SHERMAN'S HUMBUGGERY.

From the Houston Post?
Taking his late speech at Columbus as a text, the Indianapolis Sentinel gives to Senator John Sherman a most gentle roast. It says: "What an arrogant old hypocrite John Sherman is! What iron nerves he has, standing as he does with one foot in the grave, to go before the people and tell them things which he knows are not true, and which they know are not true. Let us look at some of his statements made in his speech of Saturday. We will start with this:

"These two metals not only measure all other things, but they measure each other. Their relative value constantly changes. Twenty-three years ago sixteen ounces of silver were worth more than one ounce of gold. Now thirty-one ounces of silver can be bought by one ounce of gold. This fluctuation of value can not be prevented by law. It is beyond the reach of legislation. It is caused by the changing demands for the increasing supply of these metals from the mines."

"* * * Though silver bullion has fallen to nearly one-half its former value yet we have used it and maintained silver coin made from it at parity with gold at the ratio of 16 to 1."

No one knows better than John Sherman that silver has not fallen in value at all, that gold has appreciated, and that the change is due not to the production of the mines, but to legislation demonetizing silver. In proof of this we quote his own words uttered in the senate on April 10, 1876, when he was trying to get the silver dollar reissued, and thereby undo part of its stupidity of 1873. Speaking of the effects of the demonetization of silver already accomplished, he said: "But that was not the worst of it. It at once began a struggle for the possession of gold between all the great nations of the world, because everybody could see that if you demonetized $3,000,000,000 of silver and made $3,000,000,000 of gold coin the sole standard of all the transactions of the world, commencing with the great nations of Europe, then extending to the smaller until it reaches the Atlantic countries, it would enormously add to the value of gold, and, therefore, it was that the Bank of France, the Bank of England and the Imperial Bank of Germany at once commenced grasping for gold in whatever form. Therefore, what we have observed recently is not so much a fall of silver as it is a rise of gold."

At that time, although silver had fallen over 10 per cent, as measured in gold, there had been no increased production of silver. That came afterward, and the explanation that silver declined in value on account of overproduction was an afterthought. Passing on, Mr. Sherman discussed the money legislation of 1853 (which did not effect the silver dollar at all) the silver dollar "was practically and purposely demonetized." Mr. Sherman knows that is not true. He knows that the act of 1853 did not demonetize silver and he knows that Senator Hunter had no intention to demonetize silver. In his speech of April 10, 1876, he quotes from Senator Hunter's report this significant passage:

"The mischief would be great indeed if all the world were to adopt but one of the precious metals as the standard of value. To adopt gold alone would diminish the specie currency more than one-half and the reduction on the other way, should silver be taken as the only standard, would be large enough to prove highly disastrous to the human race. Indeed a reference to the history of the precious metals and the general course of human production can scarcely fail to convince us that there has been a constant tendency to appreciate their value as compared with the residue of the property of the world, and that every extraordinary increase of the supply of the precious metals of which we have any account has exercised a highly beneficial effect upon human affairs. When contracts are made by a standard which is gradually contracting the advantages are on the side of capital as against labor, and productive energy is cramped by receiving less than a fair share of the profit of its enterprises."

This quotation shows that Senator Hunter was a democrat who was an intelligent believer in bimetallism, and who understood the evils of an appreciating currency. And Mr. Sherman not only quoted this, but also said:

"It is manifest from this extract that I have read from Mr. Hunter's report, it is the desire of Mr. Hunter and of those who voted for the passage of the act of 1853, was to bring back silver into this country, so that we might have silver and gold again as the currency of the country, and the measure they adopted was intended to produce that effect."

"Think of it! And yet this garrulous old humbug has the impudence to stand up now and tell the people of this country that the law of 1853 purposely demonetized silver. And he has even greater impudence than this, for he says:

"There is another element of meanness in this free coinage of silver. The United States has always paid its bonds in gold or its equivalent. In the darkest hours of the civil war we stipulated to pay our bonds, principal and interest in gold, or its equivalent. All the war debt has been paid in this way."

This is as utter a falsehood as ever proceeded from the mouth of man. This country has never stipulated to pay one cent of its bonds in gold "in the darkest hours of the civil war," or at any other time. As a matter of fact they were payable in any "lawful money" until 1869, when one of Mr. Sherman's laws made them payable in "coin." And every one of his efforts to have them made payable in "gold" failed. But he had in contemplation the demonetization of silver when the law of 1869 was passed, for he had introduced a bill in the senate in 1868 for that purpose, and he never receded, which it until in 1873 he succeeded.

And now this slave and tool of the money kings, this legislative prostitute who has helped to rob the American people of wealth almost beyond conception, talks about honesty to the American people. He does not know what honesty means."

LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL'S FLOP ON THE MONEY ISSUE.

Its Adversity of the Gold Standard Condemned by its own Past Utterances.

Special to The Republic.
Henderson, Ky., Aug. 22.—The present attitude of the Louisville Courier-Journal is strangely in contrast on the financial question with the attitude it assumed in 1886. Then it denounced the gold standard and boldly demanded in the name of the people the recoinstitution of silver. It denounced the press of the country that stood for a gold standard and pointed out the evils of the single gold standard of value.

The following is the editorial published in the Courier-Journal of August 10, 1886:

"The Courier-Journal has been devoting a large amount of space, week after week, to the discussion of the silver situation in its relations to the interest of the United States. Most of the newspapers of the United States have taken but little notice of the matter; many do not refer to it at all, and few daily papers except the Courier-Journal in any part of the Union is treating it with any degree of that earnestness and persistence which would imply that it is recognized by the leading minds as a question of immediate and intense practical significance to the welfare of all classes of citizens. Such is the magnitude of the question, and such its practical bearing upon the interests of all men, and we find the whole American press ignoring it."

"The Courier-Journal lays down the following propositions:
"First—That the demonetization of silver which has prevailed for some years up to this writing, both in the United States and in Europe, has had the effect of advancing the value of gold about 40 per cent.

"Second—That this has been accomplished by depressing the value of all other property to that extent.
"Third—That about 40 per cent of the property and producing resources of the people have thus been transferred to a comparatively small class of men, whose stock in trade is gold investments.
"Fourth—That the exact proportion of gold has risen, the burden of debt and taxation has increased; and that in proportion as property and labor have declined, the capacity of the people to pay their debts and taxes has diminished.
"Fifth—That the silver discount is creating a bonus of more than 30 per cent in favor of the farm productions of India and Asia, which to that extent cheapens the wheat, cotton and various other productions of the United States.
"Sixth—That these lamentable conditions have been produced by anti-silver legislation.
"Seventh—That they can be undone and prosperity restored by pro-silver legislation."

"Now here are seven propositions, either of which, if true, certainly proves the silver situation is a matter of intense and universal importance. If so, why is not the matter forced upon public attention day after day by all the newspapers in the land, which are not owned body and branches by the money kings or the gold conspiracy? If they, or either of them, are not true, why do they not prove it, and put the question at rest once for all? If any newspaper in New York, or Boston, or Chicago, or Philadelphia, or St. Louis, or Cincinnati, or New Orleans can successfully controvert either of these propositions, it will render the public valuable service by doing so at once. If they cannot controvert either of these propositions, they are obviously coming at a gigantic fraud and wrong which cannot possibly co-exist with any degree of prosperity. If any or all of these propositions are true, the honest journalist, with the capacity to understand the principles involved, cannot consistently abstain from giving them the greatest publicity possible.

"We challenge the editors of any of the papers named, and of any others, to point out a single flaw or error in any proposition of the seven, and if this cannot be done, we ask in the name of the people what interests they are serving and what considerations, in kind and amount, they are receiving in conniving at the inquiry? It will be worth a great deal to the country if these papers will prove all the propositions stated are either true or false. The public should not be content until the public press is awakened to the sense of its public duties to its dependence on public support, and to its betrayal or ignoring of its ostensible office—public adviser-in-chief."

LINCOLN'S PROPHECY.

The Sat Forbidding Set Forth in a Private Letter Near the Close of his W.

"I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of the war, corporations have been enthroned and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people until all wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the republic is destroyed. I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of my country than ever before, even in the midst of war. God grant my suspicions may prove groundless."

BILL DOOLIN KILLED.

DIES WITH HIS BOOTS ON FROM GUNSHOT WOUNDS.

Deputy Marshal Heck Thomas and posse left at 11:30 p. m. last night and when Doolin was shot, he was in the act of opening his fire and was killed.

Deolin, who was captured last January at the home of the outlaw, was his final defeat at the hands of Deputy United States Marshal at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and all that is mortal of this once-famous man lies in a casket at a undertaking parlor in this city, viewed by curious throngs.

Doolin, who was captured last January by William Tilgham, without the shedding of blood, led a revolt in the federal jail here July 5, and with 30 other prisoners escaped. No effort was made to pursue the runaway, and Doolin was at large for a month living with his wife or near her home at Lawrence, Kan. He was finally captured at Lawrence, Kan., and taken to the city.
