DOVER HAS ONLY PRAISE FOR OFFICERS

By United Press
WASHINGTON, April 17.—Dir. J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation described the capture of Alvin Karpis and Robert Subay as a grand piece of work by local officers.

Karpis and Subay were arrested by night in Plattsmouth, Neb., they had shot their way out of a trap.

The capture of these men was what can be done by cooperation between federal and local officers," Hoover said.

Hoover said the condition of Karpis, youthful G-man, when he attempted to arrest men at Topeka, still is critical. He said federal agents are taking Subay and Power to Kansas City, where charges will be filed.

Hoover was bitter over the fact that the assassins of Baker were paroled convicts.

Every federal agent killed or maimed has been the victim of a paroled convict," Hoover said.

He headquarters said approximately $5,000 was found on Karpis when arrested. It was not known whether the money was part of the $18,402 taken in robbery of a bank at Katonah, Mo., for which the men were charged.

The well was planned as a southeast extension from the Garvin D. Chastain No. 1 Brashear test which resulted in pay figured initially over 500 barrels daily. The Dodd is 2,000 feet southeast of the No. 1 Brashear drilled by Chastain.

Cisco's townsite well, the No. 1 J. A. Bearman, was underreaming 10-inch pipe at 1,510 feet at the last report. Total depth, 1,550 feet.

An abandonment at 1,180 feet was reported from H. H. Schwarz (formerly known as Gallagher-Lawson) et al No. 1 Hearn, three and a half miles northeast of Carbon, section 8, H. & T. C. survey, block 2. Troubled by bad luck frequently, the Hearn recently had been skidded 40 feet east when the hole was lost.

States Oil Corporation No. 1, H. S. Schmick, halted recently at 1,618 feet had not been resumed. It is one mile north of Eastland, section 1, H. & T. C. survey, block 4.

L. L. Welborn No. 2, W. U. Fox, southeast of Eastland and southwest of Ranger, was drilling around 600 feet in leagues 3 & 4, McLennan county school land, block 4.

Cox No. 1, O'Rear, four and a half miles east of Rising Star, J. W. Clifton survey, again was receiving stimulant, according to report. This time it was with acid. The last report on the operation stating activity had progressed to 2,835 feet. Recently it was shot with 20 quarts in the lime, 2,801-2,818 feet.

Following straightening hole at 740 feet, Anderson-Drewery No. 1 Kate Grist, section 36, Lavaca county school land, block NW 1-4, 14 miles southwest of Cisco, was drilling past 1,100 feet.

Still shut down was F. J. Estes No. 1 Gentry-Popejoy, west of the Durocher pool and southeast of Ranger. Last report on this well indicated it had been drilled past 2,975 feet.

SECURITY ACT OF STATE NOW IS ATTACKED

By United Press
AUSTIN, April 17.—Prompt action on a constitutional amendment to bolster the state unemployment compensation act will be sought—state officials indicated today.

Validity of the act under the present state constitution was attacked in cases filed Friday by the Dr. Pepper Company and Circle A Ginger Ale Company, Colorado corporations with headquarters in Dallas.

The present act was rushed through the last session so that Texas might qualify to participate in the national plan. Validity of the act was questioned then, but it was doubted if any suit will be filed. A number of firms have paid the assessment under protest.

Attorney General William McCraw was advised today the suits were formal actions to protect the plaintiffs and would not be pushed pending a decision by the U. S. Supreme Court on the federal act.

London streets will be a riot of red, white, blue and gilt at the height of the coronation festivities in mid-May. Street decorations for the old city of London are being tried out above. The set piece incorporates the city coat of arms and national colors. The bunting hanging downward will be festooned across the street.

Clipper Era Is Reborn in Pacific Air Ventures

If the old-time clipper ship captains would break off that pinhole game down in Davy Jones' locker and come up to the surface of their favorite ocean, they would see something after their own hearts these days.

For although the clippers have long since vanished from the seas, the daring and romance for which they stood are living anew in the airplanes that are blazing trails across the Pacific.

The tousle-haired Amelia Earhart has little in common with the old sailing ship skippers, who could spit to windward in a full gale, break a man's jaw with a blow of the first, and apostrophize both the ship's company and the elements in a flow of invective never rivaled on land or sea.

Miss Earhart, to be sure, came to grief after finishing the first leg of her trans-Pacific flight, and had to postpone its completion pending repairs to her plane.

For the point of it all is that this era of Pacific flights is once more showing us daring Americans taking out ships which are marvels of beauty and speed to establish new trade routes, bring America closer to Asia, and dazzle the world with their mastery of a difficult and dangerous calling.

There is one striking contrast between the old and the new, of course.

The men who ran the clippers were out to take chances, night and day. They kept sail on the masts in howling gales; they "cracked on" and ran for it when other skippers were cautiously creeping along under double-reefed topsails; they worked ship and sailors to the very limit of endurance, and every now and then they paid for it by sailing a ship straight to the bottom of the sea.

Our modern clippers take the opposite attitude. They don't have to go out for speed at any price; their ships are, by nature, faster than any other means of ocean travel.

But it's the same sort of game. Once more Americans are pioneering in the effort to cut down the Pacific's limitless distances. Once more American trade stands to benefit immeasurably. Once more our thoughts are being lifted from domestic concerns and directed again to the nation's sea heritage.

And it sounds just a little odd when sentimentalists lament the passing of the beauty and romance of the clipper. The same beauty and romance have been reborn—only we find them in the sky, nowadays, instead of the ocean's surface.

Famed Quadruplets To Visit Ranger In One Appearance

Mrs. Hal H. Hunter, head of the English department of the Ranger Junior College, announced Saturday, after her return from Waco, that Hon. Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor University, and the famous Key Quadruplets, would appear in a special performance at the Recreation building in Ranger Monday night, April 26.

The famous quadruplets, the only college quadruplets in the world, at present or in the past, will graduate from Baylor this June, after which they will go to Hollywood, where they will appear in motion pictures, it was stated by Gov. Neff when the engagement was secured.

Gov. Neff stated that this would be the only appearance of the famous quadruplets in Eastland County. They will present an act of singing and reading.

The order was passed, setting the election date for Jan. 9. It is alleged the county judge in his written order failed to include the recitation that the motion calling the election failed to include the motion was made by Commissioner Burnes and seconded by Commissioner McKelvey.

Also alleged is that the order was filed with the county clerk and no notice issued by the clerk until Jan. 6. Notices of the election purportedly did not include a copy of the order as posted in three school buildings. Also

It was mentioned by the university president that much attention was being directed toward Baylor since the "quads" are to graduate.

One Oklahoma City newspaper is to send a feature writer and photographer to Waco during graduation week and two northern magazines are to send special writers to follow the quads during graduation week and write special articles on their activities.

The quadruplets, who have become world famous because they are the only living quadruplets who have attended college together, will make the one appearance in the county on Monday night, April 26, at the Recreation building. Their personal appearance starting promptly at 8 o'clock.

Sport Glances.By Grayson

BY RICHARD McCANN NEA Service Sports Writer

It was more with disgust than with distress that we read reports of the St. Louis Gas House Gang brawling with a couple of sports writers the other day in Tampa.

You see, there's only one thing worse than a ball player or a sports writer fighting, and that's a sports writer AND a ball player fighting.

Not even the New York Boxing Commission would tolerate such a match. For athletes, ball players are always coming off second best in tussles with citizens—that is, citizens other than sports writers.

Take, for instance, the pugna-cious Mr. Jerome Dean. Didn't Mr. Dean get punched around the sidewalks of Hot Springs last year by a scrawny 135-pound taxicab driver?

And how about that Boston Red Soxer, also since traded, who got his nose punched into a pulpy mess by a counterman in an all-night lunch room in Washington two summers ago?

WITH the exception of such gentlemen as George Selkirk and Babe Dahlgren of the New York Yankees, who used to be boxers, and Ty Cobb, who was just naturally fired with ferocity, ball players are always coming off second best in tussles with citizens—that is, citizens other than sports writers.

He locked himself in with the very considerably called the best hospital to send a couple of fellows over to scrape them up from the carpet. They tell me that two fellows never played again.

RULING ON WAGNER ACT MAY HELP SETTLE INCREASINGLY ACRID A. F. L.-C. I. O. RIVALRY

BY WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Validation of the Wagner Labor Relations Act by the U. S. Supreme Court opens the way to peaceful adjustment of bitter disputes, growing more frequent, between John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and William Green's American Federation of Labor.

The Wagner machinery provides peaceful elections to decide which organization has a majority of employees in a unit, and gives exclusive collective bargaining powers to that majority.

The rush to sign up a majority may tend for a time even to heighten this rivalry between the two unions. Now the majority is even more vital than before, for a minority no matter how large, has no bargaining right whatever. It means death to the union coming out at the short end of the vote.

Cleveland recently saw a pitched street battle between these rivals. The Electric Vacuum Cleaner Co. signed a contract with the A. F. of L. unions. C. I. O. union members claimed they really had the majority in the plant. When A. F. of L. members tried to go to work to fulfill their contract, C. I. O. pickets tried to prevent them.

Pickets from other A. F. of L. unions rallied to protect their allies' entrance to the plant. Pickets from other C. I. O. unions rallied to help their allies' to prevent it. A thousand men scrambled and fought before the plant gate. Mounted police had to ride in and stop the fight.

Widespread Feud. Elections under the newly upheld Wagner Act are aimed at peaceful settlement of conflicts like this. And the prospect of such friction mounts daily as the C. I. O. organization drive spreads into new fields. Increasing conflicts are inevitable with A. F. of L. unions which have either memberships, contracts, or a claim to jurisdiction in the industries and plants involved.

Every such battle increases the bitterness between the two labor organizations, and unless more definite lines are drawn to mark out the field of each, inter-union fights may become more common than employer-employee disputes in the months to come.

The controversy extends down from William Green, A. F. of L. leader, and John Lewis, C. I. O. leader, through central labor bodies in most of the larger cities, down through union ranks to picket lines and strike negotiations, even on down to personal relationships between union men.

Green and Lewis publicly snap at each other on all occasions, and the organizers under the control of each are carrying the feud into every corner of the labor movement.

Lines Tightening. In the early stages of the Lewis drive, the conflict was little felt. The A. F. of L. union in steel had been bodily taken over by the C. I. O., leaving only scattered A. F. of L. members in the field. In autos and rubber the same thing

Rival labor unions turn to fists instead of facts rough-house instead of reason. The men wearing white buttons are A. F. of L. pickets, trying to clear an entrance to Cleveland's Electric Vacuum Cleaner Co., where they held a contract. C. I. O. members, claiming they had a majority of the plant's employees, disputed the plant's opening. A thousand men scrambled and fought, and a score were injured.

hood of Carpenters, traditionally a craft union, and now the A. F. of L.'s strongest single body is now extending its membership back into the lumber camps and forward into the furniture factories, seeming to include everybody who handles lumber, from tree to finished product.

It faces internal dissension, especially in the Northwest, where many of its members are sympathetic to the C. I. O., and might desert in a body.

When an A. F. of L. union goes over bodily to Lewis' C. I. O. there is always a row, usually over the union's funds. "You can't just walk out of the A. F. of L. like that," one organizer protested.

So into the courts go the disputes which follow. In Pittsburgh federal court, the A. F. of L. is suing to prevent the New Kensington local, which went over to the C. I. O., from taking with it $27,000 in union funds.

There are dozens of such disputes over funds. In New York, the Operating Engineers, an A. F. of L. affiliate, went to court to restrain the C. I. O. Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers from recruiting building engineers claiming A. F. of L. sanction.

With the C. I. O. drive under way in steel, Lewis branches out to take in fabricators of steel. And there he smack up against the A. F. of L. strong Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers' Union, which proclaims itself ready to fight every effort to enter its field. Should Lewis' oil industry drive extend on to include filling station operators, a field claimed by the A. F. of L., conflicts would be possible.

Rejected Both. The C. I. O. today is in everything but name a rival labor organization to the A. F. of L. It has certificates of affiliation with member unions that amount to the same thing as A. F. of L. charters, and formal C. I. O. leaders are expected to follow suit.

Such charters must, of course, define the field claimed by particular union, and then the must necessarily be more conflict. Such inter-union bickering, no doubt influenced some workers to take a "plague" of both "houses" attitude, as in the case of the Sun Shipbuilding workers, Chester, Pa., who took a vote and rejected both A. F. of L. and C. I. O. unions.

What will come of the American Union of Steelworkers, organized as an allegedly independent union from the shreds of the C. I. O. drive is problematic. But it is possible that this body may become an independent union which will reject the claims of both C. I. O. and A. F. of L.

It concludes with 'THE famous twin stars, Castor and Pollux, have been recognized as a pair for thousands of years; but modern instruments show us that they are of entirely different groups. "Maytime" Another Spectacular Triumph For Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy

With the glamorous Jeanette MacDonald and the picturesque Nelson Eddy reunited in the starring roles, this extravagant adaptation of the successful stage musical is far more beautiful than the original. That is to be expected, of course, owing to the greater resources of the screen.
Miss MacDonald and Eddy surpass their starring performances in those brilliant pictures, "Nauty Marietta" and "Rose Marie." John Barrymore is excellent as the temperamental and tragic impresario, and Lynne Carver, a lovely stranger to the screen from Kentucky, appears with Tom Brown to provide the juvenile romance.

"Maytime" is a gorgeous spectacle to view and a beautiful theme to hear. Hunt Stromberg and Robert Z. Leonard, who respectively produced and directed "The Great Ziegfeld" last year, occupied the same positions in the production of the new picture.
Noel Langley adapted the story from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young, Sigmund Romberg, who wrote the original Broadway score, composed the songs for "Maytime" with Herbert Stothart. The latter has composed the first screen opera, "Czaritz," which provides a beautiful sequence in the picture.
Miss MacDonald and Eddy rise to their full stature in the realms of stardom, adding to the laurels they won in earlier films. Together they sing the original stage song, "Will You Remember" so effectively that those who hear it will be unlikely to forget it. Miss MacDonald also sings two complete operatic arias and parts of others. Eddy sings three first-rate novelty songs, "Students' Drinking Song," "Vive L'Opera" and "Virginia Ham and Eggs." To gather the stars give a touching rendition of the folksong, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."
"Maytime" is a brilliant picture. It is an auspicious beginning for the new year's musicals.

Study club will meet Monday afternoon with Mrs. Christine Ware, North Austin Street.
Choir Rehearsal, Wednesday evening, 7:30 with Hal Hunter, directing. Mr. Hunter is an experienced song leader and the choir is making marked improvement under his leadership.
Come and worship with us.

Honor Roll.

One more six weeks to go, then it will all be over till September! Our honor roll has "perked up" a bit this six weeks, in spite of the mumps, measles and what-have-you's.
Avis McKelvain and Mattie Byrd Montgomery are the highest honorees; Vesthia Greer, Verna Norris and Lenora Teichmann received the high honors, and honors belong to Charlotte Clement, Gracie Jones, Gladys La Mance, Mildred Moorman, L. E. Gray, Jr., Mary Rose O'Neil and Edith Weekes.

Masquers club
The Masquers club meets next Wednesday evening at seven. A very interesting program on the great Southern playwright, Maxwell Anderson, has been planned.

Baseball.
Did you know that the college has a boys' baseball team? Well, we have! And after the boys get used to the lights on the field they will show you "some ball playin'!"
Last Thursday evening the boys played Killingsworth, Cox, and, as bad as we hate to admit it, the K. C. team beat the boys from college.

Before the game the boys had a little tea party. Maybe they drank too much tea. Now, boys, tea, cigars and cakes don't mix well with baseball.

Here and There
Mrs. Hunter, Avis McKelvain and Mattie Byrd Montgomery went to Temple Thursday for the state debate for junior colleges.
Mr. Warford, Lewis Hughes and Wilma Bankston went to Breckenridge Friday for the district interscholastic meet. Lewis and Wilma won first place in the extemporaneous speaking in the county meet.

TRAILER ADVENTURE

By Nard Jones

© 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Following with the help of GENE NEAL, to locate her companion, BETTY HANNON, abducted by JACK SPEEDON, MARTHA BRITTON starts north from San Francisco up the coast road. And suddenly she decides, even though she loves Neal, that he is implicated in Betty's disappearance. So of a small California town she has him arrested.

Next in Portland Martha learns that a JOHNNY CIZNIK, Seattle underworld character, is involved in the case. Police hint that Betty may have been murdered. Martha goes on to Seattle and there is abducted by Speaddon who tricks her into meeting him at a trailer camp. When Martha awakens she finds herself in an abandoned warehouse. A few minutes later she is chloroformed and taken aboard Ciznik's ship. Speaddon shows up and takes Martha to Ciznik's cabin. There Martha learns that she and Betty have become instant victims of a gigantic dope ring whose leaders wanted to try out a new trailer as a narcotic conveyor and used the girls to make the test.

Ciznik offers to take Martha into the ring. He urges eagerly on the grounds that if she doesn't join them, it will mean inevitable death for both she and Betty. But Martha is adamant. Angered at this defiance, Ciznik tries to sink the trailer. Horrified, Martha sees this rescue plan approach even as Ciznik prepares to leave the cabin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

WHAT fearful order Ciznik had issued to the Oriental, she would only guess—and she was never really to know. For at that moment there was a terrific detonation out over the water. The Chinese stopped in his tracks, turned questioning to Johnny Ciznik. The latter's face had drained of his color.

"Ling!" he roared. "Get aboard!"

Standing there, Martha felt the wing of the ship as it altered its course. Bells tinkled somewhere below, and slowly the throb of the engines increased, vibrating the floor plates beneath her feet. She stood there for a moment, too frightened to move—too frightened even to realize that in their hurried exit, Ciznik and Ling had left the cabin door swinging wide. As the ship turned, the door swung heavily, clanged against the wall. It was then that Martha regained her senses, and rushed to the open doorway.

The passage was empty, but above her she could hear men shouting against the wind. Expecting every moment to run headlong into an adversary, Martha walked hurriedly along. Desperately she hoped to gain the deck above, perhaps hide herself during the confusion. Then, as she passed one of the doors which stretched along the passageway, she heard her name called clearly. And it was Betty's voice!

Martha stopped as one stunned. Almost afraid to answer, she answered softly. "Yes... it's Martha."

"You can turn the latch from the outside," Betty said.

In one sudden movement Martha was inside the stateroom; and so great was her joy at finding Betty that she almost let the door swing tight again. "Wait!" Betty said, clutching the knob. She turned the lock so that the door would not close flush with the wall. "If you'd been in here as long as I have you wouldn't miss a chance like this, sister!"

MARTHA wanted to cry for joy at the familiar, jocular tone. But when Betty turned to her she saw in the blond girl's eyes the unmistakable effects of days of fear and weariness.

"Tell me," Martha pleaded. "Are you—all right?"

Betty nodded. "Sure, I'm all right. Handsome Mr. Ciznik has been a little unpleasant once or twice, but I've managed him so far. Have you met Mr. Ciznik, by any chance?"

Martha flushed angrily. "Just now." She took Betty's arm. "Come on, let's get out of here."

"Easy, Mart. There's not a chance. We'd run right smack into them. I tried it once—but this boat seems to have a knack of getting away from the revenue cutters."

"Is that what all the excitement is?"

Betty nodded. "You heard a revenue cutter firing a warning to stop. After a—" She stopped suddenly as the stateroom plunged into darkness. "There go the lights! Ciznik will run without lights, and keep away from their searchlight beam if he can."

"How—how long have you been on the boat?"

"Maybe a week. It seems more like a year—and it may be longer than a week for all I know. They don't want to let go of me, and I don't quite know what to do with me."

"But how did you get up into the Northwest? They told me at the California border that Speaddon had driven through alone."

Betty smiled ruefully. "Oh, not Little Orphan Annie was lying in the closed rumber seal—and Mr. Speaddon's gun was pointed down between the cushions of the front seat with one hand while he handed the dumb officer his license with the other. It seemed to me like we drove 100 miles before he let me back into the front!"

"What made him take you in the first place?"

"It was because of a crazy remark I made. You remember we went back to the service station to ask the attendant if he'd seen Neal? Well, just to make conversation I said I wasn't surprised to which he was crucified, opened a new era for the world. Those who saw him to stay his influence perpetuated and extended it" (page 43).

Registration was at the high school gymnasium in the morning. Singing was led by County Agent Elmo V. Cook and the games directed by Miss Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent. Speaker at the morning session was J. E. Lewis, Sr., Eastland, district manager of the Texas Electric Service company, who compared advantages of youths of today with those of past years.

Lunch was at the high school. In the afternoon members of the clubs and sponsors assembled at the city hall and with the Eastland high school band and Southwestern University band of Georgetown, in town for entertainment Saturday night, marched to the square.

Through cooperation of Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc., and its Eastland manager, R. J. Aylesworth, the group was given free admittance to a show.

To school board members and officials the extension service agents gave thanks for their cooperation in loaning buses transporting members to the rally.

The rally was under general supervision of Hugh F. Barnhart, assistant county agent, and Miss Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent, who were assisted by Agents Cook and Ramey.

They fell silent at the sudden sound of heavy footsteps in the passageway. They grew nearer, went on down past the door. "That's Ciznik!" Betty whispered.

"Betty! He's gone back to his stateroom to find me! We've got to make a break for it. Maybe if we can get up on deck we'll have a chance."

They plunged out into the dark corridor, feeling their way along the wall. At the far end they heard Ciznik's swift curses as he realized Ling had left the door open for Martha's escape.

"Hurry!" Betty breathed desperately. "He'll turn a flashlight down the hall."

Martha ran on, collided painfully with the rail of an iron stair. Clutching Betty's wrist, she started up.

When they reached the deck they realized the reason for Ciznik's sudden concern for them.

Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believe not them which had seen him after he was risen. And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:14, 15).

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus' last proof was the highest, the most convincing, the most profitable to his students... The final demonstration of the truth which Jesus taught, and for which he was crucified, opened a new era for the world. Those who saw him to stay his influence perpetuated and extended it" (page 43).

Registration was at the high school gymnasium in the morning. Singing was led by County Agent Elmo V. Cook and the games directed by Miss Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent. Speaker at the morning session was J. E. Lewis, Sr., Eastland, district manager of the Texas Electric Service company, who compared advantages of youths of today with those of past years.

Lunch was at the high school. In the afternoon members of the clubs and sponsors assembled at the city hall and with the Eastland high school band and Southwestern University band of Georgetown, in town for entertainment Saturday night, marched to the square.

Through cooperation of Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc., and its Eastland manager, R. J. Aylesworth, the group was given free admittance to a show.

To school board members and officials the extension service agents gave thanks for their cooperation in loaning buses transporting members to the rally.

The rally was under general supervision of Hugh F. Barnhart, assistant county agent, and Miss Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent, who were assisted by Agents Cook and Ramey.

Senator Wagner's Victory Smile

Senator Robert Wagner isn't exactly shaking hands with himself but he might well have after the Supreme Court upheld the New York senator's labor relations law in all five test cases. Congressional messages poured in upon Wagner by wire, telephone, cable and mail—contributing to the obvious jubilation in the above picture.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Senator George Norris of Nebraska is not one to look backward, so April 1937 finds him looking ahead toward his grandiose plans for TVA-type development of every major river basin of the country. Lots of people think Norris is a little crazy on power and flood-control development. Perhaps he is.

But if Norris cared to look backward instead of forward, he would see himself in other early April days of 20 years ago when he was thought even crazier. And yet after 20 years an unbalance he might have revealed then looks a little like the fine frenzy of a prophet.

Norris is the only man in the Senate who sat there 20 years ago and took his political (perhaps even his physical) life in his hands to vote against the declaration of war on Germany.

The Congressional Record pages of April 4, 1917, are crinkly with age now, but they are worth re-reading in the light of an anniversary that finds the United States again struggling to insure neutrality in any wars that may be brewing in Europe.

TWENTY years ago, speaking before the Senate on Wilson's proposal for war, Norris said: "Before taking this momentous step, and while standing on the brink of this terrible vortex, we ought to pause and calmly and judiciously consider the terrible consequences of the step we are about to take."

"In my mind, what we ought to have maintained from the beginning was the strictest neutrality. If we had done this, I do not now believe we would have been on the verge of war at the present time."

"No close student of recent history will deny that both Great Britain and Germany have, on numerous occasions since the beginning of the war, flagrantly violated in the most serious manner the rights of neutral states and neutral nations under existing international law as recognized up to the beginning of the war by the civilized world."

"The only difference is that in the case of Germany we have persisted in our protest, while in the case of England we have submitted."

"We have loaned many hundreds of millions of dollars to the allies in this controversy. It has been instrumental in bringing about a public sentiment in favor of our country taking a course that would make every dollar worth 100 cents on the dollar—the greatest propaganda the world has ever seen."

NORRIS cited a Wall Street broker's customer-letter to the effect that Canada and Japan were at war and were more prosperous than ever before.

"To whom does war bring prosperity?" he cried.

"War brings no prosperity to the great mass of common patriotic citizens. It increases the cost of living to those who have not."

"And even if we do not enter the Atlantic and go into the trenches, we are going to pile up debt that the toiling masses will not end with this war. It shall come many generations after us will have to pay."

"We are now the greatest neutral nation."

"Upon the passage of this resolution we will have joined the great catastrophe and taken America into entanglements that will not end with this war. It will live and bring their own sufferances upon many generations yet unborn."

"It was all said so long ago yet in a world preparing for another war, it is strangely familiar sound."

Brunk's Tent to Be At New Location

Fire Chief G. A. Murphy, whose fire department is sponsoring the appearance here of Henry Brunk's Comedians, announced Saturday that the big tent would be located at the corner of South Austin and Elm Streets, instead of at the corner of Austin and Pine, where it has been located in past years.

The change was made in location this year because Anderson-Pruett, Chevrolet dealers in Ranger, are using the lot at the corner of Pine and Austin as a used car lot and it would cause them considerable inconvenience to move for the one week.

Are Tile Workers Carpenters or Are They Plasterers?

By United Press

HOUSTON.—The question of whether the worker who installs acoustical tile is a carpenter or plasterer is hobbling up construction on two high school auditoriums here while the American Federation of Labor makes a decision.

The dispute has delayed completion of the two high schools here. Labor leaders said the problem is a national one in the building trades.

"Plasterers should be employed to do the work because the tile is cemented to plaster walls and ceilings," said Mack McClellan, business manager of the plasterers' union.

"Carpenters" retorted Charles Driscoll, agent for his union. "Nearly all the tools used are those of carpenters. The carpenters have been doing most of the work in the past and I believe they should continue."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is expected to announce a decision in Washington.

Classification of Workers Shows a Wide Range of Jobs Provided Over the State Through Public Employment

AUSTIN.—Workers placed in jobs by the public employment offices in Texas vary from archeologists to joint yarners, an analysis of 24,226 jobs filled during one month recently disclosed.

Included were engineers, nurses, salesmen, brokers, meter readers, tank erectors, bulldozers, asbestos workers, powder monkeys, waterboys, and such uncommon workers as sand hogs, cableway towermen and stone carvers, to mention only a few.

Month after month men and women with the occupational experience and training desired by employers are called into their local public employment office and given a "referred card" to an opening that exists in some plant, office, home, farm or factory.

To the worker it means a job, and a chance to pay the doctor or the grocer, to make another installment on his home, to buy his wife a new dress or his little girl a pair of shoes. To the employment office it means another placement in private industry, a public service rendered without charge to the worker or to the employer.

Monthly totals of verified placements have been increasing: 21,258 in January, 24,226 in February, 28,462 in March. Who were the people filling these jobs? Were they men or women? Young or old? How long had they been out of work? These were the questions to which the Texas State Employment Service and the National Re-employment Service, spearheads of the government's attack on unemployment, wanted answers.

A statistician at Austin wrote a memorandum. In the back end of a garage, operators fussed with a maze of wires. An electrical generator hummed. Day after day and night after night machines sorted and manipulated thousands of punched cards. Each card represented a worker. It might be a fisherman; it might be a riveter; it might be a disabled veteran with dependents. Each punched hole represented a characteristic: sex, age, occupation, length of unemployment, and many others. Finally, the answers were ready.

Placements of workers during February, 1937, were analyzed. Jobs filled by the employment office services that month totaled 24,226, more than for any other state in the nation. Illinois, with 20,649 jobs filled, was second, but had trailed 3,577 placements behind. For February placements in private industry in Texas were up 22.3 per cent over the total for January, whereas the average increase for the nation was 9.7 per cent.

The analysis showed that 11,332 jobs were filled that month by workers in agriculture, forestry and fishing. More than 8,000 were filled by workers in the building and construction trades. Nearly 1,000 were in manufacturing industries. The remainder were in wholesale or retail trades, domestic and personal services and other industrial groups.

On the basis of February placements only, it might appear that Texas employers prefer workers who are between 16 and 25 years of age. For women, the age group 16 to 20 years topped the list, with a total of 1,506 placements. A total of 3,200 placements of men workers in the same age group was made during February, but that total was eclipsed by 3,700 jobs filled by men between the ages of 21 and 35 years, inclusive.

The records also showed that 3,799 jobs were filled by men and women workers 26 to 30 years of age; 2,845 by men and women 31 to 35 years of age; 2,668 by workers 36 to 40 years of age; 2,215 by workers 41 to 45 years of age. The totals by age groups declined rapidly beyond the 50-year age mark. However, public employment offices in Texas filled 260 jobs in February with workers over age 65; and 40 jobs were filled by youngsters who had met the necessary legal requirements to work for a living at the age of 15.

It was also disclosed that of the 17,118 new applications for work made during February, (omitting students and school graduates not previously employed, and similar persons), 9,275 had been unemployed less than one month; 1,709 had been unemployed for one month; 1,025 for two months; 690 for three months and 469 for four months. Only 465 of the new applicants for work had been unemployed for two years or longer.

THRIFTY SHOPPING!

BY THE PURCHASING AGENT

SHE doesn't call herself 'The Purchasing Agent.' She doesn't think of herself that way. But that's what she is. For she runs a home with all the multitudinous purchasing required to make it a real place in which to live. . . .

Almost every day of her life the neighbors see her go forth with the family money bag under her arm. Often it contains a long list of needed things for the home, the children, her husband and herself. There are dishes, linen, bed clothes, carpets, rugs, furniture, window shades, curtains and kitchen utensils. Shoes for everybody. Underwear and outer clothing. Hats, socks, stockings, shirts, neckties and sleeping apparel. Gifts for birthdays and other occasions.

She may walk to the shopping district, drive the family car or her own. Her home may have all the modern conveniences including electric lighting, refrigeration and radio, washing machine and mangle, vacuum cleaner, bathroom with hot and cold water and modern heating. But the more she has often the more she has to buy. Her telephone helps her—especially with foods. For there are three square meals to be purchased and ready at a certain hour each day—and the pantry must always be ready for the unexpected guests.

And then there are taxes and rent. Perhaps payments due a certain day each month. Insurance that may include property, real and personal, automobile and life. Doctors and dentists. Drugs and toilet goods. The church and worthy charities. Amusements and sometimes hired help. And out of it all something must be put aside in the bank for an emergency or the inevitable rainy day.

It is her planning and managing and love that makes the home of which she is mistress, mother and wife. Experience has taught her values and qualified her for a big job. The advertisements and news columns of this newspaper keep her alert mind informed of the latest happenings and offerings. This newspaper is a principal source of information for the purchasing agent of a home.
