'Swollen Bureaucracy' Does Have Its Uses

The federal bureaucracy is a fearful thing, as everybody knows. It is a swollen organization of political appointees, engaged in officious meddling, which consumes the taxpayer's substance and straddles the neck of Uncle Sam like the Old Man of the Sea.

But it does have its uses, now and then. If you are inclined to doubt it, consider the record of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration during the recent Ohio river floods.

As soon as the waters started rising, inspectors for this branch of the bureaucracy started down the great river valley. They had a thousand-mile beat to cover, from Marietta, O., to Cairo, Ill., and their object was to destroy all fruits, vegetables, medicines, flour, and other foodstuffs that were contaminated by the flood waters.

This was tough on the local storekeepers, manufacturers, and wholesalers. Most of them co-operated without a whimper, though, and those who whimpered had to co-operate anyway. The inspectors were thorough and unyielding.

In one town, 200 carloads of flood-damaged food were hauled off to a stone quarry and destroyed. In another, 120 tons of water-soaked coffee were destroyed. In Louisville, the inspectors went through 95 drug stores and destroyed all commodities that the water had touched.

And the result of all this was that not one single epidemic occurred while the flood waters were receding. Typhoid, dysentery, and the other maladies that "inevitably" take their toll after a flood disaster were distinguished by their absence. The bureaucracy had got there ahead of them.

It is interesting to measure this activity against the standards of, say, 50 years ago.

At that time no one would have dreamed that it might be a proper function of the federal government to keep flood-polluted foods and medicines away from the people. It would have been argued—if anyone had been visionary enough to raise the point—that those things were best left to local management.

To have urged that Uncle Sam keep a staff of trained men on the payroll to snoop around the shelves of the corner grocery store would have qualified a man for immediate admittance to the booby hatch.

But we can see it differently, now. This Food and Drug Administration paid its way in the Ohio valley flood, if any government organization ever did. It saved a great many lives and prevented a tremendous economic loss through sickness.

And the point is that our "swollen federal bureaucracy" does have its uses, after all. Ordinarily we overlook the useful work of it does and see only the expense. A sudden disaster that brings swift, sure, and effective help from Washington helps us to see what it is really good for.

Sport Glances.By Grayson

BY HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service INDIANAPOLIS.—T. E. (Pop) Myers considers Louis Meyer the peer of current automobile racing drivers. The general manager of the Indianapolis Speedway should know. He's been around for all 24 Hoosier 500-mile events. And the records speak loudly in behalf of Meyer, who will be out to win the 500 for the fourth time as the Motor Speedway celebrates its silver anniversary, May 24. Among all-time knights of the roaring bricks, boards and roads, Myers rates only Ralph DePalma ahead of Meyer. In third place he places another old-timer, Tony Milton. The fourth and fifth men, Jimmy Murphy and Frank Lockhart, were killed. Behind them, Myers ranks, in the order named, Rex Mays, pole position winner of 1925 and '26; Wild Bill Cummings, the homegrown who prevailed in 1935; Dario Resta, who came down in front in 1916; Jules Goux, who scored in 1913, and Henry Hartz. This trip, Meyer says that his average speed will be in excess by several miles of the all-time record he established in 1936—109.069 miles an hour. BECAUSE he never has taken relief in a 500-mile, Meyer has become known as an iron man, but he is far from being a heavy-weight. He is down to 164 pounds now, will lose three or four pounds by race day, and another six or seven will be peeled from his wiry frame during the race. Meyer is 32 years old, the second youngest son of Edward Meyer, who now is a real estate dealer in California but who in his younger days was a bicycle racer in Europe. The father is a German. Lou was born in New York, but was taken to California as an infant. Eddie Meyer, Jr., was in the track driver on the Pacific coast and introduced his famous brother to racing. Lou was married in California in 1926. His wife watches most of his races. They have two children, Louis Jr., 6, and Young, six months. Like her husband, Mrs. Meyer regards racing as a business, and Lou has made a profitable one. He has dragged down about $200,000 in race earnings since he drove in his first Indianapolis event in 1927. MEYER is a fatalist. He was racing on the boards at Atlanta, Ga., when Ray Keith was killed just a few weeks after winning the Indianapolis crown. Meyer's and several other cars were wrecked. Lou spilled during practice at the Ascot track in Los Angeles in 1931, breaking his shoulder and several ribs. Preparing for the Vanderbilt Cup race at the new Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island where you get paid off. So many things can happen to a car if you're running full speed without reserve. Then, just for the glory of qualifying fast, you're out of the big show. So I play it safe before the race—and run for the money. That's exactly what Louis Meyer is—a money driver.

What is "The Low-Price Field"?

YOU hear a lot about "the low-price field" these days. A good many cars claim to be in it. So whenever the low-price field is mentioned, remember: Until Ford came, no average American could own a car. Today all Ford prices are still low—with the prices of the 60-horsepower Ford V-8 $30 to $60 lower than the prices of any other car of comparable size. But with Ford, "low price" doesn't merely mean low figures on the price tag. It means much more. It means low prices and low costs all the car's long life. Low prices for service—for parts—and, above all, for operation. Both Ford V-8 engine sizes are economical to operate. The 85-horsepower gives greater gasoline mileage this year than ever, and the 60-horsepower delivers the highest mileage in Ford history. Private owners, cab companies, fleet operators all report that the "60" averages from 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline. Check and see how much Ford saves you.

"Music in the Home"

To develop musical talent and to stimulate musical culture are two invaluable ingredients and
"Music in the Home" are channels through which blessed legacy may be shared. "Come Before His presence with singing,"
Psalm 100.

Mrs. Lee Galley was principal speaker on "Music in the Home" for the entertainment of Child Study club No. 2, who enjoyed a delightful one o'clock luncheon in the home of the president, Mrs.
Saule Perlestein, Thursday afternoon.

Tables were daintily laid with lovely cloths, and centered with gray summer flowers.
Each plate was marked with miniature pictures, and the covered dish affair consisted of three delicious courses.

Mrs. Roy McCleskey opened the program and introduced Mrs. Galley, who not only is an accomplished musician but a poet, and clever impersonator, as was demonstrated at a recent City council banquet. The many points of music in the home and its decided influence were beautifully stressed by the speaker. As her address reached a climax, Mrs. F. E. Jacobs district president of Parent-Teacher association, assumed duties for the installation ceremony, formally introducing as officers for the coming year president, Mrs. Z. B.

SAFEST STOPPING

ANY CAR EVER HAD... ANOTHER No. 1 FEATURE OF AMERICA'S No. 1 CARS

"Best hydraulics I ever saw!" Zipping along at 40, Bill Burgess steps lightly on the brake pedal as the No. 1 Car crosses a line on the by Hudson bring the car to a stop in record time. "Measure it," says the dealer. "Wow!

Only 69 feet, 7 inches... less than half the distance legally allowed!"

"Now disconnect those hydraulics!" And back they go over the same route, for a special test with hydraulics purposely cut off. What!
No brakes at all? Wait and see. Again, as they come to the line, Bill puts his foot down ... and again, a quick, smooth stop. The same foot pedal did the trick. No fumbling for the emergency brake!

3 "Three separate braking systems!" Only
Hudson and Terraplane have brakes like

AFRAID to Love

By M. J. WHITE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOAN HARRITT, heroine, secretary to John Henry.
JOHN HENDRY, mining investment head.
BOB ANDREWS, Hendry's junior partner and Joan's fiance.
SYBIL HENDRY, Hendry's sister and Joan's rival in love.
PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother.
DOROTHY STARKIE, Joan's childhood friend.
CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

Yesterday Dorothy retrace Joan from a second attempt to lay her fall story to face Mr. Hendry that night.

CHAPTER XXII
 AS Joan sped the four short blocks to Mr. Hendry's white cottage, the stars gleamed brightly in a cloudless sky, lighting the path before her. There was a glad song in her heart, and for the first time in ten years, a bright hope for the future.

If Mr. Hendry would believe her! Somehow she felt that he would. She would stand up before him, honest and unafraid, and tell him everything. She would make him believe in her father as she believed in him.

Ahead of her, the little white house stood out brightly in the moonlight. She saw a light in the front windows—in the living room, that would be. Mr. Hendry was still up, therefore, reading, or smoking one last cigar before retiring. He would be astonished to see her burst in upon him at this hour, but he would not say so.

At the inn, the steeple clock began to strike the midnight hour, and she hastened her steps. At any moment now, that light in the living room might be dimmed, to reappear again upstairs. In that event, she would have to postpone her mission until the morning.

She dreaded that. There was still the chance that Sybil might tell the story first. That would paint quite a different picture. Joan would be on the defensive then, admitting, apologizing, justifying. Mr. Hendry's eyes would be stern with disappointment because she had been a coward.

At last she was at the house, running up the steps to the porch. Her heart pounded with thunderous quickened beats, and she stood still a moment to catch one long, strengthening breath. She assured herself that there was no need for fear now.

But she was afraid. For no reason at all, she suddenly felt herself caught in a swift panic of dread, and she stood there, trembling from head to foot, and her knees threatened no longer to hold her weight. Why was she so horribly afraid now, when it had seemed so simple a few moments before?

She leaned against the pillar of the porch, steadying herself. Cold chills possessed her, and her throat was dry. To save her very life, she could have uttered no word at the moment.

Only a second Joan stood there, yet it seemed a vague eternity, a second suddenly suspended indefinitely with the infinite.

She struggled to pull her senses together, to throw off this unreasonable, overwhelming dread. She forced her thoughts into common-place channels, reminding herself of her mission, and the hope it held.

She coughed lightly, taking new assurance from the simple sound. She squared her shoulders and walked across the porch, enjoying the noise her steps made. How foolish, to have felt so fearful!

She pressed the bell quickly, and listened as it echoed and re-echoed through the silent house. There was no answering note.

Perhaps Mr. Hendry had dozed for the moment. Abraham, she recalled, went out on Thursday evenings.

She rang the bell again, longer this time. Still within the house silence reigned. She listened intently. Surely the sound must have awakened Mr. Hendry; his hearing was exceptionally keen.

For the third time, she rang the bell, holding her finger on the button. Soon the sound would awaken the entire neighborhood, she thought. Mr. Hendry must certainly have heard it, if he were inside.

SHE started. Perhaps he was not home yet; perhaps he was still down at the inn, sipping another brandy and soda in solitude! Why hadn't she thought to phone there first and learn if he had left?

It was not too late, then. She might still catch him at the inn. Or she could wait. She could sit right here on the doorstep and the fingers were almost stiffened.

"Mr. Hendry!" she called in a hoarse, rasping whisper. "Mr. Hendry! Answer me, for God's sake!" She shook his shoulders roughly, trying to bring back some semblance of life. And as she did so, she glanced behind him. The tip of a knife protruded from between his shoulders; the back of the chair was stained a dull, deep red.

Was he ill? A sudden stroke... a shock. She rushed over to his side, felt his hand quickly. And then, in a flash, she knew the reason for the wild fear that had engulfed her a few moments before. She caught her breath violently, choked the cry that swelled up in her throat and would have strangled her. His hand was cold and clammy, and the fingers were almost stiffened.

"Mr. Hendry!" she called again. Still he did not move. He is intoxicated, she thought, and wondered what to do about it. There would be no point in talking to him tonight. She felt vaguely disappointed. She had never thought of him—like this. She was sorry to have intruded. Perhaps Mr. Hendry had his secrets, too.

But why did he sit there so stonily, staring at her in that vacant, frightening way? Was he ill? A sudden stroke... a shock. She rushed over to his side, felt his hand quickly. And then, in a flash, she knew the reason for the wild fear that had engulfed her a few moments before. She caught her breath violently, choked the cry that swelled up in her throat and would have strangled her. His hand was cold and clammy, and the fingers were almost stiffened.

She felt vaguely disappointed. She had never thought of him—like this. She was sorry to have intruded. Perhaps Mr. Hendry had his secrets, too.

He liked the shades up, he said. So the light in the window could shine out. But perhaps tonight—

Joan caught her breath, remembering that tonight there was a reason for drawing the shades. Tonight Mr. Hendry carried $40,000 in his pocket!

She felt a quick new fear. Suppose something had happened—

She knelt down on the floor of the porch, trying to see into the room through the half-inch space below the shade. She peered intently, trying to accustom her eyes to the shadows along the floor. Slowly things took form—she saw the carpet, the legs of the secretary, an easy chair—yes, there were two large, black-shod feet. Mr. Hendry was at home then!

She stood up quickly. Perhaps he had taken sick, all alone in his house. Perhaps he had had one brandy too much.

She went back and tried the door. It was unlatched. Without hesitating, she went inside, shutting it behind her. She walked across the hall and into the living room.

"Mr. Hendry!" she called softly. She saw him, sitting at his desk, staring dully at her. His head rested on the back of his chair, as if he were too tired to hold it erect. Something in his attitude frightened her.

FASTER AND FASTER

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 WASHINGTON—Few men in Franklin D. Roosevelt's position would have gone merrily off on a two-week fishing trip. It takes a peculiar mental and psychological makeup, and an unusual imperviousness to worry. This fishing trip is of a piece with the gay, self-confident air the President has persistently exhibited since March 4, 1933. His critics call it "irresponsibility." Call it what you like, Roosevelt—aside from the fact that he likes vacationing, fishing and sailing—has a sense of strategy which tells him his position will be strengthened rather than weakened if he allows Congress to stew in its own juices.

The fight of his life over the Supreme Court plan nears its critical days. Congress is more dangerously rebellious than ever before as one of the century's great issues and many other big ones hang in the balance. The whole administration program is sidetracked. Nearly everyone is worried about price inflation threats and budget problems. The economy issue is up in a big way.

So what? So Mr. Roosevelt is playing with the fishes out on the Gulf.

HE leaves Washington to those opponents who believe they can make hay in his absence; to those opponents who are confused or exasperated by his nonchalance and obvious refusal to be worried or scared; to those friends who wish their heads and complain that things always go from bad to worse when he leaves town like this; to those other friends who laugh and say it just demonstrates

Drys Force Vote On Stricter Control

By United Press
 AUSTIN, May 15.—Sweeping aside stubborn opposition, Texas Senators from dry territory forced a final favorable vote, today on a stricter liquor control bill. The amended measure will have to go back to the house next week.

Sen. Clint C. Small, of Amarillo, sponsor of the bill, said no attempt would be made to get the house to accept, the senate changes in order that the bill may be drawn into a conference committee for re-writing.

THE WEAKNESS OF ESAU

Text: Genesis 25:27-34; 27:41-45

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

THE story of Esau and Jacob has an ancient setting, with some references that are not particularly clear, but the main elements of the story, especially its value for instruction in peace, honor, and righteousness today, are very clearly marked.

Isaac had two boys, Esau and Jacob. Esau was a skillful hunter, an irresponsible man who liked to go chasing adventure, whereas Jacob was a quiet man, dwelling in tents, concerned more about his herd and about his prosperity than about his own ease or indulgence.

Jacob had plenty to eat, and he had cooked some savory potage, when Esau came from the field, faint and hungry. Esau said to Jacob, "Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red potage, for I am faint." It seemed a very simple request, but Jacob envied Esau, his elder brother, and said, "First sell me thy birthright."

The story, you see, has an old-fashioned setting. We do not talk like that today, and we do not quite understand how a birthright could be upset by so simple a transaction.

Esau's reasoning was very simple and very easy. What use was his birthright when he was tired to the point of death? But Jacob was very exacting. He did not want any mere promises; what he wanted was a sworn agreement. So Jacob gave Esau some potage, and Esau gave rights to Jacob.

NATURALLY, Esau hated Jacob, and planned to kill him, but their mother heard of this and warned Jacob. Jacob had to escape for his life, finding refuge with an uncle. Here he got into troubles of his own.

It is not a pleasant story, one that is a very fine commentary on the teaching that a man should be his brother's keeper. Its lesson is very largely negative; its warning against weakness and greed.

One would not wish to heap up either of these brothers a good example to youth. Warning, rather, is against weakness that destroys the chances of success, and against the greedy and ambitious spirit that makes ignoble and unwholesome the success that is won.

If we were to judge Jacob by this incident, he would be a sorry figure, unworthy of the sermons that have been preached about him. But, as there were better elements in Esau, in spite of his greed, weakness and instability, so Jacob had qualities that were to be judged by his faults.

He was capable of repentance; he had a foundation of faith, and he had what Esau lacked, some elements of stability which civilizations can be built upon.

THE MOTHS

The moth, its eggs, all life and germs are destroyed in proper dry cleaning. Then, if put in Moth-Seal Bags, your garments, whether they be fur, fur-trimmed, wool or silk, will be safe and ready to use when needed. Moth-Seal Bags are only 10c each with garments cleaned to be put away.

NO BETTER IN U. S. A.
 Our dry cleaning is not only as good as the best in the U. S. A., but it is far superior to 75% of all done. We could not make this statement without fear of contradiction if it were not for the following facts:
 For over 15 years we have maintained an active membership in our National Institute and Research Laboratories, located in Washington, D. C., and always keep our equipment as well as our processes and methods up to the best as determined by their constant research and comparative tests.
COLD STORAGE FOR FURS
 Furs, if properly dry cleaned, put in Moth-Seal Bags, and kept out of the sun or other hot places, will be safe, and will last as long as if put in cold storage. This method affords you the advantage of having a clean garment when you are ready to use it, and the cost is the same or less, according to the length of the coat. We will be glad to send them to a Certified Cold Storage company if your prefer. Their seal and tag will be your evidence of cold storage.
 We want to do your knitted garments, hats, rugs, leather goods, etc.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS - TEXANS
 WILL H. MAYES, AUSTIN, TEXAS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. Relate the historical incidents in regard to the "Cave of Saint Joseph of Alescar" (Miranda's Cave).

A. Bernardo de Miranda, a lieutenant of the province of Texas in February, 1736, with orders from the governor, and accompanied by a few citizens and soldiers, went in search of the fabled riches to the northwest of San Antonio. He reported finding a cave on Almagre Hill, near Honey Creek, a tributary of the Llano, immeasurably rich in minerals, and sent a few pounds of ore to Mexico to support his claim. His report lacked satisfactory confirmation and his request for a presidio and financial aid was at first refused, though finally considered favorably, but was never followed up for some or no reason.

Q. What Texas historian located Miranda's Cave in 1907 and with what result?

A. Dr. H. E. Bolton that year identified "Boyd Shaft," near Honey Creek, Llano county, as the mine opened by Miranda, and his report created much temporary excitement resulting in organization of the Los Almagre Mining Company which leased 1,700 hundred acres around "Boyd Shaft," but no worthwhile development was done.

Q. What county leads in crude oil production in Texas?

A. According to the report of the State Comptroller for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1935, Gregg county led with $0,765,183 barrels. Rock county following with 59,248,306 barrels.

Q. How many and what constitutions have been adopted by the people of Texas?

A. Five: In 1836, 1845, 1866, 1869 and 1876. That of 1866 was nullified by the Federal Government before any of its provisions could be made effective. The present constitution of 1876 has been amended so frequently and so radically that original provisions are scarcely recognizable.

Astaire and Rogers In Biggest Triumph At Arcadia Theatre

High Comedy, Sparkling Romance, Lavish Production, Terpsichorean Novelties, Outstanding Musical Hits, a Giant Cast of Funmakers and Exponents of Feminine Pulchritude, Conduce to a Rousing Entertainment.

Singing, dancing and romancing their way more securely into the hearts of millions of theatergoers, America's dancing favorites, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, are co-starring once more in their gayest and most spectacular screen hit, "Shall We Dance."

The stars, who hold undisputed rank as the most popular team on the screen, are said to break completely away from the type of characterizations they have given in the past and to offer a brand new kind of musical film. No longer portraying struggling aspirants for fame, both appear as "tops" in their respective fields, Astaire as a famous ballet dancer, Miss Rogers as an equally famous revue artist.

The engine room solo dance by Astaire to the music of "Slap that Bass" and has, besides accompaniment by the rhythm of machinery, "hot" swing music by a colored crew which highlights chords on a bass viol. The ballet solo number by Astaire is a combination of tap and toe dancing.

New Features of Frigidaire Are Proof of Perfection

"Come in and see the proof" is the heading on an advertisement in The Times today calling attention of the public to the new features perfected in the Frigidaire, handled and distributed in Eastland county by J. S. Reynolds of the Reynolds Electric company.

The new "Super-Duty" Frigidaire is equipped with the Meter-Miser and is guaranteed to give greater performance at less cost. Reynolds is very active in the mechanical refrigeration field and has placed many boxes in the territory, in addition to several large refrigeration plants.

The public is invited to make a thorough investigation of the new Super-Duty Frigidaire with the Meter-Miser. There are a number of boxes on the floor of the Reynolds Electric company store on South Commerce street.

New Equipment Put In By Dry Cleaners

A larger boiler and an automatic return system have been recently installed by the Ranger Dry Cleaners. The return system automatically puts the condensation and make-up water from the city lines into the boiler by means of a mercurial switch, which also rings a bell in case of low water or when the system fails to work.

The larger boiler was necessary because of the amount of steam required to operate the recently-installed still. The still is the latest and best-known method of reclaiming the cleaning naphtha and is a refreshing process which makes the naphtha like new again.

Another novel stunt is Fred's dance with twenty girls, each masked as Ginger Rogers. Ginger herself enters this dance. Ginger's songs include, "They All Laughed." Besides her dances and duets with Fred, she dances a number with a new partner, Pete Theodore.

14-Year-Old Oats Ground in Ranger

Scott Lipe, who lives near Ranger, brought in some oats that have been in his possession for 14 years, and had it ground at the A. J. Ratliff feed store.

The oats were grown by Lipe's deceased father, and were harvested 14 years ago, but still were in good condition.

A few gallons of the oats were kept by Lipe, who said he wanted to save a little of the seed as a keepsake, as it had already been in the possession of the family for many years and he wanted to keep it at least 14 years more.

Chute Pioneer In Navy Is Unsung

By United Press

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—W. M. Cole, who in 1924 was a gunner in the United States Navy, was the first of all of Uncle Sam's wing-sailors to save his life by use of a parachute—but even at that time he was unable to claim charter membership in the famed Caterpillar Club.

Records here reveal that it was on October 16, 1924, while he was flying alone in a navy plane—the records do not record the type—something went wrong. Cole was thrown or jumped out of the records are very—and luckily for him he was on his back one of the then known seen packs containing a parachute. Coles plunged downward and residents of Coronado watched horror-stricken.

Suddenly a big, white cloud seemed to open above the falling pilot and Coles floated to safety. But while Cole made naval history with that first parachute jump, he was just a little more than four years late. The first record jump of any kind was made in July 21, 1919, and to Henry Wacker and John Boettler, of Chicago, goes the palm for being the charter members of the Caterpillar Club.

Even the army got in ahead of the navy in the matter of membership in the Caterpillar Club for it was on October 20, 1922, that Lieut. Harold H. Harris saved his life by using his parachute to escape from a disabled plane over Cook Field.

In the navy ranks, J. F. Coburn, machinist mate, made the second life-saving leap from a disabled plane, when he "bailed out" over Coronado on July 14, 1926, and then three years later the first commissioned officer saved his life with a chute when Lieut. O. T. Darling floated safely to earth here.

But navy officials are unqualified in their statements that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh probably is the Star Caterpillar of them all. It was nearly 11 years ago that Lindbergh started his history-making trans-Atlantic trip from San Diego, going by way of St. Louis and New York, but before that time he had made four life-saving jumps from crippled planes in the relatively short time between March, 1925, and November, 1926.

It was March 5, 1925, while Lindbergh was still a cadet in the Army Air Corps school at Kelly Field, Texas, that he made his first leap. On June 2, 1925, after he had become a reserve lieutenant, Lindbergh made his second jump, this time at St. Louis. On Sept. 16, 1926, over Ottawa, Ill., he took to the 'chute again and set jump, was on Nov. 3 over Jopell, Ill.

tor of the Investment Banker's Conference in Washington, D. C., who spoke at a convention of the Texas group of the conference here.

Fulton said that dealers in municipal securities, because of political power would not come under the Securities and Exchange Act, and warned that the exchange commission was already investigating in this direction.

Fulton asked that they co-operate with the commission. A system of self government for investment bankers under the Securities Act was being devised by the commission, Fulton said.

Much Gasoline Escaped Taxation During Past Year

WASHINGTON.—Approximately 900,000,000 gallons of gasoline on which no taxes were paid were used in 36 states last year. Under the laws of these states, gasoline used for non-highway purposes is exempted from taxation. Approximately $37,000,000 was lost to the states in tax revenue.

In many states, investigations have disclosed, gasoline tax refunds have developed into a racket, with many millions of gallons of gasoline unfairly escaping taxation. It is believed that, on an average, as many as half of gasoline tax refund claims are unjustified. A dozen states have eliminated gasoline tax refund entirely, finding that such procedure is the most effective way to foil the tax dodgers and to prevent the loss of millions of dollars in revenue.

Senate bills introduced, 512; sent to House, 90; passed both houses, signed by Governor, 80; passed both houses, sent to Governor, 29; vetoed by Governor, 3; dead, 90. The rest were in committee, pending second or third reading, on the table subject to call or in conference committee.

Many hundreds of the House and Senate bills applied only to local areas, towns, counties and districts. They were, in most cases, passed without opposition. Few highly controversial bills have gotten through either house this session.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Here's a conservation idea that wouldn't need study to win the support of school children: a two-week vacation each spring when Texas wildflowers are in bloom.

That is a suggestion by Mrs. J. L. Mimms of Fort Worth, well-known conservationist. She suggested that the vacation begin sometime between April 19 and 26 because "that's when Texas wildflowers are blooming their most gorgeous colors."

Mrs. Mimms also suggested that somebody open a "pilgrimage bureau" to direct visitors—and natives—to the places where flowers are so beautiful. Most persons seeking the sites of beautiful wildflowers fail to go to the right places, she said.

Oh yes—there was an added suggestion regarding the two-week spring vacation for school children to enjoy "Texas in bloom." The two weeks would be added on the regular term before it ended for the summer!

WORLD'S CHAMPION BULLDOGGER TO BE IN CHARGE; WILL BULLDOG STEERS FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Adequate Lights, Modern Rodeo Chutes and a Good Rodeo Field Program Assures You of One of the Best Rodeos You Have Ever Attended.

The greatest rodeo ever attempted nearer than Fort Worth will be staged at Ranger Wednesday night, under the best lighting conditions on any rodeo field in the state. Big 1500 watt lights, making a total wattage of 25,500, will be directed upon the field, where everything that happens can be seen as well as in daylight.

Shorty Ricker, world's champion steer bulldogger, will be chairman of the rodeo events and will also bulldog steers for the entertainment of the visitors. Ricker's experience as a performer in some of the world's largest rodeos, including Madison Square Garden, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Pendleton, Ore., make him well versed on rodeo performances and assures a top-notch entertainment from start to finish.

The rodeo will start with a parade of performers, headed by Mayor Hall Walker of Ranger and the Ranger High School Band, which will proceed through the principal business section of Ranger and then return to the lighted rodeo grounds, where the performance will be staged.

Ricker, and the special rodeo committee, composed of some of the leading men of Ranger, have worked out a splendid rodeo, with performers of note scheduled to appear at the one-night engagement. This rodeo is the first night rodeo ever held in Ranger, and new chutes have been erected, especially designed to speed up the performances, so there will be no waits between events.

After the parade the grand entry, steer riding will start things off with a bang, and not a dull moment will be seen from then until the final event, which will be steer bulldogging by Shorty Ricker, in person.

Trick roping by Ricker and Duke Purdham, famous Stephenville roper, will also be on the program, which includes two sections of steer riding, two sections of barrel races for ladies.

Contestants in the event, which is being held in connection with the big Ranger Trades Day, must be registered by 7 p. m. Wednesday night, May 19, in order to be assured places in the events they wish to enter.

An entry fee of $2 is to be made for steer riding, and $3 for calf roping or wild cow milking. If enough bronc riders are registered they will contest, otherwise mount money will be paid.

Remember the big rodeo will start promptly at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, May 19, at Ranger, and make your plans so you can be present, for it may be the biggest event of its kind you will be able to attend this year.

"December" and "May" on Court Calendar

The December-May marriage of 14 years ago that united young Burton Tucker (above) then 16-year-old grocer's clerk, and his wealthy, 48-year-old great-aunt, pounded troublously on the matrimonial rocks in New York in a hearing of charges of abandonment brought by Mrs. Tucker (right), the former Mrs. Susan Simpson. Her $800,000 fortune nearly gone, she said Tucker had left her and their three children nearly destitute. Both are pictured at court.

Mines to Boom In Black Hills

By United Press
 DEADWOOD, S. D.—Advancing prices of non-precious minerals has stimulated mining activities in the Black Hills.

The newly formed Dakota Tin and Gold company has announced purchase of electric power equipment. Installation already has begun.

A crew of men is employed in developing the tin property near Tinton, 18 miles from here. Assays of the mine ore run at the School of Mines show a high percentage of tin.

Another tin property, near Tinton, formerly the Black Hills Tin Mining Co., has been leased by the Fansteel corporation of Chicago and is in operation. The company plans to mine amblygonite, tantalite and tantalum.

Sixty-three car loads of bentonite were shipped out of Belle Fourche during March to various points in the United States. Eight cars went to foreign countries.

Large quantities of bentonite are used by the government in grouting newly constructed lake dams. After core drilling at the base of the dam, the cores are filled with bentonite. When it becomes wet, it expands greatly and effectively seals the holes, preventing seepage. Bentonite has a variety of other uses from face powder to oil well drilling. Iron prospecting is being carried on extensively throughout the area.

There are known to be deposits of hematite ore in the foothills, mineralogists say. M. J. Scanlon, Hermosa, has displayed some samples which contained 70 per cent iron. He has located a deposit near Hermosa which contains a bed of hematite iron ore 30 feet thick.

COW'S MEMORY LONG

 LONDON—Five years ago C. Dowson, of Rudstone, sold a cow to a farmer at Burtain Agnes, five miles away, and sent it by road to his new home. The other day the cow turned up again in Dowson's farmyard, and when he opened the barn door it went straight to the stall it occupied five years ago.

It's usually the bride's mother who sheds a few tears at a wedding. But at one of London's most fashionable nuptial affairs it was this young man, completely unimpressed and ungratified by the fact that he was a page boy, surrounded by bridesmaids lovely in lace and trailing tulle. He took one look down the aisle, turned toward the cameraman and burst into tears.

As Voters Have Come Shy About New Amendments

By United Press
 AUSTIN.—Texas voters are becoming amendment-shy. Changes in the state constitution have turned out differently from the way people expected, and were led to believe, that there may be some difficulty in getting them to vote on this summer.

The extended session of the legislature is not helping the cause. A constitutional amendment permitting a session of 120 days was adopted by the people in a referendum that it do away with the frequent sessions.

At the 120 days in which to legislate in an orderly manner and we will finish the job at coming back," the legislature told the people when that amendment was submitted.

There have been as many speculations since. At the end of 120 days legislation is no nearer than it used to be in the when 60 days was the time allowed for a session.

Legislation for better pay for legislators went with the long session. The voters heeded it, allowing $10 a day instead of $5. The informed men will serve at a higher pay, was the argument. The district must judge for itself its legislative representatives improved over the $5 a day era. Despite the higher pay it is noticeable that the legislatures continue to be made up largely of young lawyers or college students and old men who

Against Ocean 'Stunt' Flights

Accidents that befall pilots on "unnecessary" transoceanic flights were denounced by Col. J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce, as impediments in developing regular inter-continent commercial schedules. Colonel Johnson, shown above in a recent photo, included Dick Merrill's London hop for the coronation and Amelia Earhart's recent world flight in the list of "stunt" flights he would forbid.

First Protestant Church In Texas Is Given Marker

By United Press
 CLARKSVILLE, Texas.—A centennial marker has been placed in Old Shiloh cemetery, marking the spot where the first Protestant church was formed in Texas, 100 years ago.

In 1833, under the leadership of the Rev. Milton Ezell, pioneering Presbyterian missionary, a band of settlers organized to begin worship in what later grew into the First Presbyterian church. This church, on a basis of continuous existence, is generally known as the oldest Protestant organization in Texas.

The group that first met under a giant oak tree in the Shiloh community included several names familiar to all students of Texas history.

One was Albert Hamilton Latimer, signer of the Texas Declaration of Independence. He, his wife and his father, James Latimer, with George and Margaret Bagby, and Finley and Sallie Moore, were among the church's first members. Albert Latimer, James Latimer and George Bagby were the presiding elders.

The church grew in membership. In 1840, however, the Shiloh community began to decline. It eventually lost its identity and now the cemetery with its moss-covered gravestones is all that is left.

The church was moved in 1840 to Clarksville and consolidated with one here. A frame structure was erected and in 1905 plans for the present modern church building were made.

Housing Firemen Is City's Problem

By United Press
 PORT ARTHUR, Texas.—Port Arthur has a problem on its hands.

On June 9, 9 and 10, 2,500 "visiting firemen" will be here. The occasion is a state convention of the Firemen's and Fire Marshall's association.

The problem is not where to take them or what to show them, but where to put them.

R. E. McInnis, secretary of the junior chamber of commerce, has been toying with this problem since he learned that hotel accommodations for the three-day period will be limited to 250.

"That leaves more than 2,000 delegates to be housed," McInnis said. "After discussing the housing problem, it was decided by a committee composed of Jasper George, E. E. Fondren, Harvey Day, Fire Marshal Jake Freeman and myself to set a standard of rates for accommodations of delegates in private homes."

In accordance with this decision it was agreed to set a price of $2 a day for a single room and $3.50 a day for a double room.

Response to a call for cooperation in housing delegates by local housewives and home owners was "satisfactory," McInnis reported.

In the meantime "the fire-house boys" are getting ready. They report there will be a "hot time" and they don't mean from fires, either.

Campers Warned Of Outdoor Danger

AUSTIN, Tex.—As the summer season approaches, a word of warning is timely to prospective campers, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, summer vacationists, fishermen, and others who enjoy getting out into the open, relative to the possible dangers that may be encountered from the standpoint of contracting infection under the changed environment. This is especially true of diseases that may be transmitted through food and water supplies.

Typhoid fever is a disease the amount of which is greatest, as a rule, where there is the least sanitation. It is an unnecessary and preventable disease. It is spread from person to person by water, milk, fingers, flies and food. Every case is contracted by taking into the mouth some substance contaminated with typhoid organisms, and these occur only in nature in the bowel and bladder discharges of persons sick with typhoid or from carriers, persons who have had typhoid and who after recovery still harbor the germs in their systems.

Persons planning a vacation or trip where sanitation may not be rigidly enforced or where food handlers are not regularly examined should protect themselves against this disease by being vaccinated. Three inoculations with typhoid vaccine, a week apart, are necessary to secure protection against this disease and the immunity established is good for two years. The purity of water or milk cannot be judged by looking at it. Play safe and have your doctor protect you.

Britons are queer people who bar strip-tease artists and demand that ambassadors reveal their legs.

Each Session Has Its Catch Phrases

By United Press
 AUSTIN.—Each session of a Texas legislature produces an expression or phrase that becomes an Austin colloquialism.

Last session the popular expression was "to hold an umbrella." The term originated in a description of the efforts of some members of the legislature to shelter their local industries from taxes.

Sen. R. A. Weinert, Seguin, has coined the expression at this session that is having most vogue.

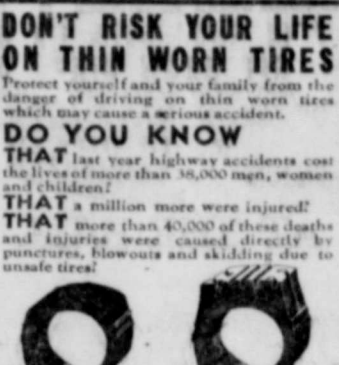

Weinert listened impatiently to an appeal to stand by the Governor's veto and amend the private motor carriers' bill.

Finally Weinert exploded: "Are you men or mornons? Don't you realize," he asked, "that if the bill is vetoed there is nothing left to amend?"

The first query of men vs. mornons caught popular fancy. It has been repeated in numerous debates.

Hollywood Stars Take Up the Hula To Retain Figures

By United Press
HOLLYWOOD.—Many of Hollywood's film beauties are becoming Hula dance experts but only in the privacy of their bedrooms and gymnasiums.

under heavy fire from a new school of thought.
Diet, sleep and the right kind of exercise is the health prescription of Dr. Maurice Le Bell, a young man who has conditioned more than 3,000 screen actresses and actors during the past ten years.
Two of Le Bell's current pupils are Judith Barrett and Lynn Gilbert, leading ladies for Universal. Both have clauses in their contracts forbidding them either to lose or gain an ounce over or under their normal weight. Judith weighs 107 and Lynn, 117.
For his exercises, Dr. Le Bell has borrowed freely from the Hawaiian and Balinese women with the hula dance as a basis.

"The smooth undulating movements of the hula round out the body and make the tissues slim and pliable," he said. "Fat seems to melt off with little effort. Other exercises and dances, with their abrupt violent movements, built up body tissues, resulting in tough, bulky and muscular tissues. I think it is better to prescribe mild and graceful exercises, done with the body and muscles relaxed and passive."
Lots of sleep, regular hours of work and plenty of rest are part of the schedule and his pupils report, he said. As for diet, he urged vegetables with rebuilding properties, red meat, a certain amount of sweets and a curb on popular juice diets.

"In these high-tension days of long, grueling shooting schedules, film players neither can look nor act their best on empty stomachs," he said.
To help his patients keep healthy, the doctor includes in the diet Irish moss from off the coast of Ireland, Chinese zhuarab, grown at the foot of the Himalaya mountains, and Hawaiian papaya.
Daily setting up calisthenics are part of the schedule and his pupils

Declares Lincoln Liked to Rest Axe And Tell Stories

By United Press
PUEBLO, Col.—Guy Wringe, 96-year-old Pueblo pensioner, gets his chief enjoyment from recalling the days when he split rails with Abraham Lincoln and knew Mark Twain and John D. Rockefeller.

Lincoln, according to Wringe was a handy man with the axe, but given to stopping his labors to tell stories.
"He would be working away," Wringe relates, "and all of a sudden, he would say, 'that reminds me,' and then he would begin telling some story he had thought of. He was a great one to tell tales."
He split rails with Lincoln in an Illinois cedar swamp.
Wringe was acquainted with John D. Rockefeller, Sr., when the latter was getting his start in the oil business in Illinois.
Wringe credits Rockefeller with having said, when asked on a certain occasion what should be done, "Well, we must either hang together or hang separately."
Mark Twain, the novelist, was a reporter on a Virginia City newspaper when Wringe knew him.
Wringe tells that Twain replied to the father of a prominent family whose daughter he had been courting when asked about his family background:
"Ask the editor, I've lied for him for three years, and now he can lie for me."
The 96-year-old pensioner missed going to the Civil War by six days. The regiment to which he had been assigned departed six days earlier than had been announced. He came to Colorado in 1870 and has lived here since that time. For many years he was a prospector and miner in Leadville, Victor and Cripple Creek.

Up to Her Chin in Whiskers

By United Press
MOSCOW.—The spring plan of the Soviet Union as set by the Council of People's Commissars calls for the sowing of a total of 234,045,000 acres, of which the major portion is in five farm lands.
The Councils of Peoples' Commissars of the union and autonomous republics, provincial committees and regional commissariats have been ordered to supply sowing plans to state farm machine and tractors stations, collective farms and individual peasant during February.
Of the total area to be sown, 25,637,900 acres are in farms, 146,788,250 acres in collective farms and 1,956,750 in individual farms. Additionally, 200,000 acres of virgin soil in northern provinces will be sown.
More than 87,000,000 acres are sown to selected grain and 7,000,000 to sunflower seed, 2,687,500 acres to selected potatoes. Each state and collective farm is ordered to set a fixed percentage for the sowing of seeds.
Specific directions are given to crops which flourish best, as sugar beets in sugar beet and cotton in cotton areas.
Large quantities of fertilizers are being delivered to the farms this spring.

Hiding her light under a bushel of whiskers, Bette Davis showed film folk at a recent Santa Monica costume party how the social lion should be hoarded in its own den. Clever hiding place, but explaining her real identity probably had Bette in up to her chin all evening.

Claim Is Made On 1862 State Warrant

By United Press
AUSTIN.—A belated effort is being made to get payment for a state warrant issued in 1862. Frank Carter, Weatherford, received it from his father, who, in turn, accepted it as payment for purchases by frontier Rangers.
Sen. J. Manley Head, Stephenville, said he would present the claim to conferees working out a bill to pay numerous claims against the state, including refunds of franchise taxes paid in error.

Negro Keeps "Scratchin'" On Farm Where He Found $6624 In Gold, But Buys Mule

CHESTER, S. C.—Tobin Crank, backwoods negro of Chester county, S. C., who swung an axe and struck it rich, "ain't gwine let that six thousand' dolluhs go tuh mah had. Ah's gwine to keep on scratchin'."

Tobin, a better financier than he is an axeman, was cutting stovewood when his axe sunk into the ground with a metallic clink. Tobin "didn't pay no mind," but kept on swinging. Three times his axe missed its mark and plowed into the earth. But the third time a gold coin flew up.

"Ah was so supprised ah jest didn't do nuthin' at fust. Then ah started diggin' sho nuf. Boss man, they was $6,624 right there in an ole iron pot. Ah said to myself, 'Boy, you is rich.'"

"Ah don't tell nobody, not a soul, about that right then. Ah was kinda scared," he said. "Ah jus' got a sugah sack and bag all that gold and hide it unto mawnin'. Then ah tell my brother Matthew. But ah don' sleep much. Ah jus' have golden dreams."

Tobin has already bought a $350 mule so he can keep on "scratchin'."

His brother, Matthew, appears to be the business head of the family.

"Boss man, dey is tryin' to sell us everything from automobiles to 'lectric washin' machines. We ain't got 'lectricity and we don' need no washin' machine," Matthew said.

"Fore we git this money, my friends, maybe two or three, they jes' look north when ah asks 'em for a loan. But now they is all lookin' south. Yassuh."

"Boss man," ah says, 'what do you do if you jes' find some money? Does you get to keep it?'"

With this Tobin dumped out $6,624 in United States gold coin. Later Judge Yarborough delivered the gold to the People's National Bank here and six hours were spent cleaning and sorting the coins. They consisted of one hundred ninety $20 gold pieces, one hundred thirteen $10 pieces, four $5 pieces, forty-four $2.50 pieces and thirty-seven $1 pieces.

Tobin wasn't sure just how the money got there. Neither was any one else. The property had been owned by Littleton Land, a wealthy and eccentric old white man. He was known to have been a man of considerable wealth, and it was reported after his death that his estate was smaller than it was generally believed to be.

There are no direct descendants of Land. His only child, a son, was killed in the Civil War. Theories that the gold might have been buried when Sherman's army swept through this part of the state in the 60's were scotched when investigation showed dates on the coins range from 1830 to 1881.

"Boss man," Tobin said, "that money belongs to us. That money was on our land. Mister Land he is dead and he didn't leave nobody who could claim it. We's gwine get to keep it."

"That man in Louisville who say he bury the money when he has amnesia... Well, we's still gwine keep it."

Other negroes in the section believe Land buried more gold, and trees on the farm have been uprooted as hunters sought gold among their roots. The old Land ancestral home, now decaying, has been gone over and over by treasure hunters.

Tobin said he thought he would continue to live in his small cabin with his six brothers and his step-mother.

"They's tryin' to sell us plustuh for our house," Tobin, concluded. "We ain't nevah had no plustuh and we ain't gwine buy none."

A Georgia man is slowly turning to marble. Sculptors are alarmed lest this become an "every man his own headstone" trend.

Navy Masters a Long Mass Flight

By United Press
SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Three world records—8,000 miles of over-ocean flying by 200 men in less than 36 hours—are just "routine" hops to the flying sailors of the U. S. Navy.

In three non-stop flights, the first of which took place in January, 1934, the navy has transferred 33 huge patrol bombers from the mainland of the United States to Hawaii.

Through every possible kind of weather those planes have winged a true course, in perfect "V" formation all the way. There were nine planes in the first squadron and 12 each in the last two of the flights. Lt.-Commander Kneffler McGinnis made history when he flew from San Francisco, over 2,300 miles of ocean, non-stop, in 1934. Then, in January, 1937, it was Lt.-Commander W. H. McDade, who led a squadron of 12 planes and 80 men, from San Diego to Pearl Harbor over the 2,553 miles between those points. Again, in April, 1937, it was Lt.-Commander L. A. Pope who made the record breaking flight.

In each instance the planes negotiated the distance in less than 24 hours. McDade's squadron flew the San Diego-Honolulu distance in 21 hours and 48 minutes, and Pope's men clipped 27 minutes from that time.

Not once has the navy injured a man, lost a life, or damaged a plane on one of these hops. "A routine transfer of equipment," Rear Admiral E. J. King, commander of aircraft, base forced designated the two 1937 flights. He was even less communicative when asked concerning the 1934 hop, when he said: "Hawaiian flight? What's that?"

Cat-Tail Lint Is Used For Quilts

SEPTEMBER	$488.53	MARCH	$831.82
OCTOBER	$604.39	APRIL	$716.49
NOVEMBER	$645.28	GR. TOTAL	$7,083.82

THE ABOVE FIGURES REPRESENT THE AMOUNT OF MONEY WE HAVE SPENT IN RANGER DURING THE PAST ELEVEN MONTHS, SINCE JUNE 1, 1936, FOR LABOR AND MATERIALS:

It has been estimated that around $550 worth of laundry business is done in Ranger each week. Of this amount we get just a fraction over one-third. It is also estimated after careful survey that somewhere in the neighborhood of $65 worth of laundry work is sent away from Ranger each week... this much money actually taken out of circulation in Ranger, and the only amount or part that stays in Ranger is the small commission that is paid the driver.

Since we have taken over the Ranger Steam Laundry, which was closed down a year ago, the business has been built up to where there are now ten people working for the company. They earn their bread here... they spend their money here... We pay our taxes here... That helps the schools, and we are glad to have a part in all civic and social affairs for the best interests of the city.

But it is not fair to send laundry work away from your own home laundry people when the matter of only a few cents is involved. Keep your laundry work in Ranger... Give your neighbor and home town people the first chance... Let's spend our money in Ranger... keep our own people in Ranger... and make Ranger the real shopping center of the Oil Belt!!!

This does not include church donations, school and football advertisements, food given to the poor, or the laundry we do for the Ranger nursery. Any advice or co-operation from your department will be appreciated. Our aim is to make Ranger proud of this institution.

Laundry Has Spent Huge Sum Here in Less Than a Year

The Ranger Steam Laundry, in asking the support and cooperation of the people of Ranger in patronizing the home laundry, points out that the company has spent a total of $7,083.82 in Ranger in the past 11 months, since June 1, 1935.

The huge total spent in Ranger does not include church donation, food given to the poor, laundry done for the Ranger nursery project and other donations and contributions made.

The laundry management urges the people to consider these details when patronizing a laundry and to give the work to the local firm, which helps, through payment of taxes, salaries paid, donations and other means, in supporting the town.
