands are badly placed, but I can make the necessary adjustments in my swing to counteract whatever crazy grip you give me."

"You can discount eccentricities of style. "Take putting, for example. For years theorists have been telling us to use a smooth pendulum motion, a flowing sweep of the blade rather than a snappy hit."

"I'm not denying that it is a good method, but what about Johnny Revelta and Paul Runyan? They tap the ball with a firm, distinct hit.

"Revolta and Runyan violate all copybook theory on the green, yet they are two of the greatest putters that I ever saw. They use an adaptation of the billiard technique. It's a tap—not a jerky jab or stab.

"Runyan's lunging swing seems disjointed, according to picture book standards, but who hits the ball any better day in and day out? Runyan's timing is so perfect that he can stay right up to the long hitters despite his lanky build. American golf never has seen a more consistent scorer."

"There is more than one way to hit a golf ball, and they may all be the right way if executed by a player with muscular co-ordination."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE NEA Service Staff Writer

I KNOW good housekeepers who say that they can't make good gravy, that they always have had luck with pie crust, that their coffee is terrible. Seems pretty silly, though, doesn't it, when these things are so simple to get right?

Coffee-making is the most universal problem of the lot. The fact that a coffee is expensive doesn't necessarily mean that you will have good coffee if you use it. The price you pay is not all-important, nor the guarantee. That it be fresh, though, matters greatly.

Measure Ingredients Decide how many cups you will need for the meal. Then allow one full measuring cup of water to each cup of coffee required. If you use a percolator, start with cold water. Use 2 level tablespoons of coffee for each cup of water and two extra tablespoons for the pot. This formula always applies whether you have a percolator or some other kind of pot.

Let the water boil and the minute it begins to come up through the top of the percolator, notice the time. When the coffee has percolated ten minutes, take the pot from the fire.

Filtered coffee is made by pouring boiling water—but it must be actively boiling—over finely ground coffee.

Gravy can be made successfully two ways. One way is to stir the flour into the proper amount of fat in the roasting pan or spider and add the right amount of cold water, stirring until the gravy boils and is perfectly smooth.

Knoxville woman, seeking divorce, says her husband hasn't bathed in more than a year. Probably the first instance in which the man saved the grounds for divorce.

Alternate Recipe The other way to make it is to add water to the fat in the pan and bring it to the boiling point. Put some sifted flour into a bowl and slowly add cold water, stirring to make a perfectly smooth paste. Add enough more water to make the paste pour easily and pour into the boiling gravy stock. Season with salt and pepper and cook and stir until boiling. Use two tablespoons flour—level—to thicken two cups of gravy. This kind of gravy should boil several minutes after it thickens. It's easy to make but you MUST have the paste perfectly smooth and free from lumps. Lumps will not cook out, you see. They will swell in the hot stock and be even larger.

Bacon is another simple food often poorly cooked. Remember that all cured meats must be cooked slowly. The curing process dries and firms the tissues to a certain extent, making it imperative to cook it over a low flame to prevent crisping before the meat is sufficiently done. Put bacon in a cold spider and cook slowly, pouring off the fat and never letting it smoke.

100 Employed on Flood Control Dam

DENISON, Texas.—One hundred persons are now employed and others are to be added to the office and field forces of Capt. Lester F. Rhodes, army engineer in charge of the survey, investigation and designing for the proposed flood control and power dam on Red river near Denison.

Organization activities are moving rapidly now both in the office and in field programs, with additional engineers being transferred from other projects to the Red River dam project.

A recent transfer announced was that of T. F. Burns, who will begin active duties here June 10 as principal assistant to Captain Rhodes. Burns will come from Eastport, Mo., where he was engaged on the Passamaquoddy project.

Elias J. Williams, army engineer from Tucumcari, N. M., and C. R. Durgan from Eastport, Mo., are to report soon. Howard J. Beeler, also from the Passamaquoddy project, and E. W. Williams of Dallas are due soon to take part in the study and designing division and Morgan Ellsworth of McComb, Miss., has accepted transfer to the Denison project as safety engineer in charge of the safety department.

Field parties in surveying activities are being organized rapidly, with one party working out of Gainesville in charge of M. S. Gurnee, engineer; another working out of Marietta, Okla., in charge of T. R. Richardson. Field parties working directly out of Denison office are in charge of junior engineers, Francis Thomas, James Reynolds, J. A. Johnson and Robert Ford.

There will be 10 field parties working out of the central office here, five in Oklahoma and five in Texas.

Science Ends An Age-Old Fear Of Volcanic Eruption

HONOLULU.—The science of predicting volcanic eruptions has become so accurate, that Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, Jr., State park service in Hawaii, has been called to the West Indies to ascertain when the next eruption may take place on the island of Montserrat. The trip, investigation and prediction is being made at the request of the Royal Society of London. Dr. Jaggar expects to complete his work by late summer.

For more than a year earth tremors have alarmed the people of Montserrat and the Royal Society of London sent Dr. Jaggar to survey the scene and to recommend any precautions that might be taken for the safety of the population. It happened that the invitation came at an opportune time, for Dr. Jaggar declares he is certain the volcanoes of the Hawaiian group will remain quiet for the next two years. His qualifications for making such a statement are accuracy in forecasting eruptions.

Hawaii's latest display of volcanic activity started Nov. 21, 1935, and ended March 15 of this year. During the period, lava flowed from the side of Mauna Loa in the national park until in early January, after which the activities consisted of smoke pouring from the mountain's crater.

Almost two years earlier, Dr. Jaggar had predicted this eruption. Not only did he fix the time, but he set the point where the lava would burst from the side of the mountain and the direction it would take. As activity started and continued, it bore out the truth of the scientist's prediction in full detail.

The latest volcanic disturbance also testified the volcanologist's far-sightedness. On March 26, 1934, he stated in a public address that when activity started and lava began to rumble and tumble down the mountainside "our aviators and bombers will rejoice at the opportunity to show their prowess."

At that time, nobody knew what the scientist had in mind. Yet, when lava threatened to dam up the water supply 30 miles from the city of Hilo, Dr. Jaggar suggested to the U. S. army in Hawaii that planes be sent to drop bombs upon the lava, thus diverting it to a section where it could do no damage.

His suggestion was carried out. Tons of high explosives were dropped on the river of lava near its source. Three days later the lava ceased to flow. It was the first time a volcano had been made a bombing objective.

It was only because of the faith which Dr. Jaggar has in his own science and predictions that he accepted the invitation of the Royal Society to leave his post and undertake the Montserrat investigation.

"Since I am sure the volcanoes in Hawaii National Park will be inactive for the next year or two, I feel it is safe to leave my post long enough to accept the invitation to study the problem of the West Indies," he said. The scientist bases his predic-

Method Found To Keep Fruit Flavor In Grape Wines

By United Press BEZIERS.—After two years laboratory research, Mme. Andre Lignieres of Bezieres has developed a method of preventing the fermentation of grape juice without the use of any chemical. Her system will be tried out commercially at the time of the next wine harvest and it is expected that eventually the whole process of manufacturing grape juice will be revolutionized.

Mme. Lignieres follows principles, which she learned when working at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, which are based on the removal of yeast from the "must" or freshly pressed grape juice.

"The method is simple enough," says the scientist, "but the execution is a delicate operation, which consists of the prevention of any foreign matter entering into the product once the ferments have been removed. Any infection, no matter how slight, will cause fermentation."

Experts who have tasted the unfermented juice as achieved by Mme. Lignieres say that the flavor is totally unlike that of any other commercial products known now, as the chemicals ordinarily used to prevent fermentation destroy much of the original flavor of the fruit juice.

In his latest bout, Carnera quit in the ninth, claiming an injured ankle. Why not a rule preventing his opponent from hitting him on the head?
