20 STUDENTS START A FIGHT WITH JAPANESE

By United Press
TIENTSIN, China, July 20.—Twenty screaming Chinese nationalist students stripped stark naked to emphasize their determination to die for their homeland, charged Japanese positions southwest of Peiping today and started general fighting, which may herald the "showdown" between the Japanese and Chinese armies in North China.

The students were armed with machine guns. While their fate was not reported, it was assumed they were killed by the Japanese soldiers they attacked.

Their action, the Japanese News Agency said, was a signal for the Japanese army to open a formal attack on the railway area southwest of Peiping.

At 2:30 p. m. Japanese infantry advanced along the Yangtze river. Guns in the Japanese batteries flashed and shells began exploding.

The Chinese batteries opened up from the lines of the 29th Chinese army and killed one Japanese soldier and wounded one.

Firing ceased after 30 minutes, but was resumed later.

At Nanking, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, commander-in-chief of the Chinese armies, arrived from Kuling to take charge. Just before his arrival the Japanese consular warned all Japanese to prepare to evacuate on short notice.

Where China Battles Japanese

A scene of bitter warfare replaces the leisurely military spectacle pictured outside the gates of Peiping, where Japan has hurled the full force of its North China army in an effort to establish its dominance in commercial exploitation.

COMPROMISE IS SEEN OVER COURT BATTLE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, July 20.—A high administration source today expressed the belief that a compromise in the bitter judicial controversy would be achieved which would satisfy all factions "except two or three opposition leaders."

This intimation was given as opposing forces met for a brief session after agreeing to a truce to permit the senate to select a new majority leader before coming to a test vote on the judiciary issue.

The agreement for a breathing spell provided for adjournment until Thursday, which will be devoted to overriding the veto of a bill to maintain low interest rates on Federal Bank farm loans.

A showdown on the court issue will be delayed until Friday.

The new senate party leader will be chosen by 75 senate democrats tomorrow.

Radio, which he developed and helped carry to the far corners of the earth and to ships at sea the news of the death of one of the great men of this age.

Because of him continents were brought within seconds of one another and a man's voice circles the earth with the speed of light.

The body of Mrs. Kelly, who had long been a friend of Newton, former pastor at Paris, Mo., was found floating in the Mississippi river. Newton was held at Pittsfield, Ill. Blood stains in his car and the possession of $19.30 which Mrs. Kelly had drawn from the bank just before her death, brought the questioning which led to Newton's confession.

20 TO ATTEND SHORT COURSE FROM COUNTY

Approximately 20 Eastland county farmers will attend the annual Farmers' Short Course at Texas A. & M. College at College Station during August 16-19, according to Extension Agent Elmo V. Cook.

Cook, announcing plans Tuesday, asserted the trip by the farmers will be by bus leaving Eastland Sunday morning preceding the opening of the course Monday.

A camping site has been chosen for the group between the college and Bryan. Electricity and other conveniences will be available. Following close of the meeting the Eastland county farmer group, including Cook, will go to Galveston for a one-day recreational feature. The group returns Saturday.

Already tentatively signed up for the trip, which will cost each person approximately $10, are Dick Weekes of Alameda, T. E. Castleberry of Morton Valley, T. D. Whitehorn, Jr., of Carben and C. E. Hatcock of Colony.

Describing the short course, Cook explained:

"The practice of offering a series of courses on varied subjects during the entire period of the short course has been discontinued except in a few instances. Instead, farmers will find that each of the four days of the short course has been devoted to one broad field of agriculture. The mornings will be taken up with a series of discussion, and in the afternoons the program will be broken up into sections which will give each individual an opportunity to learn more of the subject in which he is most interested.

"The four subjects which have been chosen and the days on which they will be presented are: livestock, Monday; horticulture, Tuesday; field crops and soil, Wednesday, and farm business and organization, Thursday.

"Special courses will be offered in dairy manufacture, cotton classing, leather making and poultry."

Wages Depend On Steady Profits Is Economist's Report

DALLAS.—A clear exposition of the relationship between industrial wages and profits, made by Carl Snyder, former general statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank, New York, contains a thought that could well be heeded by those who mold state and civic policies affecting the growth of industry in Texas, says a report of the All South Development Council.

"It is obvious," Mr. Snyder told the social and economic section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Denver, "that we cannot have any general gain in wealth, comfort and material aids to enjoyment of life save by a definite increase in the product per worker... Practically the sole gain in product is through improved machinery, new processes, new inventions and discoveries. This is precisely what is meant by the industrial revolution."

Pointing out that the rise in profits, with parallel rise in wages, is fastest in new businesses, new industries and new processes produced by applied science, Mr. Snyder showed how these are due to investment of new capital in research and exploration and "merely all this new capital is supplied by industry itself."

Analysis of this function of capital was seen by the council as "of particular interest to Texas, whose relatively high living standards have been and are so dependent upon the 'new processes, new discoveries, exploration and improved machinery' which Mr. Snyder points out can continue to be developed only where profits are consistent and adequate."

A ruthless pursuit of the policy of fixing all taxation on the so-called "ability to pay" basis, as typified in Texas in constant demands for higher and higher imposts, will lead to impounding of profits and strangulation of this capital which is the life-blood of exploration and further development, the council's report said.

"If profits are adequate, the amounts available for exploration, research, new machinery and development of new processes will be in proportion, and the progress of the country (state) correspondingly accelerated," Mr. Snyder said.

The soundness of this conclusion is strikingly shown by the progress of Texas, which economists agree has been "accelerated" at least a half-century beyond the development it could have expected without oil, sulphur and natural gas. Continued encroachment on the profits of these industries would result in encroachment, likewise, on the wages and on the capital funds necessary to technological and production advancements, the report said.

"Today in highly developed countries (states) the size of the fund available for segregating a certain portion of the workers for research, exploration and development of new processes depends largely upon the general policies of the larger enterprises and corporations, and these in turn are determined largely by their profits," Mr. Snyder said.

Not Too Late to Save the Rule of Reason

We have had the age of stone, the age of brass, the age of iron and the age of this, that and the other things; but when future historians come to write about this particular era in world history, they can hardly do anything else than call it the age of violence.

That is to say that it is time in which men seem to have given up the old notion that disputes could be settled by reason and compromise. When nerves are overstrained and the old faith in human intelligence is low, it is easier to sail in with fists flying than to sit down and talk things out.

So we have a tortured Europe today, with its incredible war in Spain and its desperate preparations for a bigger and more ruinous war. We have mass executions in Russia, pogroms and concentration camps in Germany, and the rule of strutting might in Italy and lesser lands. And in our own country we have bitter industrial warfare on half a dozen fronts, with armed pickets, vigilante movements, massed troops and all the other distressing features of a regime of unabashed violence.

All of this makes the present a hard time to live through. For it is not so much the fact of violence that is distressing as it is the fact that men resort to it more and more readily. Considering that civilization basically is little more than the development of restraints on man's impulse to violent action, it is not hard to see in this trend an ominous sign that civilization is collapsing.

There would be little point in reciting this, if there were nothing left for us to do but sit resignedly by and wait for full catastrophe. But the point for Americans to remember is that the growth of the age of violence has been much slower on this side of the water than elsewhere. For all our troubles, we are still committed to the non-violent way of life, as exemplified in political democracy and the theory of human quality.

In other words, it is not yet too late for us to turn away from this drift toward the blind belief that might makes right. And we can best do it by reminding ourselves constantly of the fact that continued confidence in our democratic processes is our one and only defense.

For a confidence in democracy is nothing less than a confidence in the inherent decency and sanity of the human race. We rely on majority rule, peaceful persuasion and open debate because we believe that in the long run men have the good sense and the good will to make such things work.

That is why these resorts to violence in our own land are so ominous. To the extent that they take place, that confidence of ours is broken down; and to the extent that it is broken down, the strength of our democracy is lessened. We are a long way from Germany and Russia—but until we insist on peaceful settlements and the rule of reason in place of force, we are headed in the direction of those nations.

False Burglar Alarm Interrupts Prowler

DALLAS, Texas—When Ed Lott, J. R. Riley and Homer Platt accidentally tripped a burglar alarm at a grocery warehouse they were ready to apologize for the error—but R. D. Dickson, grocery concern manager, gave them his thanks instead.

The sound of the ear-piercing alarm caused a prowler to leave his pile of loot which included cash and cigarettes and skip down a drainpipe. Nightwatchman Rhodes saw him, however, and gave chase. The burglar escaped but nothing was missing from the store.

Ward's Goes On In The World Sale Of Old Scrap Iron

BY EDWARD M. STRODE
 Press Staff Correspondent NEW ORLEANS. — Between and 10,000 tons of scrap are being shipped from this every week, according to estimate. The metal goes to Italy, Poland, Belgium, England, and Mexico.
 Piles of scrap iron, copper, aluminum and tin cans can be seen here one day, but they are gone the next. Relatively high prices are being paid by foreign buyers and the junk business has reached boom times to thousands.
 Ward's great combines and syn-dicates have been organized to handle the nation's cast-off metals. These combines work through parent company down to the muffs of the alleys who gather through the back streets picking up iron, cans, brass and other metal for a few nickels to the local agent. The agent in turn takes it to a trucker. The trucker takes it to the company dump and sells it for a good profit.
Goes for Armament
 "Junkers" know and admit, a great part of the metal they are going to be used in the manufacture of munitions—which is time might be used against Germany. But, they say, they make a living.
 Ward's is bringing around 9 1/2 tons a pound in New Orleans.
 Scrap iron and copper bring as much as 10 cents. Aluminum sells for 15 cents.
 Scrap iron collected from as far west as central Oklahoma, and as far east as Mobile, Ala., eventually reaches the docks of New Orleans.
 Agents are glad to get scrap for their vessels. The rate is high—as much as $11 a ton, and a ton of iron takes far less space than a ton of cotton, and pays about the same rate.
 A great has been the demand in Italy that one enterprising dealer sold a load of dismantled doors to the Italian government. The doors were loaded into an Italian freighter without having the wood, upholstery or broken glass removed.
Iron is Conditioned
 "Chunk" iron brings the price. Before being loaded on a freighter the metal must be "conditioned." Conditioning consists of cutting the metal into pieces not more than 5 feet long, 18 inches wide and 18 inches high. Steel rails, ship plates, rail-wheels and parts, form the lucrative items of the trade.
 Iron bolts, discarded nails, radiators, all go into making full cargo for a freighter.
 Particularly pleased are ship agents when they can carry a full load of scrap. One voyage out of New Orleans to Japan paid $80, in freight rates. Such cargoes loaded by the shipper, with charge paid by the consignee, consignee also unloads the cargo.

 vessel had never been commanded, had been towed into the docks below New Orleans, and as quarters for a bridge crew.
 The dismantled ship burned, realized a profit of about $800 the ship. He purchased it up, cut it up, hauled it to the dock and sold it as No. 1 iron.
Tin Cans Compressed Tin cans are being hauled from principal trash heaps and smashed by a giant compressor into compact, suit-case-size parcels for export. The tin brings a high price in foreign nations.
 A compressor for such work costs about $35,000 and must be a tremendous market to justify the operator to show a profit for its operation.
 Foreign markets are paying as much as $17.50 a ton for New Orleans iron and steel. Prices for copper and brass are based on the price of the nation buying the metal. Fabulous tales have been told of prices obtained for brass for use in the manufacture of cartridge cases.

Natty 'Parisian' Still Pershing

Not even formal morning clothes could disguise the military bearing of General "Black Jack" Pershing as he attended ceremonies inaugurating the Ameriabove. Scores of other notables attended the opening also.

German Fleet Is Likely to Get New Dreadnaughts Soon

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Germany soon will abandon its famous "vest-pocket" battleships, according to a high naval officer.
 Instead of the 10,000-ton craft, which many experts once thought would revolutionize naval construction the world over, the Reich, in the near future will re-enter the world naval armament race by the construction of full-sized battleships.
 Rear Admiral Robert Wittoeff-Emden, naval attache to the German embassy in Washington, made that statement while inspecting the U. S. Navy bases at San Diego.
 Wittoeff-Emden believes the practice of building the smaller-sized men-o'-war soon will be forgotten. He explained that Germany undertook the construction of such ships only because it was forced to such action by the treaty of Versailles.
 "The Versailles treaty placed a limit on the size of German warships and we found it necessary to build greater strength and speed into our 10,000-ton cruisers, which have been termed vest-pocket battleships," Wittoeff-Emden said.
 It was the Deutschland, one of the Reich's "vest-pocket" fighters, which was bombed by Spanish loyalist planes while on patrol a few weeks ago, resulting in the shelling of Almeria by the German ships as an act of reprisal.
 Continuing his discussion of the "vest-pocket" type battleships, Wittoeff-Emden explained the ships do not provide enough "elbow room" for absolutely satisfactory operation, despite the stories of their great efficiency and concentrated power.
 "Since our naval agreement with Great Britain last year we are allowed to construct ships with more elbow room, so we are going in for the full-sized battleships again," the admiral said.
 Wittoeff-Emden refused to discuss the size or the details of the full-sized battleships he said his nation would construct.
 It is believed, in naval circles here, however, the Reich soon will construct battleships of the 35-000 ton class such as are to be built by the United States.
 The German naval expert also refused to comment on the U. S. government's efforts to limit the size of guns on the capital ships of the world powers to 14 inches.

Nicky Appetites Often One Result of Constipation

When nothing tastes right, and don't eat as you should, the stic may be common constipation. Poor appetite is one of its symptoms. Others are headaches, weakness and sallow complexion.
 Constipation is usually due to "bulk" meals. Serve your natural source of "bulk."

 When the body, this food absorbs twice its weight in water, the system. How much better is taking pills and drugs!

 ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin to tone up the intestines, and for the blood. Two tablespoon-daily are usually sufficient.

Golf Pupil Beats Teacher's Records

GEORGETOWN, Texas. —
 Johnnie McCook, 16, pupil of Dr.
 Claude Howard, golf coach, at Southwestern University, beat his teacher in a surprise performance here.
 Coach Howard had held a 66 record score on 18 holes and a 32 record on nine holes at the Georgetown Country Club. The young golf pupil broke both these records on one round. He shot a 65 in 18 holes, which included a record 31 for the incoming nine.
 "No great professional golfer has played better than Johnnie did on the last 15 holes," Dr.
 Howard said. "He made seven birdies and one eagle, making nine under par."

 ger," for instance, proves mysterious.

CHAPTER V
WEDNESDAY: Wonder if there's anything to what Peter told me last night when I tucked him into bed. Thought at the time he was just imagining things. Told him he mustn't make up stories.

"They're not stories, Joy," he insisted, sitting up in bed. "I really did find a haunted house in the woods today."
 "Nonsense, Peter. There aren't any haunted houses nowadays," I declared.

"Well, there's one, the one I found today. It's way off in the woods. I walked all round it first, for I didn't see anyone around.
 Then I climbed up on some rocks and looked in at the windows."

"Why, Peter, that wasn't a very nice thing to do . . . what would the people who live in it think?"
 "I didn't see anybody . . . least not at first . . . only dishes on the table and guns—"

"Now, Peter, you're making up a fairy story. You're too big for that sort of thing. Better go to sleep," I said, and I started towards the door.

"Wait, wait, there was a man," Peter begged, "and a dog. I must tell you about that first. Somebody opened the door, and a great big dog came lickity split after me. I looked back, and a fat ugly man cried, 'Hey, Jigger, call your dog. If Nero bites that kid—'"

"Oh, Peter, you must be careful.
 Sometimes strange dogs don't like little boys."

"HE liked me all right. I told him I wasn't afraid. I patted his dog. Then the one they called Jigger—he had queer dark eyes—said: 'Live around her, sonny?'" "Sure," I answered, "I'd love to live around her. Then he got home to your folks. But I told him I'd like to come and play with Nero some other day."

"You must never go and play with anybody unless it's with someone you know. If anything happened I wouldn't know where to find you," I said, started at the name of Jigger.

"Well, I guess I don't get a chance to play with Nero. The fat man sounded pretty mad

when he said, 'Nothing doing, kid, you stay where you belong.'" "That's just what I say. You stay at home and maybe Cal will find you some nice playmate."
 "I'm going to get a dog. The Jigger fellow came after me and told me if I'd stay at home he'd get me a nice pup all for myself."
 "Well, well, we'll have to see about that," I said, and switching off the light, I left the room.

Now, as I sit at my desk, I'm beginning to wonder if there is anything queer going on in the woods. Surely if Peter was making up that story he'd never have used the name of Jigger. . . I wonder if that's the same man who gave me such a fright that night. Must sound out Cal again.
 Maybe he'll tell me what he knows.

THAT reminds me, he does like to bring up news. When he appeared this morning (he drives up in a car of uncertain age) he said:
 "Well, girls, Miss Pegler's opened her cottage again, and, by gosh, she's brought a handsome young man with her."

"Who is he?" Tess demanded.
 She's always interested in new young men, likes to measure them against her devoted Jimmy to see if she's got the best marriage mart has to offer her.

"The gardener says he's her nephew. . . ain't been here since he was a kid . . . been at college . . . abroad . . . and reckon he's old enough to have had a job too."
 "Don't believe he needs a job, Cal," Tess declared. "Miss Pegler's terribly rich."

"Every man should have a job . . . this chap too . . . even if he's expecting to get her money when she goes. You bet you'd never find me waiting for dead men's shoes, or women's either . . . especially women's! You can't tell what they'll do . . . leave all their fortune to the heathen or marry some old flame."

"Gee, Cal, you're encouraging," Tess cried. "Guess I'll have to look into this. Hope Miss Pegler brings him around pronto, and if he's to be here all summer . . ."
 "You keep your hands off him," Big Kate said. "Guess there's no love lost between the head waitress and the cook."

Cal's found a playmate for Peter. His name's Tad Coyne . . . his father's looking after the landscaping of a resort known as Serene Shores.
 Got a sidelight from Big Kate on Peter's haunted house . . . says it used to be a bootleggers' hangout in prohibition days, but hints that Cal could . . . me something more about it if he cared to. So Peter's story was no make-believe.

 Wish I'd more time to be a Sherlock Holmes. Thought it queer when Cal said earlier in the day:
 "Peter's safer along the shore than in the woods."

VET it was only yesterday that I informed me there were no poisonous snakes in the state, which was quite a relief for I must confess I'm not on friendly terms with rattlers and juff adders!
 Can't agree with the old fellow.
 I'd advocate the woods for Peter every time, for the boats are anchored along the shore and how my small brother loves them!

When Tad and he appeared at the team room this afternoon just when I'd settled down to read (I get an hour off about 4 unless we're swamped with customers) they insisted I go for a walk with them, so we headed for the woods.
 "Let's take this path," Peter said. "Cal told me there is an old cabin which the men used when they were logging, and maybe Tad and I could make a fortress out of it."

"Well, if it's not too far away that might be a jolly playhouse." My thoughts turned to rainy days and Mrs. Fenwick's dislike of having small boys around, so we walked gaily along.

"Gee," cried Peter, stopping beside a tree which had a fresh gash in its bark, then glancing at the grass which was laid flat. "I bet there's been a truck in here."
 "Nonsense," I cried. "I don't believe this road goes anywhere.
 It's little more than a path."
 "But look, Sis, some heavy thing must have done this," and he pointed to a rut where the dark soil showed.

"Oh, perhaps some picnickers tried to get through, but come on, and let's find that camp for I'll have to get back to the team room before long."

Suddenly the boys stopped . . .
 Peter held up a warning hand . . . then, still peering through the dark branches of a hemlock tree, said:
 "We're close to the haunted house . . . we can't go any farther . . . if Jigger sees me, he won't give me the puppy," and, turning around, the boys headed for their fortress.

I looked in the direction Peter had looked . . . saw the shabby farmhouse . . . the door stood ajar . . . it looked deserted, but a heavy rhythmic drone filled the air. That was no country sound. Where had I heard it before?

Historic Peiping Is Center of Area Where Japanese and Chinese Face War

In the area surrounding Peiping, ancient city of Kublai Khan, and for years political and intellectual capital of China, Japanese troops of the Kwantung army, and Chinese troops from various sources are facing each other in desperate danger of general conflict as local skirmishes disturb the precarious balance.

At the Marco Polo bridge, and on Nanyuan heavy skirmishing took place. Sidings on the railroad south to Hankow were reported full of troops trains and munitions being rushed northward to the Peiping area from all provinces south of Hopei.

Meanwhile Japanese troops were advancing on Peiping by truck and on foot from Tientsin, the main railroad connection with Manchukuo, whose tracks connect with the Hankow railroad at Fengtai. Here also spirited fighting was reported. The key Japanese railroad route, the Peiping-Mukden railway, leaves Peiping southeasterly to Tientsin, but then curves northward along the Yellow sea to Shanhaiwan, where the Great Wall meets the sea, and where Japanese troops have already occupied the railroad yards to insure their connections with Manchukuo, still farther north.

Japanese strategy is believed aimed at cutting off another slice of Hopei south of Peiping, along a line below the Marco Polo bridge, Fengtai, Nanyuan and eastward, isolating northern Hopei province from the Chinese troops gathering in the south, united under Nanking leadership as never before in the face of a national emergency.

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Certain administration members who may not know any better or who may just be seeking to allay fear, are spreading the word that the current New Deal legislative program is all there is and that there isn't any more.

If anyone tells you that, ask 'em how much they want to bet. Roosevelt will make at least two more requests for major legislation at the next session of Congress and no one knows how many more after the 1938 elections. The two are:

- 1—Legislation to curb monopoly and unfair trade practices.
 - 2—Revision of the tax system.
- The nature of these pieces of legislation can be predicted now only in vague outline, but they're being worked on. An effort will be made to dovetail them closely for the administration—since the Supreme Court Social Security decisions—is sure it can use them as an instrument of social control over Big Business.
- Effort will be made to revamp the powers of the Federal Trade Commission as well as the anti-trust laws. A legislative attack on the so-called "tramp corporations," principally of Delaware, is in the cards.
- Treasury experts have been working on a broad tax program (far broader than current loophole plugging proposals) for weeks.
- Attorney General Cummings before long will appoint a committee to go into the whole field of monopoly and trade practices. It will be important to big business men to study the makeup of this committee.

Mrs. L. E. White Presents Ranger Group Over Radio:
Leaving Ranger Monday morning by automobile, Mrs. L. E. White and Mrs. W. A. Watt drove to Abilene for the purpose of presenting Barbara Ann Buchanan, Shiron Odum and Tommy Powell in a radio program later in the day heard over station KRBC, at Abilene. The three expression pupils of Mrs. White offered excellent selections and the program was climaxed with a tap dance given by Margaret Watt, accompanied at the piano by her mother. This is the second time a group of Mrs. White's pupils have been guest artists of the Abilene station this summer.

Ranger Swingesters Enjoying Busy Schedule:
The Ranger Swingesters introduced as Marce, Margaret and Tommy over WFAA again last evening presented a program of novel entertainment. Since Marjorie Clark, Margaret Adkins and Tommy Thompson, went to Fort Worth and Dallas several weeks ago they have been busily engaged in radio work which divides their time between the two cities. On Thursday evening they open for a short engagement at the Den Texas hotel where special orchestras and outstanding entertainment is offered for a program of dining and dancing. To demonstrate their musical moods, novel arrangements are worked out under the direction of the pianist. Miss Clark who gained popularity in her home town several years past for her unusual talent as an arranger of music and one who plays beautifully without the knowledge of reading music of any kind. This individuality is noted in all of her numbers.

Steed Home is Setting for Party Honoring Ovesta McCleskey:
Mrs. J. F. Steed, Mrs. W. R. Kerr, and Mrs. J. Way Harmon were co-hostesses in Steed home near Frankel, Friday afternoon from three to five o'clock honoring Miss Ovesta McCleskey, bride-elect of Mr. Comer Clay Jr., of Abilene. The date for the wedding has been named August 8, in the First Christian Church in Abilene.

Beautiful gladiolas, shasta daisies, and marigold, were used in lovely baskets and vases throughout the house. The color scheme of yellow and white was used in the entire theme of the party. Miss Margaret Kerr president at a table in the living-room which was centered with a beautiful Bride's Book, presented to the bride, and in which all guests registered. Also on the table was a miniature bride and groom fashioned under wedding bells in white, and based on a pedestal of yellow.

Each guest was presented with a Love Letter and instructed to fill out the blanks, at the end of the contest Miss McCleskey was asked to read her letter and was given a bouquet of marigolds for having the most interesting love letter. To each blossom in the bouquet was tied a card which directed Miss McCleskey to the nooks where beautiful linen gifts were found.

Lone Star and Dr. Pepper Are Winners In Games Monday

Lone Star maintained the undisputed lead in the City league standing Monday night by defeating Strawn Merchandise by a score of 11 to 4 in the first game of the evening, with Dr. Pepper shutting out the Elks by a score of 2 to 0 in the nightcap.

Lone Star, by making seven runs in the first three innings, took a big lead over Strawn Merchandise, which was never topped, and then added four more in the fourth, while Strawn was being held to one run in the second, two in the third and another in the sixth.

The Dr. Pepper-Elks game really could have ended in the second inning, though no one knew it at the time and the game went on for the regulation seven innings.

The only runs scored in a closely contested game were pushed over in the second by Dr. Pepper, after which both teams played shutout ball the remainder of the evening. Only three errors were made by both teams, Dr. Pepper making two and the Elks one, while hits were also scarce, the winners connecting for six blows to five for the losers.
