Racketeering Unions Play a Smooth Game

No matter how the individual citizen stands on the organizational rights of employes or employers, he will find it advantageous to be aware of the practices and principles—or lack of them—which distinguish racketeering from legitimate activity.

New York City has been going through a stiff course in these fundamentals with Thomas E. Dewey, special prosecutor of rackets, as teacher. And often the revelations have been startling.

The recent trial of a group of men for conspiracy to put out of business such bakeries as failed to abide by certain rules and prices established by an "association" provides some good examples of complications that may arise.

One witness testified that when a price-cutting baker was to be chastized, the organization put a "black wagon" on his route. The "black wagon," bearing no firm name, was to follow the route trucks of the price-cutter and undersell him.

A Bronx baker who suspected, but could not prove that union officials and officers of a bakers' association were conspiring to drive him out of business, told how his shop was picketed and one of his trucks burned. Other witnesses testified to payments they had made to assure continuation of "protection" and to enforce the organization's rules.

Now a price-cutting war in itself is not necessarily evidence of racketeering. Nor is the formation of a union of workers, or an association of business men. It is only when these legal forms are "borrowed" to shield illegal activities that the trouble begins.

A typical feature of the rackets is that their promoters are adept at picking out the right spot and the right time to begin without attracting attention. Usually, the best openings come when the public is enormously occupied with some other problems.

Right now, then, when scores of new, legally sanctioned unions are being formed, and uncertainty over industrial readjustment is diverting the attention of a nervous public, the field is perfectly smoke-screened for all shades and varieties of illegitimate organization projects.

The racketeer has been chased down and prosecuted, sporadically, in many communities. But he always comes back, and he always exacts the same toll from the common man, who usually already has had as much expense as his pocketbook will bear.

Therein lies an object lesson which may be painfully administered to any person unless he is forewarned and forearmed. There must be a weeding of the bad from the good, and all the good sense and discernment of everyone will be needed to do it properly.

In fact, besides those who are victimized by the chiseling imitators, many another honest person is likely to wake up some day and find himself actually affiliated with such a bunch of outlaws. That's just how smoothly the game is played.

Best-Dressed Woman

BY HELEN WELSHIMER COPYRIGHT, 1937, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER V
WITH a hurt that became a slow rhythm to which she moved, Judith went through the gestures of being a hostess Sunday morning at breakfast, pouring coffee with gay graciousness; slipping into the yellow swim suit that made her hair darker, her eyes gold-flecked; swimming across the pool again and again; presiding at the out-of-door luncheon on the flagged terrace. Then it was 4 o'clock and everyone was piling into cars to have tea at an author's up the road. She hung back. She needed a few moments to examine this strange new experience that had come, to explain it to herself, and make ready for tomorrow and tomorrow, all the tomorrows, without Phil. As dusk turned into darkness and the odor of wet, damp earth came up from the brook, she went out to the balcony that swung along the bedrooms. She did not know how long she had been standing there, in the shadows, when she became aware that someone was on the balcony with her. "Did I frighten you?" Bruce and I drove back a little while ago. It was Millicent. "Everyone else is being merry. I don't like laughter when I can't laugh." The girl pulled her chair over to Judith's corner and they sat very still, not talking, not knowing that they didn't. Behind her, in her bedroom, Judith had left one small blue lamp glowing on the dressing table. Its light was dim but when a shadow crossed it, the blur was noticeable. Judith turned her head. Had Phil come back? Did he want to see her, to explain, to take her broken world and put it together with his strong, brown fingers? It wasn't Phil. It was a woman. As her head bent over, just above the blue bulb, her hair was recklessly golden. Marta Millicent had turned, too. Together they watched. Marta picked up something, slipped it into the pocket of her white coat, and went out. When Marta had been gone fully three minutes, Judith and Millicent stepped back into the room. "You are implying that Marta, the woman I love..." He flung out the words like a banner. "Perhaps not. The beads are gone. I thought you should know." "Marta probably wanted an aspirin tablet. She asked me for one and I told her to go up to your room - I'd left a box on the dressing table. She came down with the pill and I got her a glass of water. Knight said me do it. So did the housekeeper. Does that satisfy you?" "Yes, I'm sorry, but the beads could have gone too..." "Put on your hat." Even while he gave the terse command she loved him; the narrowed eyes in the lean face, the swift strides that carried him across the room and back again. "Where are we going?" "To Marta's. You are going to see with your own eyes that she doesn't have your pearls."

Torrid Spell Is a Blow to Philately

LORAIN, O. - Philately has suffered from the heat wave. This fact was made known when Postmaster William J. Moriarty announced the discontinuance of the Lorain post office "special philatelic service." For two years, the Lorain post office had in effect a "hold-back" system for the benefit of slow-motion stamp collectors. When new special series stamps were issued, the Lorain office would hold back from over-the-counter sales, hundreds of choice copies. These holdbacks eventually were placed in some collector's album. The postoffice had become a haven for collectors in all parts of the country. As other offices sold out special issues, collectors knowing of the Lorain office's special service would write for copies of the stamps. But no more, Moriarty said. Everytime he opened one of the three special service drawers, crammed full with hold-backs, the stamps would cringe from the heat and cuddle into a sticky coil. Moriarty's policy now is every man for himself and first come first served.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
SHERBETS, mousses and ices served in tall sherbet glasses are among the delights of summer. They really aren't as much trouble as they look, and most people enjoy their pleasant sight and taste here's a simple one that comes out as a surprise. Cherry Tapioca Sherbet (4 to 6 servings) One-half cup quick cooking tapioca, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups boiling water, 1 cup strong cherry juice, grated rind 1 lemon, 2 egg whites, beaten stiff. Combine water, sugar, salt and tapioca and cook until tapioca is clear. Add cherry juice and lemon rind. Cool. When it begins to thicken, add stiffly beaten egg whites and beat until mixture is foamy. Serve in sherbet glasses, thoroughly chilled. Garnish each glass with a teaspoon whipped cream. Fluffs are made of whipped cream mixed with as much ripe and slightly sweetened fruit as the cream will hold. Fresh, thinly sliced peaches, raspberries and blackberries, are some of the better choices. Put the fluff into the tall sherbet glasses and chill completely. Garnish the top with some of the fruit just before serving. Another sherbet arrangement is a little ice cream in bottom of sherbet glass, then a layer of slightly cooked or fresh fruit and finally a deep covering of ice cream. Blackberry Sherbet (4 to 6 servings) One and one-half cups cooked blackberries, juice 1 lemon, 1 cup cream, 1-2 cups sugar, 1 cup milk. Force blackberries through sieve. Heat to boiling point. Add sugar. Stir until sugar dissolves. Cool. Add milk and cream. Add lemon juice. Mix thoroughly and pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze for two hours, or until begins to harden. Serve in glasses, and garnish with teaspoon of whipped cream with a whole blackberry on top.

Caddo had easy pickings defeating Strawn Merchandise 13 to 2 in a slow and uninteresting game Monday night, after which Killingsworth Cox and Teepie thrilled the spectators throughout eight innings before Teepie came off victor by a one-run margin in the last of the eighth. The final score was 7 to 6.
Caddo scored four times in the second inning and added six more in the third to take a big lead, after which they consoled to an easy victory, although they did annex three more runs in a fifth-inning rally.
Killingsworth Cox, dressed in flashy new uniforms, started off with a three run lead in the first inning in what appeared to be the start of another landslide victory, but Teepie made one run in the third and added two more in the fourth to tie the score and then took a two-run lead in the fifth.
The scores was tied again in the seventh when Killingsworth Cox staged a two-run rally and then they again forged ahead by scoring one run in the first of the eighth, but Teepie scored twice in the last of the eighth to win a hard earned victory. Two men were out in the last of the eighth when the winning run was scored.
Tonight the Elks play Montgomery Ward in the second game of the evening, after the Rangerettes play a challenging girls team. The Rangerettes had expected to rest tonight, but when the challenge was issued them they accepted. The name of the challenging team was not announced.

You Can't Advertise Today and Quit Tomorrow

You're Not Talking to a Mass Meeting . . . You're Talking to a Parade!

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising - made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however, favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously-or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

WASHINGTON.—The vaunted dignity of high courts doesn't get them from taking an occasional kick at the judicial... of the appellee here, James Vernon Company, and its employees. "We again follow the latest decisions of the Supreme Court, and hold that the decree herein should be vacated, the motion for injunction denied and the bill dismissed. It is so ordered."

HENRY COTTON is the Gene Tunney of the fairways. No fighter made a more intelligent study of his profession than money. No golfer concentrated more intensely on the highly specialized art of golf than Cotton.

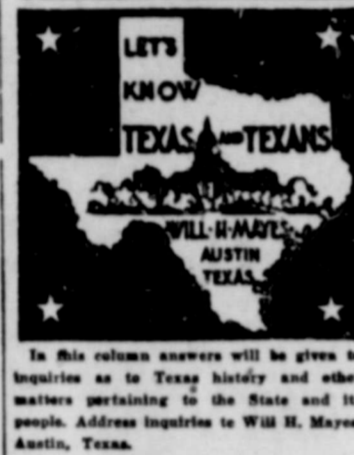

OTTON starts down so slowly that observers wonder how he ever gets going. This is a comfortable stance for a golfer because he walks Indian style, whereas the average person out there is a runner.

OTTON starts down so slowly that observers wonder how he ever will generate sufficient power and when he will begin to accelerate. He delays the actual hit longer than any other golfer and this is the secret of his genius.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

IT is estimated that rodents, insects, and other wild life leave only twenty-five per cent of the range grass for live stock.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. What weak spot in Capt. Moseley Baker's life gave Houston opportunity for revenge and how did Baker meet it?
A. Houston found that Baker had forged a check for a large amount and cashed it before leaving Alabama for Texas.

Q. When did Capt. Moseley Baker join the Texas Army?
A. Baker came to Texas from Alabama in March, 1835, and joined the Texas Army Feb. 3, 1836, when war against Mexico seemed evident. He recruited a company of 120 men mostly from between the Brazos and Colorado rivers, and was elected its captain, March 1, 1836.

Q. Who was the last survivor of the Battle of San Jacinto?
A. Alphonso Steele, who was born in Hardin County, Ky., April 9, 1871; came to Texas the latter part of 1835; joined the Texas Army in March, 1836, on its retreat from Gonzales; was severely wounded at San Jacinto, where he was a member of Capt. James Gillespie's company; settled near Montgomery after the war; moved to Limestone county in 1844 where he lived until his death, July 7, 1911. He and his wife, Mary Ann Powell, to whom he was married Sept. 28, 1838, are buried at Mexia.

Poet Does His Best While Milking Cows

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Tex.—Marvin Miller of Abilene, 20-year-old poet who has several scholastic prizes to his credit, said on a visit here that he composed while milking his cows.

Miller said he gets the proper cadence as the stream of milk splashed softly on the side of the pail for a slow beat or splatters on the bottom for a heavy beat. The youthful milker's poems have won him a scholarship at Hardin-Simmons University in his home town and prizes in state and national poetry contests for students.

C. E. May Buys Out The McRae Agency

Announcement was made today of the purchase of the insurance and rental agency owned and operated by John D. McRae, by C. E. May. The purchase was effective as of Aug. 1.

McRae, who has been in ill health for sometime and who has been unable to continue managing the business, has announced that he will move to Arizona, where it is expected that his health will improve.

The business purchase of May includes all the insurance business and management of considerable real estate in Ranger, including the P. & Q. Building and the block of buildings from the Piggly Wiggly corner to the A. & P. Grocery and about 10 residences in the city.

Telling When Melons Thump Properly Is Considered An Art

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Tex.—Watermelon thumpers need a strong forefinger and a keen sense of hearing to tell whether a melon is green, half-green, ripe or over-ripe.

That is the analysis of Phil Handler, who coaches the professional Chicago Cardinal football team in winter and runs an outdoor watermelon "garden" in summer.

For 15 years Handler has made his summertime expenses by thumping watermelons and serving them in slices. Several times he has bought melons which should have been picked two weeks later—or a week earlier. Once he spent a summer's profits by buying 200 luscious looking watermelons that turned out to be pie melons—unfit to serve in slices.

But from his years of experience, Handler has developed the following formula:

Thump with the forefinger—the middle finger is unreliable.

If you thump and the melon goes "plunk"—it's green. If it goes "plank" it may be half-ripe. If the sound is "plunk" with a slight roll to it, buy . . . because there is a ripe melon ready to eat.

If you thump and the sound is "garumph"—a groan—let it alone. The melon is overripe.

As in all rules, there are exceptions and fine points. The finest point is to thump with the forefinger and thump hard. A half-hearted thump won't do.

Another connoisseur's advantage

Coach Meyer Plans Horned Frogs' Campaign

1937 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Sept. 25—Ohio State at Columbus
Oct. 2—Arkansas at Fayetteville
Oct. 9—Tulsa at Fort Worth
Oct. 16—Texas A. & M. at Fort Worth
Oct. 23—Fordham at New York City
Oct. 30—Baylor at Waco
Nov. 6—Centenary at Shreveport
Nov. 13—Texas at Austin
Nov. 20—Rice at Fort Worth
Nov. 27—S. M. U. at Fort Worth (Homecoming)

"We're sweating now in the hope that we will be able to keep a little cooler next fall," says Coach Dutch Meyer of T. C. U., as he diagrams a Horned Frog grid play and talks it over with his assistants, Mike Brumbelow (left) and Howard Grubbs. Coach Meyer is charting more than 100 plays for the 1937 campaign, which opens Sept. 25 against the Ohio State Buckeyes at Columbus.

is in knowing the kind of watermelon. Some of them have tight rinds and won't give out a "plunk" when they are ready to eat. Such melons should be eaten when "plunk" answers your thump. Handler started in the watermelon business when he was 15—the year he bought the pie melons. After that he graduated from high school; became an all-Southwest conference football guard at Texas Christian University in 1929 and played professionally with the Chicago Cardinals for five years and now is a successful coach. Each summer, however, he forgets football to follow his art of melon-thumping.

FLIGHT KILLS PIGEON

By United Press
SCHEENECTADY, N. Y. — A carrier pigeon died in Ellis hospital after completing 350 miles of a 600-mile race from Lansing, Mich., to Boston. W. M. Hartman, hospital pharmacist, said the bird was "too tucked out" to continue the flight.
