ADMIRAL ALMANAC.

November 30--Rev. John of Putnam preached at the Spring Gap School house last Sunday and Rev. Harris at Cedar Grove.

G. W. Black is building a wing to his house also a hall and gallery. Tom. Stratton is the architect.

Joe Ligon's new dwelling house is nearly finished. Col. W. K. Davis and F. K. Wright were assisting.

These and other improvements that are going on in every direction show that notwithstanding the low price of cotton there is money in the hands of the farmers.

Mr. Bernard yesterday sold about 100 head of stock cattle for $16.50 to Verge Healey, of Greer Co. This young gentleman who was formerly an inhabitant of this county and especially of Belle Plaine, has bought in this neighborhood about 500 head at very fair prices and will start with the herd tomorrow for the north. J. H. Walker will haul his bunch of cattle with the herd and we are sorry to say that our esteemed friend and neighbor will make his home in Greer County. We don't blame him. It is a practical man and always sold an old cattle band, who should make a very good farmer for several seasons returns to the first love at the first chance.

Wash Hall also of Greer County, the son-in-law of Col. Lark Horn, of Belle Plaine, is buying cattle and the prices are really booming and remind a fellow of the flush times of 1882-3. Geo. Stratton sold 45 head for $18 per head including calves and another party sold 100 select cows to Mr. Hall for $30 a head. Of course these are well graded cattle.

Lon Hadley, of Baird, is out after steer calves and pays from $10 to $11 for seven and eight months old animals.

In my opinion it is the right policy for the farmer to sell all his surplus cattle at the current remunerative price. These fellows will get the wisest who sell all they can spare and bring the balance through the winter in good shape. You can't rent even at high prices pastures with grass and water in this county, and the prospects for rain are dim.

The moving season has begun. W. Pruitt, who exchanged his place for Burnett County property, prefers after a personal inspection to stay with old Calhoun and moved yesterday to the Bill Manning place near Vigo. So it seems friend Bill got leave the ranks of the happy (?) bachelors for another year.

C. J. Wilson moved his household goods from Baird to Cottonwood last week. The "Prodigal" son is returning home and they will no doubt receive him with open arms, and as I noticed the printing outfit among the load, there is some probability that we will have a revival of the old "Prodigal." Well, why not?

Dan Jones has bought the Carlisle place west of Belle Plaine and will make it his home. The old gentleman Carlisle and his equally aged lady have left Belle Plaine and gone east to continue their rambling days among their children. So goes landmark after landmark of the earlier days of Calhoun County.

Last night about 9 o'clock two officers from Baird distributed the notifications of your service. They were very communicative, but evidently loaded for something and started in a southerly direction.

A new comer from Denton county has arrived and taken possession of the Web place near Vigo. The name of the party if we are not mistaken is Nance. H. B.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jackson celebrated their golden wedding at their farm east of Baird Thursday Nov. 25, Thanksgiving day. Mr. C. C. Jackson and Mrs. Sara Lewis were married in Washata County, Ark., Nov. 25, A. D. 1847. They moved to Texas in 1859, and to Calhoun County in 1876, twenty-one years ago where they have resided ever since. There were eight children born to Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, all living except two. All children living except one daughter, Mrs. Hart, who lives in Stone-wall County and one son, William, who lives in Hood County, were present. A few invited guests besides the family were present. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Barclay, Dr. R. G. Powell and H. H. Ramsey, of Baird. There was a bounteous dinner spread and everything went merry as a marriage bell.

While it would perhaps be unreasonable to wish this worthy couple a return of their golden wedding, yet we are so happy they may live to celebrate their diamond wedding, twenty-five years hence.

Among the presents was noticed a set of gold top glasses by Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Callahan; set of gold napkin rings by Mrs. and Mr. H. H. Ramsey; H. H. Ramsey, gift and gold gold rimmed coffee cup for each, by W. E. Gilliland. Dr. Powell presented the happy couple with a large and handsome doll. Mr. Jackson says he wants to live long enough to see the Doctor married and if he don't get even with him it won't be because he won't it. All would know Mr. Jackson will not doubt that he will get even with the Doctor in some way.

...of indifference that is manifested to death.

I do not mean to imply that occasions may not arise when the shotgun may be the only suitable weapon. But if such things may be, they certainly have no relation to the tragedy at Waco. On neither side in this instance can it be contended that the other had given up the ghost worthy of death. It is stated that the survivor expressed his regret at the death of his opponents, and said that he had fought to vindicate a principle. What principle, alas, that casual and passing should ever become confused with principle.

Can occurrences such as this be prevented? I think any at least some of them may be avoided. Suppose we change the present system and really, not formally, charge the sheriff of each county with the duty of conserving the peace throughout its limits. Require him upon information furnished or knowledge obtained in any way of a pending conflict to arrest the individuals, disarming them and cause them to give bond in a material sum to give unarmed and to maintain the peace between themselves, making oath of their purpose so to do for the period of one year. If they refuse to subscribe to such an oath and then to jail and keep them there as long as they remain obdurate. If such a proceeding had been had with the principals in the Waco tragedy, all of them would now be alive. If they had made oath, though upon compulsion, that they would not engage in combat, that oath would have been sacred. Neither of the parties would have assumed his opponent, knowing him to be armed. The proposal seems a little harsh, but it is not as harsh and cruel as the custom that calls for street duels and death.

If it be true that there is no power in the law to prevent conflicts such as that at Waco, then expediency demands the repeal of the law against duelling. I am not in favor of the repeal. Uninduced by passion from real or supposed injury to himself, every man of intelligence must admit that murder rights no wrong and presents no argument in favor of any sense to kill another because of his opinion, or to invite death at his hands because of your opinion, proves nothing more than that the twenty of folly over wisdom in the human breast. But if deadly conflict is to continue to be recognized as a proper mode of arbitration between members of society, then it behooves society to provide for the means of settling such a method of procedure in such cases. If society demands to me to fight in order to retain its good opinion, then should enable me to fight like a gentleman. Unsound in morals as it is, there is a semblance of civility in the duel, and it certainly contrasts most favorably with a fusillade upon the streets of a city, extending its casualties to women and children. Under the code as it prevailed in the south in those times, the penalty for the use of one's family leads was usually avoided. When men fought whatever might be the result, it was held that they had conformed to the rules of honor and had satisfied all of its obligations. Society holds up its hands in horror at the recent tragedy, declares its sympathy and regrets that it could not have been avoided. It is a hypocrite and a falsifyer. It, through opinion, tendency and universal consent, called for the conflict and is responsible for the result.

At Muscogee Judge Springer and Indian Agent Widom had issued the most sweeping orders ever issued out regarding the liquor traffic in the Indian Territory. Agent Widom has ordered his Indian police to arrest all persons found with liquor in their possession or in an intoxicated condition and to turn them over to the United States marshals. Judge Springer has ruled that all persons brought before him who are found in possession of intoxicants or in an intoxicated condition will be required to prove from whom they purchased the liquor under penalty of being released in contempt of court if they refuse to do so.

The kind of Cotton to Plant.

Mill Martin, writing from Ambler, says:

The Egyptian cotton was tried in this country last year, proved a failure. And it is safe to say that it will not be planted again here. Having been interested in raising cotton all of my life, I have experimented with several different kinds. I think I now feel that to plant for profit, Warner's big boll and Warner's extra long staple cotton are best I can get. The yield this year, 1907, was a bale per acre.

I visited the farm of Mr. S. E. Warner at Houston. He is the originator and proprietor of this cotton and I find that it is a scientific intensive planting system, and has been carefully improved of the quality each year of this big boll, extra long staple cotton.

It will now be easy to get the longest and staple upland cotton has ever seen. Certainly the best one has ever grown in this country. The stalk is long and lumber and branching. His yield this year was a bale per acre.

Length of this cotton sells from 3 to 3 cents per pound more than the best staple, and it doesn't cost any more to raise good cotton than it does sorry stuff.
