Annual Fair Comes To a Close At Eastland

LOCATION IS PICKED FOR HICKEY OFFSET

Hoffmann and Page company of Eastland this week-end were moving in material and rigging up for a direct west offset to the recently completed Hickey et al No. 1 W. M. Martin which was rated for 100 barrels daily. Both are near Desdemona.

The location is 314 feet west of the Hickey No. 1 Martin. Depth of 3,200 feet is contemplated unless production in commercial quantities is encountered at a lesser depth. Surface hole is 15 inches.

Location is 157 feet from the east line and 415 feet from the south line of the 74 1-2 acre W. C. Clayton farm in the D. J. Millard survey. As the discovery well, the No. 1 Clayton is in Erath county.

W. A. Stiles of Eastland stated his drilling company was preparing to make location for a 4,000-foot test in the Tuxedo area, 10 miles southeast of Stamford. A total of 7,000 acres have been blocked.

Hightower Oil and Refining corporation made application with the Railroad Commission to drill No. 2 R. M. Low (199 acres) section 52 N. E. Iron survey, three miles northwest of Brownwood. Location is near a recent 1,600,000 foot gas well completed by the corporation on the same tract. Also it adjoins a 300 acre tract on which the same company completed a gas well for approximately the same amount of gas. Buckner's Orphan owns the land on which the recent well was completed and which adjoins the Low land. The gas production was reached at approximately 1,600 feet.

In Comanche county the Gallagher-Lawson et al No. 1 Terry, the deep test watched by the section, was drilling at 4,398 feet after completing an underreaming job.

Stocks Sell Off As Roosevelt Tells of New Deal Reforms

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Wall Street, nervous over President Roosevelt's constitution day speech, in which he repeated his determination to press new deal reforms, sold stocks in the short, week-end session today.

The market dropped sharply in heavy volume for a time but steadied in quieter trading before the close.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt clearly indicated to a constitution day audience and to the nation that he intends to fight for changes in the supreme court.

Of a total income of $34,328,560 for the last fiscal year, King reported that $29,163,960 was received under constitutional provisions and $5,164,600 was provided by statute in addition to the money that must go to schools under the constitution.

It is estimated that $2,000,000 a year will be needed for the state to match teacher payments into the teacher retirement fund.

Principal sources of revenue for the year were $6,246,820 from ad valorem taxes, $730,416 from poll taxes, $9,854,619 from gross receipts and occupation taxes, $9,953,831 from gasoline taxes, $4,951,878 from stamp taxes, $88,794 from license fees and permits and $3,275,250 from interest on permanent bond investments.

Heavy Poll Tax Payment Is Seen For Next Year As Candidates Begin Making Announcements

AUSTIN.—Heavy poll tax paying is expected this fall because of the early opening of the 1938 race for governor, attorney general and other state-wide elective offices.

Formal announcements still are lacking in the governorship contest. Announcements have been made for some of the other offices. Lack of formal announcement is not slowing up the race for governor.

Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson and Attorney General William McCraw are overlooking no opportunities to aid their chances in that race. How many meetings each has addressed already probably never will be known.

Taxes Are Levied

Commissioner's court has levied a $1.75 poll tax for 1937, 25 cents of which goes to the county. An occupation tax one-half that of the state has been levied against occupations not exempted by law.

National crude oil production increased by an average of 35,800 barrels daily during the week-ended today, the Oil Weekly reported.

The daily average total was 3,365,825 barrels and exceeded the U. S. Bureau of Mines estimate of demand by 156,525 barrels for September.

Texas wells showed an average of 7,200 barrels for a total of 14,486,600 daily.

AUSTIN, Sept. 18.—A tight rein on Texas oil production to prevent over storage when gasoline demand falls off for the winter and continuation of the Texas ratio were considered likely here today from statements made by Railroad Commission Ernest O. Thompson.

$1.50 FIXED AS TAX RATE FOR COUNTY

Commissioners' court, it was disclosed Saturday in records filed in County Clerk R. V. Galloway's office, has set $1.50 as the county tax rate against this year's valuations.

This marks the second consecutive year the county rate has been placed at $1.50. In immediate preceding years prior to the $1.50 mark the tax rates have been $1.40, $1.30 and $1.20.

The state's tax rate has already been set at 45 cents.

Following is a breakdown of the $1.50 rate: Jury fund, 6 cents; road and bridge fund, 15 cents; general fund, 25 cents; court house and jail fund, 7 cents; court house interest and sinking fund, 11 cents; road bond interest and sinking fund, 82 cents, and special county hospital maintenance fund, 4 cents.

A cent has been added to the road bond interest and sinking fund. The tax rate this year, however, stood as last year because it was no longer necessary to have the one cent oil courthouse fund as that was recently cleared up in the final payment.

Estimated county collections in 1938 are $229,750. Estimate for this year is $223,600. Actual collection in 1936 was $214,690.73.

Indian Summer and the County Fairs

Some of the leaves are already turning dull brown and red and gold, fluttering from swaying limbs like invitations to a preview of autumn. Indian Summer and all its cheerful promises can't be far away.

And with the fall comes the opening of school, the kickoff, chilly mornings, the yellow harvest and its yellower moon, bonfires and county fairs—most of all county fairs.

Few things are as remarkable in this age of rural development, radios and fast transportation as the survival, even the steady gain, of the county fair. Essentially it hasn't changed very much from the first event of its kind ever held in this country—back in 1810 when Elkannah Watson, a "gentleman farmer" in the vicinity of Albany, N. Y., conceived the idea of a Berkshire cattle show.

A show that began as a display of cattle broadened to take in other products of the farm and inevitably grew into that item of American life that is probably better known and more typical than any other today.

It spells demonstration barns lined with pens of grunting, over-weight hogs, moody-eyed bulls, grouching milk cows and proud peckerons; long cakes of watted turkeys, strutting roosters, inquisitive hens, noisy ducks and geese. It recalls white-covered tables with heavy cargoes of cakes, layer, chocolate, angel and the inevitable marble; open lacing over the top.

Two decades ago it was wagons and buggies with enough cold fried chicken to last four days while the hapless hired hand stayed at home to do the chores and steal a nap at high noon. Now it is bulky trucks and shiny sedans, with a 30-minute drive home in the evening. But it's the same fair then and now.

The midway hasn't changed. The same barker is just as fascinating and the same prizes have the same usefulness. The two-headed calf and Little Egypt (did you ever see your mother put a plate of jello out on a cold frosty morning?) are there, or their counterparts. The roller coaster and the ferris wheel and the merry-go-round may have a coat of paint, but that's all.

There are 3000 state, district and county—mostly county—fairs held in the United States every year. Some of them, like the February carnivals of Florida and the July fairs of California, aren't held in the fall. But those are just offshoots of the original autumn-bearing pennial. To most of the populace, the first brisk, nipping fall wind will bring memories, and you can just about wager the memories aren't far away from the county fair grounds.

A Frenchman invented the tin can in 1809, it is claimed, but some of those auto jokes go farther back than that.

Successful or not, the fate of most stratosphere balloon ascensions is that they go up in thin air.

OUT OF THE NIGHT

CHAPTER IV
Cilly awakened with a start next morning to an insistent ringing. She sat up in bed sleepily.
It had been a fitful night. The little clock on the dressing table pointed to 8:30. Hurriedly, she jumped out of bed.
Eight-thirty! She'd overslept a whole hour. They'd both be very late for work. She turned around to awaken Amy. Then, in a flash, the whole ghastly nightmare came back to her.
It wasn't a dream, then. Amy was gone.
Again the bell rang. Thoroughly awake now, Cilly recognized it.
The doorbell. She slipped on her kimono—the same Japanese ki-monono she had worn last night to interview Sergeant Dolan and the doctor—and went to the door. It was Sergeant Dolan now, perhaps.
But it was not Sergeant Dolan at the door. It was a woman, a nervous, indefinite little woman whom Cilly did not recognize.
"Good morning," the little woman said in a frightened, shy manner. "I'm sorry to get you up like this—but I had to see you right away. I'm Mrs. Corbett, from across the way."

Illustration by Ed Gunder

"I tell you, Miss Pierce, I'm so upset I don't know what to do.
And my mother's in an awful state. You see, I live over there in the St. Ann apartment, on the fifth floor. My mother lives with me, and this week Mr. Corbett lost of town. We were both alone last night. We went to bed early —about 10:30, I guess. Mother wasn't feeling so well."
Cilly listened attentively.
"Mrs. Corbett," Mrs. Corbett
continued. "Terrible attacks of it.
Well, last night I guess I must have fallen asleep right away, but mother felt badly. She couldn't get her breath—you know how it is with asthma. So she got up and sat at the window to get more air
... she was sitting there when it happened."

"She didn't fall, Miss Pierce," she whispered. "She was thrown off that roof. A man picked her up and bodily threw her off."

quietest neighbor... But now
... I don't want to stay here another night. I tell you—"Have you told the police?"
Cilly interrupted.
Mrs. Corbett's pale eyes widened in horror. "Oh, no! I couldn't do that! Why, I've never had any dealings with the police—and I'm sure Mr. Corbett wouldn't want me to get mixed up in a murder."

BULLDOGS WIN FIRST GAME IN THEIR NEW STADIUM BY 13 TO 0

The Ranger Bulldogs opened their new stadium Friday afternoon by earning their first football victory since 1934, when they defeated the Strawn Greyhounds by a score of 13 to 0.

Strawn gained six yards, aided by a five-yard penalty and then kicked to Ranger's 39, where 17 plays, with four first downs, carried to the Strawn 15, where the ball went over to Strawn. Strawn made one play and kicked to the Ranger 37, and Ranger was held on her 40, and quick-kicked to the Strawn 37. Strawn tried two passes and kicked to the Ranger 25 and the ball was returned 15 yards to the 40. Whitefield raced to the four. Whitefield lost one yard on the first play but carried over for the touchdown on the second and then kicked goal to bring the score to 13 to 0, where it remained throughout the game.

EASTLAND MAVS HOLD LIONS UNTIL THIRD WHEN LACK OF RESERVES MAKES ITS MARK

Handicapped by a lack of reserves, the Eastland High School Mavericks fought an up-hill battle Friday afternoon on their home field against the Brownwood Lions who won 13 to 0.

Rice added another three yards nearer the goal. Despite a penalty setting them back to the 31-yard line the Lions were put back toward the goal by a run of Butler to the 11-yard stripe. McHorse carried on there to the five-yard line and went three feet further. The next play by McHorse put the ball over for the second touchdown. Butler's kick went awry in the try for the extra point.

CLEANING UP PIRATES IN THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS SINGLE-HANDED JOB FOR BRASH YOUNG UNCLE SAM BACK JUST 132 YEARS IN HISTORY

FOUR-YEAR WAR TERMINATED COSAIRS' DEMAND FOR TRIBUTE

BY MORRIS GILBERT NEA Service Staff Writer

TODAY you wouldn't believe your eyes if the newspaper headlines read: "U. S. NAVY ACTS ALONE TO CLEAR MEDITERRANEAN OF PIRATES."

Yet your Uncle Sammy—a younger and rasher Uncle Sammy—did just that in the year 1805. And the European nations, unlike the situation today, were content to let him go about the business of cleaning up their own waters without concerning themselves.

Not only the Navy, but U. S. Marines saw action. That's why, today, their great service song goes, "From the Halls of Montezuma to the Shores of Tripoli."

The reason the United States waged the War of the Barbary Pirates, which lasted four years and was the training ground for an immortal cluster of American naval heroes, has a strangely modern ring. Piracy, up to that time, had existed there for centuries because of the complacency of the big European nations.

CAPTURED BY PIRATES, AMERICAN WARSHIP BURNED AND SUNK

The United States, youthful and impoverished, much against it will jump into action when the piracy grew too rampant to stand. It ceased paying tribute, waged a four-year sea war, besieged Tripoli, and won its case.

America's hands-off policy today makes a difference. The question is whether Europe will be able to read the lessons of history and crush piracy—which, by definition, is criminal acts with violence at sea—the way Edward Preble, Stephen Decatur, William Bainbridge and other American naval heroes crushed it between the years 1801 and 1805.

TREACHERY and violations of all codes of international warfare were commonplace of the war. For instance, a corsair battling an American vessel would strike his flag in token of surrender, then, having maneuvered into a favorable position, would open fire again. On one such occasion, a pirate captain hauled down his flag three times, the third time tossing it clean overboard to prove that he finally really meant it.

U. S. NAVY BLOCKADES PIRATE STRONGHOLD IN MEDITERRANEAN

The Americans had recently captured a ketch whose native rigging wouldn't cause alarm to the Tripolitans. Preble ordered Decatur to man this craft with 70 men and five officers, enter the harbor and destroy the Philadelphia. In February, 1804, conveyed by the U. S. S. Siren, the little Intrepid (as the ketch had been christened) entered the harbor by night, the Siren standing far off shore. Decatur's men were kept below hatches, only a small squad dressed in native costume remaining on deck to work the vessel.

They got to hear him forecast the week's results every Thursday night, and comment on each week's games every Saturday night. Both Thursday and Saturday "College Night" programs will be broadcast at 6:30 p. m. by stations WFAA-WIAP, KPRO and WOAI of the Texas Quality Network.

25-Year Gridiron Official Resigns To 'Mike' Games

Ben Lee Boynton, who has been one of the leading officials in Southwestern football for 12 years, and who has played in or officiated in ten or more games every year for a quarter of a century, has abandoned the gridiron this fall to serve as football commentator for the Coca-Cola Bottling Companies of Texas, which are sponsoring the "College Night" radio broadcasts and weekly name-the-winners football contests, according to Wilson W. Crook, of the Crook Advertising Agency, which is handling the state-wide campaign.

AN AMERICAN naval disaster which turned into a triumph for young Stephen Decatur is portrayed below: the grounding and loss of the frigate Philadelphia after she pursued a pirate vessel into the very harbor of Tripoli. Decatur, at right, and a volunteer crew later destroyed the frigate under the guns of the enemy to deprive them of the use of the man-of-war.

Philadelphia blazed to her grave, the Intrepid slipped safely out of the harbor and reached the open sea.

THAT SUMMER Preble's squadron executed an effective blockade of Tripoli and attacked the city by sea four times. Land forces under the quixotic and redoubtable Connecticut Yankee consul, William Eaton, swept westward along the coast from Alexandria, took the town of Derna and threatened the native ruler. At sea, convoy work and frequent combats proved to the corsairs that the Americans were more than their match in the brutal business of hand-to-hand fighting as well as the delicate business of coming ships and serving guns. One by one, all four northern African powers, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia and Tripoli, had enough.

That all the (European) maritime powers, writes the English historian, Stanley Lane-Poole, "should have covered and cringed as they did before the miserable bragwags who succeeded the heroic age of the Corsairs, and should have suffered their trade to be harassed, their lives menaced and their honor stained by a series of insolent savages... seems absolutely incredible and yet is literally true... These days of abasement were pierced by one ray of sunlight; the United States refused the tribute demanded by the Barbary Rovers."

The United States, youthful and impoverished, much against it will jump into action when the piracy grew too rampant to stand.

Stephen Decatur achieved the pinnacle of fame in destroying the captive American frigate, Philadelphia, pride of our marine, The Philadelphia had pursued a corsair into the harbor of Tripoli until shallow water halted her under the guns of the fort there. Coming about to make for the open sea again, the frigate fetched up on a shoal. Captain William Bainbridge was obliged to surrender and he and his men were imprisoned after attempting to sink the vessel. It was a serious blow to our navy, especially when Commodore Edward Preble learned that the Tripolitans had hanged to float and re-arm her.

They got to hear him forecast the week's results every Thursday night, and comment on each week's games every Saturday night. Both Thursday and Saturday "College Night" programs will be broadcast at 6:30 p. m. by stations WFAA-WIAP, KPRO and WOAI of the Texas Quality Network.

NEW YORK.—Japanese golfers seek Gene Sarazen as a golfing partner, but their substituting trench mortars for sand wedges in their bunker blasting operations may result in the Squire of Valley Ridge Farm changing the itinerary of his current round-the-world trip.

The Nipponese long ago established themselves as the world's greatest imitators. Just the other day the well-proportioned Jack Medica bowed to a little brown man in a swimming race in the Land of the Rising Sun. The remarkable University of Washington paddler found himself out-piced.

Japanese vaulters rank next to our Seftons, Meadows, and Varoffs. After getting American fern down pat, they introduced slender poles to make up for what they lack in height.

Torchy Toda wanted me to play an exhibition match against him in Tokio, because my short stature is similar to the Japanese build, and thus they could use me as a model in designing a Nipponese swing," says Sarazen.

"I have held all the titles that they also were against Hagen, who did the same thing. "I can tell you that he finally really meant it. Once, in battle, a Tripolitan captain surrendered. When the young brother of Stephen Decatur boarded the vessel, the captain shot him dead with a pistol. Stephen heard of Crook. SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

YEARS ago one of the best housewives of Okmulgee, Oklahoma, sent a recipe for cantaloupe butter to the editor of the Okmulgee Daily Times. Like all shrewd editors, he knew that good food is spot news. So the recipe was published. That was years ago. Last month an old resident recalled that cantaloupe butter. But she had forgotten the recipe. She wrote to Joseph N. Croom, managing editor. Mr. Croom couldn't remember either, so he printed an S. O. S. in his paper and promptly rushing into his sanctum came over 60 recipes for cantaloupe butter, including the original one. Below is printed the historical recipe that first made Okmulgee cantaloupe butter famous.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Fresh grape juice, corn meal griddle cakes, crisp bacon, syrup, coffee, milk. LUNCHEON: Split pea soup with frankfurter ring, crisp rolls, Okmulgee cantaloupe butter, tea, milk. SUPPER: Grapefruit juice, breaded veal cutlet, brown sauce, cantaloupe conserve, mashed potatoes, stuffed tomatoes, apple brown Betty, hard sauce, coffee, milk.

is Mrs. George W. Gaperton who wrote to Mr. Croom the amazing news that she could make not only cantaloupe butter, but also pumpkin butter, watermelon preserves, cantaloupe preserves and other such things. And she proves her claim to distinction by this recipe for muskmelon.

Muskmelon Butter

Select ripe melons, cut in halves, remove rind, seeds and soft part. Place melons in preserving kettle with as little water as possible, just enough to cover melons. Boil until tender. Press through colander and measure. To each quart of pulp, add 1-2 cup sugar, juice of half a lemon, and a little cinnamon, if desired. Boil until the mixture is thick enough to spread (about 3 minutes), stirring constantly to prevent burning. Pack the hot butter into jars and seal immediately.

All of the above will explain why your food editor is hoping to receive an invitation from Mr. Croom of the Okmulgee Daily Times to stop off sometime and sit in at a typical Okmulgee home dinner. People who know how to treat cantaloupe so handsomely must be nice folks.

Cupid Hovers Over the White House Again

Cupid has bagged the last of President Roosevelt's children. It is very obvious from the expressions of Anne Lindsay Clark and John Aspinwall Roosevelt that they have eyes only for each other. The often denied engagement of the couple was admitted by Miss Clark's mother at Nahant, Mass., where Roosevelt, youngest and only unmarried member of his family, has been visiting his fiancée. There won't be a wedding, though, until Roosevelt is graduated from Harvard next June.

Due to the fact that officers and members of the Troop have hikes scheduled for twice each month, these Scouts are getting much worthwhile outdoor training. Assistant Scoutmaster Davis Fields, with thirteen of his Scouts of Troop No. 49, Cicco, hiked to Lake Cicco, Friday for an overnight stay. Much of the time was spent in test passing.

CINCINNATI — A check for $2,500 soon will be received by John N. Brooks, Cincinnati negro, who for 16 years has striven to get back the money he lost when a faithless friend jumped the bond that Brooks had put up to bail him out of jail. It was back in 1921 when Brooks, taking pity on a former schoolmate who was in jail on a charge of stealing cigarettes from a freight car, gave bond for him. The friend, not being the friend Brooks had thought he was, skipped the bond and disappeared. Brooks, at a loss at having to pay the $2,500 bond, searched the country for the fugitive until finally in 1925 the government said the bond would have to be met.

Brooks paid, but he continued his search. Then 1929 rolled along — the year the depression hit the country — and Brooks was one of the many whose finances were depleted. He even lost his home through foreclosure, the home that the $2,500 would have saved had he not lost it through his faithless friend. More ironical was the fact that Brooks in that year had at last located the fugitive—but too late. The government was no longer interested in him since eight years had passed and witnesses were no longer available. So Brooks turned to Uncle Sam, pleading for the money he needed so badly. One congress had no ears for his plea. Undaunted, he placed it before the new congress that met last January. Congressman Herbert S. Bigelow spoke for Brooks and introduced a bill to pay the negro his money. The bill passed and the money will soon be paid.

Fish Are Saved In Streams Drying Up

KERRVILLE, Texas. — Game wardens have salvaged 1,150 perch and 2,500 bass and a number of catfish from rapidly drying smaller streams in Kerr county. Bill Garrett and Tom Shannon are the county wardens and they salvaged the fish from Town, Quinlan and Indian creeks. The fish were liberated in the Guadalupe river between Ingram and Legion. A great many of the fish, particularly the perch, were large. This work was to continue as the water gets lower in the small streams.

then was laughed out of the deal. The business men wanted the ground to expand their building. The city attorney ruled that since the street belonged to the people and the city council was elected by them, the council had the right to sell the tract.

Citizens, outraged until they saw the humor of the situation, flooded the council with so many requests for similar purchases that the councilmen, unable to withstand the ribbing, rescinded the sale and restored Main street to the people.

Running an Engine on Water

A London, Ont., machinist, Fred Dicy, has invented a machine he declares will run on water, and is shown, above, pouring fuel fresh from the well into the tank while Phil Martin, another machinist, plays an acetylene torch on the liquid just to prove it isn't gasoline. High pressure and temperature are used to break the water into hydrogen and oxygen. The hydrogen then is exploded, creating power to run the motor. Other inventors have claimed success with water-driven engines, but none has been successful.

Legends of Gold In Gila River Country Being Investigated

By United Press
EL PASO. — Legends of hidden gold in the Apache country near the headquarters of the Gila river in New Mexico are being investigated by J. Frank Dobie, southwestern folklore collector, who says he is interested in writing about the country more than in finding the bonanza.

The cowboy author is spending most of his time talking with grizzled El Paso prospectors, trying to acquire data concerning the "Lost Adams Diggings."

Dobie said the tales he had heard about the "diggings" ran something like this:

In 1864 a man by the name of Adams and about 20 other men were in the vicinity of Tucson searching for gold. The party found a half-breed Indian who said he knew where the men could find all the gold they wanted. He was given $1,000 and led the prospectors into New Mexico, near the headwaters of the Gila river.

After several days' travel through the Apache country, the half-breed stopped in a canyon and the men did find gold, the tale goes. The Indian said that the main lode was further on, but the group had found all they could handle so they stayed.

The party panned gold and picked up nuggets, and all was well until the food supply ran low. Four of the party went to old Fort Wingate to get food and supplies. Several days later, two of the group at the camp started out to find the mules, which had strayed.

While they were gone the remainder of the men were started by Apache yells and they saw Indians killing the men returning from Fort Wingate with supplies. The mule hunters came along at that unfortunate time and met with the same fate.

Adams and the rest of the camp party fled. When Adams reached civilization, only one companion was alive, the rest having died on the trail or perished in encounters with Indians that constantly harassed them.

Adams had one gold nugget that sold for $900, Dobie said he learned.

In later years Adams tried to find the canyon again, but his efforts were fruitless. It has been sought every year since the half-breed led the Adams band to it. Dobie said that he had received dozens of letters from old prospectors who offered to help him find the mine. Some of them live in El Paso, others in Silver City and Lordsburg, N. M. Dobie plans to talk with as many as possible.

"I'm not trying to find the mine," Dobie said, "but I would like to write about it. I like to see the ground I write about."

Dobie is the author of "Coronado's Children." He said the title of his new book may be "Secrets of the Malpais." Malpais is the lava rock found extensively in New Mexico.

Orchids to You But Ore to Prospectors

NEW YORK. — Prospectors for iron ore, though they may be hard-boiled and weather-beaten, may have to know their orchids and have some knowledge of botany, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

In many regions in this country and others, distinctive vegetation definitely indicates a soil condition associated with deposits of iron ore, and knowledge of this fact helps the prospector.

In Brazil and Venezuela iron is found where a certain type of rare and beautiful orchid blooms. In the latter country, moreover, the presence of a little tree called the "coco" invariably indicates iron ore deposits.

The ore deposits of Cuba support a heavy growth of pine, and partly because of this Columbus is said to have discovered iron on his first voyage to the New World. One of his ships was forced to put in to the north coast of the island to refit a broken mast, and beneath the pine trees which was cut down for a new mast, ore was found.

In the Lake Superior and in the New York state iron regions of this country the botanically-minded prospector is less fortunate. In prehistoric times a huge ice sheet swept away accumulations of distinctly iron-bearing soil.

However, in the southern part of the United States, which was not overridden by glaciers, the outcrop of iron-bearing formations can be traced through distinctive vegetation. In the Southeast, for instance, the iron ore deposits are commonly overgrown with cedar in much thicker growth than are found in non-iron bearing soil. In the East Texas "brown ore" field, outcrops of the ore-bearing green sand support relatively heavy growths of hardwood, almost the only hardwood in the locality.

Search for Talent May Reveal Film Stars of the Near Future

Edward Carrier, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer test director, crew and Maureen O'Sullivan.

Who will be the film stars of tomorrow? Will a Ranger person be among them? Executives of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, world's foremost production organization, sincerely believe that tomorrow's stars will come from the ranks of America's "unknowns," just as did Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer and their other great stars.

In the earnest hope that they may discover some new stars by this means, the M-G-M company has literally turned Texas into a private hunting preserve in an intensive search for new talent and has asked the Ranger Times and the Interstate-Texas Consolidated Theatres of which the Arcadia is one, to aid them in discovering persons with screen possibilities in this area.

To make this possible, M-G-M has determined to make a series of screen tests right in the state itself instead of making the tests in the studio. To accomplish this unusual feat it became necessary to send a full test crew to Texas where they will make tests in Ft. Worth, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio.

Equipped with the finest possible aids, C. Edward Carrier, M-G-M's crack test director and his crew of cameramen, technicians and makeup experts will make 75 tests of that many persons selected in advance auditions in towns all over the state. In Ranger the Arcadia will participate by conducting search for talent auditions on Wednesday and Thursday, October 6 and 7.

But that is only half the story. Although the 75 tests will be forwarded to the M-G-M studios for study by studio executives and talent scouts, four of those tested will be selected by C. Edward Carrier, M-G-M test director, and sent to the studio with all expenses paid for further studio tests.

If you think you have "what it takes" to win a place in Hollywood this is your golden opportunity. Never before has any such opportunity been offered to those with screen ambitions and no chance to realize them. Here for the first time the studio is being brought to the ambitious one. As a matter of fact, it is the studio's desire to keep ambitious people away from Hollywood where they are almost certain to find disappointment and possibly endure hardships.

All this sounds too good to be true. So wonderful, perhaps, that you may think there's a "catch" in it. But there isn't. It costs nothing to take advantage of this marvelous opportunity, and the rules are quite simple.

All entrants must reside within the circulation area of The Ranger Times.

Participants must be between the ages of sixteen and twenty-eight.

Those who have had screen in any nationally distributed motion picture or registered with the Central Casting Bureau will not be eligible, nor will employees of M-G-M, Interstate-Texas Consolidated Theatres, or of The Ranger Times.

And now, all that it is necessary to do is to fill out the application blank appearing in this paper, paste it to the back of a recent photograph and mail it under first class postage to the M-G-M Search for Talent Editor of The Times.

This entry blank, properly filled out, must be accompanied by photograph of entrant and both must be mailed to the M-G-M Search for Talent at Arcadia Theatre, Ranger, on or before October 5th. In signing and submitting this application entrants agree to abide by the decisions of the judges in all phases of selective auditions to be conducted at the Arcadia, October 6 and 7, and grant permission of The Times to publish their photograph and other information submitted herein. Photographs may be called for after the auditions close.

Drive Launched On Relationship for Tenant Farmer

A new drive is being launched to improve relationships between land-owners and those tenants who are being financed by the Farm Security (formerly Resettlement) Administration, it was stated by Geo. I. Lane, county supervisor.

Recommendations of a committee of supervisors are now being printed for guidance of all county offices in Texas and Oklahoma. The 45,000 farm tenant families in these two states who are being financed by Farm Security can blaze a trail for the remainder of the 147,000 Texas and Oklahoma tenant families, the supervisor declared.

The committee report recommends that leases be prepared at a conference between landlord, tenant, and county supervisor. The lease should always be in writing, it was suggested, because "disturbance frequently exists, and because of the human element of forgetfulness as to what agreements have been made." A long-time lease was recommended, in place of the one-year lease now commonly used.

Cancellation clauses were suggested, for use by either party, for reasonable cause, at least ninety days before expiration of any lease year. "Where it is absolutely impossible to obtain long-time leases, we feel that one year leases should be automatically renewed, unless one of the parties gives notice sixty to ninety days before expiration," the committee said.

Each Farm Security borrower is working under a long-time plan, and it was recommended that the lease encourage him to make improvements which will aid in carrying out that plan. Improvements which he makes should be considered the property of the tenant, and he should either be allowed to remove them at expiration of the lease, the report said, or an understanding should be included in the lease as to how the tenant should be compensated.

Present division of crops, on the "third and fourth" basis, was declared inequitable. "On good land it is usually to the disadvantage of the landlord, and on poor land to the disadvantage of the tenant," the report declared, urging that "a fairer distribution should be made, based upon the respective contributions of the landlord and tenant."

Cream of Tenant Farmers Moving to Their Own Farms

DALLAS, Texas.—What Farm Security Administration believes to be the "cream of the tenant farmers" of North Central Texas began this week to move into new homes on 133 farms being bought on 40-year terms at 3 per cent interest.

Hiram Cates, Kaufman county tenant farmer who said he had given up hope of ever owning his land, was one of the first to move in. He took possession of a tract that he had "kept an eye on since I was a boy. All I ever thought I would own."

Cates rented this land last year for $695. From now on, he will pay only $243 a year, and instead of renting, he will be buying it. The $243 will cover his annual installment of principal and interest.

The 112 acres Cates is buying has produced 240 to 287 pounds of lint cotton to the acre for the three years that he rented it. His income from cotton alone on this land would run, at present prices, from $1200 to $1500 a year. He counts upon paying out the purchase price in much less than the 40 years.

Six years ago Cates came back from a farming venture into West Texas, broke. All that he brought home was his wife and five children, and household goods in a trailer. He had no equipment and had to start "share-cropping."

After two years he bought his landlord's teams and equipment for $1,000 credit and paid off the debt in 18 months.

Cates' net assets were estimated this year by farm security investigators at more than $3,000.

A few minutes later, the woman, after apologizing, drove away. Her automobile had a dented radiator, scratched fender and bent bumper.

Farmers Trek to The Northwest

SEATTLE. — Twelve thousand farm families, or approximately 60,000 persons left the "dust bowl" of the great plains and settled in Oregon, Idaho and Washington between Jan., 1936, and July, 1937, a resettlement administration survey of the drought influx reveals.

Walter A. Duffy, regional resettlement director, said conservative estimates of county rehabilitation services, based on school and automobile registrations, contacts with county agents and relief officers and rehabilitation loan applicants, reported 7,400 drought families in 1936 and 4,600 in the first six months of 1937 as permanently or temporarily settled in the three states.

Statistics showed that fewer than 5,000 of the 12,000 settling in the three states have succeeded in locating on a farm through a purchase contract, lease or other tenure agreement.

Duffy attributed the growing influx of drought family settlers to optimistic reports of conditions in the Pacific Northwest conducted by real estate campaigns and to strict transient and labor laws in California.

"The problem of assimilating farm families from drought areas becomes serious when it is recognized that it is practically impossible to rent or lease an economic farm unit in the Pacific Northwest without replacing present tenants," Duffy said.

"Few new settlers can finance purchase and development of unimproved lands or purchase of good farms from present operators."

"Their only alternative is to locate on cheap rangeland or agricultural land in submarginal areas where successful tenancy is impossible, or compete with local labor in farm and urban districts. This competition is already being protested by local labor groups."

Labor department estimates show that drought seasons in the great plains has forced more than 200,000 persons to migrate to other states and that further migration is expected because half a million persons are still dependent on Federal grants for their existence.

Five of the nation's six most wanted criminals are pictured above, the quarry of G-men, state police and local peace officers as they milled western states joined in a campaign against crime. His known companions are Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., and James Dalhove. Hank Gant and Alva Dewey Hunt, brothers-in-law, are wanted as leaders of a mob operating chiefly in the southwest for 17 years.
