By United Press
Violence and accidents resulted in 14 deaths in Texas during the week-end.

Hercules Anderson, of Houston, and Willie Clark, Orange county farmer, were killed Sunday in an automobile collision near Orange.

Funeral services were held Sunday at Kinney, rural community near Uvalde, for Mrs. William Helbig, Sr., Mrs. Jarrett Sampler, Louise Helbig and Jarrett Sampler, victims of a family shooting Saturday in which Sampler killed his wife, mother-in-law and brother-in-law, and himself was killed by William Helbig, Jr.

R. J. Griffith, oil driller, was killed near Corpus Christi when a pipe from a derrick fell on him.

George Roy Miller, 56, died in Dallas of injuries suffered when an automobile struck him, and Jerry Burns, 48, died of injuries inflicted when a street car hit him.

Sam Jernens, 25, of Humble, died in a Houston hospital of burns caused by a gas explosion as he repaired a pipeline.

Alton Crowson, 25, inmate of the state prison at Huntsville, was stabbed to death Sunday by another prisoner as he sat in the prison chapel watching a motion picture.

Claude Shelley, 58, cafe cook, was killed Sunday by an automobile at Fort Worth.

Charles Tindall of Fort Worth was drowned Sunday in Medina lake near San Antonio.

Killer and Girl He Thrilled Fearfully Waiting for Trial

Obviously not enjoying their prison meal, Lester Brockelhurst, confessed slayer of three men, and his girl companion, Bernice Felton, are pictured here appreciatively moody in the Lonoke county, Ark., jail. Captured near New York City, they were taken to Lonoke where Brockelhurst, a paroled convict, will be tried for the murder of Victor A. Gates, shot when he picked up the hitch-hiking near Little Rock. The girl, thrilled with her companion's exploits, faces accessory charges. Brockelhurst also confessed murders in Fort Worth, and Rockford, Ill.

Case Asking Dissolution of Wets' Injunction Taken Under Advisement

George L. Davenport, judge of 91st district court, Monday took under advisement the case in which commissioners' court asks dissolution of a temporary injunction granted wets which enjoined canvassing of returns in the May 1 election.

Hearing upon the court's motion for dissolution was held in Judge Davenport's court, at the conclusion of which he stated a decision would be rendered "within a few days."

Earl Conner, Jr., criminal district attorney, represented commissioners' court, while attorney for the contestants was Milton Lawrence.

Lawrence represented Eastland, Cisco and Ranger beer wholesalers and retailers who contested the election.

Attorney Lawrence declared the election was illegal because of "improper notices." Testimony was given by County Clerk R. V. Galloway and Deputy Virgil Love that the notices of the election were mailed April 21 to election judges.

Lawrence held that was an improper method as it was not known whether the notices were posted as provided by law.

He called attention of the court to his contention that the issue of prohibition of all liquors was imposed in the May 1 election. He stated that an election in 1901 covered that issue. He took the position that a proper election for prohibition of what are now legalized drinks in the county should have been submitted by a 14 percent issue.

Attorney Conner held that Lawrence's contentions and representations did not warrant a decision in his favor and that the commissioners' court motion for dissolution of the injunction should be sustained.

The hearing of the case upon its merits, when the wets will ask for a permanent injunction and declaration of the election as invalid, will be in June.

TEN CONVICTS MAKE ESCAPE; THREE CAUGHT

By United Press
ANGLETON, Texas, May 24.—Three of 10 long-term convicts, who sneaked past a guard in the moonlight early today at Retrieve prison farm, were captured and returned by officers.

Those captured were John Eugene Jurgeson, 30, serving ninety-nine years from Dallas and Harris counties for robbery with firearms; W. C. Gresham, 31, serving life from Fort Bend county for murder; Louis Sadler, 27, under 25-year sentence from Cass county for robbery.

None of the convicts was armed and they were taken without resistance. Jurgeson and Gresham were captured at East Columbia, 10 miles west of the farm as they sought to cross the Brazos river. Poses of 100, aided by bloodhounds, continued to search the river bottoms for seven other felons.

Sadler was overtaken before he had gone a mile from the prison farm. He was scurried to Angleton, where two other fugitives were believed to have stolen an automobile. Two men, believed convicts, reached West Columbia, where they took a car.

The prisoners fled from a frame dormitory after tearing up the floor and tunnelling under the structure and crawling through barred wire outside.

Watchman O. C. Cleveland said he was unaware of the break until a shot was fired by "Boss" Pittman, another night watchman who saw the men fleeing.

The large-scale break caught 28 guards unawares.

Those still at large included L. R. Giles, 18 years for theft and robbery from Ward, Midland and Stephens counties.

George Barber, under six years sentence from Nolan, Concho and Reagan counties for burglary and robbery with firearms.

STANDARDS OF WAGES, HOURS BEING URGED

By United Press
WASHINGTON, May 24.—President Roosevelt today called on Congress to "extend the frontiers of social progress" by restricting child labor and enacting standards for minimum wages and maximum hours.

In a message to congress he proposed that "only the goods which have been produced under conditions which meet the minimum standards of free labor shall be admitted to interstate commerce."

Congressional leaders moved immediately to lay before both houses legislation designed to effect Mr. Roosevelt's program.

He called on states to cooperate to congress and the public he reiterated that one-third of the population is "ill nourished, ill clad and ill housed."

His first words expressed confidence that the plan was constitutional and called on the judicial branch of the government to sustain it.

PENSION PLAN APPROVED BY HIGH COURT

By United Press
WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Supreme Court today upheld the validity of the old age pension provisions of the social security act, involving 26,000,000 wage earners and 2,700,000 employers, the last New Deal measure submitted to the court at its present term.

The court, a short time earlier, upheld the unemployment insurance provisions of the social security act, under which more than three fourths of the states have set up laws.

The pension decision set aside a ruling of the First Circuit Court of Appeals, which held the tax, both on employers and employees, unconstitutional.

The old age pension vote was 7 to 2.

Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented without opinions.

The vote on unemployment insurance was five to four.

The legal provisions were designed to lessen the effect of periodic unemployment on the nation's economic structure.

There were four opinions. Justices Sutherland, Butler and McReynolds wrote separate dissents. Justice Van Devanter joined in Sutherland's opinion.

The court also held constitutional the Alabama Unemployment Insurance Law, enacted as part of the New Deal social security program.

Session Did Much Alred Declares In Statement Today

By United Press
AUSTIN, May 24.—"The regular session of the 45th Texas Legislature was not a 'do nothing' legislature," Gov. Alred said today.

"It did more than the last legislature in its regular session," Alred said. "The house did more than any house since 120-day sessions were begun. I still think the failure of many bills was due to defects in the rules."

A return to 60-day sessions was favored by Alred. He indicated he will urge shorter sessions in his message to the legislature at the end of his term.

"I am not figuring on a third term," he replied when he referred to the topic as appropriate for a retiring governor to leave to the legislature.

After a vote on race repeal, Alred said he expects to submit the topic of barring dog races and preventing bookie operations.

Whittling As Career Holds Youth's Fancy

DULUTH, Minn.—Time hung heavily on Harris V. Johnson's hands during the depression, so like many another young man he took to whittling.

His whittling, however, was not the stove-side variety.

He sharpened his jackknife, picked up some pieces of wood and started to carve models of fishermen he knew, miniature axes and two-man saws, and plaques.

Johnson says he learned something during those "idle" moments.

"I started out just for fun," he said. "Now I have become so interested that I'm planning to try some more pretentious things."

His hobby has led him to the more serious side of the arts, and now he plans to carve wooden figures from life.

All-Star Teams of Ranger, Eastland Will Play Tonight

An all-star game will be played tonight at the Ranger Softball Field, between picked teams from Ranger and Eastland.

The game will be the forerunner of the opening of the official championship season, with two halves being played. It was voted to start the season over because of the cool weather at night during the past few weeks, which has prevented many from attending the games.

But with the coming of warm nights the fans are becoming more and more interested in the games, and those played to date have put each team in top shape for starting off a real softball season.

Tuesday night the season will open with Lone Star playing the Elks Club in the first game and Montgomery Ward playing Dr. Pepper in the nightcap. Standings of the teams will be kept in order that the winner of the first half and the second half winners can play for the city championship and the city trophy.

Film History Being Written in Office Of Will H. Hays

By United Press
NEW YORK.—A complete history of the motion picture industry and its produce is expected to be compiled soon. The Hays office, principal trade association in film has a corps of research workers gathering and checking material in an effort to discover how many films have been made since the industry started. Roughly, Hays workers estimate the total will be about 35,000 features and short subjects.

The only method considered feasible in obtaining this data is that of checking pictures by their titles. Since the first of this year they have been coming in at the rate of 19 a day. Most of these, of course, are for pictures that will be released during the summer and early fall.

It would be a comparatively simple job for the historians if film producers would select one title and stick to it. But too often, in fact almost every day, a producer will report "The Years Are So Long" as the title and change it later on to "Make Way for Tomorrow." Some producers, however, seldom, if ever change titles. Cecil B. De Mille is noted for his few title changes.

Aside from its statistical value, the title bureau operated by Will Hays is designed to promote harmony and lessen confusion in the movie industry by filing a title for a new movie, Paramount, for instance, may avoid conflict with Warner, or 20th Century Fox may discover that United Artists has thought of the name first.

ARLINGTON, Texas.—Depositors of the defunct First State Bank of Arlington have "plenty of cash in the sock"—or implicit faith in the government.

When the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation last month began paying off all deposits of less than $5,000, only a few of the 2,857 customers appeared. A week after the first payments were made, less than 15 per cent had come to claim their deposits.

A Few Simple Words to Radio Announcers

They tell a story around newspaper offices of a young and enthusiastic reporter who once dashed back to the city room after covering a spectacular fire.

He crouched over his typewriter, tense, prepared to turn himself loose with everything he had, almost overcome by the excitement which he was about to transmit to his expectant readers.

Feverishly he rapped out a couple of words on the typewriter. He scowled at them, shook his head, and crossed them out. He tapped out two or three words on a fresh start, scowled again, and made a third start.

There sat watching him a pot-bellied old-timer, who had been writing big stories ever since the battleship Maine blew up in Havana harbor...

"Just put down one little word after another," he advised.

This anecdote is called to mind, somehow, by memories of the recent broadcast of the British coronation. The British radio announcers who handled that most spectacular of all radio stories were men who had learned the lesson of that newspaper old-timer.

They knew how to tell a big story in the simple, direct way of putting down one little word after another; they knew, in other words, that if the narrator will just get out of the way a big story will tell itself.

And that, unfortunately, is a lesson that our American announcers seem utterly unable to learn.

Shove the average American announcer into a big spectacle, whether it be a presidential inauguration, a baseball game or an air meet, and he immediately gives a life-sized imitation of a man who has swallowed a bumble bee.

He chokes up with excitement, he gets a shaky tremor in his throat, he assures his listeners every 20 seconds that this is undoubtedly the A-1 spectacle of all time.

It is a shame we could not have sent a dozen or so of our home-grown announcers over to London, to see how a broadcast of that kind ought to be handled.

"Just put down one little word after another." It's simple—but how few narrators ever learn that most important of all lessons.

The Supreme Court apparently has decided to give the New Deal a new deal.

Humble Exhibit to Be Repeated at the 1937 Exposition

HOUSTON, May 24.—Humble's Hall of Texas History, widely acclaimed as one of the most interesting and educational exhibits at the Central Centennial Exposition in Dallas last year...

It was agreed to expand the Hall and include more informative material about oil—the major industry of Texas.

The entire exhibit of last year, historical dioramas and geologic maps and miniature models, will be retained intact, and a wing of some 1,500 square feet will be added to accommodate a series of new materials explaining the work of the geologist, paleontologist and physicist in their combined search for petroleum deposits.

Along with these improvements the entire exhibit hall will be redecorated in keeping with the spirit and flavor of the Pan-American exposition.

A seismograph sound truck, torsion balance instrument and magnetometer—all delicate recording instruments used in exploration work—will be shown.

Accompanying these will be a translight photographs and explanatory graphs and charts to make clear to the layman the somewhat puzzling story of how oil is found underground.

For several weeks the geologic and geophysics departments of the Company have been engaged in special research, and at this time work is going ahead in Dallas with the construction and installation of materials for the addition to the exhibit.

Along with these improvements the entire exhibit hall will be redecorated in keeping with the spirit and flavor of the Pan-American exposition. Typical Texas scenes which adorned the walls will be replaced by others reflecting the tone of Mexico and neighboring countries to the South.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The influential administration group which has waged a preventive war against price inflation continues, off the record, to prophesy trouble. These viewers-with-alarm are encouraged by what they consider the healthy effect of several presidential gestures and measures to discourage price increases.

Various White House advisers, however, will continue to urge further action. It is likely that Roosevelt before long will move toward a reduction of certain tariff duties which would affect prices of protected products considered by economists here to be "out of line." In this connection, watch for news of the future of the copper import tax which will lapse in June unless something is done about it.

AN easing of European war tension, liquidation of foreign-owned securities here and talk of gold price reduction are believed to have had an effect on the commodity markets, as well as administration efforts. But there is alarm over a big increase in installment selling, which reached $9,000,000,000 in 1936 as compared with only $6,000,000,000 in 1929. This is a huge pledge of future wages. Higher retail prices are anticipated by fall and the viewers-with-alarm assert that the country is getting to the point where there will be a deficit in purchasing power.

Yesterday Dorothy, studying old San Francisco papers, finds clues to implicate Norton in murder. Then Bob remembers he and Norton went into New York the night of the crime, on the same train—a perfect alibi for Norton.

CHAPTER XXIX
ARRIVING in Manhattan at 3 o'clock from Green Hills, Dorothy repeated to herself: "I don't know what I'm afraid of. I'm afraid of going to work. I'm afraid of being accused of murder. Where shall I go? Where can I hide?"

The first editions of the evening papers were already on the streets, and the mysterious death of John Ware Hendry headlined every front page. Dorothy bought a copy and went into the waiting room to read it. So far only the barest details had been made public.

"Police are concerned," she read, "over the simultaneous disappearance of Miss Joan Barrett, secretary to the murdered man. As far as can be determined, Miss Barrett was the last person to see Mr. Hendry alive." That was all, there was no reference to Joan's past.

As she folded the paper together, her eye fell upon the classified advertisements on page 22. The words "Rooms to let" struck her forcefully.

"Rooms to let," she repeated to herself. "I'll try a few more." Dorothy persisted. "Just a few more, until it's ten o'clock. Not every body goes to bed so early."

It was exactly quarter to ten when she climbed the steps of the untidy house on the poor side street.

"May I inquire if a young lady took the room this morning?" Dorothy asked mechanically. "A young woman? Yes indeed. A slim, blond young lady... Miss Andrews."

Miss Andrews, Joan had borrowed the name Bob had used to give to her. Tears of relief sprang into Dorothy's eyes, and she longed to hug Mrs. Griggs, dirty and unpleasant as the woman appeared.

She checked herself, cautiously. "No," she said. "I don't think I'll see her just now. I do want to be sure it's she, however..." She searched through her bag and drew forth a snapshot of Joan. "Is this she? She inquired tremulously."

"Yes... she left home hurriedly this morning..." She thought quickly for some sort of explanation. "She quarreled with her boy friend. We've both been looking for her all day long. May I phone him and send him around? He wants to patch up their quarrel..."

number. She could phone them; that would save several hours' work.

She rushed back to the newsstand again, and changed three one-dollar bills for nickels. The clerk looked at her in astonishment, and after she left, he tapped his head expressively. "Nuts!" he confided to the young man at the other end of the counter.

BY 5 o'clock she had spent 34 nickels and called 30 numbers. A dozen irate customers had glared at her for monopolizing the phone booth, and one man threatened to call an officer. But she kept on, despite them.

She spoke to 40-odd different women—shrill women and soft-spoken women; suspicious women and curious women; reticent women and garrulous women. She heard every epithet that was ever applied in the glorification of the furnished room; she promised a dozen women that she and her sister would take the room without doubt on the morrow.

But no woman admitted that a young lady, slim and blond, had taken her room that day.

Her list of phone numbers was depleted; now she must visit the other rooms listed. She must work systematically and hurriedly, because the time was slipping by so quickly. Through the windows of the terminal she could see that darkness was already beginning to fall.

She wondered whether it would be better to start on the east side and work north, or go all the way up town on the west side and work south. She chose the latter route, since she might lose an hour or more going from east to west in the upper part of the city.

She took the west side subway express to the last stop on the line. This was the location of the first room on her list.

She told the landlady, as she met them, the same story she had used over the telephone, varying it to suit the occasion. Her facial muscles ached from smiling so continually and so convincingly; her head rang with the dull echo of her own voice.

From one address to another she hurried; when the distance between was too great, she took a bus or a taxi. She climbed endless, consecutive flights of stairs...

But she found no trace of Joan. Discouraged and defeated, all manner of doubts assailed her. She kept on, nevertheless.

It was after seven o'clock now, closer to eight. She met other for his trading post that was later to become Dallas.

people looking for rooms in earnest, and they complicated her mission and delayed her.

One fact encouraged her. Evidently few rooms had been rented that day. And those women who had rented successfully were eager to boast of their good fortune. But none had rented to a slim, blond young lady...

At nine o'clock she was downtown again, to Columbus Circle, and she changed her course and went over east, to work uptown.

At nine-thirty a woman informed her severely that it was too late to show the room that night; she had better come back in the morning...

"I'll try a few more," Dorothy persisted. "Just a few more, until it's ten o'clock. Not every body goes to bed so early."

It was exactly quarter to ten when she climbed the steps of the untidy house on the poor side street.

"Sure thing!" Mrs. Griggs agreed heartily, a trace of a smile lighting up her face. "We've no phone here, but you can find one in the drug store on the corner."

"Thank you so much!" Dorothy breathed.

BALTIMORE—War Admiral's smashing victory in the Kentucky Derby and the threat to dominate the three-year-old situation in 1937 once more brings his immortal sire, Man o' War, to popular notice.

So great were Man o' War's achievements on race courses that they still eclipse to a marked degree a highly successful career at stud.

Man o' War was bred by the late August Belmont at his famous Nursery Stud on Long Island. Big Red is a son of Fair Play, peer of all American sires, from Mahubah, a daughter of the famous Rock Sand. He was born in March, 1917.

Man o' War's full sister, Maada, had been so fast that Sam Hildreth was unable to believe his watch when he timed her. Samuel D. Riddle knew this, so he purchased Man o' War, previous negotiations with Belmont helping him to land the colt for $3000.

MAN O' WAR was beaten only once in 22 races in two years. Upset came down in front of him, but Big Red's jockey, Johnny Loftus, never rode again.

As a three-year-old, Man o' War established five world records, broke 10 intervening records, yet never was allowed to run his full speed from end to end.

His marks for a mile and three-eighths and a mile and five-eighths still stand, although tracks are immeasurably faster than they were in his day.

He was the one horse which could run any distance equally well. He once ran a quarter in less than 21 seconds, something no horse ever has even approached. Five times got him under 21 and one at 20.

He came from behind as a juvenile, but at three permitted only upset to get in front of him, and that wasn't his fault.

Man o' War has served about 18 mares a year at a stud fee of $5000, and always has remained among the first 20 sires.

MAN O' WAR'S sire, Fair Play, is the only one in history which has produced six thoroughbreds which have earned more than $100,000. Man o' War being one of two which passed $200,000. He grossed $249,000 in purses. The other big money-winning products of Fair Play were Mad Hatter, Display, Chance Shot, Mad Play, and Chance Play.

If he wins the Preakness, May 15, which he should, War Admiral will be the fifth Man o' War product to win more than $100,000. No other sire outside of Fair Play and Whiskbone II, has placed as many as three in the more than $100,000 class.

His sons or daughters of Man o' War have topped virtually every important stake race in this country except the Preakness.

Man o' War surpasses all other sires in this respect. And now War Admiral intends to do something about only the old man himself being able to win the Preakness.

They're a running family, these Man o' Wars.

A GLASS OF jelly was not born to stand still. It likes to go places and do things. Invite it to that special "company" dinner. And this is what it will do.

Grape Mousse
One pint heavy cream, 1 glass grape jelly. Whip cream but do not make it too stiff. Turn in the glass of jelly. Beat some more until jelly and cream are blended into a gorgeously tinted mixture. Place this in mold, seal well and pack in ice and salt, equal parts, for about 3 hours. Unmold and serve. It's a distinctive and rich dessert.

Amber Tarts
(12 tarts)
Four eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup plum jelly.
Beat eggs until very light. Combine sugar and flour. Mix eggs and sugar and flour. Cream jelly and butter together, then add to egg mixture. Add milk last, a little at a time. Line greased muffin tins with pastry. Pour in filling and bake in moderate (350 degrees F.) oven until lightly browned. If you want an extra touch, add a meringue and place back in oven to give meringue its touch of gold too.

Tomorrow's Menu

sentimental over blackberry cake. We might as well do the same.

Blackberry Jelly Cake
Three eggs, 2 1/4 cups flour, 1 cup sugar, 2-3 cup butter, 3 tablespoons buttermilk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup blackberry jelly.
Cream butter, add sugar and cream again. Add spices, then well-beaten egg yolks alternately with flour and buttermilk. Add softened jelly and mix thoroughly. Add soda. Beat whites very stiff and fold into batter. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 35 minutes. When cool, cover with boiled white icing. Alabama, here we come!

New Sulphur Dome Placed In Operation

ANGLETON, Texas. - The fifth commercially-productive sulphur dome in Texas has been placed in operation in southern Brazoria county.

The new area known as Clemens Dome was discovered last November by Jefferson Lake Oil company, which drilled three wells to tap the huge supply.

Clemens replaced the famous Bryan Mound, which was abandoned in 1935 by the Freepport Gulf Sulphur company after producing between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 tons of sulphur.

Other sulphur domes in the state are Hoskins Mound in Brazoria county; Bolding Dome, largest known sulphur deposit in the world, in Wharton county, and Long Point in Fort Bend county.

Duval Texas Sulphur company is prospecting at Orchard Dome in Fort Bend county.

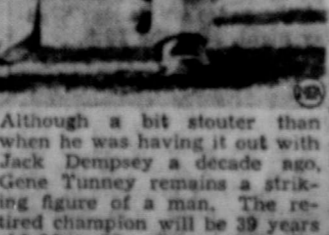

The Jefferson Lake company has employed 120 workers at Clemens Dome and is using equipment brought from Barba, La. Texas Gulf Sulphur company owns adjoining acreage in fee and the Bolding Dome. Most of the Clemens sulphur will be loaded at shipside at Freepport.

Company officials estimate the minimum recovery from Clemens at 500,000 tons and said they have spent approximately $300,000 on transportation of machinery and development.

Britain Weighs Plan For Smaller Eggs

LONDON - The government's Britain's $50,000,000 a year poultry industry from the ruinous effects of increasing foreign competition is to make British eggs smaller.

The scheme calls for alteration of the grading regulations to make the "standard" egg 1 7/8 ounces instead of the present two ounces. By promoting "medium" grade eggs, and "standards" into "specials," it is calculated that British eggs will be able to compete on fairer terms with foreign produce in the shops.

This is to be the government's reply to the British poultry industry's urgent demand for higher tariffs—a demand which cannot be met because of the trade agreements negotiated between Britain and Denmark and other foreign suppliers.

The great importance of the part which poultry and egg production plays in British agriculture can be gauged from the fact that the annual value of its products—$150,000,000 a year—exceeds the total value of home-grown wheat, barley and oats by $15,000,000. Poultry farmers account for a seventh of the annual agricultural output.

The existing tariff on foreign eggs varies from 25 to 30 cents on 10 dozen eggs, while the actual price gap between British eggs and imported "new laid" may be as much as 10 cents a dozen. Last year egg imports increased from 50,000,000 dozen.

Plans to Form Summer Band School Complete

A definite stride was made Friday afternoon when representatives of several boards and civic organizations met in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce and decided that the High School Band should be continued through the summer season.

J. N. Crawford, director of the local band, said he felt certain that the required number of band students will enroll for the summer course. A minimum of 5 members will be necessary to carry through the present plan, and already more than half of that number have enrolled. At least thirty members of the Junior Band will enroll on Monday and Tuesday, when the director will be at the band hall during the day to take the enrollment.

The results of the "music adaptability" tests given throughout the school system last week, indicate a large number of beginners can learn band instruments. Those students who made a grade of 60 or more should also see Mr. Crawford on Monday, to talk over band work for the summer.

The summer band school will operate as a regular part of school work. Affiliated credits may be earned by high school students identically as in long year. Students who choose to do double

Civic organizations that are backing the summer band, are making it possible for band students to get the summer training at a much reduced rate. The "per hour" lesson cost being only about 10 cents.

Registrations must be made by all students on Monday or Tuesday, May 24 and 25. Parents who desire more information can see Mr. Crawford at the band room or at the Paramount Hotel.
