Constitutional Amendment Seen By General Butler as Way to Stop War

Adoption of a constitutional amendment would simplify elimination of war for the United States, according to Major General Smedley D. Butler, the former Marine officer, who arrived Friday night for a visit in Eastland.

Busy with dictation at the Araboine corporation in the office of his brother, Samuel, General Butler Saturday morning wheeled on a working position in a swivel chair and discussed briefly with reporter the proposal. The constitutional amendment was described by the twice Congressional medal decorated hero as his "first and foremost" act in war elimination lectures has delivered for the past six years and is currently engaged. The amendment would provide that no soldier can go out of the United States and if there's anything it can be done right in the United States.

Kyle was charged in justice of the peace court in Cisco in connection with the attempted extortion there and preparations were underway to file charges in the Hooks extortion case, Ingram stated. The same tactics were used in both attempts at extortion, a crudely printed note being tossed on the premises of the intended victim, with instructions as to how the money should be paid. The note, which was received by Hooks several days ago, was tied around an empty beer bottle and tossed from a passing car. Apparently another note had been written to Hooks, which had not been found, as the one he received warned him that this was his "last chance" and "we give you this last

Reemployment Service Is Ready To Aid Jobless

The National Re-employment Service, a division of the United States Department of Labor and operated by the U. S. Employment Service, is now installed in its new quarters on the third floor of the Eastland National Bank Building. The office was moved recently from the basement of the Court House. The Service is a Federal full time unit that is operating for the benefit of Eastland County. On Wednesday of each week the service has a representative in Cisco and on Thursdays in Ranger at the Chamber of Commerce in order to serve these two towns. All persons seeking work and all persons wishing to hire workers are invited to visit the office. Especially, are the business men and merchants invited to investigate and learn of the service, its details and the manner in which a service can be rendered the employee and employer. The primary function of the National Re-employment Service is finding the jobless man for the manless job. The Service can only render the greatest public benefit when the unemployed are registered and the employer needing workers understands what service can be rendered. The service can not create jobs, but can act as an agency in bringing together jobs and qualified workers to fill them. The National Reemployment Service is not an alphabetical agency created to meet any specific emergency. It is a part of the Federal Government built on a long time plan of permanent public service. The NRS is not a relief agency, it gives no food, no clothing nor does it pay rent for any destitute persons. The service has no jurisdiction over wages, no say over whom the employer hires, does not enter in labor disputes or strikes, and is not trying to replace any personnel department of any organization. The service registers applicants seeking work and classifies them according to qualifications. Orders for workers are filled by referring the best qualified applicants to the office may have. Acting for an exchange for employers by bringing together men and jobs, and rendering all concerned a service is the function of the National Reemployment Service. All merchants, companies and the general public of Eastland County are invited to avail themselves of this service. It minimizes labor turnover and avoids delay. It saves the worker and employer expense. The service is operated by the government, therefore, no cost to any party. If workers can not be had locally, they can be secured from one of the many offices located in Texas and the United States. The Service has registered for employment any common laborer and from file clerks to administrative help.

ITALY IS NOT TO STOP AID TO THE REBELS

LONDON, Mar. 27.—The Italian Embassy today denied it had given any fresh assurance to Great Britain that Italy would refrain from sending more soldiers from Spain to fight for the rebels there. The United Press also learned authoritatively that Premier Mussolini's instructions to the Italian Ambassador here, Dino Grandi, to refuse to discuss any proposal to recall foreign volunteers from Spain, would stand intact. A spokesman of the embassy emphasized that Italy was already bound to prohibit departure of fresh troops to Spain. VALENCIA, Spain, Mar. 27.—Morning papers said today that they had learned from an "absolutely reliable source" that Italy is planning to send 100,000 men to Spain to fight with the rebels. The press in the loyalist wartime capitol here said Italy was assembling arms at Turin, Milan and Genoa for shipment to Spanish rebel territory. It also was charged that Germany was using the port of Pillau in East Prussia for shipments to rebel-controlled Spain, in the civil war against the leftist government. Earlier loyalist estimates said that there already were 80,000 Italians and 40,000 Germans fighting with the rebels.

Study Latest Example of Nazi Regimentation!

You can learn quite a bit about the relative merits of democracy and autocracy by studying the undeclared war which Mayor LaGuardia of New York seems to be waging with the Nazi government of Germany.

The mayor began it, as American mayors so often do, sounding off at some length on the evils of dictatorship. In brief, he suggested that New York install a chamber of horrors at its coming world's fair, and that it put the brown-shirted figure of a Nazi in it as a terrible example.

That started the fun. The German government lodged a formal protest with the American State Department, protesting that a friendly power had been insulted. The State Department made the obvious reply—that while this might be so, there is no authority or tradition by which an American government can exercise the remotest sort of control over an American mayor.

Then the German newspapers swung into cry. Der Angriff remarked darkly that Germany might take an interest in American events which "might not be precisely pleasant," unless Mayor LaGuardia's "slanderous word" are retracted. It added that the solidly Italian mayor is "New York's chief Jew."

Other papers followed suit. The mayor was denounced as "a shameless lout," as "an apostle of hate with a thieves' den mentality," as a "nasty fellow" (someone was lacking in inventiveness, on that one), and as "New York's chief gangster."

And out of it all we get one of the frothiest teapot tempests by which German-American relations have been troubled since Huey Long received a Nazi cruiser commander while clad in green silk pajamas.

The thing isn't important, of course. It is simply one of those squabbles which are inevitable when the loose organization of a democracy bumps up against the completely regimented phalanx of a dictatorship. But it is rather instructive.

The American government has no control at all over American mayors; the German government has complete and absolute control over German newspaper editors. There lies the contrast.

Under our system, a mayor can say and do anything he pleases without accounting to Washington for his acts. He can make votes for himself by riling the feelings of a friendly nation, as Mayor LaGuardia is now doing and as Big Bill Thompson once did in Chicago with his threats to punch King George of England in the nose. It means nothing at all.

Under the other system, an editor says nothing whatever without the approval of the central government. His lightest word reflects the feeling of his overlord. If he spouts fish-wife abuse, he simply mirrors the mentality of the people on top.

Each system has its defects. But can any American doubt that the system of no control at all is a looser to live under than the system of too much control?

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

MESSAGES FROM GENESIS

Text: Genesis 1:1-5, 26-31

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance

FROM lessons in the New Testament, we turn in the second quarter of the year back to the Book of Genesis, with its story of beginnings.

Has Genesis something to teach us in this modern world, where science has discovered a great deal concerning the process of creation that ancient writers never knew?

We cannot hope that Genesis will offer us a textbook of science, but it may be that it will have a great deal to teach us concerning the spiritual nature of man and his world, the sanctity of life, the responsibility of brotherhood, the nature of sin and its wages, and the vision and need of mercy.

We shall discover in the course of these studies that Genesis is by no means a played-out book, but that it still has a great deal to teach the thoughtful reader.

If there were any question of this, we might cite one striking illustration. In the world of the 20th century, where modern, so-called Christian nations are bristling with arms and armament, and we know not on what day the world may be plunged in war, is it not instructive to remember a man named Abraham? When his herdsmen fought with those of his nephew, Lot, over water for their cattle, Abraham took the amazing attitude of refusing to fight, and of saying that he was willing to sacrifice his own interests for the sake of peace.

Do we forget that he said in Gen. 14:18, "You take the right hand, and I'll go to the left, or you take the left hand, and I'll go to the right, but let there be no strife." That episode, in the book of Genesis, with its implication of teaching and vision, seems still to offer an ideal for modern men and nations. May we not find that this is so with a great deal in the book?

Let us turn to this lesson, with its story of creation. The story of creation is one of bringing order out of chaos, of bringing light out of darkness, of bringing man, greater than his universe and greater than the animals, into being, made in the image and likeness of that Being whose Word brought order out of chaos, light out of darkness, and life into the world.

NOTHING in modern science has gone beyond this or has set it aside. We may have discovered something more about the process, and we know now that creation has been a matter of millions of years and not of a few days; but we know, nevertheless, that life is the supreme reality in the universe.

We are conscious today of living in a world of great mystery. We feel its complexity, as the ancients could not have felt it. But the crude materialism of the science of yesterday has passed under the influence of scientific investigation itself and has lifted us into the newer and loftier realm of great energies and forces that contradict the idea of what we once called dead, or lifeless, matter.

The teaching of science today would seem to be rather that matter itself is a form of motion. We are in a living universe. Perhaps the mystery of life in the world seems more impenetrable than ever before, yet the simple verities of creation's story that emphasize order and light and life are the factors to which men come in faith and vision.

DETROIT, OLD CITADEL OF 'OPEN SHOP,' BECOMES TEST TUBE FOR SITDOWN STRIKE

The sitdown strike sweeps across Detroit like a tidal wave. At top left you see genial sitdowners in the Plymouth plant waving a greeting from windows. At right, waitresses in Stouffer's Restaurant wave good-humoredly from tables deserted by guests when service stopped. Below, left to right, pickets before the General Motors building parade their aims. Woolworth Five-and-Ten girls sit on counters to read the papers, and other pickets protest the injunctions issued against General Motors sitdowners at Flint.

DETROIT.—Reluctantly but with wry good humor, like a man being pushed into a cold shower by someone else who wants to find out how cold it is, Detroit finds itself the sitdown strike capital of the world.

The city is a proving ground for the labor turmoil of the moment. In the outskirts of the city, General Motors, Ford, and other plants maintain proving grounds, enclosures where new autos are driven over and through all kinds of obstructions as a test. It is rough going sometimes.

Now all Detroit is one vast proving ground for the new industrial vehicle of the sitdown strike. They pop everywhere like firecrackers, with sit settled while seven new ones break out. An average of from 20 to 40 sitdowns in all parts of the city and in the most varied industries are reported daily. The newspapers have ceased to try to cover them all—it is hard enough merely to keep a complete list of them.

Hotels, department stores, restaurants, five-and-dime stores, cigar factories, laundries, trucking lines, packing plants, hat shops, drug stores, printing plants, lumber companies, warehouses, nut shops, WPA projects, ice plants, iron mills, a corset company and a golf-ball manufacturer—all these have run afoul of sitdown strikes. They form a shifting background to the principal sitdown against Chrysler Motor Co., in whose nine plants 6000 employees sit defiantly to await the outcome of a court injunction against their presence there.

one big one is beginning to be noticeable. For instance, during the past two months the state of Michigan has lost $500,000 in 3 per cent sales tax income. If this state tax is off that much the effect on retail sales is readily calculable. The loss is having a grave effect on the state's budget, Draper Allen, sales tax director reports, because welfare and relief costs increase at the same time and through the same cause that is cutting down the means to pay them.

The time limit on auto tags had to be extended two weeks because so many people hadn't the money to buy the licenses, due to sitdown strikes. It is impossible to calculate the payroll loss by the six-weeks General Motors strike and the Chrysler and myriad smaller sitdowns, lasting anywhere from 15 minutes to many weeks.

On the Bandwagon
The sitdown is contagious. Publicity of the big motor sitdowns spreads the idea into every field. In front of one of the large Detroit hotels, a small, shy boy stood picketing a much larger boy who was selling newspapers. The little fellow carried a sign urging people not to buy papers from the larger one because he had not joined the newsboys' union.

Ripples from the big Detroit strike splash circled the world. High school and college students in Indiana and Illinois, telegraph messenger boys and colored wet-nurses in Chicago, blind institutional workers in Pennsylvania, dog pound attendants in Nebraska, the customers of a Joliet, Ill., beer parlor, all sat down to enforce demands.

Even Coptic monks in Cairo, Egypt, shut themselves up in their monastery to protest against an unpopular abbot and a general state of boredom.

But the more amusing phases of the sitdown situation are overshadowed by the precedents being set in the big Detroit sitdowns. The answers arrived at in the General Motors and Chrysler strikes are going to have a definite effect on industrial relations in the future.

For instance, the General Motors settlement was not entirely a one-way agreement. The union, in return for the concessions to it, promised that in future disputes "there shall be no suspensions or stoppages of work until every effort has been exhausted to adjust them through the regular grievance procedure, and in no case without the approval of the international officers of the union."

stoppages of work until every effort has been exhausted to adjust them through the regular grievance procedure, and in no case without the approval of the international officers of the union. This guarantee of the employment against unauthorized sitdowns and against stoppages of work except those formally decreed by the union's officers themselves, involves a greater degree of discipline and responsibility than has been apparent thus far.

Softball Teams Are Reperesented At Meeting Here

Fire Chief G. A. Murphy presided at the softball meeting Friday night in the office of the chamber of commerce, in the absence of J. J. Kelly, president of the Ranger Softball League, when rules, schedule, umpires and other matters were discussed.

It was decided to call another meeting for Friday night, April 2, at which time the managers of the teams elected for the year could be present and everyone at the meeting who was representing a team promised that their team would be organized by the next meeting.

Representatives from Caddo stated that Caddo had improved their lighted field and would want part of the games played in Caddo, if the Caddo team came into the league. The matter was given favorable discussion as Caddo is one of the best drawing cards in the Ranger League, and decision was left open until the new managers could be present.

Representatives from Strawn indicated that it was possible Strawn would also have a lighted field this year, as plans have been started.

Those present at the meeting, and the teams represented were Fincher of Strawn, Carter and Phillips of Montgomery Ward, Hall of the Elks, Woods of Caddo, Edwards and Brown of TeePee, Moore of the Lone Star Gasoline Company, and R. V. Robinson, Ike Griffin, Frank Reese and Truman Reese.

Much interest in the coming softball season was shown at the meeting.

No Rain Is Due On Easter Sunday

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—There will be no rain on Easter Sunday, the United States Weather Bureau said today, because it will be too cold to rain.

If there is any precipitation it will be in the form of snow.

LAST SESSION OF SCHOOL IS BIG SUCCESS

The largest crowd ever to assemble in the auditorium of the Recreation building was present on Friday evening for the night session of the Happy Kitchen Chautauqua, which was conducted here by Miss Jessie Hogue.

Men and women were present at the final session, which was planned in order that men and women who were working during the afternoons and could not attend the regular sessions, could see the displays of merchandise and see what the setting for a real cooking school really looked like.

The entertainment program of the evening was furnished by the combined choral clubs of the three Ranger ward schools, with about 80 little girls taking a part. They sang in school groups as well as a complete unit, and their selections were met with rounds of applause from the packed house.

The other entertainment feature was the Cooper School Trio, which sang several beautiful selections.

Miss Jessie Hogue made a short talk prior to the awarding of the prizes.

Hands Too Smooth To Be Fingerprinted

By United Press SPRINGFIELD, O. — Should Webster R. Lyons, a barber here, ever need his fingerprints for identification purposes he probably would find them of no value.

It is impossible to obtain an impression of Lyons' fingerprints, which the barber said had been worn smooth by massaging thousands of beards.

Lyons discovered his fingers were unprintable when he asked Detective William Rusef, in charge of the police bertillon department to take his prints for civil identification in case of accident.

Recipes Used and Recommended At Happy Kitchen Chautauqua

Boston Cream Pie. 1-3 cup Mrs. Tuckers' shortening, 1 cup sugar 2 eggs well beaten, 1-2 cup milk, 1 3-4 cup Gold Chain flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 3-4 teaspoon K. C. baking powder.

Cream shortening and add half the sugar gradually. Add remaining sugar to egg. Combine mixing powder and salt and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Add extract. Bake 30 min. at 350 degrees. Bake in frying pan, split to make 2 layers.

Chocolate Filling. 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 egg yolk, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt chocolate over hot water (do not let water boil) add half the sugar and milk, add remaining sugar and egg yolk. Cook in double boiler until thickened, stirring constantly at first, so that mixture may be perfectly smooth. Cool slightly, flavor and spread.

Date Nut Cake. 2 lbs. dates, 1 lb. pecans, 1 cup Gold Chain flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon K. C. baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Butterscotch Pecan Rolls. Follow standard roll recipe. Roll 1-4 inch thick, spread with softened butter and sprinkle heavy with brown sugar. Before rolling up like jelly-roll. Cut in 3-4 inch pieces. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in pan and cover with 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup pecan meats. Brush sides of rolls with melted butter. Place close together on sugar, butter and pecan mixture in pan, cut side down. Let rise until double in bulk. Bake 25 minutes in hot oven 375 degrees.

Coffee Frappe. 4 cups fresh hot Admiration coffee, 1 cup sugar, pinch salt, add sugar to coffee, cook and add 1-2 tablespoon vanilla. Freeze. Serve in frappe glasses with whipped cream.

Sour Cream Fudge. 2 squares chocolate, 2 cups sugar, 2-3 cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt chocolate in pan over hot water (not boiling) add sugar and when well blended add sour cream slowly. Stir and bring slowly to boiling point and boil without stirring to 232 degrees or until a soft ball is formed when a little is tried in cold water. Pour upon a marble slab or platter slightly moistened by having been wiped over with a damp cloth, and leave undisturbed until cool. Add vanilla and salt, work with spatula until mixture is thick and creamy, then knead with hands. Roll out one-fourth inch thick and cut.

Trailers ADVENTURE

BY NARD JONES
©1937, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARtha BRITtain and BETty HAYnes overland on their California vacation trip and find themselves stranded in San Diego. They answer an ad of the Airspeed Trailer Company and obtain an agreement to travel on the West coast, demonstrating the new de luxe trailer. Their adventures are a series of somewhat when ARNOLD SLOSS of the Airspeed company fails to ask for either bond or references.

Flashed at the prospect of the trip and money, nevertheless, the two purchase travel outfits and return to their apartment to pack. At their door they surprise a handsome young man trying to enter. Apologetically, he tells them he stepped off at the wrong door and that his name is GERRY NEAL. At first alarmed, the girls soon invite to dismiss the intruder. But Martha doesn't forget Neal. They start search. And there on the outskirts of a little town they pick up Neal, hitch-hiking. He tells them he is to meet a friend, JACK SPEDDON, at Long Beach. But when the girls reach the city's auto camp, Neal has disappeared from the trailer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IV

"HIS suitcase is gone, too!" exclaimed Betty, climbing into the trailer. "I wonder what else is missing?"

Martha joined her in the search, but to their astonishment nothing had been stolen. The washbasin was still damp. Apparently Neal had shaved, then slipped from the trailer. "He must have got out while we were going slow through some of those turns back there," Martha said. She looked at Betty. "I wonder if he's just—just odd, or whether there's something behind all this?"

SPEDDON looked at her queerly. "I don't know about that. But it's mighty queer. You girls may not realize it, but this could be something kind of serious."

"What do you mean?"

Speddon hesitated. "Well, . . . I can't say exactly. Did you stop anywhere after he got into the trailer?"

"Just at a gasoline station quite near here," Martha said. "But I'm sure he didn't get out there."

"I'd like to find out, Miss Brittain. You see, Gerry's a friend of mine—and I happen to know that there's one or two people who might want him to disappear. Could you show me where that gas station is? I'd like to ask the attendant if he saw anybody get out of the trailer." Betty and Martha exchanged glances, and Speddon added, "I'll take just a few minutes, and I'll bring you right back in my car. Suppose you both come along."

"One of us had better stay with the trailer," Martha said. "Do you think you could show him, Betty?"

All curiosity now at the strange turn of events, Betty gladly assented. Martha walked to the edge of the auto camp to watch them get into Speddon's car, a dark blue roadster, and as they drove off, some sudden premonition prompted her to note the license number. Hurrying back to the trailer she found a pencil and paper and wrote it down.

She was soon to be grateful for this move. A half hour passed, then an hour, and Betty and Speddon hadn't returned. Frantic, Martha unhooked the couple from the trailer and started for the gasoline station. To her relief the same attendant was on duty, and she smiled in recognition. "What'd you do with the Pullman car?" he grinned.

"Do you remember the girl who was with me earlier in the afternoon?"

"I sure do. You mean that good-looking blond?"

Martha nodded. "Has she been here within the last hour? She'd have been in a dark blue roadster."

"Nope. . . . The station attendant shook his head. "In the last hour there hasn't been either a blond or a roadster in here."

"Are you sure?"

"Lady, I don't forget blonds like that. When she came in here this afternoon I says to myself, 'Tim, you won't see a babe like that for another week.'"

MARtha's fingers tightened impatiently on the edge of the car door. "All right. But I want to ask you something else. This afternoon did you see anybody get out of our trailer—or notice anyone around the station as we left?"

He looked at Martha as if he believed she might be just the least bit irresponsible. "No, lady, I didn't."

"Let me use your telephone."

"Yes, ma'am." The attendant stepped aside, still pop-eyed. He was more agitated when he overheard Martha's conversation. For she had connected with the police station and was giving a description of Betty Haynes and Speddon, and the dark blue roadster. "And will you please send someone out to the Golden State Auto Park right away? There are some things I want to tell you—but the first thing to do is stop that car. I've—I've got to find her. . . ."

She found Betty at the door of the trailer talking to a rather slouchy man who might have been anywhere between 30 and 40. At Martha's appearance, he turned quickly.

As she sped past the attendant and into her car she heard him muttering. "If I see them I'll sure get in touch with you."

"Thanks so much—and 'ph-ne the police, too," Martha's vision clouded with tears and she rubbed her hand across her eyes. Poor Betty! Caught up in no one knew what sort of a mess—and all because she, Martha, had been interested in Gerry Neal. Yes, Martha told herself firmly, that was the only reason. For she could have said to Speddon, "We're not concerned with what became of your friend. He forced himself into our lives for a few hours, and we're quite willing not to see him again." She could have said that, and saved Betty this.

At the trailer the cold, uncooked food was still on the stove, but Martha made no move to prepare it. Nervous, she could only sit and stand in alternate restless movements. She thought of wiring home, but realized in time that this would be of no help now and would only throw Betty's family into a frenzied fright. Arnold Sloss? He could do nothing, and his first thought would probably be for his advertising enterprise.

Suddenly she heard voices outside the trailer. Looking from one of the windows she saw a joggling pool of light from an electric lamp. In the dim illumination she recognized the manager of the trailer camp. And with him was a heavy-set man in gray tweed.

There was a loud knock on the door of the trailer. "Miss Brittain? . . ."

"OUTOURWAY" By Williams

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — There was plenty of background behind the conference which Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins arranged with James H. Rand, Jr., after employing the unique method of advertising for him in the newspapers.

Rand is the president of Remington Rand, Inc., which manufactures and sells typewriters and office equipment. Three years ago, appearing before a congressional committee against the securities bill, Rand introduced the subsequently exploded charges of Dr. William A. Wirt. Those charges accused New Deal brain-trusters of plotting a revolution.

Now, Rand has been made the target of the National Labor Relations Board. After long litigation and hearings the board finds that 4000 of 6000 striking Remington Rand employees are still on strike despite, or due to, Rand's "ruthless methods" and his company's "grim determination not to bargain collectively with the unions representing these employees, but to settle the issues by force."

It finds the company guilty of violating various categories of the Wagner act.

It orders reinstatement of the 4000, and further orders that these workmen be paid whatever is necessary for them to move to the new locations of factories which the company transferred to other towns as part of its anti-union campaign.

The Supreme Court's decision as to constitutionality of the Wagner act thus will be of major interest to Mr. Rand and the 4000 employees. The labor board has ordered him to bargain collectively with the union as sole representative of employees in his plants at Syracuse, Tonawanda, North Tonawanda, Ilion and Elmira, all in New York; in Middletown, Conn., and Marietta, O. The company is also ordered to reinstate numerous discharged union leaders, with back pay.

RAND, with the assistance of a publicity agent and a lawyer, personally directed the work of breaking the strike caused by his refusal to confer with the union, according to the board, and the company rejected offers of mediation made by governors, state industrial commissioners, mayors, state mediation boards and federal conciliators. Rand, the board says, "deliberately misled by false statements and evasions those who attempted to mediate the strike."

"Back to work" movements were built up through employe groups, backed by "thugs masquerading as employes," says the report. "Communities allegedly were terrorized into anti-strike campaigns by threats to move plants away. In some instances the threats were carried out. While threatening to move its Norwood and Syracuse plants to Ilion, the board says, the company had a "For Sale" sign on its Ilion plant as part of the propaganda technique.

When other tactics failed, the board charges, the company hired thousands of strikebreakers, describing them to the public as "loyal employes." Four strike-breaking agencies were employed—including Bergoff.

"Scenes of disorder and violence, to be described to the public as riots," the board's decision says, "were deliberately staged by agents of the company so that the framed 'violence' could later serve as the basis for injunctions against the unions, requests for police protection and 'law and order' tirades in the press."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

THE national "cook-off" is practically on. It begins next Monday, the 29th. From six sections of this well-fred country, contestants will "cook-off" against each other in the second annual Champion Cookery Contest sponsored by the Women's National Exposition of Arts and Industries in New York.

The big money goes to the kitchen-athlete with the menu with most balance, taste, appearance and ingenuity.

Out of thousands of recipes entered by contestants in the sectional competitions, here's one from Mrs. H. A. Townsend, of Minneapolis, who packs a powerful chow mein loaf.

Chow Mein Loaf
(4 to 6 servings)

Three-quarters pound of veal ground very fine, 3 cups diced celery, 1-2 cup sliced onion, 1 teaspoon molasses, 2 well beaten eggs, 3-4 cup fine cracker crumbs, 1-2 cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon black pepper, dash of red pepper.

Mix veal, celery, onions, crumbs and seasoning. Beat eggs with water and moisten veal mixture. Pack loaf in greased oblong pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 1 hour. Serve on large platter and surround with fried potatoes topped with mushroom gravy and garnish with wedges of hard-cooked eggs and parsley. For gravy, combine 1 can mushroom soup with equal amount of sweet milk, thicken with flour and add seasoning and a tablespoon of fresh bacon drippings.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Bananas and dates with lemon juice, fried wholewheat cereal cakes, bacon, maple syrup, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Grapefruit, clairs, tea, milk.

DINNER: (Menu suggested by Mrs. Katherine Drake of Indianapolis) Peanut butter canape, green peppers stuffed with beef and pork, sweet potatoes with marshmallows, spinach, celery, cottage cheese and asparagus salad, crushed pineapple in glasses with red mints, cookies, coffee, milk.

Warm weather isn't far off and Mrs. Lloyd J. Robertson of Phillipsburg, Kansas, has an answer—Lemon Pineapple Ice. She says "My pride and joy!" Lacks the faults and has the virtues of other recipes. No cooking! No gelatin! No marshmallows! Real economy! That's our ice! Okeh Mrs. Robertson, step right up and do your stuff.

Lemon Pineapple Ice
(4 to 6 servings)

Two cups milk, 11-2 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons canned lemon juice, 1 can crushed pineapple, egg whites, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Mix milk, sugar, salt and lemon juice. Freeze in mechanical refrigerator until mushy, stirring once or twice. Add beaten egg whites and 1 cup crushed pineapple. Stir occasionally while freezing. Bravo, Mrs. Robertson!

LET'S KNOW TEXAS AND TEXANS

WILLIAMS TEXAS

Austin, Texas

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Myers, Austin, Texas.

Q. Where was the second newspaper issued in Texas and by whom?

A. At Brazoria, in 1830, by D. W. Anthony. It was known as the Texas Gazette and Brazoria Commercial Advertiser. Anthony purchased the San Felipe Texas Gazette and consolidated it with the Brazoria paper under the name of The Constitutional Advocate and Texas Public Advertiser. This was in July, 1833, and the paper was discontinued, leaving Texas without a paper.

Q. What was the nature and extent of the split in the Democratic Party in 1892?

A. Gov. Geog. in his fight against foreign insurance companies, alien ownership of land, on his views as to stock and bond laws, regulation of railroads and corporations generally, was regarded by many conservative Democrats as too radical, but by those who had espoused the Farmers Alliance, the Grange, the Greenback Party, and Populism as too conservative, the result being that the three factions nominated as many tickets for state offices and conducted heated political campaigns.

Q. Who were the leaders of the East Texas Regulator and Moderator factions of 1839-45?

A. The Regulators were led by Charles W. Moorman and the Moderators by Edward Merchant, each having captains under them who drilled their followers in the tactics to be pursued.

Q. Whom did J. P. Buchanan succeed in Congress and when did he become chairman of the appropriations committee?

A. Congressman Buchanan succeeded Albert Sidney Burleson when the latter was appointed Postmaster General by President Wilson in 1913, being elected in a special election April 5. He became chairman of the appropriations committee of Congress in 1933.

Winners Picked In An Essay Contest

Mrs. L. I. Bruce and Mrs. Alice True were selected winners of the essay writing contest sponsored by the Higginbotham-Bartlett company in connection with the Happy Kitchen Chautauqua. The essays were written on the subject, "Why I should redecorate my kitchen."

The prizes which were offered in the contest are a gallon of paint and enough wallpaper to paper a 12x14 foot room.

The winning essays, selected Saturday morning, follow:

Redecorating My Kitchen
Two reasons have led me to plan to redecorate my kitchen this spring.

First, it has been four years since my kitchen was papered and painted. The woodwork is ivory and the paper, when new, had an ivory background. I live in the rural district, therefore, I do not have electricity and am forced to use gas lights. These have smoked my kitchen until the paper is dark and dingy looking. The woodwork also has begun to need refinishing.

Second, my kitchen is on the north and with only two small windows for natural light, and dingy paper casting a dark reflection in it. I do not have a cheerful appearing kitchen.

I have planned to use this spring for my color scheme, red and white. White enamel finish for the woodwork, a wallpaper with white background and a red figure. These two colors with crisp gandy curtains at the windows and new linoleum with touches of green will enable me to have a kitchen that is light, cheerful, colorful and inviting.

I have never used Cooks products, but they have been highly recommended to me through advertising and personal friends.

I appreciate the sample paint I received at the cooking school.

Why I Should Decorate My Kitchen
"We choose the kind of world we live in and we paint its hue golden or drab as we will."

I should decorate my kitchen, not alone because our health depends largely on sanitation there, but pleasant and beautiful surroundings, our environments, have much to do in adding to our happiness, also in improving our disposition and digestion.

If there is only one room in my home which is newly painted and papered, newly decorated, I'd much prefer that it be my kitchen.

We should take pride in inviting a neighbor to have coffee and a light lunch in our kitchen, even during early morning hours and feel free to entertain our most distinguished guests there.

A "Happy Kitchen" means a happy housewife, and we know that no home can rise higher than the ideals of its mother.

After all, contentment and happiness are the things in life that mean most, and there's nothing costs so little and adds so much to the mother's peace of mind as a newly decorated kitchen.
