FLOOD DEATHS REACH 21 IN EAST STATES

At least 21 persons were dead and 12,000 homeless today as the floodwaters spread over parts of the eastern states and sections of western Ontario. Property damage was estimated at $10,000,000. Eight persons were dead in Virginia, five in western Pennsylvania and two in West Virginia. In western Ontario six persons were dead and damage was placed at $8,000,000. Although rain fell on Tuesday the danger was considered past. The Virginia streams also receded and rehabilitation work was started. While floodwaters went down slowly at Pittsburgh, the upper Ohio valley received the full force. Residents have been prepared for the emergency and the loss of life and property was relatively small. At Wheeling, W. Va., the Ohio rose to 45.9 feet, 10 feet above flood stage. Wheeling Island, the scene of 10,000 persons, was covered with water. About 2,000 fled from their homes.

Gulf Pipe Line Company Prepares To Pay Intangible Assets Taxes

In line with recent court decisions, Gulf Pipe Line company is making preparations to pay approximately $2,750 in taxes for valuations set by the State Tax Board on its intangible assets in 64 miles of pipe line in the county. The payment covers taxes as determined by the State Tax Board on the company's intangible assets for 1934, 1935 and 1936. Three years ago a pipe line company in another county by court order enjoined the State Tax Board from setting valuation on its intangible assets. The case was appealed from district court, received Court of Civil Appeals action and then went to the Supreme Court, which recently held the State Tax Board was within its right in setting valuations on intangible assets for collection by counties. The case had affected all counties. The decision in the high court is thought final, according to County Auditor Don Parker, who stated pipe line companies concede the counties' victory. The Gulf company is the first to take steps for payment of the taxes on intangible assets in this county. Valuations on intangible assets of the pipe line companies are set by the State Tax Board on pipe lines carrying gas or oil. Valuations on the gas lines separately are set by commissioners court. County Tax Assessor-Collector C. H. O'Brien states 1,191 miles of pipelines are operated in the county by eleven companies. In 1936 the valuation as set by commissioners court on the pipe lines separately was $1,506,310. Intangible assets valuation on the pipe lines as set by the State Tax Board that year was $290,710. Some companies did not render their property because of the pending court case. Pipe lines in the county vary from 381 miles in length as operated by one company to nine miles as operated by another.

The president's special train will arrive at New Orleans shortly after noon tomorrow. He will board the U. S. S. Potomac later that afternoon for 11 days of tarpon fishing off the Texas coast. Mr. Roosevelt will return to Washington Thursday, May 13, after short stop-overs in Galveston, College Station and Fort Worth.

Expectations are that fishing will be unusually good at the opening of the season at Lake Haganman and one party of anglers from Fort Worth has already visited Ranger and made plans to be on-hand at the opening of the season. The water in the lake is unusually clear and Jim Ingram, who controls the fishing rights in the lake, stated today that fish were apparently feeding during the day and that he expected one of the best opening days in years. Taylor Will Use Dynamite to Kill Crows In County

ABILENE, April 28.—Attempt to rid Taylor county of crows, long an ever-rising problem, will be made in the experimental stage by the use of dynamite this spring by Knox Parr, county agent, and W. T. St. John, game warden. The plan as proposed by Parr, is to make bombs out of stove pipes, filling them with rocks, small scrap iron and dynamite. The bombs are to be placed under crow roosts and set off at the opportune time. Such a method has proved successful in states of the north and experiments in a few Texas counties likewise have proven successful. Several years ago the commissioners court ordered a dozen crow traps which were distributed to farmers over the county to be used in the combat, but little success resulted. However, Dr. T. B. Bass has used that method successfully, catching during recent years 20,000 crows. The commissioners court is to sponsor the experimental dynamiting test in this county with Parr and St. John directing the test. Parr said the bombs will cost about $1 each. The stovepipe used will cost 7 1/2 cents, dynamite 75 cents, scrap iron 10 cents, and a few other articles are listed.

SENATE FAILS TO VOTE UPON RACE REPEAL

AUSTIN, April 28.—The Texas Senate today refused to cast a direct vote on race betting repeal and precipitated a special session of the legislature. Governor Allred warned them that the special session will be called immediately after the present session unless the Senate changes today's decision and votes directly on race repeal. While attempts to take up the repeal bill for a direct vote were lost, opponents of race repeal also failed to kill the bill when they tried to dispose of it finally by a motion to table. Race repeals evaded the rule against debate on a motion to table by repeated parliamentary inquiries whether the vote to table did not actually kill the bill.

Captain McCormick explained that he "acted entirely on my own responsibility as I will not permit any such paper to be circulated in my district." The paper, reportedly printed in Jacksonville, Texas, was bitterly critical of Gov. Allred.

Chemistry Will Provide More Abundant Life

It is easy to think of more exciting things than a chemist making a speech on international trade. But when you stop to think how chemistry is remaking the world's future these days, and how the decline of international trade has us staggering around on the edge of the Dark Ages, you can see that such a talk might be worth listening to.

So it is worthwhile to have a look at remarks made recently by William J. Hale, research consultant of Washington, D. C., before a chemists' conference at Macon, Ga.

Chemistry, says Dr. Hale, is going to reduce world trade permanently, because it is teaching men how to substitute homemade commodities for the things they once had to buy abroad. When men start pulling nitrates out of the empty air, for instance, it is obvious that the old South American nitrate trade is never going to be the same again; and the atmospheric nitrogen fixation process is only a sample of the tricks of modern chemistry.

Do we, then, face a steady decline in world prosperity due to this decline in the interchange of goods? Not at all, says Dr. Hale; for chemistry has found so many ways to use the things which men produce out of the ground and the air and the water that the race will never be able to raise more things than industry is able to use.

For agriculture, as the chemist sees it, is not merely the process of raising foods for people to eat. It is becoming or about to become, the production of raw materials for industry, as well. Industry's appetite, unlike that of a hungry man, is practically insatiable; in the end, it is limited only by the race's ability to use manufactured luxuries and necessities.

Now, what Dr. Hale is sketching out for us is nothing less than the picture of an era in which any kind of restriction on production will be looked upon as sheer insanity. Because mankind's wants are infinite, industry's markets are infinite also; and with such markets industry can never have an oversupply of raw materials.

You don't need to think very long to understand that a world organized on that basis would slough off most of the problems that are tormenting it today. Unemployment, poverty, want—they would simply disappear. Instead of dictators calling on their people to get along on less and less, we would have governments using every effort to increase production in every line.

It sounds like a fairy tale. But the point is that it is a fairy tale which is practically begging us to make it come true. The stage is all set. We are on the threshold of this miraculous new age, and all we need to do is step into it.

How long will it be, do you suppose, before we get intelligent enough to take that step?

If Mayor LaGuardia, father of New York's anti-noise campaign, finds he can't concentrate, Hitler would be glad to put him up in a concentration camp.

Trinity Canal to Remove Physical Barrier To Lone Star State's Industrial Progress

Realization of the long-sought Trinity River canalization plan for a commercial waterway to the gulf, tapping Texas' rich interior, is imminent, according to the All-South Development Council. With the estimated cost of the 400-mile project pared from $102,000,000 to $68,000,000 under revised plans, and many forward-looking groups adding support of this project to the movement, being evidenced throughout the state, for the establishment of a sound policy of taxation to encourage industry in Texas, proponents of the long-sought waterway look for a successful outcome of hearings soon to be held in Washington.

This engineering feat bringing Fort Worth and Dallas to the seacoast, figuratively speaking, hailed as a boon to the movement for the encouragement of industry, which is gathering momentum throughout the state, may be soon a reality, the Council's report says.

Revision in the plans has reduced the number of locks to 21, cutting the estimated cost from $102,000,000 to $68,000,000. Furthermore, powerful arguments supporting the economic justification for the project have been prepared and documented, and the Council states that proponents of the canalization plan look for a successful outcome of the hearings which will soon be held in Washington.

The physical problem of Trinity canalization is extremely simple, according to Gen. Herbert Deakne, former chairman of the U. S. Army Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, who is here in charge of preparing a report on the engineering plans for the project.

From the recently completed Eagle Mountain and Bridgeport lakes, just above Fort Worth, will come the bulk of the water used to move modern, Diesel-engined tugboats through the 21 locks along the straightened, 400-mile course from Fort Worth to Galveston bay. Experts estimate that these lakes, the new Mountain Creek lake near Dallas, and other slack-water pools in the area, will provide easily twice as much water, at any time, as the canal will require.

This will not be a disconnected, isolated project, the Council points out, but a valuable link in an integrated inland waterway system that serves 60 per cent of the nation's population. This is true because it will connect with the Intra-coastal canal at Galveston and thence with the Mississippi, thus tying up to the great canals and rivers that serve the prosperous midwest.

Strong support which is rallying behind the move to establish this long-sought connection between Texas' rich interior and tidewater is indicative, observers feel, of the determination being manifest in all parts of the state, to obtain for Texas the benefits of new industry—increased payrolls, diversified production and a consequent sharing of the tax burden which is now borne by a comparatively few industries. Many forward-looking groups which are pressing for a sound state policy of taxation to reassure industries already located in the state and bring to Texas prospective investors of new capital, are also mobilizing to put engineering skill at work on this waterway which they regard as a pivotal point in the broad program of building for the future of the Lone Star state.

torney in 1917, received the letter 20 years after he had written H. B. Duff of Des Moines regarding taxes on a suburban lot Duff owned in Sweetwater. The $12.35 was to pay taxes for the years 1912, 1914, 1915.

Hill gave the letter to Walter Carter, an attorney working on tax matters in 1917. Carter said he would return the money order if Duff could be located, along with the advice that the lot is not worth the taxes now pending against it.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court's about face in the Wagner act decisions has given both sides new arguments in the historic battle over the Roosevelt judiciary scheme, without appreciably affecting the outlook as to the plan's fate.
The first cry of the opposition that the last excuse for the plan was gone, echoed by a few senators who looked hopefully toward avoiding the issue, has been counterbalanced by a prompt White House effort to turn on the heat. The administration urges now that the court has weakened the position of its supporters by proving its willingness to play politics.
Certain Democratic fence-sitters in the Senate are seeking to jump off in any direction, just so it will enable them to escape voting on the President's proposal. The administration forces say privately they won't let the fence-sitters jump. At the same time, attempts are being made to find a method which would make the medicine for this group easier to take.
Belief that the President's hand has been strengthened by the Wagner decisions is shared by some, although by no means all, of the opposition strategists. They fear it is widely felt that the swing of a court majority to more liberal opinions is a personal victory for Roosevelt, achieved by the President's war on the court.
THE two fundamental factors in the court fight have been:
1. Roosevelt's great popularity following, whether understanding the plan or not, largely favorable to the proposal because Roosevelt was for it.
2. Strongest opposition card—traditional popular reverence for the court and a theory as to its sanctity, based on the supposition that it always interpreted the Constitution as a sacred formula, with no other consideration in mind.
The opposition now tacitly abandons the latter theory in order to assert that the court is responsive to public opinion and hence needs no reorganization. To which New Dealers, emphasizing the 5 to 4 decisions and the reversal of Justice Roberts' position on the interstate commerce clause, retort in paraphrase of Chief Justice Hughes:
"We are under a Constitution, but the Constitution is what Justice Roberts says it is—until the next time he changes his mind."
If the decisions had been unanimous instead of demonstrating that four justices over 70 still stood grimly against liberal constitutional interpretation, the administration would have no excuse for arguing that the "future welfare of 130,000,000 persons mustn't be left in the hands of one vacillating man."
The actual extent to which the court may have rubbed out some of its own sanctity or diminished its prestige by Roberts' bow to outside agitation is blurred by partisan debate. It is demonstrable, however, that the court hasn't made any new friends by the Wagner act decision, except among Democratic senators reluctant to take a stand on the reorganization proposal.
ROOSEVELT has begun a new drive to jam his program through. John Lewis, outstanding leader of the labor legions benefiting from validation of the Wagner act, scoffs at the court as "variable . . . unstable." Bill Green of the A. F. of L., insists the Roosevelt plan must go through. Many "economic royalists" who have preached the gospel of the court's sanctity and confidently expected it to smack down the Wagner act are now soured or at least pained.
The deal with handsome profits, Spot, the faithful dog, trails around after him trying hard not to notice the new friendship between his 16-year-old master and the high-riding bird.
The friend later paid Earl the money and let him keep the pigeon, too. Thus, Earl wound up

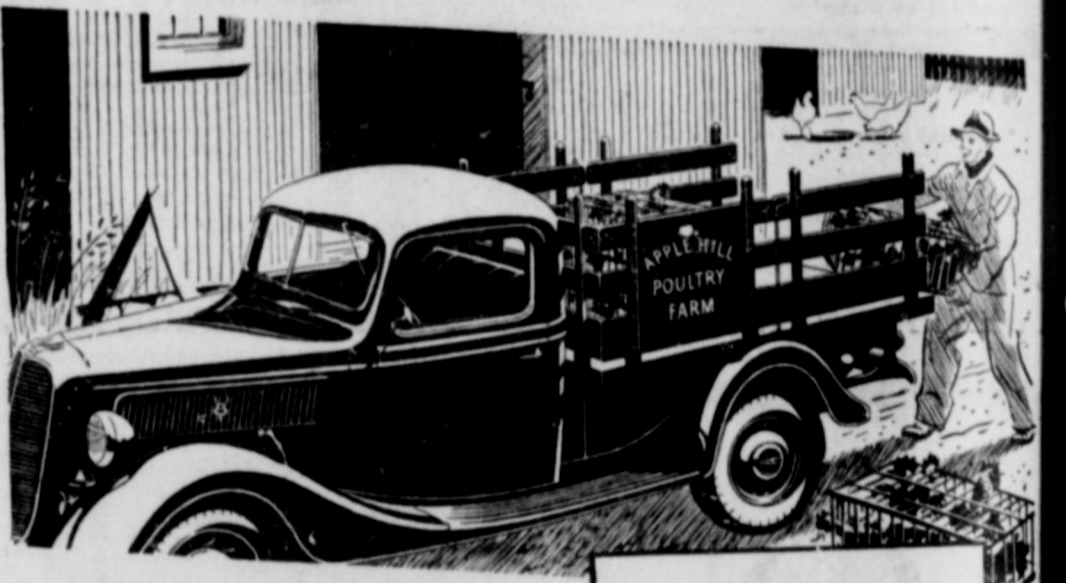

Railroads Improve Finances As Well As Train Service

CHILLICOTHE, Mo.—"While it is true that the railroads greatly improve their financial standing in 1936, the most notable accomplishment of the year was in the way of improved service," declared C. D. Morris, Assistant to the Chairman of the Western Railways' Committee on Public Relations, Chicago, in an address before the Rotary Club here today. "Operating revenues during the year," continued the speaker, "totaled $4,053,000,000, which was the best showing since 1931, when operating revenues were $4,188,000,000. This was an increase over 1935 of 600 million dollars. Net operating revenues in 1936 totaled 667 million, which was at the rate of 2.58 per cent on property investment. This was the best showing since 1930. However, after expenses and taxes had been paid, but 170 million dollars was left as net income, an increase of 162 million dollars over 1935."
"While the improved earnings last year did not make possible the widespread payment of dividends, it did materially improve railroad credit, making it possible for the railroads to establish a purchasing program which was badly needed. Throughout the year the roads expended over 803 million dollars for materials and supplies and 299 million dollars on capital account. Vast sums were spent for steel, locomotives, freight and passenger train cars, very greatly improving the situation with respect to equipment. These expenditures have been greatly increased so far this year with the prospect that by the end of 1937 our railroads will be in the finest condition, with respect to both equipment and maintenance, that they have been in many years."

Bicycle Team of Pigeon and a Boy Is An Odd Sight
By United Press
CLEVELAND. — When Earl Myers rides the sidewalks on his bicycle, people are forced to step out of the way and stare. For Earl goes by with a pigeon perched placidly on his head and a tiny spotted dog bringing up the rear.
A friend, who owed Earl $2, did not have the money at collection time, so he gave the boy a pigeon as security.
Earl became attached to the bird and liked to take it around with him. To ride his bicycle with friend, and Hendry believes in him.

"Don't you?"
"Not particularly."
"Why not? Do you know him?"
"I met him when he was east about four years ago, and—well, he's just one of those people I don't like. However, I may be all wrong. He blew a smoke ring toward the fire, dismissing Mr. Norton with it."

PRESENTLY, with less seriousness, he suggested: "Suppose we forget the Bella Terra, my darling, and consider the future Mr. and Mrs. Andrews."
Joan smiled wistfully. "Mrs. Andrews," she murmured. "It sounds so—so safe."

Unconsciously they drew closer to each other. The coffee in their cups grew cold, but they did not realize it. In the fireplace, the logs crackled with promise, and the flames drew bright pictures of the future.

A moment later Bob looked up and saw Sybil Hendry enter the dining room. She walked toward them, apparently with the intention of taking the next table. Then, carelessly raising her eyes, she saw them.

"Hello, Sybil," Bob greeted heartily.
"Bob!" Sybil raised her eyebrows in surprise. "It is nice to see you. And Miss Barrett! How are you?"

Bob jumped up and pulled an extra chair to the table for her. "Why not join us, Sybil?" he suggested pleasantly. "We've just finished our lunch—"

"Oh, I've had lunch, thank you." She sat down with them, nevertheless. "I just stopped in for a cup of chocolate—it's so chilly, driving."

Bob signaled the waiter and Sybil gave the order.
"I just talked to Uncle John on the phone," she remarked. "He tells me that you're going in his place, Bob."

"Yes. He asked me to go this morning."
Sybil looked at Joan and smiled disarmingly. "That is unfortunate for you, Miss Barrett. Won't you be lonely?"

"Oh, no!" Joan replied thoughtlessly. "I have so many things to do."
Bob laughed. "She doesn't flatter me exactly, does she?"
"I mean—" Joan flushed uneasily. Suddenly it seemed as if the charm of the afternoon were lost. She felt vaguely uncomfortable in Sybil Hendry's presence. The girl was so utterly perfect, so sure of herself.

"Yes. Seven o'clock from Newark airport."
CYBIL looked at Joan sympathetically. "That is sudden, isn't it? Uncle John might have permitted you the week-end together. Miss Barrett—or do you mind if I call you Joan?"
"I should love it."
"Joan, then," Sybil smiled graciously. "Why don't you spend the week-end with me? My brother is out of town for a while and I shall be all alone, too."
"Thank you, Miss Hendry—"
"Do call me Sybil."
Joan smiled her acknowledgment of the charming patronage. "It is nice of you, Sybil," she said, "to want me. But," and she lied deliberately, "I did plan to be with some friends on Long Island."
"Oh, I am disappointed," Sybil said. She hesitated a moment, then asked brightly: "Will you have tea with me then—some afternoon next week?"
"I should be delighted."
"Shall we say Wednesday?" She finished her chocolate and rose. "I really must run along. I promised to see Uncle John— Goodby, Bob. Good luck on your trip. Goodby, Joan—until Wednesday."
As they watched her drive off, Joan said to Bob:
"You know I lied about my week-end on Long Island?"
"I thought so. Why?"
"I don't know. For some reason, I'm just a little afraid of Sybil. I wasn't quite sure why she asked me. It seemed as if Mr. Hendry might have suggested it."
"Maybe he did," Bob agreed. "But Sybil was sincere enough. I understand how you feel, though. I've always been a little afraid of her myself. She's so coldly correct. . . . However, she has been a very good friend to me, whether her uncle suggested it or not. Whatever social success I've had here in Green Hills, I owe to her. She launched me, so to speak. It's helped me to many a good contract in business, too. She's really a fine girl, Joan. I know you'll like her when you know her better."
Nevertheless, Joan felt that she could never feel a genuine friendship for Sybil Hendry. She felt strangely apprehensive, too, about the tea on Wednesday, although she did not know why. Neither did she know that she was going to look back on that afternoon forever and realize that Sybil's tea marked the beginning of all her unhappiness.

"Of course."
"You're leaving this evening?" Sybil asked Bob.

"Yes. Seven o'clock from Newark airport."
CYBIL looked at Joan sympathetically. "That is sudden, isn't it? Uncle John might have permitted you the week-end together. Miss Barrett—or do you mind if I call you Joan?"

Sit-Down Seen As An American Fad

That's the definition accorded the new expression of labor unrest by Dr. William T. Root, Pittsburgh psychologist.

Employment and Payrolls Increase During March

AUSTIN. — Employment and payrolls in Texas during March were substantially above those in the corresponding month last year and there was a moderate increase over the preceding month, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Reports to the bureau from 753 Texas establishments show an aggregate of 89,966 workers, an increase of 1.7 per cent over a month earlier, and 10 per cent over March, 1936. Weekly payrolls of these establishments totaled $2,173,072, an increase of 4.8 per cent over the preceding month and a gain of 16.7 per cent over the like month last year.

Cities in which the gain over last year in both employment and payrolls exceeded the average increase for the state were: Amarillo, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston and Waco.

Industrial groups in which there was an increase greater than the average increase for all industries combined were: Cement, foundries-machine shops, millwork, cotton textile mills, clothing-manufacturing, bakeries, confectioneries, meat packing, furniture-manufacturing, commercial printing, power and light, and business and personal service.

Since January 1, 1937, a total of 66 establishments employing 13,219 workers have reported wage-rate increases averaging 6.6 per cent and affecting 12,682 employees. Most of the increase in rates of pay occurred in petroleum, meat packing, and sulphur industries.

Only one wage-rate decrease was reported and that affected only six employees.

The famous philosopher-comedian was more than a 20th Century-Fox star. He was an industry star. He was more than an actor. He was a Symbol. He was an unofficial ambassador from this industry to the Court of Public Opinion. His unofficial mission was to create good will for motion pictures. And he did.

Through his newspaper column, broadcasting, pictures and travels, he was brought into contact with people in all walks of life. His was a characteristically American personality, fine, clean, wholesome—the type that appealed to the whole family.

The theatre industry in honoring him, honors himself. In effect, it is telling the world that it has a standard, that it has a heart, and that it has a memory.

Elks and Kaycee Win at Softball
BY CLOIS PHILLIPS

Tuesday night's softball games, in which the Elks slaughtered the TeePee, and the Killingsworth, Cox ten overwhelmed Strawn, were marked by superb pitching performances.

In the second game "Brownie" Woods, Elks chucker, was very stingy, holding the TeePees to six scattered hits. Woods completely baffled the opposing batters, although he had excellent support behind him. A TP rally in the last of the seventh netted them their only four runs of the contest.

The Elksmen started strong in the first frame, scoring 9 runs. The first nine batters crossed the home plate with markers. They were never in danger of being overtaken after that. "Little Red" Lingle, the lead-off man, started it off with a walk. Doc Downtain, Day Mace, Manager Joe Hall, Mike Sloan and Willard Seymour all hit safely in a row, and then "Blackie" Roberts, the Elk receiver, belted a long home run over the left-fielder's head to clear the sacks. Harold, Elks right-fielder, hit safely before the storm broke. Nine runs were tabulated after the uprising was over. The fireworks quieted until the fifth, when first-base-manager Joe Hall smashed a round-tripper to left.

Frank Kosta, TP initial guardian, clouted a four-base blow in the 7th inning four-run TP rally which fell short. It was Kosta's third round-tripper in two nights.

Mickey (Cochrane) Sloan, playing short field for the Elks, played flawlessly, robbing TP batters of three bingles. Mickey also scored a run as well as driving in two with a scorching double in the Elks' big rally.

The Elks infield, composed of Manager Joe Hall, first; "Red" Lingle, second; "Dizzy" Downtain, shortstop; and Dick Williams, third, refused to falter, handling all chances without error.

"Blackie" Roberts was the individual batting star of the melee, smashing out two other safeties besides his homer. He also accounted for three runs himself.

J. D. "Cobb" Smith, Killingsworth, Cox twirler, was effective in the opener, limiting the Strawn men to six hits and four runs, all of which were counted in the last frame. The KC team staged an uprising in the second stanza similar to that of the Elks in their game. They also scored 9 runs, Dublin and Poyner being the only batters not getting hits during the spree. Four more tallies were chalked up in the fourth, the last of the hard-wear team's 13 markers. Manager Steuard's men combed J. Walco, Strawn moundsman, for 19 hits during the melee.

Jack Steuard, Henderson, and Otis Anderson, KC backstop, each hit safely three times for slugging honors.

Strawn marked once in the fifth, and 1) ran times in the seventh for their only scoring bids.

Ranger Theatres to Observe W. Rogers Week of Memorial

The national observance of the annual Will Rogers Memorial Hospital Fund Drive will take place in the week beginning Friday, April 30th in the leading theatres throughout the country. A feature of this observance is the showing of a special Will Rogers motion picture subject commemorating the famous humorist. Local theatres participating are the Arcadia and Columbia.

Shortly after the passing of Will Rogers, a group of his friends all over the country formed an organization to perpetuate his memory. They included John N. Garner, Vice-President of the United States, Fred Stone, Owen D. Young, Amon G. Carter, Rex Beach, Jesse H. Jones, Captain Eddie V. Rickenbacker, James G. Blaine, Patrick J. Hurley, F. Truette Davison, Colonel Joseph M. Hartfield, Will H. Hays and hundreds of other celebrated figures in all walks of life. The leaders of our industry, headed by Mr. Hays, decided that a hospital, bearing Will Rogers' name, would be ideal as its contribution.

The NVA Sanatorium at Saranac Lake, New York, was recently transferred to the Will Rogers Memorial Fund and re-christened the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital.

The famous philosopher-comedian was more than a 20th Century-Fox star. He was an industry star. He was more than an actor. He was a Symbol. He was an unofficial ambassador from this industry to the Court of Public Opinion. His unofficial mission was to create good will for motion pictures. And he did.

Through his newspaper column, broadcasting, pictures and travels, he was brought into contact with people in all walks of life. His was a characteristically American personality, fine, clean, wholesome—the type that appealed to the whole family.

The theatre industry in honoring him, honors himself. In effect, it is telling the world that it has a standard, that it has a heart, and that it has a memory.

Elks and Kaycee Win at Softball
BY CLOIS PHILLIPS

Tuesday night's softball games, in which the Elks slaughtered the TeePee, and the Killingsworth, Cox ten overwhelmed Strawn, were marked by superb pitching performances.

In the second game "Brownie" Woods, Elks chucker, was very stingy, holding the TeePees to six scattered hits. Woods completely baffled the opposing batters, although he had excellent support behind him. A TP rally in the last of the seventh netted them their only four runs of the contest.

The Elksmen started strong in the first frame, scoring 9 runs. The first nine batters crossed the home plate with markers. They were never in danger of being overtaken after that. "Little Red" Lingle, the lead-off man, started it off with a walk. Doc Downtain, Day Mace, Manager Joe Hall, Mike Sloan and Willard Seymour all hit safely in a row, and then "Blackie" Roberts, the Elk receiver, belted a long home run over the left-fielder's head to clear the sacks. Harold, Elks right-fielder, hit safely before the storm broke. Nine runs were tabulated after the uprising was over. The fireworks quieted until the fifth, when first-base-manager Joe Hall smashed a round-tripper to left.

Frank Kosta, TP initial guardian, clouted a four-base blow in the 7th inning four-run TP rally which fell short. It was Kosta's third round-tripper in two nights.

Mickey (Cochrane) Sloan, playing short field for the Elks, played flawlessly, robbing TP batters of three bingles. Mickey also scored a run as well as driving in two with a scorching double in the Elks' big rally.

The Elks infield, composed of Manager Joe Hall, first; "Red" Lingle, second; "Dizzy" Downtain, shortstop; and Dick Williams, third, refused to falter, handling all chances without error.

"Blackie" Roberts was the individual batting star of the melee, smashing out two other safeties besides his homer. He also accounted for three runs himself.

J. D. "Cobb" Smith, Killingsworth, Cox twirler, was effective in the opener, limiting the Strawn men to six hits and four runs, all of which were counted in the last frame. The KC team staged an uprising in the second stanza similar to that of the Elks in their game. They also scored 9 runs, Dublin and Poyner being the only batters not getting hits during the spree. Jack Steuard, Henderson, and Otis Anderson, KC backstop, each hit safely three times for slugging honors.

Strawn marked once in the fifth, and 1) ran times in the seventh for their only scoring bids.

"Ah Wilderness" Cast Reunited for "A Family Affair"

Practically the entire cast of "Ah Wilderness" that compelling drama of home life, are reunited in the new M-G-M story of a typical American family, "A Family Affair," which opens today at the Arcadia Theatre for a two days showing.

Lionel Barrymore, seen as the father in the earlier hit, again plays a typical head-of-the-house in the new picture, and Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker once again represent romance in its adolescent phases. Others featured in the cast are Mickey Rooney, Charley Grapewin, Spring Byington, Julie Hayden, Sara Haden, Allen Vincent, Margaret Masquia, Selmer Jackson and Harlan Briggs.

"A Family Affair" was adapted to the screen by Kay Van Ripper from the play by Aurant Rouveyrol and was directed by George Seitz, who has written many smash film hits, including "The Last of the Mohicans."

The story is that of a District Judge revered by the citizens of a small Idaho city until, by fulfilling the dictates of the law, he balks the building of a great aqueduct that will link the small community to a mighty city.

Rather than transport the entire company to Idaho for the exterior scenes, a typical town was constructed on two acres of M-

No league games are scheduled for tonight. Play will be resumed Thursday night.

Snyder, Griffin and Wickham umpired the games.
